GERMAN PASTORS ALL PREACHERS OF HATE

Obliteration of England by Zeppelin Bombs and Submarines is Urged From Pulpits

Writing in England from knowledge gleaned in Germany, Mr. D. Thomas Curtin says: The unpleasant part played by the clergy, and especially the Lutheran pastors, needs to be explained to those who regard clerics as necessarily men of peace. The claim that the Almighty is on the side of Germany is not a new one. It was made as far back as the time of Frederick the Great. It found strong voice at the time of the Boer War, when the pastors issued a united manifesto virulently attacking England. These pastors are in communication with the German-American Lutherans in the United States, who exerted their influence to the utmost against the election of President Wilson, taking their instructions indirectly from the German Foreign Office.

It is almost as difficult to make people here understand war-preaching ministers as it is to make them comprehend war-teaching schoolmasters. The hate songs of the children are not as fierce as the hate hymns and prayers of the pastors. Do the public here realize that of the original Zeppelin fund, hundreds of thousands of Marks were subscribed in what answers to your churches and chapels, and that models of Zeppelins have formed portions of church decorations at festivals?

Dear Von Tirpitz

While I was in Germany I read a lengthy and solicitous letter from Pastor Winter, of Bruch, addressed to Admiral von Tirpitz, who was then said to be unwell, but whose illness was really only a diplomatic one. The good pastor expressed the hope that his early recovery would permit the admiral to continue his noble work of obliterating England. The clergy are instructed not to attack France or Russia, and so it comes about that, as I have previously pointed out, in Prussia, Hanover, Schleswig-Holstein, Brandenburg, and Saxony, the pastors of the Protestant State Churches, Reformed and Lutheran alike, preach hatred of England as violently in their pulpits as in their pastoral visit.

The German Navy League, an aggressive body which had gathered around it more than a million members previous to the war, stirred up anti-English feeling by means of leaflets, newspaper articles, kinematograph exhibitions, and sermons. Among the bitterest of the preachers are returned missionaries from British pos-

INDIFFERENT MOTHER

Answer the Child's Questions—He Wants to Know

A lady in speaking of unresponsive mothers, gives the following incident: Our train was crossing a bridge and at the same moment an impudent looking little tug shot out from beneath the arches, straightening its funnel. "Oh, mother," exclaimed a small boy who had hitherto been sunk in apathy. "Why does it do that?"

"I don't know, get your bag out," answered his mother, without turning her head; and the child sank back into his former state of stolid stupor.

It was not the first time I have noticed and wondered at the fearful amount of harm which must be wrought by the unresponsive mother. She is a nearly extinct survival of a past generation. It might have been that the stolid small boy possessed in embryo the brain of an engineer or had the latent desire to become a sailor. At any rate he thirsted for information which was denied to him.

Doubtless his mother fed and clothed him—that was all. It was evident she was a purely negative influence, which is worse than none at all. She belonged, of course, to the "Children should be seen and not heard" period, and also, "Ask no questions and you'll hear no lies" era. It's wonderful to think that by these means children ever grow up at all! Certainly it says much for the determination of the human mind, that in face of this treatment, it did not in every case become atrophied for want of use.

Studebaker
Established 1852

For Your Convenience

A feature of the new Series 18 Studebaker cars which has attracted motorists everywhere, is the reversible front seat.

While both front seats are individual and built to conform to the contour of the passenger's back—the seat next to driver's may be turned over quickly and easily. This enables the occupant to sit facing forward or facing the tonneau.

No other car on the market offers you this convenience—it is an original idea, exclusive with Studebaker.

Both front seats are adjustable to all leg-lengths. When necessary, one or both may be lifted out of the car entirely. Many people on tours do this and sleep in the car itself.

Come in and see these new Studebaker cars—note the many improvements and refinements.

Chances of a return clash between Battling Johnson and Pete Scott are slim today. The Be tta grlbt o slim today. The Battler got back into town last night, and stated that he would not meet the Indian again unless he posted a big forfeit that he would enter the ring at 136 pounds. This Scott cannot do, and there doesn't appear to be a chance to hook them up again. Johnson brought his bride of a few days along with him.

The late-closing stakes of the Ontario Jockey club show a remarkable list of entries, with the Toronto cup having no less than 64 nominations. This race, which ranks second in interest and value to that of the King's Plate, has many high-class horses named, while such owners as A. K. Macomber, J. E. Madden, H. Oots, J. O. Keene, Mrs. L. A. Livingstone, H. C. Hallenbeck, R. F. Carman and others are represented.

The following is the list of nominations:

Toronto Cup, $7000 added, 1 mile and an eighth—64 entries.
mile and a sixteenth—56 entries.

Connaught Cup, $3000 added, 1

King Edward Hotel Gold Cup, $2000 added, 1 mile and a quarter—38 entries.

Minto Stakes, $2000 added, 1 mile and a sixteenth—37 entries.

Street Railway Steeplechase, $2000 added, 2½ miles—29 entries.

Tris Speaker and Hal Chase, 1910 batting champions in the American and National leagues, are facing sturdy opposition this year. Today's averages show that both of last year's batting kings must pick up considerably if they hope to set the pace.

Speaker has been leading the American league, but his failure to secure a single hit in two games Wednesday pulled him out of the lead and enable George Sisler and Jack McInnis to forge ahead of him.

In the National league Chase is not in the running as yet. Eddie Rousch, George Burns and Gavvy Cravath are the pace makers. Rousch, who hit .429 in his first twelve games, is still out with injuries. Burns is trailing Rousch with an average of .373 and Cravath is hitting .364.

Fielder Jones' contention that Geo. Sisler will make a strong bid for the batting honors in the American league is holding good so far. "Sis" is hitting .405.

As soon as the pugilistic world heard the news about Les Darcy's enlisting in the reserve aviation of the United States army, everybody sat up and took notice. Its been two weeks now since the wires brought the news from Memphis, and since that time the fight managers have been very busy. And now that Les has enlisted no charges of slacker can prevent him from taking on several of the ambitious gentlemen who have sought engagements with the Australian ever since he landed in this country. Several bouts in which Darcy will be the star performer, maybe, have been scheduled for June and July.

Fred Mitchell is doing as well as can be expected with the Cubs at the present time. There is one player that Mitchell can look forward to for big things, and that is Dutch Reuther, who took part in twenty-two games with the Salt Lake club last year and led the Pacific Coast League in batting, with an average of undoubted quality. When Vic Saier broke his leg, a month ago, Reuther volunteered to play first base. Mitchell promptly assigned him to the first sack, and Dutch played it like a veteran. At the same time his batting eye has kept up its excellent work. But Mitchell decided two weeks ago that Reuther was needed more on the mound, and so took over Fred Merkle for the work at first station.

Edward Grant Barrow, resident of the International League, was born at Springfield, Ill., on May 10, 1868, and you might say that he was born to be associated with baseball. From the very earliest he has been an enthusiast and in late years has been one of the staunchest upholders of organized baseball. Ed admits himself that he never was very much at playing the game himself but as a leader in the affairs of the national pastime he has certainly made his mark. Barrow's first experience as a baseball manager and team owner came in 1888, when he ran an independent team in DesMoines, Ia., known as the Stars. Barrow was accities until 1894, when he helped tive in business in Pittsburg and other George Moreland launch the Interstate League, of which he later became president. Hans Wagner played his first professional game with the Steubenville club of this league.

STUDY FOOD VALUES

In Cooking Vegetables Best is Often Thrown Away

To obtain the highest food value, potatoes should not be peeled. When peeled, there is least loss by putting directly into hot water and boiling quickly. Even then the loss is considerable. When potatoes are peeled and soaked in cold water the loss is very great. It has also been found that considerable losses occur in the boiling of other vegetables such as carrots, beets and parsnips. The loss in the mineral matter is serious, as vegetables furnish mineral materials from which teeth and bone are formed. Vegetables should be boiled in large pieces and in as small a quantity of water as possible.

Old Fashioned Pickle

Mix one pound of minced Spanish onion, one pound of minced apples and one ounce of chopped chillies. Boil one pint of white wine vinegar to which a dessertspoonful of salt has been added. When the mixture is quite cold, tie down in jars. It is ready for use the same day.

Mr. Norton was a very patient man and a long-suffering one. Mrs Norton provided a continuous flow of conversation. Finally the nerves of the poor man gave way and the physician was called.

"He must have complete rest, and undisturbed sleep," said the doctor, as he looked thoughtfully at the woman. "I will send up some sleeping powders, which must be used strictly according to directions. Will you promise me to do this, madam, or must I order him to the hospital?"

"Indeed I promise," cried Mrs. Norton cheerfully. "I will give them just as you direct, doctor."

When the box came from the druggist's the label read:

"Sleeping powders, to be taken night and morning—by Mrs. Norton."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

DOIG—HANSON.

A very pretty wedding took place at the new St. James' Methodist Church this morning when the pastor, Rev. Benj. Greatrix, united in marriage Miss Charlotte Edith Hanson and Mr. Herbert Francis Doig. The attendants were Mr. Audley Hanson, a brother of the bride, and Miss Florence Violette Blunt. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. A. Hanson. The wedding march was played by Miss Ada Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Doig left on a honeymoon trip, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Ross, of Newmarket, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elsie Gretchen to Mr. Edward A. Walker, of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto. The marriage to take place early in June.

Mr. E. R. Eaton, of Orillia, was a visitor to the city today.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Smith, of Campbellford, were in the city today.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Walters, of Montreal, are visiting friends in the city.

Mr. W. E. Ellis, of Gananoque, is in the city.

Mr. J. W. Gehl, of West Bend, Wis., is in the city.

F. A. M. Roblin has been appointed clerk of Brighton village in place of C. T. Lapp, editor and proprietor of the Brighton Ensign, who has enlisted with the Cobourg Heavy Battery.

Mr. and Mrs. Kipp, New York, have offered their island home near Gananoque for invalided Canadian soldiers, and will maintain it at their own expense. There is accommodation for sixty soldiers.

MEATLESS DAYS ARE PROPOSED

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF THE I. O. D. E. TAKE MATTER UP.

The Daughters of the Empire will not sit still and wait for the Government to act, apparently, in the conservation of food, for at a recent meeting of the National Council all members of this organization were called upon to observe two meatless and two potatoless days each week, and also to abstain from the use of veal and lamb. A resolution to that effect was unanimously passed. Believing that in the present crisis of the Empire, when hunger is staring the world in the face, and that it is absolutely necessary that all help possible be given those who are fighting the battles on the fields of France, and that increased production and greater economy at home is imperative, the Executive of the order has taken the initiative.

A copy of the resolution has been secured and read at meetings of the local branches.

SUNDAY PAPERS POSSIBLE.

Lord's Day Alliance To Be Asked to Relax Rules.

WINDSOR, May 12.—As a result of representations made to Attorney-General Lucas by Mayor Tuson and Alderman Howell, of Windsor, the citizens of the Canadian border cities may soon be able to purchase Detroit newspapers on Sundays without having to cross to Detroit. An arrangement by which newsboys may deliver papers Sunday morning up to 9 o'clock may be allowed by the Attorney-General if the Lord's Day Alliance will consent. Mr. Lucas, according to Alderman Howell, stated that he believed such an arrangement possible. Ald. Howell presented a petition asking for Sunday papers, which contained the sig- of Windsor and other border municipalities.

WORK OF THE RED CROSS

The regular monthly meeting of the Red Cross Executive will be held Monday, May 14, at 4.30 p.m. in the lecture room of the Public Library. As there is very important business to be discussed it is hoped that all the members will be present.

The War Contingent Association.

Many people are, it seems, still in doubt as to the work and value of the Canadian War Contingent Association and as to the scope of its operations, as compared with those of the Red Cross Society. The following information may, it is hoped, make clear to the many enquirers, the great and direct need that is served by this society, and indicate the harmonious and close relationship which exists between this and the Red Cross Society, while each continues to serve a district and separate purpose.

First of all, we cannot too strongly emphasize the advantage of sending whatever goods are intended for our men in the trenches, through the medium of this C. W. C. A. Special provision is made for the transportation of all Red Cross supplies, including goods intended for the work of the C. W. C. A., so that as far as possible, a safe and quick delivery is guaranteed, whereas we know that the transit of personal parcels and those of minor societies, is in these times, anything but certain. Then too, the question of expense cannot be neglected. These deliveries through the C. W. C. A. are, as sharing the privileges of the Red Cross, free, so that all money, so designated, goes for the purchasing of supplies, none being expended for the transportation.

It will perhaps be interesting to note that the A. W. C. A. was formed at the request of the British War Office in the first weeks of the war to look after the needs of Canadian soldiers on active service. Sir George Perley was the President and leading Canadian residents in England its members. Before the arrival of the first Canadian contingent, the C. W. C. A. undertook the equipment of the Queen's Canadian Hospital at Beachborough Park. With the arrival of the first contingent, however, the society began at once to attend to the needs of fighting men in camp and trench, just as the Red Cross was organized to look after the sick and wounded.

Meanwhile in Canada, the Canadian Red Cross Society found that the public regarded the Red Cross as the proper channel through which all goods for the soldiers, whether sick or well, fighting or prisoner, should pass. The Red Cross therefore had either to return goods and money sent in for fighting men or to send them on for distribution to some society, which could undertake this work. The National Service Committee consisting of presidents of Women's organizations, volunteered to take over the goods thus received and to transmit the funds and supplies to the C. W. C. A. in England. This arrangement continued until the end of 1916, when owing to the growing needs, the National Service Committee laid down its work in favor of a direct representation in Canada of the C. W. C. A.

The goods intended for fighting men may be consigned to the headquarters warehouses of the Canadian Red Cross Society, either in Toronto or St. John. In England the relations between the two societies have been of the friendliest and the commissioner of the Red Cross has received instructions to assist in the work of the C. W. C. A. as far as possible and to turn over to this association all goods shipped to them but not needed by the Red Cross and suitable for distribution in the trenches. Thousands of pairs of socks in particular, have been handed over to the C. W. C. A. under this arrangement, which results in a clearing house for all gifts for soldiers.

Without a doubt, the time has arrived for people in Canada to come to the aid of Canadians in England on whom the weight of providing for the contingent is resting. Nothing of course can or shall take the place of the individual parcel mailed direct to the individual soldier by his own friends, but a society, which looks after the needs of all Canadian units and not only of some special battalion or the men of some particular locality, has a strong claim on the generosity of Canadians.

"What do the men in the trenches need?" Comparatively few garments except socks; some towels and handkerchiefs are acceptable but the real need in the trenchs is for things to eat and read, to smoke and play with, to counteract the monotony of the life and to let the men feel that they are not forgotten, even if they have no immediate friends to send them parcels. To supply these needs, the C. W. C. A. requires money.

WORKERS AND SOLDIERS OBJECT TO EXILE OF ROYAL FAMILY.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Confidential intelligence received here through diplomatic channels discloses (according to the Foreign Affairs news service, a local organization) that the Russian Provisional Government's plan for deportation of the dethroned Czar and Czarina has been defeated, least temporarily, by the Council of Workmen and Soldiers' Delegates. The Government had decided, it was said, to banish the former ruler and his consort, together with their son, to England, which country had volunteered an asylum for them.

The reason for the Council's opposition to the banishment of the Royal family has been attributed to its desire to deprive them of a portion of their immense fortunes, a Commissioner having already been appointed to take over their domains. Their combined wealth is estimated to total $9,000,000,000, which formerly yielded them a prodigious income.

COLLECTING BY RULE

Cards containing causes in reference to the rules for the collection of garbage will be printed and sent to every householder for their guidance. As soon as they are received they should be tacked up in a conspicuous place for the benefit of those concerned.

Reported Wounded in To-day's List of Casualties.

The week-end list of casualties amongst our brave Canadians at the front, fighting in defence of the glorious principles of universal liberty and justice, regrettably includes the names of six more gallant Peterborough and district boys, two of whom have paid the supreme sacrifice for God, his king and country.

Casualties Grow Fast.

Ottawa reports that today's casualty list of 225 names contains 26 killed in action and 9 died of wounds.

LIEUT. G. M. HUYCKE.

This popular young lieutenant left Canada with the 33rd Batt. of Kingston, in October, 1915, taking a splendid draft of Canadian infantry. On June 1, 1916, he was sent to "Somewhere in France" where he gallantly served his country with the second Howitzer Battery of the First Canadian Division until wounded on the 10th of this month. The text of the department's notification to Judge Huycke yesterday of his son's condition reads as follows:

"We sincerely regret to inform you that Lieut. Geo. Meredith Huycke (artillery) is officially reported wounded, and admitted to the 7th Stationary Hospital at Boulogne, France, on May 10th, 1917. He is suffering from multiple gun shot wounds of a severe nature. Will send particulars when received.

Four Sons In Khaki.

Lieut. Arthur Huycke, the fourth son of Judge Huycke to don khaki, is home on short vacation. It is worthy of note that just as soon as reaching military age this patriotic young man entered the military college at Kingston, where he is now stationed.

PTE. W. R. BATTEN.

Mr. Albert W. Batten, of Cottesloe has received word that his son, Pte. William Richard Batten, is officially reported killed in action on April 9. Pte. Batten was born in Dummer twenty-three years ago and in 1912 went to Saskatoon. He enlisted there with the 96th Highlanders and was later transferred to the 13th Battalion. Deceased was a member of Warsaw L. O. L. No. 234, and also of the Norwood Scarlet Chapter. The sympathy of many friends in the community is extended to the bereaved family.

PTE. WALTER ROBINSON.

Mr. T. W. Robinson received word yesterday that his son, Pte. Walter has been wounded. Pte. Robinson left Canada with the 90th Winnipeg Battalion. It is not known where he was wounded or how serious the injury is. Pte. Robinson has been in France since last August with the 8th Canadian Batt.

PTE. GORDON CARTER.

The sad news reached the home of Mr. Wm. Carter today that his son, Pte. Gordon received a gunshot wound in the thigh and was admitted to Number Four Hospital, France, on April 30th. Private Carter went overseas with the 239th Infantry Batt., Cobourg.

SERGT. C. H. CAMPBELL.

Mrs. Edith Campbell, 501 Sherbrooke street, received word this morning that her son, Sergt. Chas. Henry Campbell, has been admitted into number 22 General Hospital, Camiers, with a gunshot wound in the face, though not serious.

Sergt. Campbell left Peterborough with the 93rd Battalion as a lance-corporal and since then has been promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Sergt. Campbell was instructing in England, but since January has been instructing in France.

THOS. E. CHAMBERS.

It fell to the lot of Adjt. McElhiney yesterday afternoon to convey to loved ones the sad news that gallant Gunner Thos. E. Chambers had died of wounds received in the battle front in France this afternoon. This information is official. The deceased's home is at 249 Park Street. He went overseas with the 93rd Battalion.

FIRE MIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS

CHILDREN WITH MATCHES SET FIRE TO WINDOW CURTAINS.

An incipient fire, which might have resulted in serious loss of property and also life, occurred Saturday evening at eight oclock through the thoughtlessness of Mr. and Mrs Frank Turner in leaving their little folk alone in their home, 39, Lafayette Street, and going shopping.

The children in playing with matches set fire to the window curtains which quickly broke out into a mass of flames. Fortunately the cries of the little folk quickly attracted the notice of willing neighbors, who extracted the youngsters from their dangerous surroundings and sent in an alarm. One babe was peacefully slumbering in bed.

On the fire brigade arriving the flames had been extinguished.

The home is the property of R. C. Braund.

No Probability of New Republic Quitting—War Minister Resigns.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 14.—The Russkaia Volia says that three German officers, a colonel, a captain and a lieutenant recently approached the Russian lines in the Dvinsko region with a white flag and asked for an interview with the commanding general for the purpose of opening pourparlers. They were received by General Dragomirif to whom they made vague statements about paving the way for more concerted negotiations with the Russian Government. The Germans suggested a neutral point be decided upon for opening negotiations. General Dragomiroff bluntly rejected their proposals declaring they involved treachery to Russia's allies and sent the convoys back to their own lines.

NO SEPARATE PEACE.

Semi Official News Agency today gave out the following: "The report that the council of workmen and soldiers delegates has called for an armistic is denied. The question of an armistice has never been raised by the council which on contrary is engaged at present in drafting an appeal to the soldiers at the front, pointing out the inadvisability of separate peace or of fraternizing with the enemy."

WAR MINISTER RESIGNS.

General Guchkoff, minister of war, has resigned.

In announcing his resignation at yesterday's meeting of the Congress of delegates from the front, M. Guchkoff read the following letter sent by him to Premier Lvoff. "In view of the condition in which the powe of the government has been placed, especially the authority of the Minister of War, in relation to the army and navy, a condition which I am powerless to alter and which threatens to have consequences fatal to the defence of liberty and even the existnce of Russia, I can no longer exercise the functions of minister of war and marine and share the responsibility for the grave sins being committed against the country

Concussion of Bombardment Felt in England---Hun Attacks Grow Weaker.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 14.—British naval forces destroyed Zeppelin L 22 in the North Sea this morning according to the official statement issued by the admiralty. The concussion of the bombardment at Zeebruggee Saturday was felt at Dover and neighboring coast places in quite an unusual manner. It is believed the heaviest naval artillery was employed. The reports say the harbor was rendered useless.

WEARY OF SLAUGHTER.

British Headquarters in France, May 14.—Since the British victory on Saturday the German counterattacks have lacked much of their recent fierceness. The number of prisoners taken during this time has been exceptionally large for the character of the operations and the number of troops involved. These may merely be coincidences or it may be that the Germans have become tired of sending so many of their troops to their death in massed formation. The German soldiers have been fighting very stoutly since reserves were thrown into the Arras area. The heat wave in the righting district has been brogen by a series of thunderstorms.

MORE PRISONERS TAKEN.

LONDON, May 14.—Hostile raids were repulsed last night north east of Epehy and north of Ypres, says today's official statement. "We secured a few prisoners and progressed during the night in Roeux village on the Arras front."

SHIPPING IN THE NORTH SEA.

LONDON, May 14.—German and Austrian ship owners have lately resumed shipping to the North Sea, according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Daily Mail. Nine German and one Austrian steamer are said to have entered the hook of Holland last week while six sailed. Most of the arrivals were from Hamburg, Bremen and the Baltic.

FORMER BOMBARD LENS.

Canadian Headquarters in France (via London), May 14.—In the important operations of the past two days north of the Scarpe the Canadians had no part, except that the long-range artillery on this front was used in the hope that the enemy might be squeezed out of Lens by an advance north and south of the town, leaving it in a pocket. This hope has not been justified by events. The enemy has clung tenaciously to the town for a month, since the battle of Vimy Ridge, and seems determined to maintain his hold until his losses from our artillery fire become ruinously great. An entire division of Germans is quartered in Lens and its outskirts. All lines of communication above ground are under constant fire from our guns.

There are no civilians left in Lens. The southern part of the town is in ruins, and recent aerial photographs show that, as before the evacuation of important towns in the Somme region two months ago, mines have been exploded under the chief highway. Thus, all preparations are made for the sudden departure of the enemy. His losses from gun fire are becoming severe, and his men captured in the vicinity say their garrison is most pessimistic.

While our men are fighting north and south of the Scarpe an attack was made by the English and Scots at Bullecourt, supported by Australians on their flank. The English and Scottish troops advanced from the south and west and drove forward through the village, establishing themselves first on the road, which runs through the centre of the ruins, and then going forward again to the line at the extreme north of the village, from which they have pushed outposts. The place is a rabbit warren of tunnels, in which there may still be Germans holding out, cut off from all chance of escape. When our men got through the enemy ran up tunnels hoping to get away to Reincourt, but by this time the Australians had just come up and captured a crowd of them numbering two officers and over 180 men and bayoneting a number who refused to surrender and fought like tigers. This morning at 8.30 the German artillery put up a heavy barrage on the north-east end of the village and launched an attack, which was immediately smashed by gunfire. Only twelve men came within bombing distance, and of these nine were killed outright, while three were wounded, the men having since died from the wounds after being taken prisoners.

2 MOTOR CARS AND CHEESE BOX WAGON IN A MIX-UP

Mr. Geo. Mather and David Beavis Severely Injured---Autos Are Damaged to Extent of $250.

Two motor cars and a cheese box waggon were badly damaged Saturday evening, and three men injured, when Mann's cheese box waggon ran away from the G.T.R. station, Charlotte Street.

The team took fright at the rattle of the empty waggon, apparently, dashed out of the station yard and along Charlotte Street, and turned down Aylmer, colliding with Mr. Geo. Mather's motor car, which was stationary on the east side of the road, immediately south of Charlotte Street.

Mr. Mather at the time was standing in the road examining his machine with his back to the on-coming team. Consequently he was crushed between the two conveyances, sustaining several broken ribs and a badly bruised back. The car was damaged to the extent of $150.

Adamson and Dobbin's motor delivery also suffered in the mix-up, and they are claiming $100 damages. The driver, William Buller, was proceeding northward, and, seeing the runaway turn the corner, he drew up behind Mr. Mather's car to avoid disaster. The impact of the collision, however, backed Mr. Mather's machine into his, and Buller's arm suffereded a slightly injured arm.

Mr. Mann's rig was badly demolishd, the rack being separated from the fore wheels, and the former rendered temporarily useless. The driver, William Beavis, is rather badly hurt. He was thrown to the ground, the waggon wheels passing over his left foot and thigh, but no bones were broken. Dr. Greer was

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND LOST BY FOE ON FRENCH FRONT IN TWO WEEKS

Month's Losses Even Greater and Figures Given Are Conservative Official Estimate.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 14.—A News Agency despatch published here today is as follows:

"With the French Armies in the Field, May 14.—Germany lost 200,000 men in killed, wounded and captured in the period from April 16 to May 1, on the French front alone. In the two weeks since May 1, is estimate today her additional losses have been proportionately greater even than this staggering mortality.

The figures on which this estimate are based are those of headquarters. They are conservative and the totals may be much more.

Between April 16 and 27 it is known the Germans were forced on account of losses to withdraw twenty divisions, approximately 300,000 men from the front, replacing them with fresh reserves. Since that date more than a dozen additional divisions have been similarily replaced. Many German divisions have been practically wiped out."

GERMANS CHECKED.

PARIS, May 14. — The official statement says: "There was usual cannonading along the whole front. We repulsed strong German reconnoitering parties which were attempting to approach our lines at various points northeast of Vauxaillon, west of Craonne near Sapigneul and in Champagne, southwest of Nauroy. All these attempts were checked completely by our fire. Enemy suffered heavy losses and left prisoners in our hands."

HORRORS OF LIFE IN GERMAN PRISON CAMPS

With the British Armies in France, May 14.—Three Brit. soldiers who have just succeeded in escaping from the German prison camp a few miles back of the fighting lines tell a pitiable story of treatment by the enemy. They declared there was a great deal of sickness in camp due to fatigue and starvation. The sick men are thrashed with whips and struck with the butt end of rifles. French prisoners are constantly employed just back of the firing line, and suffer many casualties.

CANON CORNISH BIDS FAREWELL

PRAYS FOR AN ABUNDANT CROP IN DEFENCE OF ALLIES' CAUSE.

Cannon Cornish preached his farewell sermon in St. John,s Church last evening, when a very large audience was present.

The Litany was sung in a very pleasing manner, and evening prayers eliminated.

Yesterday being Rogation Sunday a day of supplication for an abundant harvest, the reverend gentleman dealt mainly with that subject. Applying his text to existing conditions, he opined that should there be a great shortage of crops this year the whole world will be effected, and famine universally prevail. Hence the call to prayers for a plentiful food supply from mother earth, especially so on this continent, in support of the glorious principles for which the Allies are struggling.

PRAISE FOR CHORISTERS

At the conclusion of the evenng service last night in St. John's, the Rev. Canon Cornish addressed the choristers in the vestry. "I know full well from experience what it is to be supported by a good choir, and in tht face of so many members at the front, it is wonderful that you are keeping up your work so splendidly. The choir has been an inspiration, and given me valuable assistance during my stay in the parish, and I heartily thank you for your faithful services under the skilfu leadership of Mr. Devy, your organist. I feel sure that during the interval that may elapse before the return of your rector from the war, you will give the same loyal service to the church as before, and I feel that I have the friendship of you all."

Canon Cornish then bade farewell to each of the choristers, who all feel great regret at parting with him after such pleasant relations for over a year.

SAW ZEPPELIN IN SMOKE CLOUD

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, May 14.—A Zeppelin with three gondolas enveloped in heavy smoke was sighted to-day at Terschelling, Holland, a Reuter despatch from Harlingen, Holland, reports. When the smoke disappeared fifteen minutes later the Zeppelin was no longer to be seen.

COST OF FUEL IN OPERATIONS LAST WEEK WAS 50 CENTS AN ACRE.

The tractor plow that was working on the farm of Mr. J. A. Wilson in Otonabee last week has been moved to the farm of Mr. R. B. Rogers, on the outskirts of Ashburnham, and operations began there today. A field of 18 acres was plowed for Mr. Wilson and in this work 44 gallons of kerosene, at 18 cents a gallon were used as fuel. This means an outlay of $7.92 for fuel alone or nearly 50 cents an acre. The test, however, is hardly a fair one as the plow did not work steadily while on the Wilson farm. When everything is in working order it can turn over eight acres of land a day.

Mr. W. H. Walters, the licensed engineer who was in charge of the tractor last week, has given up the job and returned to Toronto. The Department will send out another expert to operate it.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Balfour and members of the British mission arrived in Washington early today from New York. They are to remain here for several days longer when they will probably leave for Canada and England. They were very enthusiastic over the warmth of their reception in New York.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 14, 1917

MR. WEARING FAVORS AN ELECTION.

IN ANOTHER COLUMN in this issue there is printed a communication from Mr. Joseph Wearing dealing with the question of holding a general Federal election in the near future as against the proposition to extend the life of the present Parliament for another year. Mr. Wearing naturally favors an election, a stand which is taken generally by members of his party, at least by those who are anxious to take a chance on a restoration of the Liberals to power. He not only believes that the time is ripe for giving the public an opportunity to pass an opinion on the questions now before them, but he is convinced that the present Government should be turned out of office.

It strikes us that Mr. Wearing's argument fails him at the very outset when he sets out to justify his own party in consenting to an extension a year ago. The necessity for united action at that time, he says, was paramount, as the superiority of the British at the front was not then established.

The necessity of which Mr. Wearing speaks was never more urgent that it is today. It is true that the British army has since Easter Sunday accomplished marvels in military achievements in France, and that the Canadian troops have covered themselves with glory, but the list of casualties has been frightful and the ranks are being thinned every day by the fire of an implacable foe. Since the memorable church festival of a few weeks since the records show that over sixteen thousand Canadians are either dead or in the hospital. Nearly sixteen battalions have been put out of the battle line. Surely the occasion calls for more united action than ever to fill up the gaps in the ranks. Canada has a higher duty than declaring a holiday for the politicians who appear to regard party sucess as the supreme issue.

When the Liberals in Parliament consented to an extension a year ago, the sentiment that animated the majority of them was not one of patriotism, it is to be feared. They were convinced that their party had no chance for success, otherwise their assent would have been withheld. They evidently think now that there has been a change in public opinion, that the people are growing uneasy under the burden of war and are ready for a change, believing, as Mr. Wearing apparently does, that if a change was not for the better it at least could not bring about a condition much worse.

Mr. Wearing arraigns the Government for what he calls its lack of backbone to initiate some form of compulsory service. The Government has the responsibility of office. The Opposition have not, and yet the Liberal party has lacked the stamina that appeals to Mr. Wearing. Has any prominent member of that party, has any leading journal on the Opposition side, ever openly declared for conscription in any form?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's own province and compatriots have made a sorry showing in the records of enlistment. The veteran leader of the Opposition has refused to co-operate with the Government in war work. He has made no effective appeal to the French-Canadians to get into uniform, and, lacking the word from their guide, philosopher and friend, the French-Canadians have remained inert. He has held alleged recruiting meetings in his province, it is true, but these invariably assumed the complextion of political gatherings in which Sir Wilfrid never lost an opportunity to foment racial and other differences. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking at Quebec, was not the same Sir Wilfrid while addressing a meeting in London or some other point in Ontario. This craft of the expert politician rather than the patriotism of the statesman has been his distinguishing characteristic ever since the war broke out.

What has Mr. Wearing or his party to expect from their own leaders in the way of compulsory military service, when, even in Opposition, with their weather eyes on Quebec, they lack the courage to urge that policy upon the Government?

Within the past few weeks the official records show that upwards of twenty battalions have been sent from Canada to Europe. That certainly proves that the Government is neither lax nor indifferent to the supreme duty of the hour. The places of these units are to be taken by recruits raised for home defence under the Militia Act. The country may be nearer a form of conscription than Mr. Wetring either imagines or is ready to admit, and conscription is what he apparently regards as essential.

A BUSINESS GOVERNMENT.

"WE WANT A GOVERNMENT of business men," say the members of the Opposition, as one reason for a general election. A government in which the best business talent of the country is represented is what Canada has.

Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, long before he was induced to enter politics, was recognised as one of the leading financial men in the Dominion.

The largest business organization in Canada today is the Imperial Munitions Board, which so far has let contracts aggregating over eight hundred million dollars. This board is headed by Mr. J. W. Flavelle of Toronto, admittedly one of the foremost business men in Ontario, and he has as his assistant chairman one of Quebec's leading captains of industry, Mr. C. B. Gordon. They are both outstanding men in the business world and have surrounded themselves with some of the ablest of the younger generation in the commercial arena.

The Munitions Board has undertaken at the request of the Government the building of a fleet of wooden ships on the Pacific Coast to help solve the transportation problem. Ten million dollars as a starter has been loaned by Sir Thomas White. The organization of this tremendous undertaking has been placed in the hands of one of the leading business men in British Columbia, Mr. R. F. Butchart, of Victoria, general manager of the Pacific Coast Cement Company.

When the Pensions Board was organized, involving a work which will mean the expenditure of millions of dollars annually, one of the best known business men in Canada, Mr. J. K. L. Ross, the patriotic Montreal millionaire, who has given freely of his time and his money to the cause of Canada and the Allies, was selected as chairman.

Another example of the manner in which the business brains of the country have been utilised by the Government is that of the War Purchasing Commission, of which Sir Edward Kemp is still chairman. He has associated with him Mr. H. L. Laporte, one of the best known French-Canadian business men, and Mr. George Galt, of Winnipeg, a leader in the commercial world of Western Canada.

Still another instance of the use of business men is to be found in the appointment of J. W. Lorcross, general manager of the Canada Steamship Company, as business adviser to the Government in the construction of a large fleet of vessels for patrol and other defence work.

Admittedly, a commission which has done splendid work in caring for returned soldiers and re-training discharged soldiers has been the Military Hospitals Commission, which has been composed of prominent business men from all parts of Canada, who have generously given their services without remuneration.

CANADA'S JUBILEE.

THE SCHOOLS of the Province are expected to celebrate the jubilee of Confederation on Empire Day, May 23, with special exercises, a program for which has been suggested by the Department of Education. It is assumed that the public will be invited to these exercises, especially in the afternoon. hTey will consist of Scripture reading, prayer, patriotic songs, and lessons in history and geography dealing with the various provinces before and since the British North America Act was passed in 1867 and the subsequent changes that have taken place. A sketch of the life of the late Sir John A. Macdonald will be one of the features.

The Department of Education has issued a pamphlet in connection with the proposed celebration, giving a brief history of Canada and sketches of the eminent statesmen who were foremost in bringing order out of national chaos by making Confederation a fact.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

THE REVIEW begs leave to call to the attention of Mr. Joseph Wearing and other local Liberals who are in favor of an election the following opinions from public men in England with reference to the same subject. Conditions in the Motherland are no different than they are in the Dominion. Here are the opinions:

> This is not the time to talk of convictions which divide us.—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George.
> The task we have on hand is too formidable to permit of any distraction of mind or dispersion of energy by the nation. All other considerations must give way to the supreme necessity of united effort.— Manchester Guardian (Liberal).
> Any public man who at this moment nourishes any thought except that of waging war against the enemy by the most effective means should never be forgiven by his countrymen.—Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill.

THE SUBMARINE MENACE.

> Britain has been treating the submarine menace by the old-fashioned poultice method. It will never do. The submarine is an infection, and it must be treated directly, like any other disorder of that kind.
> The breeding places of the submarines, their exits, will have to be cleaned out, as were the Barbary pirates' lairs by virile Americans one hundred years ago. Doubtless there are ways of doing this. At any rate, the penalty for not doing it is already severe.—Chicago News.

"THE BREEDING PLACES and the exits" of the Barbary pirates one hundred years ago were not guarded by strong fortresses and heavy guns. The ships that carried the black flag rode on the surface of the water, not out of sight beneath it. The deadly torpedo was unknown. The crafty pirate of the last century was an angel of light, a gentleman of honor, compared to the kultured German of today. The submarine menace is a new problem in warfare. Of course, as the Chicago News says, there may be ways to circumvent it. The United States is now in a position in which the peril is its own just as it has been ever since the Lusitania was sent to the bottom. If England has applied the poultice method the Americans have for over two years contented themselves with nothing more to the purpose than absent treatment.

STANDARDS FOR WOMEN WORKERS

Patriotic women of America are rallying to serve the nation in heartening numbers and in various directions.

Among the women who are thus metaphorically digging trenches in preparation for America's share in the glorious struggle to internationalize American ideals, perhaps no group is more in earnest than the committee on women in industry, appointed by Samuel Gompers to safeguard, during war times, the standards for working women. The experience of Europe has taught the women of this committee the toll that has been paid for war time "speeding up" and the breakdown of safeguards painfully builded by a century's efforts and sacrifice for industrial standardization.

Not a few of the members of this committee are veterans in patriotic service, having been through many a year's campaign for industrial democracy, safety, justice and peace, in this great, young, careless, awkward, wasteful and ruthless land of "prosperity." It is inspiring to consider the plans and preparations which they are launching.

The committee in question specializes on the safeguarding of industrial standards. Though co-operating with all other national women's committees and offering them opportunity to assist the labor committee, it is the authoritative "committee on conservation of standards," with which will be co-ordinated standard conservation committees appointed through councils of defense working under governors of the various states.

The national chairman of this committee is Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. She called the first general meetings for May 4 and 5 in Washington. The response came from all classes of women. And from every different point of view all were fervent believers in the preservation of industrial standards. Employers testified to the larger, better and steadier output and the economy from the elimination of friction and "turnover" and strikes, where labor standards are conserved; and they pointed to the grave crisis brought on in war times abroad by strikes against bad conditions and low wages. Physicians and university economists dwelt upon the scientifically proved facts of the deteriozation of a race where industrial standards are low. Trade union women scouted the idea that we should fight for the rights of small and weak nations while forgetting the rights of industrial workers at home and making orphans here by death dealing industrial poison, long hours and minimum wages."

EDITOR'S MAIL.

Editor Review: My attention has been drawn to a request in your paper on the part of our Federal member for an expression of opinion as to the desirability of another extension of Parliament.

It may be taken for granted that there must be some extraordinarily good reason for an extension at any time. Conditions must be of such a serious character that an election would prejudice in a very vital way the interests of the country. These conditions existed at the time Parliament was extended, and can easily be indicated. In the first place the British had not reached in any degree the superiority they now have at the front, and it was a matter of life and death that the flow of men from this Dominion be not interfered with in any way. In the second place recruiting in this country was steady at the time and there were battalions constantly going overseas to help to strengthen the British line in Flanders. It is known that certain elements in the Conservative party most ardently wished an election; but the feeling throughout the country was so strongly opposed to the idea that both parties came together and we had an extension.

My opinion is that not only is there no extraordinarily good reason for another extension of Parliament, but, on the other hand, there are the best reasons why we should have an election. None can say that conditions are now of such a character than an election is going to prejudice the interests of the country. New Zealand survived an election; Australia has silenced her critics by an election which vindicated Hughes; it would be ridiculous to suggest that an election can hurt us in any way. I myself heard our Federal member say that there was no reason why people should become hysterical during an election; and I myself say that it is to our shame if we disgrace ourselves at election times by giving free rein to our prejudices and passions, and forgetting there are such things as reason and truth.

These are the reasons I offer for an election: (1) The country needs a shaking up. Recruiting is dead, and we are mostly concerned in winning the war by reading the newspapers and earning all we can. (2) It is high time that the Government gave an account to the electors of their stewardship. There are many people who belitve that their present unaccountable activity is an intolerable breach of trust. (3) There is certainly no noticeable mandate from the people for an extension. My own observations lead to the conclusion that people are either apathetic or in favor of an election.

Having given some reasons why we should have an election I wish to add some reasons why the present Government should be turned out of office. (1) In the face of tremendous losses at the front, precious months are being wasted because the Government has not the back bone to initiate some measure of compulsory service. (2) With the prospect of famine ahead of us and labor conditions in a chaotic state, there has been practivally nothing done to distribute labor as would be possible since the National Service cards were signed. (3) With the prices of food stuffs and other materials such as to cause constant apprehension, and even terror, no adequate steps are being taken to conserve present resources, prevent waste, or control monopoly. (4) After more than two years of war conditions, and in spite of the example of Great Britain to guide us, we have the same mismanagement, lack of system, public waste and party jockeying as in times of peace. The present Government is giving to the world a sorry exhibition of the weakness of democratic government, and makes one wonder at times if, after all, we are yet fit to govern ourselves. It is no answer to indicate how much we have done since the war broke out; we should have done twice as much.

I am not so foolish as to suggest that if the Liberals had been in power things would have been better. I have no means of knowing what the Liberals would have done. At any rate, the party in power must accept the responsibility for present conditions and cannot escape this responsibility by any reference to other times or other parties. What we want is a government which will introduce system and economy for disorganization and waste; which will have the courage to face the need for men at the front, and to provide the necesary reinforcements; which will rise to the unexampled requirements of the times and prove, as Great Britain is proving, that democracy can become as efficient as the circumstances demand. We have now only two parties in this country. The Conservatives are not measuring up, and we must preforce try the Liberals. If they in turn do not measure up, we must try something else as is being done in the motherland.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH WEARING

An Apology.

Editor Review:—

I am certainly sorry that I ever wrote that letter on the local dog question that appeared in your paper Friday. If I had known it was going to throw the poet-laureate of the police force into a case of literary delirium tremens I would never have penned it. The official versifier of Chief Thompson's brigade is Silas Weggish rather than Tennysonian in his production and to the reading public I extend an apology feeling as I do that I am to a certain extent an accessory before the fact in the violence that has been done to the rules of versification.

I will agree with the poet-laureate that the individual is safe from their revolver fire only when they aim at him and not at something in the other county or at a dog in full flight.

Our local Silas Wgg, unfortunately, in his effusions, lacks the friendly spirit that induced his illustrious prototype to drop occasionally into verse.

The Use of Cigarettes.

Editor Review:—

Next Sabbath the different Sunday Schools throughout the city will be studying the temperance lesson. It is the desire of the Sunday School Association that the matter of the use of tobacco, especially by young men and boys, be particularly discussed.

The smoking habit is usually learned through the use of cigarettes. In 1900 about 116,000,000 of these were used annually in Canada. In 1915 1,088,858,656, according to government statistics, were used. Upon those imported the government collected a duty of $4,065,824.39. Since the war began there has been a tremendous increase in the consumption of cigarettes. This is, no doubt, due to increased circulation of money but after all indicates a great waste. Our country since the war began has borrowed several hundreds of millions of dollars and the interest on this vast sum is enormous, but the sums paid for cigars and cigaretes per annum would far more than pay this interest.

The matter should engage the attention of every Sunday School teacher, as the tobacco habit has a particularly baneful influence upon the mental, moral, and physical stamina of the boys. Thrift and economy are important items these days. It takes only fifty-five men, each using 5 cents worth of tobacco per day, to smoke away $1000 worth a year.

THE SLACKER.

It's most unpleasant to be shot, or slashed up with a sword; when battle rages, loud and hot, the tinhorn man is bored. His neighbors gallop to enlist, all eager for the fray. "I'll stay at home," he says, "I wist; I have no wish to slay." And while the war is going on, and brave men sternly fight, he loafs at ease upon his lawn, and sleeps in bed at night. He's thankful that the stress and strife are far removed from him, that he can lead a peaceful life in times that are so grim. But when the battles all are done, and peace is here again, and from the scenes of triumphs won return the fighting men, when to their homes the heroes jog, with laurels on each brow—oh happier a yellow dog than is the slacker now! "From danger's path I was exempt," the slacker oft hath said, "but now men view me with contempt—I would that I were dead! I would that I had sought the scrap and sailed in, hit or miss; and if they'd shot me off the map, 'twere better far than this!" Ere you succumb to craven fears, to dread of strife and pain, think, think of all the future years, and of the world's disdain!

An Eminent French Canadian

SENATOR THE HON F. L. BEIQUE.
NEW DIRECTOR OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

THE French-Canadians have always taken a close personal interest in the fortunes of what they call for short "Le Pacifique," just as the English have abbreviated the Canadian Pacific Railway into the more familiar C. P. R. It is, therefore, only right that they should be represented on the board of directors, and no more fitting representative of the race could be found than Senator, the Hon. Frederic Ligori Béique, whose career has been one of such distinction in so many paths of life. Lawyer, business man, and philanthropist, interested in many charities, his days have been, and continue to be, full of useful labors in the upbuilding of his native country and in promoting the welfare of her people. His is one of those versatile natures, which, paradoxical as the expression may appear, is only at rest when in the midst of labor.

F. L. Béique, the son of Louis Béique, was born in St. Mathias, Rouville County, Quebec, on May 20th, 1845. Acquiring his education at the College de Ste. Marie de Monnoir, he chose law for his profession, and later on became an L.L.D. of Laval University. He was called to the bar in 1868, and made a King's Counsellor for the Province of Quebec in 1885, and for the Dominion of Canada in 1889. Accurate knowledge, sound judgment and clear speaking made him one of the leading lawyers of his period. His brothers in the legal profession have recognized this. From 1891 to 1893 he was Batonnier of the Bar in the district of Montreal.

Senator Béique has been engaged as counsel in many celebrated cases. He repeatedly pleaded before the Privy Council in England; he was a member of the Royal Commission in the famous Whelan case of 1890; as counsel for the late Hon. H. Mercier and his colleagues who were accused in connection with the Baie des Chaleurs Railway by the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, in 1891, he won a wide reputation; in 1896 and 1897 he was counsel for the Dominion before the Behring Sea Claims Commission. For years he had worked in partnership with Sir Louis Jetté, and he still energetically pursues his legal practice. Referring to Senator Béique the "Montreal Star" says: "As a commercial lawyer he has few if any peers."

Not less successful as a business man, Senator Béique has been associated with numerous commercial enterprises. With the late David Morrice, and the late A. F. Gault he took a prominent part in guiding the destinies of the V. Hudon Cotton Company, the Hochelaga Cotton Company, the St. Ann's Cotton Company, the Canadian Colored Cotton Company (now the Canadian Cottons), the Dominion Cotton Mills Company; and as lawyer for all these concerns and a director of some of them, his influence has been strong in pointing out the channels through which business should be conducted. As a member of the board of directors of the Royal Electric Company he was one of those mainly responsible for its development. He promoted the Chambly Manufacturing Company and with Sir Herbert Holt, was amongst the first to discover the possibilities of its hydraulic power. Again, with Sir Herbert Holt, he was one of those mainly responsible for the building up of the Montreal Park and Island Railway Company; many real estate concerns owe their existence to this financier. He is vice-president of the Bank of Hochelaga and of La Sauvegarde Insurance Company. He has occupied and is presently occupying the position of director in several other companies.

It would be difficult to enumerate the different public welfare societies which have benefited by his zeal. During his presidency of St. Jean Baptiste Society the Monument National was erected in connection therewith, and the society became a powerful, useful and leading social and educational institution. It was also under his presidency that La Caisse Nationale D'Economie was established and became an important and evergrowing society.

As a director of Montreal Technical School from its inception the work of Senator Béique has achieved valuable results. In the care of the sick he takes a deep interest and is a governor of the Montreal General Hospital and of the Notre Dame Hospital. He has been a Catholic School Commissioner, a director of the Parks and Playgrounds Association, vice-president of the Charity Organization Society, and vice-president of the League for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. He was formerly a director of the Montreal Citizens Association. In 18[illegible] to the Senate by Lord Minto where he has occupied the position of chairman of the Railway Committee. He continues to take a leading part on all the important committees and in everything that relates to legislation.

Senator Béique has always been a believer in the Canadian Pacific Railway, and for many years has been a large shareholder of the company. On the directing body he succeeds the late Honourable Robert MacKay. If death has taken away one gifted mind from the C. P. R. another ripe in experience and wisdom has succeeded.

In 1875 the then Mr. Béique married Miss Caroline Angelinae Desaulles, Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England, who takes a prominent part in many social spheres. They have been blessed with a family of seven sons, who are living, and two daughters. Captain Victor Béique, one of the youngest of the boys, largely helped in the recruiting of the 69th French-Canadian Battalion, now overseas, and Captain Béique is now fighting in the country from which his forefathers originally came.

"A maker of Canadian history." That is how the "Montreal Herald" has described Senator Béique. The footsteps of the seventy-one years of his life have passed so lightly over his countenance that one would not think they had all trodden there. He is a man of active frame, medium height, and a physique that is more remarkable for its energy than for its strength. He moves with a quiet step, and the attitude in which you invariably find him is one of gentleness and kindness. The geniality of his manner makes the most timid of his interviewers feel at ease. He is an attentive listener, and is always capable of putting himself in the other fellow's place. One might say that he is one of those who would inspire men to do things because they are happy to follow his guidance rather than because they may feel it incumbent on themselves to obey his commands." Were it possible to build material monuments to generous doings on the sympathetic side of existence, the spiritual course of Senator Béique might be marked with memorials great as those which stand to his temporal achievements. French is his mother tongue, but he speaks English with a fluent harmonious voice.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

SAVING THE LEAVINGS

French Maid Gives Long Lesson in Economy

"Whatever do you save all those things for?" questioned Marjorie of Marie as the French maid showed her a great many piles of seemingly useless stuff in the cellar of her aunt's home. "They are all of use," replied Marie, "and you have no idea how much can be saved in household bills by utilizing many things that are ordinarily thrown away. In ninety-nine households out of a hundred, potato parings, orange peel, tea leaves, coffee grounds, soot ashes and half a dozen similar products go to swell the pile in the garbage pail or dust bin. Potato parings and orange peel, dried, make excellent fire lighters and save wood; to dry them put them in a bag or piece of newspaper and lay them on the kitchen range rack or in the oven.

"Tea leaves have a small fertilizing value if thrown on the garden. But a better use for them is to mix them with coal dust and use them for a fire backing. In the cellar or shed there is quite certain to be some coal dust. This can be mixed with the tea leaves and burned in the kitchen fire.

"Coffee grounds should be dried in the oven and put into a tin. With a pinch of bicarbonate of soda added they are an excellent substitute for knife-cleaning powder. There is nothing better than ashes for polishing brass, steel and copper. Newspapers, envelopes and paper of every description should never be thrown away. Waste paper is eagerly bought. Get a sack which any waste-paper house will furnish you, and stuff every bit into it."

Coffee made from water that has been boiled will not have so good a flavor as if made with water at the first boil.

Devilled Bananas

Melt two tablespoons of butter, add 1 tablespoon of chopped red pepper, 1 teaspoon of chopped pickle, 1 chopped olive, 1 teaspoon of table sauce and ½ teaspoon of salt. Cook 1 minute, then add four bananas cut in thick slices and cook about five minutes longer.

If a teaspoonful of lemon juice is added to boiling rice it will not only whiten the grains but will give them a more pleasant flavor.

IN MAKING OMELETS

In making an omelet the pan must be dry, hot and smooth; the least roughness will cause the omelet to stick. To make sure of these necessities heat a bit of lard or suet in a clean pan, simmer for a few minutes, then remove it and wipe the pan dry with a towel. A great many dishes can be made from the simple, plain omelet, not only for breakfast uses, but also for desserts at dinner. Most of the additions are made to the omelet just before it is folded and while the top is moist and readily receives the different ingredients. It consists of the beaten egg with a little milk, water and cream or melted butter added, quickly cooked in a little fat or butter in a suitable pan and folded over so that it may be turned out of the pan in a half round form. Some cooks insist that the best omelets are made by using hot water instead of milk or cream.

ONTARIO BABE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Jarvis Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured Her Delicate Child When Nothing Else Could

Mrs. Jarvis, Box 544, Penetang P.O., Ontario, writes: "It is a pleasure to tell you what Dr. Cassell's Tablets have done for my baby. When only five months old he fell ill, and though I had medical advice for him he got worse. I tried several special foods, but none of them would stay on his stomach, and he became so thin that he seemed just skin and bone. He only weighed 10 pounds, and we never thought he could live. But chancing to hear of Dr. Cassell's Tablets I got some for baby, and am thankful I did. He is a bonny boy now, quite cured, and weighs 25 pounds at twelve months old."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul St., Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis, Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. MILLIONS FROM FARMS OF CANADIAN WEST

Prairie Provinces Stand to Gain From Flax Paper Idea—Many Uses For Flax Straw

E. B. Biggar writes: The present product of flax straw in the Prairie Provinces, now amounting to 800,000 tons a year, will soon be increased to a million tons, and on the basis of the present output the raw material would bring to the Western farmers a new-found revenue of $3,000,000 a year. If all this were turned into linen paper the finished product would be worth from $7,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year, according to the class of paper made. The first and most easily made variety of paper would be wrapping, and this would be a class of paper not inferior to the average Kraft paper, now in such demand for wrapping purposes. The second class of flax paper would be fibre board, for which it is eminently suited, and the third, which would involve bleaching, would produce a more expensive, but more valuable class, real linen, bond and writing.

New Demands and Uses

Then there is another important use for the raw material which would be a by-product of the preparatory processes, that is flax tow and so-called flax waste, which would be a valuable contribution to the textile industries, and for twine, also packing, medical dressings, insulating material and many other uses. In Ontario there are a number of flax cutting mills, chiefly in the counties of Waterloo and Wellington, producing tow and fibre for twine, but in the West nothing of this kind exists, outside of the household flax and linen-making in some of the foreign settlements.

Now that paper and paper making materials have reached such unprecedented prices that there is a general hunt for new fibres, the question of using Canadian flax straw for paper becomes important. The remarkable expansion of the paper industry of Canada in the last twenty years is well known, but this industry is based exclusively on wood as the raw material. To add a new branch based on flax fibre would round out the business as one of the great basic industries of Canada, and would open up a new field for the export trade which could not be developed upon wood pulp and paper alone.

New Machine Will Pulp Straw

It has been suggested that the Canadian Government could lead in such work by establishing a pioneer plant and use the product to supply its own needs in linen and wrapping paper with ultimate economy, while showing the way for private enterprise to follow in the near future. It happens fortunately at such a juncture that a Scotch engineering firm (Bertrams, Limited, of Edinburgh) have brought out a new type of machine for making pulp and paper from straw, and the writer has received from this firm samples of unbleached paper made from flax straw, wheat and oat straw, Tambookie grass of South Africa, and fibre from one of the Asiatic palms. The samples show a very strong and serviceable paper, and apart from the special products from flax straw, it is evident that immense quantities of paper and straw board could be made from the hundreds of thousands of tons of wheat and oat straw now allowed to be wasted in Canada by burning. The imports of straw board by Great Britain alone in 1915 were 191,100 tons.

GIRLS BEATING KRUPP

Clever Heroines of British Factory For High Explosives

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle writes of an explosives factory as follows: But now we went to the further end, where this devil's porridge is finally seasoned into the fit food for our hungry guns. How hungry those guns are our minds can hardly conceive. We can never beat Hindenburg until we have beaten Krupp, and that is what these laughing khaki girls of Moorside and elsewhere are going to do. Hats off to the women of Britain! Even all the exertions of the militants shall not in future prevent me from being an advocate for their vote, for those who have helped to save the state should be allowed to help to guide it.

To the further end did we go, then, passing great power houses and central controls upon the way, and there we saw pressing and kneading; and stuff like brown sugar being squeezed into brown macaroni and finally dried into black liquorice sticks, which are cut up and blended so as to get a standard strength. Here supervision is needed for a quaint cause. Girls have been known, out of love for Tommy, to put an extra pinch in the brew, with the result, of course, of entirely upsetting its ballistic qualities. We take it for granted that gunner shooting at three miles can specially range on a mere slit in the ground. I saw with my own eyes a house at 6,000 yards lifted off the face of the earth at the fourth round. When you see the girls blending the stuff with the finest care to get the absolute standard you begin to understand what lies behind it.

To Mend a Frayed Tablecloth

Baste a piece of sheer muslin or organdy firmly on the wrong side of the cloth, keeping the threads as as nearly as possible in their proper position; then place that part of the cloth in an embroidery hoops and darn and into the firm cloth an inch or two over and under the frayed threads and into the firm cloth an inch or two on either side. Use, if possible, linen thread pulled from a piece of left-over new table linen. After laundering the mended place in the cloth will hardly be noticed.

Apple and Cocoanut Pie

Line a deep plate with pastry. Pare and grate apples, sweeten and flavor to taste with sugar and cinnamon or lemon. Sprinkle the pastry with well shredded cocoanut, fill out the apple mixture and bake. When almost done, sprinkle with cocoanut and do not leave in the oven long enough to brown.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

COLDS.

A COLD IS LOOKED UPON as a trivial complaint. A neglected cold used to be regarded as a forerunner of consumption, but it is now well known that a cold is but an incident in a disease which is due to a specific cause, namely the bacillus of tuberculosis. But a cold, especially "a cold in the head," is really a serious trouble not so much for the annoyance it causes one but for the dangerous conditions which frequently result from it.

For example, a "cold in the head" may start an earache in a child. The earache if neglected—as it often is—may result in mastoid abscess; that is, a collection of pus in the honeycomb structure of bone just behind the ear, which can be cured only by a severe operation. This, if neglected, may cause an inflammation of the brain structures and the death of the patient.

The neglected earache may cause trouble in another direction. It is a common occurrence that the ear drum from the force of the pus behind it breaks and there is a long course of discharging ear or deafness which if neglected may persist for life. The earache can be readily relieved and all danger and after sequelae referred to prevented by a timely opening of the ear drum. "Laudanum drops," "warm sweet oil," etc., are of no value in the treatment. Puncturing the drum is a simple, rapid, and effectual treatment of the affection which soon secures complete recovery. The other day one of our district health officers had a conference with the reeve and members of the Board of Health of a township not very far from Toronto. The reeve was objecting to the cost of Board of Health work, and incidentally remarked that "he thought it better that children should get all these diseases such as scarlet fever, measles, and have done with them." In the course of conversation the local doctor asked him how his boy was. The boy had had scarlet fever. The father replied that he had become very deaf, the result of the scarlet fever. So the district officer asked him how many dollars he would be willing to pay to have the boy's hearing restored, which a more careful protection against communicable diseases might have prevented. The father had no further argument to offer.

"Spitting" is considered disgusting and dangerous, and signs are put up warning the public against expectorating in public places. "Sneezing" is a habit which still occupies a polite place in people's manners, yet the one is probably as dangerous as the other. How can one expect to avoid colds with their consequences in riding on the crowded street cars of our cities?

PLUNGES AND SWIMMING POOLS.

Fresh and salt water plunges may carry widespread infection, especially during the season when nasal and throat affections are common. Many colds, cases of ear trouble, and mastoid abscesses occur from dirty swimming tanks. Ninety per cent. of cases of middle ear abscess and mastoid disease result directly from ordinary "colds in the head" and "sore throat." Nearly all cases of suppuration of the sinuses of the head (hollow spaces in the cheek bones, frontal and other bones of the head) result from colds. A cold is an infection just as diphtheria or measles or scarlet fever are.

HOW TO PREVENT COLDS.

(1) A daily cold bath or a cold sponge bath of the face, chest, neck, and shoulders.

(2) Fresh moving air in one's bedroom. Don't be afraid of outdoor air.

(3) Avoid public plunges and swimming tanks.

(4) If one member of the household has a cold the others should avoid too close contact such as kissing. Soft cheesecloth which may be burnt should be used as handkerchiefs.

(5) Keep the feet dry.

(6) Have plenty of outdoor exercise.

The best protection against infection of the ears in children is the timely removal of adenoids and tonsils. It is astonishing how the croupy, always-with-a-cold child gets rid of these troublesome symptoms after the removal of adenoids and tonsils. If there is earache get a competent physician and have the ear drum given a slit. This lets out the penned-up secretion and the only thing remaining is to keep the ear clean and dry for a few days.

Douches of the nose, forcible blowing of the nose while it is closely held, and diving in the tank should be avoided.

Eat plain food, eat slowly; chew the food well, and rest after eating, is good advice for everyone.

INTEREST OF SOLDIER AND FINANCE ALIKE

"Humanity Pays," Says Bank President—Canada Needs Every Man After War

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, says: "The interests of our fighting men and the interests of our national finance are identical. Humanity pays in the long run—and often in the short run, too—with a nation as with an individual.

"It is perfectly clear that we need thorough organization and the keenest scientific care in dealing with the men already coming back disabled. Fortunately we have the Military Hospitals Commission carrying out this task, and it has already reached a rare degree of efficiency. The Canadian people should know more about this magnificent work that is being done in their name and for their interests; because its success must depend largely on the way it is backed up by well informed public opinion.

Make Fit Again and Save

"By neglecting to restore every man to the highest efficiency he is able to attain, we should be adding to the country's burden in two ways, both of them very serious. It was stated in Parliament that the disabled men will receive $25,000,000 a year in pensions. That figure is only based on an enlisted force of 300,000. With 400,000 men under arms, the pension charge at that rate will be $28,000,000, equal to 5 per cent. on a loan of $560,000,000.

"The country has shouldered the burden with the utmost good will. But that is all the more reason why the country should be assured that the burden will not be unnecessarily increased. The pension is given as compensation for disability. Every removable disability that is not removed, therefore, lays an increased and unnecessary burden on the whole community, including all the soldiers themselves, besides being a particularly grieving injury to the soldier who is allowed to suffer from it.

Prevent Dead Weights

"A still heavier burden would be laid on the country by the loss of these men's industry. Every citizen is, as it were, a part of the great economic machine of Canada. If he is an efficient part, he is adding to the wealth and maintaining the prosperity of the country. If he is not efficient, he is a dead weight for the rest of the nation to carry, and lessens instead of increasing the country's resources. That is not the sort of position that any soldier will want to occupy.

"I hope that the finding or making employment for soldiers will be carried out with the same thoroughness of organization that has been adopted to fit them for employment. This is the business of every employer, and indeed of every citizen who can either stimulate or in any way assist the Provincial and other organizations formed for this purpose."

Too Gentle Barbers

Any number of Frenchwomen are becoming barbers, some to continue the business their husbands left when they went off to the war; others are starting establishments of their own. There is an "Academie des Arts de la Coiffure" in Paris, where one can go and learn the proper way to cut hair, to shampoo and shave, and a great many women and girls have taken the course. "They shave you very well, these women," said a Frenchman, "only they are too gentle, they wield the razor as if it were a piece of tissue paper."

Six war shrines have been erected in Chatham, Eng.

"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 822 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, is it not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

TANK—"GOOD BEAST"

Germans Thought Village Impregnable—Why They Surrendered

An English newspaper correspondent sends the following: Beaucourt was not impregnable. Monster was to meet monster. Towards seven in the evening an inconspicuous carapace, a great sluggish, grunting beetle was seen by the German garrison wriggling very slowly forward in arcs and at tangents, carefully avoiding any wounded who lay in its path. As if the scent was not good, though just sufficient, it nosed slowly forward, along and over the old German front trench. Earlier, an infantry officer was observed urging it on, like a master talking to an undecided bloodhound.

After many minutes it approached so near its crouching prey that it could surrender scent for sight. It prepared for action. What this dragon of the slime did, what flames came from its mouth, what threats were roared I must not say in precise detail. But it did and threatened enough. Out of one of the mouths of the earth and concrete fortress appeared a white cloth waved on a stick. Not so much as a hand or arm was visible, but the flag of surrender waved. Firing ceased and the beast bellowed no more but allowed its myrmidons to go forward and accept the surrender. Presently, crouching there, it watched nearly twenty score of Germans file out, draw up in rank, and march back across the old front line. Good beast; it had done its part. Not what the infantry had done, but good service—good service.

WHAT OUR SOLDIER BOYS ARE SUFFERING FOR YOU

NORTH TORONTO, May 11.—The following interesting letter has been received by Mrs. P. Westoby from Sgt. Westoby, who is in France. He says in part: "Just a few lines to let you know what the Canadians here are doing to uphold the flag and home. As you already know, many have made the supreme sacrifice during the fight at Vimy Ridge. But 'no man can do greater than this, that he lay down his life for his friends.'

"As you sit in your arm chair after the day's work is over, picture to yourself Tommy turning out of his billet ready to go to the front line trenches, with the wind blowing 40 miles an hour, the sleet and snow falling, the guns roaring, and periodical flashes of lights from exploding shells. Yet the boys are always cheerful when they go into this, which is worse than Dante's Inferno. Why? Because they are fighting for their home and their loved ones.

"Again, he is ordered out into No Man's Land on patrol, raked by shot and shell, or he is detailed off with a bombing party, or perhaps he may have that which is the hardest job of all, be on listening post. Again, the line gets the order to advance and over the top you go with the best of luck.

Another side, just behind the firing line, subject to many of the dangers of the firing line, are other Tommies, backing up their brothers in the firing line, making roads, building bridges, railways, and forwarding on the immense supplies needed for fighting in the front. No weather too rough, no ground too muddy, no task so hard, but they go to it with cheerful mein. Why? The boys in the line ahead of them are depending on them, and all are depending on those at home who do not have to meet an aircraft attack or some special duty that has to be performed to 'keep the home fires burning.'

"He is fighting and working for you."

LANDLORDS AND FEUDAL NABOBS RELICS OF PAST

Lady Warwick Says They Must Do as the Dukes in Russia and Turn Over Holdings to State.

The Countess of Warwick, owner of 23,000 acres, has issued an appeal to the landed aristocracy of Great Britain to follow the example of tht Russian Grand Dukes, and turn over all their feudal properties to the State.

"We must go," she says. "The aristocracy of England, in its position of hereditary landowners, must go. The country rings with suggestions for the betterment of the conditions under which land is cultivated, but as I see things the suggestions are in no instance drastic enough.

"The only cure for the present evils seems to me to be State ownership, the abolition of all private property in the earth that was given to all of us in comon. There are two classes of large landowners in England, the aristocracy and the plutocracy. As a class the aristocracy have been good landlords within limits, but the limits are well marked, because they have always been a narrow-minded body. The average chatelaine who play the part of Lady Bountiful is to me an abomination, because her philanthropy is so closely associated with dogmatic rtligion, personal pride, and petty politics.

"I have known estates where their tenants are expected to belong to the Church of England, and nonconformists are barred or persecuted. Radicalism is likewise suspected. Farmers laborers, and small village tradesmen have been ruined or exiled from the place of their birth because their opinions are contrary to those of their landlords. Men and women on such estates must rule their lives to order, think as they are told to think. If our aristocracy possessed the overwhelming wisdom necessary to their role as supreme dictators all would be well, but I cannot reckon in their ranks more than six whose claims would bear momentary consideration.

"As for the plutocrats, the men who have bought lands and titles in the open market—and the one is nearly as readily purchased as the other—they have not the old feudal tradition of aristocracy. They have been accustomed to make business ventures pay they demand 6 per cent. on their outlay and employ an agent who will see that they get it. The landlord of this class is a bad landlord.

"For the betterment of social conditions in England a supreme sacrifice is required. It is no more than justice that the men who have offered their lives in this war for Britain should have the freedom of Britain for their reward. It is no justice that calls men to fight for the land and leaves it in the hands of a fraction of those who fought. To me it is impossible that in the future 'his Grace' of 'my Lord' should own square miles of the mother earth for which Tom died and Dick was sore wounded and Harry fought unscathed.

"The country has great needs. If it is to remain solvent the united work of one and all is necesary. The old feudal landlord which will be anachronism, the new money-spun landlord an abomination. Only the State can own the land in trust for those who can make it productive. We who are in the high places in England should retire from them in the real halo of renunciation, and our act of sacrifice would be a better memorial than the best of us could have hoped to gain."

LABOR IN UNITED STATES UNIT IN SUPPORT OF WAR

It is a Fight on Behalf of Democracy and Wage Earners Will be Gainers.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—"Organized and unorganized workmen — skilled and unskilled labor—will be definitely the gainers by the triumph of democracy in this war."

That is the prediction of James William Sullivan, who for thirty years has been one of the active men in the American Federation of Labor. He has recently returned from Europe, and is assistant to Mr. Gompers as member of the Advisory Committee of the Council of National Defence.

Mr. Sullivan anticipates that for an indefinite and prolonged period after the war wages will be much higher than ever before, both for skilled and unskilled workmen. The demands of the reconstruction period offer sufficient explanation. General prosperity may be assumed to follow, thanks to the general speeding up of commerce and the increased diffusion of money through the wage channel. The statisticians of the American Federation of Labor have been able to demonstrate that social prosperity follows each increase of the wage scale.

Prosperity of Workers.

"Give 2,000 workmen two dollars more each week and 200 merchants will benefit," is his illustration.

An increase in class prosperity invariably means greater solidarity, and hence greater political power for the workman. The history of San Francisco in the years following the fire is cited as an example. Not only have wages remained at a higher level there than at any previous period, "but the working class obtained control of the city politically," Mr. Sullivan said. Broadly speaking, a betterment in social conditions has followed each addition in political power gained by organized labor.

EDISON IN DISGUISE.

Forgot to Shave, And Guard Doubted Identity.

ORANGE, N.J., May 14.—Thomas A. Edison was halted as he tried to pass an armed guard near his factory here. Part of the factory was burning.

"But I'm Mr. Edison," exclaimed the inventor.

"Not with those whiskers," the guard replied.

Edison has been so busy working on a solution of the submarine problem he hadn't taken time to shave.

Shifting the Burden.
(Guelph Mercury.)

A heading in the London Advertiser this morning says "Jockey club will pay about $170,000 to government in taxes." No you don't sonny. The poor simps who pass through the gates and through the race track mill generally will pay every cent of that $170,000 and more too.

WALKED FROM NOBEL, ONTARIO

WM. TOMLEY, PENNILESS, FACES CHARGE OF VAGRANCY.

William Tomley, a French-Canadian of Quebec Province, drifted into town on Sunday, and sought refuge with the police. He claims to be both penniless and friendless, and to have walked from Nobel, Ont., where he worked 21 days digging ditches at a munition plant. In consequence of the nature of his work he caught the grippe, and all his wages were deducted by the company to defray his board, railway fare from Montreal and doctor's bill. Last summer in Quebec he worked on a farm. He told his worship at the police court yesterday that he intended walking out of town as soon as sufficiently recovered in health to do so. He was remanded for one week in which to regain his strength. He has every appearance of being a sick man in a bad way generally.

FINE CANADIAN DEATH

General's Narrative of Lieutenant Who Was Faithful to Last

Stories of great bravery always seem particularly poignant when told by the people who witnessed them. Among several anecdotes of the courage of our men told by General Currie of Vancouver, was one of a young lieutenant who crawled across "No Man's Land" just as dawn was breaking, to discover how far the Germans had proceeded in some mining operations and pick up any other information he could. He managed to crawl up close to the enemy trenches and just as he succeeded in getting more valuable news than he dared hope for, a chance shot struck him in the stomach. A little later a sergeant who had been watching him through a periscope and saw what happened was able to drag him back to our trenches but not without being hit himself. The lieutenant at once asked for his colonel, gave him a detailed account of what he had seen and heard, spoke of the work he had interrupted to do this job and what would be required to complete it, sent a message to his mother—then put back his head and died.

The Stern Call of Duty

In the doorway of the Union Jack Club, London, at that hour when men entering meet the steady stream outward-bound from Waterloo to the front, there was a shout of mutual recognition by two men, one going, the other coming; one a Canadian, the other an Australian. Both were brothers who left England for the respective Dominions twelve years previously, and had not heard of each other since. Neither knew that the other was in the army, and it was pathetic that there was no time for more than a few words before they had to part again.

Showing Family's Patriotism

Appealing for his son at the Carnarvonshire Tribunal, a father said that another son was serving his country—in an American munition factory.

MIDSUMMER CHRISTMAS

How Australians Keep Up the Old English Customs

Despite the efforts of the blazing sun Christmas traditions survive in Australia. Roast turkey and plum pudding are as much a part of Christmas as they are in Canada, though the average Christmas day has a temperature of 100 degrees. Mid-day dinner is the rule in most parts, so the feast is served when the sun is at its height. Remembering that many of the country houses are built of galvanized iron you will know how hot they are, with the sun beating on them. This is all very different to our Christmas day, but the love of the old English Christmas is so deeply rooted in the Australians' hearts that, in spite of the heat, they eat turkey and plum pudding.

Snapdragon round the fire at night is kept up by some of the people, for as an old settler once said, "A fire doesn't seem to make any difference to an Australian December day." Christmas day in that country, just as in Canada and England, is the one day of the year on which every wandering member of the family must make a big effort to get home. Then again, December is the holiday month, so the summer holliday comes at Christmas tide.

MANAGING GOOD ROADS

Ontario Counties Centralize Control in One Man With Committee

The counties council of the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry appointed J. G. Cameron, C.E., of Berwick, county superintendent over the extensive good roads scheme adopted by these counties. Mr. Cameron was given a salary of $1,000 a year and travelling expenses, the latter not to exceed more than $1,000 a year. His duties were to commence with the keeping open of the designated roads for the balance of the winter of 1917, so far as possible. He was to devote his time and attention exclusively to the work of the counties. A sub-committee was named to act in conjunction with the superintendent and make an inspection of the whole system.

PLAYGROUND ASSOCIATION RAISE OVER $400 IN FLOWER SALES

Exact Amount Will be Announced Tomorrow When Returns Are all In.

The Mothirs' Day sale of flowers on Saturday proved a gratifying success, netting for the Public Play Grounds Company a sum in the neighbourood of $400, although all the returns will not be in before tomorrow. Peterborough citizens evidently heartily co-operated in the scheme, and did it handsomely. This money will be devoted to the maintenance and progressive development of recreation spots for the littlt folk.

The committee and both those who sold and bought cut flowers are to be commended for their active and generous co-operation in a worthy cause.

IN THE CHURCHES

Beautiful appropriate services to Mothers' Day were held in all city places of worship yesterday. Abundance of floral tributes to Peterborough's noble army of motherhood were in evidence on every hand. This great war has indeed brought into publicity the self-sacrificing and patriotic characteristics of the gentler sex as never before. Many Peterborough mothers have given their sons to the empire's call in defence of civilization, and many a gallant son will never return. No wonder that our churches were thronged yesterday. For that sacred edifices and worshippers alike were richly decorated with costly flowers, emblematical of the purity and nobility of Canada's glorious womanhood.

WHAT THE SOLDIERS DID WHILE THE WORLD RESTED

How Sunday Was Spent by the Contending Armies on the Battle Front---Allies Continue to Make Gains.

The London official statement says: British artillery dispersed German troops about to attack at Bullecourt. Later the British troops attacked and after heavy fighting throughout the night established themselves Saturday in Bullecourt where fighting still continues. A German attack on positions taken was scattered by British artillery. Astride the Arras-Cambrai Road the British captured twelve hundred yards of German trench including "Cavalry Farm." North of the Scarpe British stormed Roeux cemetery and the chemical works to north and on Saturday continued to advance and carried many points in this neighborhood on a front of one and a half mles.

Seven hundred prisoners were taken with trench mortars and machine guns. Seven German airplanes were destroyed and five others driven down. Four British airships are missing.

On Macedonian front Greek troops operating with the French carried a small enemy position. The Serbians captured Hill 1024 and continue advance.

The German Crown Prince's troops Sunday morning launched violent attacks against the French north of Rheims, south of Craonne and near Maisons de Champagne but all attacks were smashed with heavy loss to the Germans.

Marshal Joffre arrived in Montreal Sunday morning.

The British in France have fired two hundred thousand tons of ammunition in the past five or six weeks according to Sir Wm. Robertson.

The British statement, Sunday, says: Fighting continues at Bullecourt. British lines were advanced during the night south of the Scarpe. German counterattacks east of Roeux cemetery was repulsed with a loss of fifty prisoners.

The German Army Headquarters statement says the British forced their way through the German lines at Roeux, but at all other places were repulsed after hand to hand fighting with heavy losses.

APSLEY

APSLEY, May 14.—The sad news of the death of Private Hugh Jones reached here on Saturday last Private Jones was killed in action at the battle of Vimy Ridge on April 12. He was the eldest son of Mrs. Benjamin Jones of this village and is the first of the Apsley platoon to pay the supreme sacrifice. As soon as the report was received the flags were raised at half mast.

Private Harry Tanner has also been reported wounded. He is a son of Mr. Thomas Tanner of Chandos.

The death occurred in Chandos on April 26 of Mr. William Beggs at the age of seventy-seven years. Mr. Beggs has been in delicate health for some time and the end was not unexpected. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, three sons, George, Alexander and John, and one daughter, Mrs. S. Masters. The funeral took place from the family residence on April 28 to the Anglican Church, Apsley, where service was held by Ref. E. W. Gardner. Interment took place in the Anglican graveyard. The pallbearers were Messrs. Philip Tanner, Charles Tanner, Robert Tanner, Isaac Tanner, W. Johnston, and S. Masters. The bereaved family have our sympathy.

On Friday another sad message reached our village when it was announced that Private Thomas Coones, son of Mr. Benjamin Coones, had been killed in action on April 9. Memorial services are being held in the Anglican and Methodist churches for our two heroes who have fallen.

Private Bert McIlmoyle has also been wounded.

SIX EGGS FOR FOUR CENTS

Woman Cuts Price Rather Than Take Produce Home

There are farmers' wives and farmers' wives, notwithstanding the fact all are usually characterised as exceptionally "tight" in regard to disposing of their wares on the market. But that there is, after all, a marked difference in the disposition of these women was illustrated last Saturday on the market when one Mr. V. V. Elliot, of Lindsay, spent cents, to clear her stock, while another carried three home in a two-handled market basket, rather than sell them at less than the 38 cents per dozen rate.

Aztec Customs.

The religion of the ancient Mexicans seems to have been characterised throughout by a peculiar bloodthirstiness, involving constant human sacrifice. This trait is even exhibited in connection with the burial of their dead. The feast of the dead was celebrated after this fashion. "They took a faggot of ocotl, which in Spain would be called pitch-wood, and they dressed it up in blanket or dress. If the dead person had been a woman, they dressed the faggot in his petticoats and put it in front of cooking pots and other household utensils. If the dead person had been a chief and a valiant man, they dressed the faggot in a rich mantle and waist-cloth and labret and gave it a handful of pitch-wood. The labret was made of a piece of amber or crystal. This, which they were accustomed to wear when they drank, or danced in their native ceremonies, hung down from a hole pierced through the hip. They seated the image on a sleeping-mat and they put there much food, and they invited the principal men there. Then they put fire to the pitchwood and everything which they had put there burned up." The custom of burning up an image, together with offerings for the dead, was not only found among the Aztecs but is also common among the Indians of California to-day.

Relics of Pompeii.

The forthcoming excavation of the old harbor of Pompeii should result in a large store of relics of the great catastrophe. The harbor is now a long distance from the sea, and the lava and the ashes that cover it are twenty-four feet deep. Pliny tells us that large numbers of refugees laden with their household goods and valuables made their way to the seafront, and there met the death that they were trying to escape. Doubtless they still lie where they fell with their treasures around them. The true position of the old harbor has only lately been found, and it is four thousand feet from the present shore line.

A Slav Prophet.

A correspondent, in a letter to the Manchester Guardian, in England, records an interesting statement made by Stepniak, the great Russian revolutionary, which is worth quoting. When he first met Stepniak, in 1889, the writer says, he asked what real prospect there was of any revolution in Russia. The reply was: "A great European war will be our chance. It will show the bureaucracy to be quite incapable of managing the affairs of the nation in a crisis." This prediction, the correspondent points out, was partly verified by the events in 1905, when Russia took her "necessary first step towards freedom." It has certainly been fully realized in 1917.

Persian Bread.

The Persian native bread to-day is very little different from that used a thousand years ago. The Persian oven is built of smooth masonry-work in the ground, and is usually about the size of a barrel; many of them have been used for a century. The dough is formed into thin sheets about a foot long and two feet wide and slapped against the side of the oven. It bakes in a few minutes.

KAISER DECIDED IT.

Ruled Shortening of Lines Would Weaken Moral Position.

I think I am now at liberty to tell you something few people in the world would be able to tell you. C. W. Barron, who formerly had the confidence of certain Teutonic authorities, writes in The Boston Post. In the latter part of last year there was an important conference of German military leaders on their Western frontier. The General Staff had figured out that if the German defences were removed from the line of the Somme to the heights of the Meuse, 400,000 men could be transferred elsewhere or held in reserve. This conference was presided over by the Emperor. Von Hindenburg was brought up from the southeastern front for his opinion, while another great German general advocated the plan of the General Staff.

Von Hindenburg said: "We do not now need 400,000 men in the southeast or elsewhere." The reply was: "Unless you retire now, you will not be able to get the 400,000 men when you do need them. Why not shorten your lines and thereby increase your reserves?"

The Kaiser decided the conference with the declaration: "Four hundred thousand men are of less importance to us than the maintenance of popular support, which would be weakened by any drawing in of our lines."

The Prussians have clamored for the last weapon of defence—ruthless submarine warfare—to strike terror to old England. The zeppelins failed. The promised indemnity from Paris failed. The attempt on the Channel ports failed. The attemot to weaken the union of the Allies failed. The Roumanian wheat supplies were burned and the Roumanian oil wells were dynamited ahead of the German invaders. The proposals for a peace dictated by Germany failed.

And now the German submarines attack the world's commerce, not as an effective weapon of offence or defence, but to satisfy German sentiment and keep the Hohenzollerns in power.

The Russian Hymn.

It was the strains of Rouget de Lisle's "Marseillaise" that ushered in the revolution in Russia, but the "Marseillaise," though sung the world over, is the French national song, and Russia will want one of her own. Probably the opinion of Mme. Fella Letvinne, the great Russian singer, on the matter is sound. She advises that the music of the "Boje Tsaria Khrani" shall continue to be the great national air, because, she says, nothing could better express the mysticism, the idealism, and the immensity of Russia. As for the words, of course they will have to be changed, but, and here Madame Letvinne is undoubtedly right: "Do not ask one of our Russian professionals to find new words, wait: let them spring naturally from the lips of a moujik fighting for his country; then, and not till then, our new hymn will be born."

Only a few weeks ago Madame Letvinne was singing the "Boje Tsaria Khrani" in the Russian sector on the French front. "I will sing the new song with great joy when it comes," she says; "but," she adds, "I cannot forget that I was singer to the Russian Imperial Court, and that the Tsar of yesterday was ever the artists' true friend." No one will think any the less of Madame Letvinne for remembering these things.

Italy's Unique Soldiers.

Italy has some of the most efficient and most picturesque soldiers in the world. They are divided into four classes, the Bersaglieri, the Alpini, the Carabinieri, and the cavalry. Recently the men of the third category were called to the colors. This means that the Alpine troops of the first category, made up of first-choice men for the regular army, and the second category, men assigned to the regular army, but with "unlimited leave," have been exhausted, and now these men are to be drilled who, exempt for various reasons from active service, are to be assigned to the national militia for home defense.

The Bersaglieri are light infantry of great mobility. They are always seen on the run, and their picturesque costume, with low-crowned, plumed hat, is a feature of almost every Italian landscape.

The Alpini are specially trained to manoeuver among the northern mountains, and their target practice consists in sharpshooting across the vast open spaces, where the atmospheric conditions would confuse the soldier of the lowlands. As to the cavalry, experts have said that that of Italy is the finest in the world.

Besides these unique corps, there are the famous Carabinieri or national police.

AN ARRIVAL IN HADES.

A MODERN lady died and went to hades. His majesty met her deferentially at the gate.

"Will it be possible for me to secure an establishment here?" she said.

"Certainly, madam."

"In a desirable location?"

"I think so."

"I don't care to be near the riffraff, and I should like to be sure and get suitable servants."

"You should experience no difficulty. There are several good agencies."

"I could give dinner parties when I liked?"

"Dear me, yes."

"And make a splurge at it?"

"Oh, certainly."

"I should expect to spend my summers abroad."

"Quite right. Return tickets free."

"You have operas?"

"Several devoted to the haut ton."

"Do you know," she said, "I am agreeably surprised. I was afraid this place was not kept up to conform to the best standards. It troubled me to think I might possibly have to associate with my inferiors. I am glad to see that you have such a sense of the fitness of things. I am very glad to have renewed our brief acquaintance made on earth, and I will trouble you to see that my arrival is chronicled in the society columns of the papers."

His majesty bowed respectfully.

"Sorry, madam, but that will be impossible."

She gazed at him haughtily.

"How is that?" she asked sternly.

"There are no papers here. There are no society columns. No matter what you are doing, the public is in absolute ignorance of it."

And, sinking back, she muttered softly to herself:

"This is indeed h—!"—Life.

Some Real Frenzied Finance.

Here is an incident that a Kansas City man at the Tourraine tells as having occurred in a certain Kansas town. He was in the ticket office and watched the proceedings.

A man came up to the window and asked for a ticket to Kansas City, inquiring the price.

"Two twenty-five," said the agent.

The man dug down into a well worn pocketbook and fished out a bill. It was a banknote for $2. It was also all the money he had.

"How soon does this train go?" he inquired.

"In fifteen minutes," replied the agent.

The man hurried away. Soon he was back with three silver dollars, with which he bought a ticket.

"Pardon my curiosity," said the ticket seller, "but how did you get that money? It isn't [illegible], for I see you have disposed of the two dollar bill."

"That's all right," said the man. "No, I didn't borrow. I went to a pawnbroker and soaked the bill for $1.50. Then as I started back here I met an old acquaintance, to whom I sold the pawn ticket for $1.50. I then had $3, and he has the pawn ticket, for which the two dollar bill stands as security."—Pittsburg Press.

She Meant Well.

The young son of a western family was away from home for his first year in college. His mother had been to visit him and upon her return met a friend, who asked if her boy was homesick.

"No," said the doting mother. "I was afraid he would be, so I saw that he was located in one of the best maternity houses of the college."—Lippincott's.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

SATURDAY GAMES IN BIG LEAGUES

Ty Cobb tried to scoot from first to third on an infield out in the ninth inning and was doubled up. This robbed the Tigers of a chance to tie up the Red Sox. But, if Ty had made third on the play, he would have been a hero. That's how it usually goes. It all depends on whether one is successful.

The Georgian gained a few more pegs on Speaker. He got his one hit in three attempts, while Tris had to try four times to connect safely once.

If Cobb had been content to stop at second he would have scored a minute later, for Heilman singled.

Walter Johnson has lost five games so early in the season. The fifth defeat was brought about by Bobby Roth's club. He cleaned the sacks of Indians in the fourth with a double.

Eddie Collins and Chic Gandil were the only White-hosed pastimers to hit Caldwell safely, and the lank person had a soft afternoon.

Here's a funny thing: Ping Bodie didn't get a homer, but the Athletics won. Joe Bush and Hamilton each allowed only four hits. Two wild heaves lost for Hamilton, one of them being contributed by himself.

"Jawn" Evers certainly must not be in shape to play ball. Young Massey, his understudy, was sent to the hospital in Boston suffering from pneumonia, and Eddie Fitzpatrick replaced him. Sherwood Magee and Jess Barnes, two other Braves, are confined to their cots with the same troubles as Massey.

Ferdie Schupp tied the Reds into several different kinds of knots, allowing only four hits. Indian Jim Thorpe got two of them, one a homer. Jim also stole a base.

Heinie Zimmerman was boss hitter for the Giants. His afternoon's work consisted of a triple and double. His triple scored three runs. Holke and McCarty each had three hits.

The fifth was a great session for the McGraw clan. Thirteen of 'em went to bat, Holke and McCarty batting twice, and making hits both times.

"Buck" Herzog was back in the game for a short time—long enough to boot one.

What Is the Kaiser's Game?

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

There is speculation over certain instances of free speech in Germany. Maximilian Harden is allowed to write pretty frankly just now, and here is Vonwaerts talking about "the remnant of futile sovereignty" and declaring that "if it does not yield now the more sudden will be its downfall." What is the imperial game? No card is played in Germany except deliberately. What trick is the kaiser expecting to take by permitting this sort of speech?

Knowledge is power only so far as it is practiced.

Near the Fighting Line.

The picture of the little girl here shown was taken near the fighting line in France. She is the daughter of a French peasant. Like many of her companions, she has doubtless experienced hard times since the cannon began to roar near her father's farm. Nevertheless, she does not seem sad; probably she has become accustomed to the sound of battle.

BOWLERS MEET TONIGT.

Business of the League For Season To Be Wound Up.

Tonight a meeting of the City Bowling League will be held at the Empress Hotel at 7.30 to wind up the business of the League and to set a date on which the blind scores will be rolled off. The names of those in the 153 column are: Barrett, Heaslip, Gillespie, R. Ross, Early Thomas, Myland, Wilson, Heard, and A Ross.

The high score in five pins last week was 179. Cocks and Heaslip being tied will likely roll off to see who is the better man for the weekly prize.

BACON FLAVORS.

How to Cook It In the Epicure's Way and Season With It.

There's a world of difference between bacon well cooked and bacon badly cooked, and yet the task of cooking bacon seems so simple. Any new cook would look at you in blank surprise if you questioned her as to her ability to cook bacon, and yet not one cook in a hundred can cook it to a turn.

In the first place, bacon needs constant watching during the cooking process. It also needs to be served almost immediately on cooking. This makes it difficult for the one cook who must have charge of the preparation of an entire meal. If our kitchen regimes were large enough to provide for a special bacon cook we might solve the question quite simply.

Besides needing constant watching bacon needs to be cooked over a low flame. If you use gas for cooking it is a good idea to use a wire frame over the flame to diffuse the heat and subdue it. When the bacon is put into the griddle the fire should be low, so that the fat will be extracted enough to grease the frying pan before the bacon begins to fry vigorously. As the fat increases pour it off, leaving only enough in the griddle to keep the bacon from burning. Most persons like bacon well cooked, and it is very much more healthful when prepared in this way. Therefore, see that it is thoroughly done before allowing it to brown. Have a soft paper on a dish in the oven, and as the pieces of bacon are ready place them on paper to drain and dry a few minutes before serving. But do not permit the bacon to remain standing long before serving, as this robs it of much of its delicate flavor.

If very crisp bacon is desired it can be fried in deep fat. Or, better still, bacon drippings already saved can be poured on the griddle and heated and the bacon cooked by allowing it to fry in that deep fat for a short [illegible] rather high temperature. R[illegible] from the fat before it has [illegible] cool.

A delicious bacon dressing [illegible] be served with lettuce, endive [illegible]delion is made by beating five tablespoonfuls of bacon fat and cooking in it two tablespoonfuls of flour and a dash of paprika. Add five tablespoonfuls of vinegar and half a cupful of water. Stir till smooth and boiling and then add the beaten yolks of two eggs. Do not let this boil after the eggs have been added.

Hats For the South.

An interesting feature of the millinery market has been the introduction of new hats for the southern season, these showing medium and wide brims and being trimmed with a great deal of hand embroidery and ornaments made of very narrow velvet ribbons. The shapes are largely of panama and coconut straws. Quilting is another feature, especially of satin hats.

The newest sets of hats and scarfs include long mittens with gauntlet shaped wrist portion.

So Considerate.

Mrs. Stubb—John, I want to go to the seashore in a few weeks.

Mr. Stubb—But, Maria, I cannot afford to go with you.

Mrs. Stubb—Oh, well, you stay home and paint the roof every day until your nose peels, and then people will think you have been anyway.—Puck.

NICHOLAS AND DELILAH.

The Strange Forces That Resulted in Fall of a Czar.

Nicholas was not the first, nor will he be the last, to yield up judgment and will into the hands of a queenly and beautiful woman. The motive of Samson and Delilah of the vale of Sorek is a scarlet thread that runs through all history. And the Empress Alexandra herself, a broken-hearted woman from the beginning, was led to the brink of the precipice by forces of tremendous and universal strength; her passionate and morbid love for her invalid son, born after long waiting, whose pains were alleviated, it would seem, by Rasputin's magnetic force, just as the fatal malady of the Czar's father, Alexander the Third, was lightened by the similar but more benign power of Father John of Cronstadt; her obstinate and unconverted devotion for the land of her birth; her passion for autocratic power. These are not vulgar or trivial motives; they have swayed great souls through all history.

The element of mysticism, even though it be a morbid and dangerous mysticism, runs through the whole drama. We shall, I think, be quite misled if we think of it as merely vulgar charlatanism, like Carlyle's probable misreading of Cagliostro. Nicholas the Second, like all Russians who are true to their blood, was impressed and oppressed by the presence of the invisible world. All these men are full of the sense of the supernatural, ardently revering their miracle-working saints, in no way thinking that the age of immediate divine intervention has passed. Nor can we venture to say, in these days of revived belief in the invisible, that the Russian millions are wrong. It is this universal mood which gives a Rasputin his power and opportunity; just as it gave power and opportunity to the benign influence of Father John of Cronstadt. And Nicholas the Second was as fully possessed by this mystical sensibility as any of his peasants. Stumbling in the midst of mighty difficulties, he longed for oracles from heaven, to make his intricate pathway clearer through the darkness. And if, blinded by devotion to the beautiful woman who dominated him, he followed lying oracles, it is no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light. That fatally dangerous masquerade is the experience of saints and visionaries through all history. —Charles Johnston, in The North American Review.

Eye Glasses for Divers.

Why cannot the human eye focus sharply under water even when protected from it? Briefly, because the water makes the eye long sighted. The human eye operates like a camera lens receiving the light rays from the image and making them come together or converge in such a way that half an inch or less will be sufficient to reproduce a twenty-foot object.

This convergence of light rays or waves is due to refraction. It happens that the "refractive index" of the front of the eye is practically the same as that of salt water. This means that the curvature of the front of the eye is lost under water, and the rays of light instead of being deflected by that curvature, as in the air, enter straight. Thus deprived of one of the lenses, the eye is of long focus and the objects instead of being reproduced in sharp focus on the retina, or back of the eye, go well beyond it and produce only an indistinct impression.

A pair of under-sea glasses invented by Dr. Dudgeon, an English physicist, were designed to overcome this difficulty by means of an "air lens." This air lens consists of two surfaces of ordinary glass enclosing air and forming certain curves. In air it has no effect at all, neither magnifying nor reducing an object; but in the water it acts as a converger, and shortens the focus of the lens of the eye [illegible]

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

HOPSTON—PALMER

A pretty wedding was celebrated in the new St. James' Methodist Church, South City, Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and acquaintances. The contracting parties were Miss EvelynViola, ldest daughter of Mr. James Palmer,, and Mr. Edward James Hopston. The bride was attended by Miss Hazel Callendar and Miss Nita McIntyre, while Mis Violet Cuffe made a very charming flower girl. The groom's attendant was Mr. Harold M. Taylor, of Detroit.

Miss Cara White played the Wedding March in acceptable style, and Miss Florence Emmerson's singing of "O promise me" was very pleasing indeed.

The wedding spread was served at the home of the bride. The happy couple will reside in this city.

The many friends of Mr. Walter English, city editor of The Review, will regret to learn that he entered Nichol's Hospital to-day to undergo an operation.

A certain visitor from Hastings has a mania for registering himself as of Chicago, and he's not in the pork business, either.

Mr. V. V. Elliot, of Lindsay, spent the week end in the city.

Mr. T. C. Lancaster, editor of the Havelock Standard, was in the city Saturday attending the funeral of his uncle, the late Thomas Lancaster, 621 Water street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. English, of Hastings, were in the city Saturday.

Among the tokens of esteem presented to Canon and Mrs. Cornish was a necklet, set with pearls and aquamarines, given to Mrs. Cornish by the members of the Church Woman's Association.

There are registered at the Oriental H. E. Dow, Hamilton, James Isbester, Detroit; F. O. Neill, C. J. Leslier, Jno. W. McIntyre, W. J. Barron, all of Toronto.

There are registered at the Snowden House, H. S. Wright, S. B. Harris, H. R. Tideman, all of Toronto. A. A. Fraser, Montreal.

There are registered at the Empress Hotel: Lieut. W. Douglas, Brockville; W. D. Arnold, Toronto; A. W. Walter, Montreal; J. Massie, Toronto.

Mrs. Coons, Rogers Street, who underwent treatment at Nichol's Hospital last week, returned to her home on Sunday.

DAY OF PRAYER AT S.A. TEMPLE

SIXTEEN MEN AND WOMEN PROFESSED CONVERSION YESTERDAY.

The all day of prayer at the Salvation Army yesterday was a great day of blessing, and much good is bound to result. Many stayed without their meals and continued in prayer. A great crowd assembled in the evening at 7 o'clock, and sixteen men and women professed to having found the Saviour.

The special services will continue this week, and the soldiers and officers of the Army will be soliciting funds for the upkeep of the missionary work. The altar service result yesterday was some $65 ahead of last year, and all have not been heard from. Next Sunday the children will hold their altar service.

Military Medal for Private Giroux

ANOTHER PETERBORO BOY WINS HONOR IN EMPIRE'S SERVICE.

Another Peterborough boy has won honors at the front; Pte. H. C. Giroux, son of Mr. G. H. Giroux, of the Trent Canal staff, has been awarded the military medal for distinguished bravery. Pte. Giroux enlisted with the 37th Battalion of Belleville in May two years ago and went to England about eighteen months ago. He was transferred to the Borden Armored Mortar Machine Gun Brigade for duty at the front and was with that unit when he won his honors.

NO MORE GRAIN FOR BREWERS

UNITED STATES SENATE HAS PASSED WAR-TIME PROHIBITION.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The Senate by a vote of 38 to 32, passed the Cummins' amendment which forbids the use of grain, sugar and syrup in the production of "intoxicating liquor in any form or of any kind" while the war lasts. Later it defeated, 48 to 28, a prohibition of drinks.

These votes were on amendments to the espionage bill. The long debate over them prevented a final vote on that bill, despite the ten-minute rule which had been imposed by unanimous consent.

Senator Reed, of Missour, author of the amendment on the postoffice bill which made no-license States bone dry, attempted to make this amendment a real prohibition amendment for the period of the war. He would have inserted language to make it a crime to sell, or to drink, any livuid containing alcohol until peace comes.

It is well to realize that disagreement with one's ideas does not always constitute bad taste or bad judgment in another.

MOTHERS' DAY CARNATIONS

The Playgrounds Association is pleased to announce that as a result of the sale of carnations on Saturday about $225 will be added to their funds for the year's work.

They wish to thank heartily all those who assisted in any way—the merchants who gave the use of their stores, the young ladies who sold the flowers, and those who assisted at the various centres.

The committee regrets that, owing to the backward season, the flowers were not quite as perfect as in other years.

HE DISPLAYED GREAT HEROISM

Mr. Dawson Kennedy, this city, whose son Private Marvin S. Kennedy, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, was killed in action on April 9th last, has received the following testimony to his gallant boy's pluck and heroism.

"Dear Mr. Kennedy.—I regret very much to inform you that your son, Pte. M. S. Kennedy of the Can. Mounted Rifles, was killed in action on April 9th, during a glorious victory, when he and those with him displayed great heroism.

"He was buried near the fighting line.

"Hoping the Great Comforter may be near you, as He has been [illegible] many this year.

A VERY POPULAR SUMMER RESORT

Mr. F. Laplante and family of Toronto have moved to the Windsor House at Buckhorn, Ont., which has been conducted by Mr. Nathaniel Pearson for seventeen years past.

This is a well known summer resort for tourists from different points, including Cleveland, Youngstown, Buffalo, Toronto, etc., of whom Mr. Pearson has always had a large share of guests, being accommodating to every person. We all know that Mr. and Mrs. Laplante will be well liked by people from far and near, and bespeak his success in his new undertaking.

Mr. and Mrs. Laplante successfully conducted a grocery business at 158 Sumach street, Toronto. Mr. N. Pearson and daughter Gladys will be their guests at Buckham.

Many a man who claims to be self-made does his tailor a great injustice.

WILL BE A TRIUMPH

"H.M.S. Pinafore" will make its bow to Peterboro to-morrow night. The first dress rehearsal will be held this evening at 6.30 o'clock. Chorus and principals are well up to their work, and a good performance is promised. Stanley Adams is here arranging the placing of scenery which arrived yesterday from the Alexandra Theatre, Toronto. The big cycloramas with cut-out lights and moon, will add greatly to the scenic effects. An orchestra of 25 musicians, a ballet of 18, and well-drilled chorus and principals ought to bring the public in large numbers to witness the trinmph of the local amateurs.

OBITUARY

MRS. ISABELLA McCANNON.

The death occurred at 5.45 last evening of Mrs. Isabella McCannon, aged 70 years, relict of the late Benjamin McCannon and daughter of the late Robt. Goodfellow at her residence, 480 Donegal street. The deceased was stricken with paralysis on Saturday and sank gradually until Sunday evening when she passed peacefully away. She was a faithful member of Knox Church since its beginning and let no opportunity pass when she could be of service. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons, Herbert and Archie; one sister, Mrs. Josiah Robertson, 177 Aylmer street, and one brother, John R. Goodfellow, 583 Park street. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery. The service at 2.30 will be conducted by the Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Knox Church.

WHERE CANNINESS WINS

Soldiers' Battles Give Scotsman Their Best Chances

Of a British victory a correspondent [illegible]: Even after the mass had surrendered, there still remained the dug[illegible] and the tunnel to be dealt with; it was then that an enterprising [illegible] private who had lived in Germany found his opportunity. A German officer surrendered to him; but the private was too canny to take him back quietly and turn him over. Instead, he led him along the ravine to a suspected dug-out, and bade the officer put his head into the entrance and order the men inside—if any there were—to come out. The officer thundered his order—and out came 50 tame Germans.

While this struggle for the ravine was going on, other Scottish troops higher up had swarmed over the German lines and into the dip of the hill where the village lay; and before midday we were in possession of the site of the village—there is no village—and the mouths, at least, of all the subterranean hiding places with which it is underlaid. In such a place all sorts of troops inevitably get broken up, and it becomes in truth even more than General Joffre has called it, une guerre de Capitaines; it becomes a true soldiers' fight, where every man is almost "on his own" and the most extraordinary incidents take place.

Desperate Counter Attacks of Germans to Recover Lost Ground Are Repulsed---Teutons Have Over Three Hundred Submarines Afloat.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 15.—Today's official statement says: "Small engagements between outposts in which our troops were successful took place during the night southeast of Epehy. Early this morning the enemy heavily bombarded our positions in Bullecourt and the Hindenburg line and again delivered two determined counter attacks. His attempt on the Hindenburg line completely failed. In Bullecourt his attack was also repulsed after fighting in which our advanced posts in the northwestern portion of the village were forced back a short distance. "Another hostile counter attack southeast of Loos was stopped by our artillery. We made a successful raid last night in the neighborhood of Ypres and captured a few prisoners."

FOE HAS 325 SUBS.

LONDON, May 15.—The Germans have about 325 submarines in operation and about 80 to 100 have been lost through British nets alone, according to the Amsterdam Telegraaf. When at sea the submarines assemble at a given point every morning and receive wireless instructions presumably from Heligoland. There are about thirty-nine U-boats of the newest type each carrying a crew of 56 men.

GEN. HAIG'S REPORT.

Gen. Haig's report says:

"Our troops continued their progress north of the Scarpe River, and completed their capture of Roeux, taking a few prisoners. The whole village of Roeux, which was defended by the enemy with the greatest determination, and has been the scene of much desperate fighting during the operations of the past month, is now in our possession.

"In the air fighting yesterday six German airplanes were brought to earth, and two others were driven out of control. Three of our machines are missing."

"Hostile raids were repulsed last night northeast of Ephy and north of Ypres," says the day report. "We secured a few prisoners."

STRIKES AFFECT WAR SUPPLIES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 15.—Dr. Christopher Addison, Minister of Munitions, in a statement on the engineers' strike, says that people think the army in France has heaps of shells, but that is not the point. I am glad to say they have plenty of shells at the front, but these strikes are particularly affecting such things as big guns, tanks and airplane motors. The supply of all these has been gravely affected.

Demand For Tanks

Dr. Christopher Addison says that a continuation of the offensive in June depends upon things which are now being finished in British shops, and he dwells on the importance of tanks which are very popular with the army. The demand for tanks is so great that the Minister recently ordered two thousand tons of steel set apart weekly for building them.

Russians Beaten Back by Turks

Report from Sultan's Capital Claims a Double Victory.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 15.—The following official announcement was given out here today: "Of two Russian detachments which crossed the upper Diala on the Mesopotamian front, the northern one was driven back to the other bank after a short fight on May 10th. The other detachment was first checked in its attack by our troops operating on the west bank, who surrounded it north and south. Our troops then attacked the Russians and forced them to retreat with heavy losses to the other bank."

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Holders of war bonds are reminded that these bonds are subject to taxation for municipal taxes although an impression to the contrary appears to be prevalent.

A resident assessed as a householder may have an income of $1500 exempt from taxation. If he is not a householder he is assessed for income in excess of $600 All are required to fill in the blank forms which are furnished for the purpose and if they object to payment they may appear bеore the Court of Revision just as any other citizen who has a grievance, real or imaginary.

Russia Still Heard From in Conflict

Reports From Various Fronts Tell of New Successes Achieved.

DROVE BACK THE KURDS.

Took Prisoners in Mesopotamia With Slight Loss to Themselves.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 15. — An official statement issued today by the Russian war department says: "On the western and Roumanian fronts there have been fusillades and scouting reconnaissances.

"On the Caucasion front, in the region of Keller Kamlak Baba, south of Erzingana, our counter-attacks drove the Kurds from the trenches which they had occupied the day before.

"On the Mesopotamian front, on the River Diala, in the region of Sheik Said, Kalachirwan, and opposite Omaraga, the fight continued. We captured some prisoners. Our losses were insignificant."

AFFAIRS IN RUSSIA CAUSE GRAVE ANXIETY IN FRANCE

74th BATTERY WILL MAKE THIS CITY ITS HOME

To Be Stationed in Peterboro' When Summer Camp Closes.

MAJOR CROCKER IS O. C.

Major Randolph Crocker is in the city on a still hunt for recruits for that crack military unit the 74th Battery, now stationed at Kingston. The battery will go to Petawawa Camp some time in June, and at the close of the season will be sent to this city, where it will put up for the winter. It will be a novelty in Peterborough, for when up to strength it consists of 143 men, 100 horses, four guns and eight wagons.

Major Crocker, who will be in command of the battery next winter, when it is stationed here, is a soldier who has made good and is an officer under whom any young Canadian should esteem it an honor to serve. The Major took the 28th Battery of the 2nd Canadian Division overseas in July, 1915, leaving from the camp at Valcartier. He was with the battery at Ypres, St. Eloi, Kemmell and in the Somme sector, and helped to make that unit famous as it is today. Last Christmas he returned to Canada wounded. When he recovered he reported for duty again and was assigned to his present position. He is ready to return to the front any time the call comes.

The other officers of the battery are all experienced artillery men. They are Lieuts. Olmstead, MacLaren and Bethune. The 74th was organized last May in Kingston and has sent since that time over 300 men in drafts overseas. Some of the Peterborough boys who joined were Sergts. Herb. Dickson and Millard Brooks. The artillery branch of the service seems to possess a peculiar attraction for athletes and some of the most muscular young men in the city are now members of the 33rd, the 26th and the 57th. The 74th has long held the enviable position of being recognized as the best battery in Kingston.

Impression is Prevalent That Situation is Growing Worse as Shown by Resignation of Ministers---French Troops Still Victorious in the Field.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 15.—The resignation of the Russian Minister of War, M. Guchkoff and General Korniloff, military commander of Petrograd, have caused a painful impression here and increased the feeling that the situation in Russia is getting worse instead of better. Considerable anxiety is felt at the turn events are taking in Russia.

PARIS, May 15—An attack was made on the Aisne front along Chemin des Dames. The official statement follows.

"After a violent bombardment late yesterday on the Chemin des Dames Germans attacked our positions over a long front in the region northwest of Braye en Laonnois, between Boyettes and Epine de Chevregny. Our curtain of fire and our machine guns broke up the attack. The Germans were not able to approach our lines except at one point, where the enemy gained a footing in one of our advanced trenches southwest of Filain. Surprise attacks against French posts north of Craonne, east of Hill 108 and northeast of Auberive were defeated by our fire. We took prisoners of whom one was an officer. In the Woevre and Lorraine French detachments penetrated the German lines at several points and brought back prisoners."

GENERAL PETAIN PROMOTED

PARIS, May 15.—General Petain was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the French armies operating on the French front at a Cabinet meeting to-day. General Nivelle was placed in command of a group of armies. General Foch who played an important role in battles of Marne and Yser succeeds General Petain as chief of staff of ministry of war.

CANADIANS STILL POURING HEAVY SHELLS INTO LENS

Many Direct Hits Obtained and Enemy's Fire Lessens.

(By Stewart Lyons.)

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 15. — Some prisoners recently taken on this front are far below the general standard of physique of the enemy troops. It has been learned that in the disastrous attack at Avion on Friday last the troops employed by Germans included drafts of 18-year-old lads who had reached the front only an hour before the attack was made. This indicates the serious shortage experienced by the enemy trops on this front.

The artillery of the Canadian corps continues to be engaged all day in duels with the enemy guns in Lens

BREAD WILL SOON COST 24 CENTS A LARGE LOAF

That is the Price in Toronto and the Top Has Not Yet Been Reached in Peterborough.

Bread has gone up to 24 cents a loaf in Toronto and the same price is sure to prevail in Peterborough before many days. Such is the serious situation that confronts the housewife.

Will it help if the housewife bakes her own bread? Some of the domestic science experts say that she won't save anything worth while, but that she will find it more satisfactory to bake her own bread.

"It is high time for the Dominion Government to step in and control the food supply," said Miss Jessie J. Hills, head of the Housewifery Centre, in Toronto, where girls are trained in the art of housekekeping. "The poor people are paying with their blood to win this war, while already rich men are swelling their fortunes out of the food supply. I read the other day that there are $1,000,000 barrels of flour in Canada. If it is here, why should the prices be boosted so? It is not helping to win the war to boost the prices so that the poor cannot get nourishment. It is simply giving a few men a chance to fill their pockets to overflowing."

Whole Wheat Flour.

With the latest increase in the price of bread, the public mind has turned in search of a substitute and the question of whole-wheat flour has been resurrected. By ex-Mayor R. N. Price, of St. Thomas, president of the Empire Flour Mills, the statement is made that Canada can save 2,000,000 bushels of wheat a year by the Government making the regulation that the use of roller flour, containing 76 per cent. of the flour, be permitted until the end of the war. Mr. Price claims that this flour, which costs $1 per barrel less than the present high grade of flour used, makes bread just as palatable as, and more wholesome than, white bread, but there are millers and bakers in Peterborough who do not quite agree with him.

TWO MORE PETERBORO BOYS MAKE SUPREME SACRIFICE

Pte. E. Vosburgh and Sgt. Clayton Reported Dead.

Ottawa reports that in today's casualty list of 139 names these are 22 killed, 17 died of wounds and two prisoners, and 98 ill or wounded.

Two names of local interest are in today's reports, those of Pte. Ernest Vosburgh and Sergt. A. Herbert Clayton.

POTATOES AT $3.75 A BAG AND CITY WILL SELL THEM

City Fathers Are Bringing in a Car Load From Rainey River---400 Bags in All.

The City Council is going into the potato business on a car-lot scale. Through arrangement with ex-Reeve Wm. Henry Crough, of Ennismare, a car is being sent by his son from Rainey River, to be sold on the track in this city at $3.75 a bag to all comers, excepting, of course, dealers. The potatoes will be in bulk, and the shipment will represent 400 bags at a total value of $1,500. Purchasers must supply their own bags and arrange for conveyance from the car, which is expected to arrive in four days. The potatoes will have to be disposed of quickly, and will be weighed at the car. Mr. Crough will be invited to co-operate with Ald. Dobbin in arranging for the sale of these potatoes in the easiest and quickest possible manner.

Council's decision to accept and dispose of this carload of potatoes resulted from a motion by Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Smith, to that effect.

The Meeting.

This potato question came up in a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night, when there were present Mayor Duffus, and Aldermen Taylor, Weir, Stratton, McIntyre, Duncan, Smith and Dobbin.

His Worship reported that Council was advised not to purchase old potatoes at current prices as a drop is due at any moment, owing to the new product being listed at prices reasonably near those for the old. Northwest potatoes had been quoted him at $3.40 a bag in car lots, and those from Prince Edward Island at $2.75, but owing to the uncertainty of delivery before a substantial reduction in price occurs, the purchase of potatoes at a distance is considered by many a risky venture.

However, a carload is coming, in from Rainey River, which may be had at $3.75 per bag, weighed at the car, and he suggested that they be bought and disposed of to the public on an advertised date.

Ald. Smith said he knew the Rainey River potatoes, which he characterized as large and mealy, but unsuitable for seeding in this district.

Others agreed with him, but it was decided they would be appreciated for table use at the substantial reduction from retail prices.

Increase in Wages.

Ald. Weir wanted to know what wages the Board of Works should offer for sewer works on George street and other streets in South City.

$2.50 a day was paid last year, but he thought the men would demand more now. $2.70 per day was the wage agreed upon by the committee,

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 15, 1917

A POLITICAL CATECHISM.

Q.—WHO WAS IT first spoke of the inadvisability—or worse—of opening the portals of office with "a bloody key"?

A.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier in one of those graceful flights of rhetoric for which he is justly famous. Sir Wilfrid, however, let it be remembered, was addressing an Ontario audience at the time, not a gathering of his own race.

Q.—How, then, can the present clamor for an election be accounted for?

A.—When a man is in the delirium of starvation and has lost the key of the pantry, he is apt to devise ways and means for breaking down the door. If fortune favors him and he finds a key that fits the lock, he is not likely to be over-fastidious if the key is either sanguinary, rusty, or somewhat bent, so long as there is a chance of reaching the spoils for which he craves.

WILL RUSSIA DESERT?

THE WAR NEWS that was cabled to this country yesterday was cheering as usual, except that which came from the Russian front. There is an excuse for uneasiness over the intelligence that the Germans have decided to withdraw 600,000 men—a tremendous army in itself before the days of the present war, when fighting forces are reckoned in millions—from the eastern theatre of war to the western front, there to cope with the Franco-Anglo offensive that they have for the past month been resisting so stubbornly but ineffectively.

Germany would hardly decide on such a step unless convinced that the Russians have all but decided to abandon the conflict and make separate peace, all assurance to the contrary notwithstanding. The edict of one Russian general is not sufficient. The dispatches of yesterday said that a party of German officers carrying a flag of truce had an audience with a Russian military leader, and that they suggested terms of peace. It was stated that the offer was bluntly and emphatically rejected, but it is the forces behind this leader that are to be considered.

The new republic is certainly in a state of chaos. The differences between the war and the peace parties are clearly defined. It is tru that the members of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council did declare for a continuance of the war, but it was by a narrow majority in a large vote. Since that decision was arrived at there has been unrest among the people.

Even if Russia proves false to her allies, the downfall of the Kaiser is still assured, but the struggle is likely to be prolonged indefinitely, just as everything pointed to an early victory for the Entente Powers. Russia is delirious with the new power that emancipation has brought her people, and little dependence is to be placed upon anything that country may say until reason and a sense of obligation to others have had time to assert themselves.

IF THERE IS AN ELECTION.

IN THE EVENT of an election during the coming summer, the farmers of Peterborough County will not be likely to forget that the Liberal party through their local organ have declared that the only salvation for the country is for the State to seize the farmer's potatoes, butter and eggs, and other produce, and pay him its own price. That is the party and paper that in 1911 attempted to make the farmer believe that his markets were restricted. What chance has a Liberal candidate with the farmers of the riding on such a platform as The Examiner has built for him?

WHEN THE MILITIA SYSTEM FAILED.

HARRIS DICKSON, one of the leading writers in the United States, has an article in the latest issue of a popular magazine which tends to show just why the people of that country have decided to substitute the selective draft for the militia system that has been in force for upwards of half a century.

Congress was slow in the matter of being weaned away from voluntarism. By Act of May 8, 1792, every free, able-bodied white male citizen between the ages of eighteen and forty-five was required to be enrolled in the militia of his state, and was served with notice of his enrollment. It then became his duty to supply himself with equipment and serve when called upon. This was the first step toward universal service.

No penalties were provided for violation of the law, and the men were left under command of state governors. Instead of one efficient national army, the country became possessed of thirteen separate, independent and disconnected state mobs.

Then the war of 1812 broke out. President Madison found himself unable to command the militia from certain states. Their governors objected, wrangling about state rights and where the men were supposed to fight. The President could not order the militia into national service without forcing them to become deserters. While the legal argument was progressing, agitators raised the cry of "On to Canada!" On to Canada! filled everybody's mouth, and General Hull started with three hundred regulars and fifteen hundred volunteers and militia.

They actually crossed the river at Detroit, crossed On to Canada! and then crossed back again, taking shelter in their own fort at Detroit. The British could not understand the subtle manoeuvre; so they followed over to investigate, with a force considerably inferior to that of General Hull.

Arrived on the American side, they refused to believe their own eyes when a white flag was hoisted and a superior force—inside a fortification!—surrendered to inferior forces outside; and without firing a solitary shot!

Naturally Congress investigated this On to Canada! fiasco. General Hull defended himself against the charges of treason and cowardice by proving that his militia refused to obey orders. He had found it necessary to use the bayonets of his regulars against his insubordinate recruits. A hundred and eighty of these recruits, for instance, had enthusiastically started On to Canada! Yet they hung back on their own side of the river because they were not obliged to serve outside the United States.

Thereupon General Hull, popular hero of the Revolution and personal friend of Washington, was acquitted of treason but convicted of cowardice at the age of seventy years.

Honestly, those British never intended it as a joke, but they added the crowning insult to this expedition by sending all United States regulars as prisoners to Montreal, while permitting the militiamen to go back home.

Our neighbors to the south of us have learned from their own experience and that of the other nations now at war. In the event of international hostilities the democracy that relies on volunteers is clearly at a disadvantage as compared with the autocracy where the selective draft is the rule. Germany's efficiency both in the field and in the manufactories and shipyards at home is entirely due to the system employed in selecting men for military and industrial duty.

The selective draft is a phrase less offensive to sensitive ears than either conscription or compulsion, but it really means the same, and nothing short of something of the kind will suffice to keep Canada's quota of fighting men up to the mark while the daily list of casualties grows constantly, as it is now doing.

In the meantime a home defence force is essential, and the man who for any reason is unable to proceed overseas still has an opportunity to serve his country.

THE GHOST OF A HOPE.

"WE WILL HAVE no conscription," Sir Wilfrid Laurier assures the people of Quebec.

And yet the local Liberals plead as one reason for a war-time election that compulsion is needed and that it can be secured only by turning the present Government out of office.

ONE REASON FOR AN ELECTION.

THE LIBERALS who are agitating for a general election have overlooked one argument. Sir Wilfrid Laurier some time ago promised to stump Quebec. He has not yet done so.

If there is an election, the leader of the Opposition will beyond a doubt carry out his pledge, and the country will then be afforded an opportunity to learn how he stands on conscription and other questions concerning the nation's safety.

ONE REASON AGAINST AN ELECTION.

IF THERE IS a war-time election, the slacker will have a vote. The gallant defenders of their Empire in the trenches in Flanders will be deprived of the franchise. In the face of such a situation, who will agitate for what would be nothing more nor less than an undignified and mercenary national disturbance?

BEANS VERSUS POTATOES.

THE FOLLOWING statement has been issued by the Department of Agriculture:

The enthusiasm displayed generally in the matter of planting potatoes is only equalled by the enthusiasm with which potato prices are climbing up. It now costs from forty-five to fifty dollars for seed to plant an acre of potatoes. It is obvious that at these prices potatoes do not give a sufficient food value. Housekeepers could well eliminate the potato and turn to more economic foods, and by such elimination leave that much more seed to be planted for the much-needed crop this year.

In the scarcity of potatoes it would be well for planters to turn to the question of beans. The same money that will plant an acre of potatoes, if invested in beans, will provide seed for more than ten acres. They are not only an excellent and nutritious form of food, but it looks as if they will continue to be in strong demand for army supplies, and companies with army contracts are offering as high as five dollars a bushel for this year's crop. Soils suitable for potatoes are generally also suitable for beans.

Some of our local gardeners who are vexed with the question of procuring seed potatoes would do well to study the above.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

"WE WILL HAVE no conscription," says Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Whereupon the hoodlums of Quebec proceed to pelt the recruiting officers.

EVERY DAY is Mothers' Day in the affairs of the universe, which would soon degenerate into chaos but for the gentle hand that rocks the cradle.

• • • •

THE MISSION of Liberty may be to enlighten the world, but in Russia the goddess seems to be able to equip herself with nothing better than a dark lantern.

THE LIBERALS who professed friendship for the farmer in 1911 would now make a criminal of the man who sells a bag of potatoes in the open market at the price regulated by supply and demand.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Where Men Are Plentiful.

(Ottawa Journal-Press.)

Perhaps when Mr. Boulay of Rimouski proposed banishing women from the civil service, he had in mind that there were lots of men in Quebec to take their places.

Here's a Record.

(Kingston Standard.)

Of the graduating class of 1914 at the Royal Military College, 37 out of 38 went overseas, and of that number 15 have laid down their lives and the remainder have been wounded, more or less seriously.

BOY SCOUTS ON THE FARM

Boy Scouts will aid materially in the greater production schemes of the allied nations this year. Fully realizing the grave importance of increased production of necessary food stuffs and knowing well the extreme scarcity of farm labor, thousands of of Boy Scouts in Great Britain France, Canada, Australia, the United States and other countries have volunteered their services in this direction.

Many will lend their services to the farmers during the busiest seasons, while thousands of others have taken over many acres of land upon which they will grow potatoes and other vegetables which are essential to the up-keep of the vast armies at present engaged in a fight for liberty on the battle fields of Europe. The Minister of Agriculture has donated to the French Boy Scouts a section of ground in the heart of Paris that they are now cultivating to increase the food supply.

Heeding President Wilson's grave proclamation, "Without abundant food, alike for the armies and the peoples now at war, the whole great enterprise upon which we have embarked wil break down and fail," and adopting the slogan, "Every scout to feed a soldier," the Boy Scouts movement in the United States has risen to the occasion and has mobilized its quarter million members to help meet a paramount need in the war. Scouts can't beat their swords into plough shares, but they can turn their staffs into hoes. Already the Boy Scouts of the United States have rendered a great service in aiding in the dissemination of agricultural and horticultural literature.

BOY SCOUTS' CAMPS

Now that the long winter is over and spring has once more made its appearance, Boy Scouts naturally turn their thoughts to the lure of the camp. The memory of happy days spent out in the open, far from the madding crowd, quickens their thoughts, and they find themselves already planning for this summer's outing.

The scout camp offers great opportunities for the cultivation of self help, resourcefulness, and help to others. Here it is possible to put into practice much that has been learned in the club room. Boys are taught to depend on themselves, and to do with as little equipment as possible. There are no luxuries; there are as many comforts as the scout with his axe and wits can provide from the immediate surroundings; and what those may mean are only known to those who have organized such camps.

Trouser "Cuffs" Banned in Germany

New regulations for putting the German people on clothes rations went into force on April 1. They go into considerable detail concerning the number of garments which citizens may possess, and even specify the amount of cloth which may be used for making suits and dresses.

The following list of adequate wardrobes for men and women officially is fixed, and no supply beyond this limit may henceforth be purchased.

For men—One every day suit, one Sunday suit, one overcoat or cape, two smocks or jerseys, two waistcoats, two pairs working trousers, two pair overalls, one pair winter gloves, six handkerchiefs, three shirts, three suits underclothes, two nightgowns and four pair stockings.

For women — Two every-day dresses, one Sunday dress, one Sunday dress, one extra skirt, two blouses, one cloak of cape, one shawl, one dressing, six handkerchiefs, four chemises, three nightgowns, three suits of underclothing, three petticoats, and four pairs stockings.

Both men and women are limited to three pairs of shoes, one pair of house slippers, three pillowcases, three towels, two kitchen towels and three dusting towels.

Both women and men are limited to three and a quarter yards of material for a suit or dress.

Trousers must not be made "turned up" and overcoats must not have pleats or belts.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: My letter in your issue of yesterday contained a printer's error which made all the differ in the world to the idea which I intended to convey with regard to the present Government. One of the reasons given against another extension of Parliament was "their present unaccountable activity is an intolerable breach of trust." This, of course, should read "their present unaccountable 'inactivity' is an intolerable breach of trust."

The fact is I almost feel like going further and stating that this inactivity is a crime.

While writing I would also like to point out that no parallel can be drawn between political conditions here and in Great Britain. It hardly needs to be mentioned that in the old country they have a national government composed of the leaders of all parties except the Nationalists (who were also offered a place), and because of this fact there is no reason or demand for an election. The government changed from a party government to a national government without any election. If such a change would take place here the need for an election would be eliminated here also.

I notice that you state that conscription may be nearer in Canada than I imagine. I most fervently hope so. Indeed, I would not be a bit surprised if it were intimated pretty plainly to Sir Robert Borden in England that Canada is now "lying down on her job," and that he has returned to this country feeling that willy-nilly compulsion must be faced. But even if a measure of conscription is at last introduced, the Government cannot escape the responsibility of precious months lost and of waste in the futile and ridiculous system of voluntary defence which is being tried out just now.

Yours truly,

JOSEPH WEARING

Keep her happy, keep her young.
Cherish her this cheerful May—
Wear a flower on Mother's Day.

Wear a flower on Mother's Day,
Mother's hair is thin and gray,
And the years are growing few
'Twixt a parting time and you.
You are blunt, like other men;
You are thoughtless now and then;
Make it up this cheerful May—
Wear a flower on Mother's Day.

Wear a flower on Mother's Day,
Since your mother passed away
Often are your eyelids wet
With the drops of vain regret;
Lose not heart; she waits above,
Guards you still with mother's love.
Breathe her name this cheerful May
Wear a flower on Mother's Day.

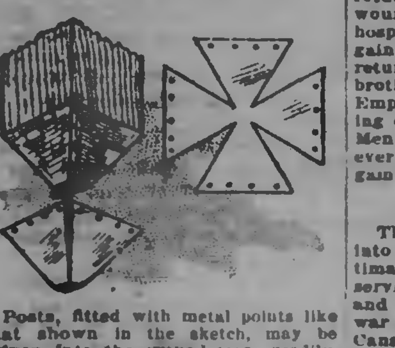
CANADA'S COOKS BEST

A correspondent of the London (Eng.) Express writes: Where I am working, the farmer's wife supplies the meals and I have just been eating a piece of her cocoanut custard pie. Such pie! I shall remember it long after I have returned to England, wondering why it is we are not able to produce such appetizing cookery as I have found all over the Dominion. I have been having most of my meals and lodging at the newest kind of a new hotel in the newest kind of a Western Canadian town. Its structure is partly of logs, the plaster of its walls is rough and unwhitened, and sometimes there are among the guests those who sit at table in shirt sleeves. The food is delicious and the cooking is equal to that of many a French chef.

Metal Points For Fence Posts



Posts, fitted with metal points like that shown in the sketch, may be driven into the ground more readily, and will last longer than those not so guarded. The guard may be made of ordinary tinned sheet metal, or galvanized iron, cut to the shape of a Maltese cross, as shown at the right in the sketch. Small holes are punched at its extreme edges, and the piece is folded to fit the end of the post and nailed into place. Similar pieces may be fitted to the tops of posts as a weather protection.—Popular Mechanics.

IS IT INDIAN SUMMER?

Season Known in Europe as St. Martin's Summer

Indian Summer occurs in Europe as it does in this country after a touch of Winter's cold, which may be accompanied by snow and biting winds. It is there called St. Martin's Summer. Across the sea it opens officially on Nov. 11th, the anniversary of the burial of the saint who was the patron of beggars, innkeepers and wine growers. In England, years ago, we are told, the time was given over to feasting. This was aided by the fact that about this time cattle were slaughtered for Winter use, and the new wine was opened. It naturally followed that St. Martin was popular with the English, who were ever valiant trenchermen. At one time in London alone there were 200 churches named in his honor. St. Martin, too, was particularly honored by the children, and his day became, for another phase of it, a sort of juvenile orgy.

It is not often that one saint is the patron of so many and different factors of human life and society as St. Martin, who died in Hungary in 370 A.D. "So this saint, who inspired so many phases of life and its functions, from beggars' relief to children's joy, was blessed, indeed. Even his 'day' comes at this beautiful time of the year, a golden time when the soft air woos the senses and yet carries a bracing quality of stimulation. There is the russet brown earth, the blue [illegible]-like color in the air, the red sun shining through and flooding all with a soft light, a combination that [illegible] fullness without satiety, [illegible] senses without stupefy

A Great Record.

After having been twice wounded on the battlefields of France and Flanders, a patient in various hospitals all over England, Pte. John Menary, eldest boy of the famous lacrosse family of Orangeville two decades ago, has been again fitted for active service, and is back in the trenches. "Johnny," as he was familiarly known, fought through the North-West Rebellion, and also served through the South African campaign. When the world went to war he again shouldered a rifle and answered the call to the colors along with his two brothers. And Pte. John Menary is no longer on the sunny side of fifty years. He is well remembered in Ontario as a member of that well known lacrosse team, the Dufferins, when the Orangeville aggregation was at the zenith of its fame. He was wounded shortly after he arrived in the trenches and after some time in English hospitals again returned to the front. Again he was wounded, and after a long siege in hospitals and convalescent homes, regained his health and strength and returned to his comrades. One of his brothers has given up his life for the Empire, but Pte. John is still "carrying on." He is the brother of Ernie Menary, one of the best cover-points ever developed in Canada's national game.

Barred From Canada Now.

The entry of the United States into the war, and the strongly intimated probability of compulsory service there, is having a curious and somewhat humorous effect. The war had no sooner got under way in Canada than an exodus to the States started from certain quarters. Conscription was feared. Some of the same people are now attempting to come back, for the reason that in the new land of their adoption compulsory service seems more imminent than in Canada. The people who are thus attempting to evade their responsibilities are not native-born Canadians. Immigration inspectors are applying the law and holding up their entry to Canada, with the probability of their being kept out altogether. An extensive propaganda to secure in the United States farm laborers for the Canadian west is in progress and has produced splendid results. It is not expected that the developments in the States will seriously affect the movement, though it may to some extent. As crop production is vital, the American authorities are expected to co-operate with those of Canada.

Claimed to Be Longboat.

The alleged Tom Longboat, who has been deceiving southerners and winter tourists in California has finally been unmasked. A letter received from a well-known Ottawa citizen, who is staying at Coronado Beach, Cal., gives the first true particulars in connection with the fictitious athlete. The unknown Indian arrived there in February, and was given the freedom of the city, so to speak, after having declared that he was the original Tom Longboat, and that he was just back from France, where he had served 15 months with the Princess Pats. He displayed a medal and a deep scar on his chest, and at once became a hero in San Diego. He was banquetted and dined on all sides and gave a lecture on life in the trenches. He also presented the colors to a new battalion being formed there. Then an Ottawa man, who had met the real Tom Longboat, saw the pseudo runner and informed San Diego that they had been duped. They put it up to the impostor and he coolly admitted that he was not Tom Longboat, and that he had never been in France.

Immediately afterwards the unknown proceeded to use what marathoning powers he had to place distance between himself and San Diego. He has not been seen since, either at San Diego or any other place, though officials and citizens of the town would very much like [illegible] him. The real Tom Longboat is of course in England.

FIGHTING GARDEN FOES

Destroy Them or They May Destroy Your Crop.

SPRAYING A READY REMEDY

In This Column the Amateur is Introduced to Insects and Fungus So That He May Know Them by Their First Names.

(By S. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Garden Foes.

Unfortunately the backyard vegetable grower has some difficulties to overcome. It will not be all pleasure and profit which he must look forward to because there are innumerable insects and fungus diseases which cause much worry and trouble and necessitate the use of extraordinary methods to prevent or control. Most of these troubles may be overcome by spraying the plants with remedies which can be secured from seed stores and other firms handling them.

The following is a list of the more common vegetables and the insects and plant diseases attacking them with remedies or preventives.

ASPARAGUS. Beetles. Blue, black or yellowish colored, about one-half inch long, which appear early in May and feed on the young shoots. Keep the bed closely cut in the spring or allow poultry to run through it. After cutting season is over, spray with arsenate of lead. Encourage the lady bird beetle which destroys many of these insects.

Anthracnose or Pod Spots. Brown or reddish spots on the foliage and pods. Found on low damp ground. Plant only seeds which have no signs of the disease. Pull up and burn diseased plants as they appear.

CABBAGE, CAULIFLOWER, AND BRUSSELS SPROUTS. Root Maggot. A small whitish colored maggot one-quarter of an inch long. Looks something like a grain of wheat, found just below the surface of the ground either close to or on the roots. They eat the roots, causing the plant to drop over. Apply a solution of corrossive sublimate one-half ounce dissolved in five gallons of water, at the rate of half a teacupful over each plant once a week for five weeks after they are set out, commencing three or four days after planting.

Cut Worms and White Grubs. Greyish white grubs which work at the surface of the soil cutting off the plants. They may be trapped by spreading a mixture of poison bran over the surface of the soil close to the plants. A pail of bran with sufficient paris green to highly color it, should be moistened with molasses until it crumbles readily in the hand. This moisture should be kept on the ground during the early part of the season.

Worm. A small greenish worm three-quarters of an inch long, which appears quite early in the season. Dust with pyrethrum or hellebore powder when the plants have headed, or dust with a teaspoonful of paris green mixed with three tablespoonful of flour when young. A piece of burlap may be used for this purpose or an empty can with holes punched in the bottom.

Aphis, also called louse. Small greyish insects which multiply rapidly. They may appear at any time in the season. Spray forcibly with a solution made from steeping one pound of tobacco refuse in one gallon of water. This solution may be used on all plants on which Aphid are found.

CELERY. Blight. Black spots appear on the foliage followed by wilting of the plant and a soft root on the stock. Spray each week with a mixture of Bordeaux mixture covering the entire plant.

CUCUMBER. Striped Beetle. Black and yellow striped beetle which feeds ravenously on the tender leaves of the plant in the very early stage of growth. Dust leaves when wet with ashes or air-slaked lime.

ONION. Onion Maggot. A white maggot similar to the cabbage root maggot. No effective means of control. Spread charcoal over the ground or try the corrosive sublimate solution as recommended above.

Blight. A violet color, patches appearing on the leaf of the onion. Some advise spraying with Bordeaux mixture from the time the onion plant is three inches high.

POTATO. Colorado Beetle or Potato Bug. Dust with paris green when the dew is still on the plant, or place a teaspoonful in a watering can of water and pour over the plant. If possible have the plant dusted with paris green before the bug appears.

Scab. Easily recognized by characteristic roughness of the skin. Immerse the uncut tuber just before planting in a solution of two fluid ounces of formalin with two gallons of water. Dry, cut, and plant.

Blight. Brown spots distributed over the leafy surface, usually found in July. If they are not prevented from growing, the whole plant will be destroyed. Spray once a week for four or five weeks with Bordeaux mixture from July 1st.

RADISH. Root Maggot. Use the same remedies as given for cabbage and onion maggot.

TOMATO. Tomato Worm or Horn Blower. A large worm which rapidly defoliates the plant. Hand pick and destroy.

Blight. Black spots appearing on the leaves which spread rapidly and cause the whole plant to die. Keep the plants growing vigorously.

A NEW POLITICIAN.

Premier Foster of New Brunswick Recently Entered Public Life.

Hon. Walter Edward Foster, who has formed a new Cabinet in New Brunswick, was born in 1874 in the little village of St. Martins, nestling in the densest fogs of the Bay of Fundy some miles north of St. John. He entered one of the banks in the city of St. John for some years, and then, marrying the daughter of the late Mr. William Vassie, became a member of Vassie & Co., Ltd., dry goods merchants, of which he is vice-president and managing director. He has always been interested in business matters in the city of his migration, and has been president of the Board of Trade. Mr. Foster is also president of the St. Martin's Bay Railway Co. His patriotic turn was shown in his serving in the local artillery, from which he retired with the rank of captain. He has, however, been prominent in aiding recruiting, and was of material assistance when the Patriotic Fund branch was started in New Brunswick. One of the things he most desires for the business regeneration of New Brunswick is the union of the three Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Foster's course in Provincial politics has been comparatively short for one who has attained to so high an honor from his own people. He is unique in the Province in being called upon to form a Cabinet prior to his securing a seat definitely in the Fredericton House. To no single man could the swing of the pendulum of Liberalism be more attributable. He worked early and late to strengthen the Liberal party in New Brunswick.

Mr. Foster, while not an orator, is able to present his views with straightforward force. He has the strings admirably in hand. Possibly no man in the Province better knows what New Brunswick hopes for and desires. It only remains to add that he is an engaging personality, young and vigorous, with a lofty conception of public duty.

Many Americans, even those who are most strongly pro-Ally, have the notion that the Canadians, the Australians, and the South Africans have been doing the bulk of the fighting for the British. Probably the idea was disseminated originally by a German or a pro-German, with the hope of stirring up resentment in the overseas dominions or of persuading Americans that the British Government is ready to sacrifice Canadians and Australians in order to spare Englishmen. No doubt, too, the considerable number of skulking Canadians who have taken refuge in the United States since the beginning of the war have sought to justify their presence there at such a time by representing Canada as a mere victim of Great Britain. They spread tales of incompetent British officers in charge of Canadians whom they lead to slaughter, and able Canadian officers set aside in favor of some English upstart. It is noticeable that even the pro-Germans seek to make a distinction between the Old Country British and the Canadians; for the latter they have no disparagement, only a hypocritical sympathy that they should be deluded, and led like oxen to the slaughter.

One reason why this false idea is so common on the other side of the border is that the American newspapers know that their readers are more interested, other things being equal, in a battle in which Canadians take part than in a battle fought by Old Country troops. They are nearer to Canada, and since the beginning of the early days of the war, when the Canadians blocked the road to Calais, and in the never-to-be-forgotten words of the British commander-in-chief, "saved the day," they have contended that Canadians showed the world "how Americans can fight." The age-long generosity of the Englishman in the matter of bestowing praise on the Irish and the Scotch for heroism on the battlefield, praise which was well deserved, but which might as fairly have been given to English line regiments, has also shown itself in official British praise for the Canadians and the Australians. Every word of it was fairly won, and the better class of American people take pride in it as cousins take pride in the distinctions awarded to cousins. The fact remains that the bulk of the fighting in this war has been done, so far as the Empire is concerned, by the Old Country soldiers, and that the bulk of the Empire's fighting henceforth is likely to be done by the same glorious troops. J. V. McAree in The Mail and Empire.

THE POET AND HIS LOVES.

That patters on the window pane.
I love the tuneful little breeze
That whispers through the leafy trees.
I love the hills, I love the dales,
I love the sardines an' the whales.
I love the birds, I [illegible] kids,
I love the [illegible] katydids.
I love the land, I love the sea,
I love the humble bumblebee.
I love the light, I love the dark,
I love the codfish and the shark.
I love the moon, I love the stars,
I love the bounding trolley cars.
I love my hustling fellow man,
I love old John L. Sullivan.
I love the lobster and the crab,
I love the blushing taxicab.
I love the jay, I love the daw,
I love my absent mother-in-law.
I love my children and my wife,
I love my fork, I love my knife,
I love to loaf, I love to work,
I love to grin, I love to smirk,
I love to sing, I love to dance,
I love to read some old romance,
I love to sigh, I love to flirt,
The garden hose I love to squirt.
I love the weeds, I love the grass,
I love the horse, I love the ass.
I love the rooster and the hen,
I love the pig out in the pen.
I love the good old minstrel songs,
I love the poker and the tongs.
I love to eat, I love to think,
I love to fool with pen and ink.
I love the freckled butcher boy,
I love Schenectady and Troy—
In fact, I'll keep on loving things,
Whate'er they be, afoot, on wings;
The sky, the earth, the slave, the free,
The tumblebug, the skate, the flea,
As long as this love song of mine
Will bring me fifty cents a line!

The Fox and the Straps.

Once upon a time there was a fox who boarded a street car and looked about in vain for a seat. At length he espied above his head several bunches of the straps. He tried to reach them, but could not. He tried again and again, but they always eluded his grasp.

Finally he gave it up. "Oh, very well," said he, with some heat, "I don't care. They're probably germ laden anyway."

Accordingly he got off notwithstanding he wanted to catch a train and had already paid his fare.—Ellis O. Jones in Success Magazine.

What Sandy Said.

A group of Scotch lawyers were met convivially at an Ayrshire inn one cold evening last December. The conversation turned upon pronunciations.

"Now, I," said one of the barristers, "always say neether, while John here says nyether. What do you say, Sandy?"

The hot tipple had made Sandy doze, and at the sudden question he aroused and replied: "I? Oh, I say whusky!"—Lippincott's.

A GRACIOUS ALIEN

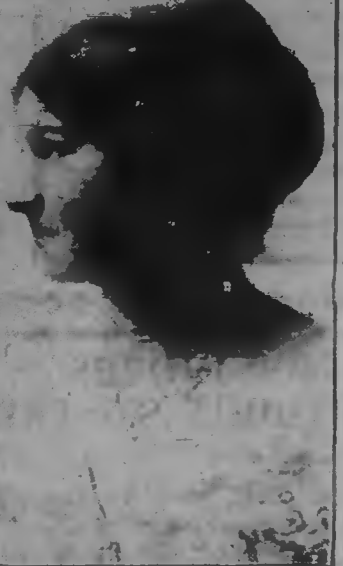
POPULAR IN WASHINGTON.

The Break in Diplomatic Relations With Germany Brought Forward a Hostess of Acknowledged Charm In Diplomatic Circles

The Swiss republic is a small one, but it looms large in history and counts for more than it might, in view of its size, on account of the quality of its citizens. The average of intelligence is exceptionally high in Switzerland, and the problems of government have been worked out much more satisfactorily there than in some larger countries. The minister to the United States from Switzerland, Dr. Paul Ritter, is a good specimen of the race he represents.

Mme. Ritter has taken her place among the lovely women of the capital, and she is counted among the most versatile and entertaining of the corps. She is quite young, and her frank, cordial manner and her joyous interest in everything novel gives additional girlishness to her appearance.



MME. PAUL RITTER.

She was before her marriage Miss Louise Reidhaar and has been carefully trained for her high social destiny, having first studied at the private schools of Basel and afterward under tutors in Geneva. She spent a short time in Paris, for she is an ardent musician, and spent time at the conservatory. The romance which culminated in her marriage is a pretty story. As the daughter of an eminent physician of Basel, she was among the prime favorites in the younger set, and she met her future husband in the natural course of events.

After their betrothal Dr. Ritter was appointed consul general at Yokohama and had to depart at once for his new post. In the meantime Dr. Reidhaar determined, at the urgent solicitation of his prospective son-in-law and some Swiss friends, to establish himself professionally in the orient. So his daughter imbibed the charm of the east along with the western.

Said Mme. Ritter in a newspaper interview recently:

"My country is conservative, and I may safely predict that it will be a long time before the woman's problem becomes acute. If I may use the language of a clever woman lecturer of Great Britain, Swiss women are content to leave 'isms, asms, ologies' and empire building to the men. Theirs is a much more vital problem.

"Women are admitted to the five great universities of Switzerland, at Geneva, Basel, Zurich, Berne and Lausanne, and there is no impediment placed in their way if they wish to enter professional ranks. There are many women doctors and, of course, the excellence of the Swiss woman as a nurse is internationally acknowledged. But few women seem to wish to enter the legal profession, and there is no agitation whatsoever about their desiring a part of the legislative authority which by centuries has been allotted to man. Women are a tremendous force in Switzerland, but it is along traditional channels which the wisdom of the ages assigns the proper course for women."

When a man kicks on his wife's expenses he thinks he is doing it for her good and she thinks he is a mean old thing.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things—and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

A BUST OF NELSON.

Gift Was Presented to Province of Ontario.

"The gallant little lads in navy blue" had their turn in the Ontario Legislative Assembly when the Province was presented with a bust of Lord Nelson composed of copper from the great Admiral's ship Victory. The bust was the gift of the late Lord Strathcona, formerly High Commissioner for Canada in London, through the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, of which the Rev. Alfred Hall is the Toronto Commissioner. It accompanies the gift of Nelson shields to the educational institutions of the Province. The Legislative Chamber was packed by members and their relatives and friends and other prominent citizens on the occasion of the presentation of this statue.

The bust, which was carried into the Chamber by a party of sailors and cadets, was unveiled by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Sir John Hendrie. Just as his Honor was removing the Union Jack which covered the bust, a flashlight photograph was taken. One of the Cabinet Ministers was observed to jump several feet when the "bomb" exploded, while others present behaved as if they feared the Germans had arrived. The bust is to be placed in the library of the Parliament buildings. Rev. Alfred Hall announced that 2,500 shields have been distributed in Canada and 800 in Ontario.

The bust was accepted by Sir William Hearst and Mr. Rowell on behalf of the Legislature, the Premier remarking that it would remind them of Britain's supremacy on the seas, and Mr. Rowell paying tribute to Lord Nelson, whose strong sense of duty and courage under the most trying conditions should be a guide to all.

A "Nelson" salver was presented to the Lieutenant-Governor by Mr. Justice Craig, while Rev. Mr. Hall gave one to Mr. Speaker Jamieson, and medals were distributed to the Premier, the Opposition leader, Dr. Pyne, and others who took part in the proceedings, as souvenirs.

Another picturesque event, prior to the presentation of the Nelson bust, was the displaying of the colors of the 208th Irish Fusiliers Battalion, commanded by Lieut.-Colonel T. Herbert Lennox, member of the Legislature for North York. The Toronto Irish battalion had been warned for overseas, and announcement was made that the colors of the regiment will be deposited in Belfast, Ireland. The color party was headed by a little Irish piper playing "The Wearin' o' the Green."

ENNISMORE ASSESSOR DID HIS WORK WITHOUT AN ERROR

No Mistakes Found in the Roll and No Complaints Were Received.

The Ennismore Court of Revision was held in the Town Hall, May 7, 1917.

All the members of council were present.

No appeals were sent in against the assessment roll and on examination no errors were found in it.

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that the assessment roll be received and adopted and the clerk sign the same.

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded by Mr. Harrington, that the Court of Revision be closed.

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded by Mr. Crowley, that the repairing of the drain at the Ennismore cross-road be left over for further consideration.

Moved by Mr. Crowley, seconded by Mr. Harrington, that the tax roll of 1916 be received from the collector as all taxes were collected.

By resolution of the council it was decided that Taylor & Hall be authorized to give no tile for culverts on public roads in the Township of Ennismore without an order from a member of the Ennismore council.

Eugene Murphy was reappointed collector for 1917.

The following accounts were paid: John White, cleaning town hall, $5.00; William F. Cavanagh, assessor, 17.00; balance of salary and for attending Court of Revision; George Boate, sheep killed by dogs, $22.60; William Harrington, putting in culvert and repairing road, 5.00; [illegible] Boate, sheep killed by dogs, 24.[illegible].

The request of a deputation of the residents of Ennismore Villag[illegible]ing the council to put large [illegible] the drain on the side of the [illegible] place of the small tile there at present which is detrimental to their property was left over for consideration.

C. O'Connor asked for a culvert at his gate. No action taken.

Moved by Mr. Harrington, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that this meeting adjourn subject to the call of the Reeve.

It is the opinion of many of the local ratepayers that the practice of having tags put on dogs should extend to the country as well as to the city.

SERB INFANTRY MADE ADVANCE

AIRSHIPS, TOO, DROPPED BOMBS ON AUSTRIAN CAMP.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

SALONIKI, May 15.—Great artillery activity prevailed yesterday on all the Serbian front says today a official statement by the Serbian War Office. "In the region of Vetrenik and Dobropolye our infantry advanced again and repulsed a violent enemy attack. Our airmen brought down an enemy airplane and dropped twenty-four bombs on enemy encampments near Konopishte and Turczhintze with good results."

GERMAN PEOPLE DESIRE PEACE

THAT IS FEELING AMONG SOCIALIST DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

COPENHAGEN, via London, May 15.—According to the Politiken, the bureau for the proposed neutral peace conference, will probably issue a statement that the International Socialist Convention at Stockholm, scheduled to open tomorrow, is postponed. The paper says great dissatisfaction prevails among the delegates. The news that the German independent Socialist was refused passports is a clear proof of the desire of the German people for peace, as German authorities issues passports to Scheidemann and his followers.

MILLBROOK

(Special Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 15. — Mrs. Jackson, of Toronto, was a guest of her mother, Mrs. Forsythe, over Sunday.

The Misses Doris and Jane Smith, of Toronto, visited friends in town over Sunday.

Lieut. Lawrence Carweth has written home, telling of his wound, which we are glad to report is not serious, although it was a mighty close call to it. The shrapnel went in at his shoulder and came out about six inches below. Letters have been received from Pte. Bennywaithe, and Pte. Cabel, Joseph Todd and others giving thrilling accounts of the Vimy Ridge battle, in which the Canadians did such gallant work. The boys wish to be remembered to all their friends.

Services in Grace Church, conducted by the pastor as folows, next Sunday: 10.30 a.m., Mothers' Day service; 7 p.m., "Daniel Preferred," the Cadet Corps will be present at this service. Sunday School and Bible Class, at 2.30 p.m.

At St. Enoch's, Garden Hill—2.30 p.m., Mother's Day service; 1.30, Sunday School and Bible Class.

The monthly Union Intercession service will be held in the Methodist Church on Wednesday, May 16. Dr. Lee will give the address.

The Epworth League held a very interesting meeting on Monday evening. The topic, "The Place of the Young People in the Church," was given by Mr. Irwin Hatherly. Miss M. Mitchell gave an interesting account of the Graduation Exercises at the Deaconess Home, Toronto. All the leaguers were very much pleased with a talk by Miss Hawken, a former member, who expects to take up mission work in Alberta. Next Sunday evening's service is under the Missionary department.

Mr. Sandy, of Manvers, was in town on Sunday.

Mrs. Larmer, of Peterborough, visited friends in town, last week.

The Ministerial Association met at the manse, on Monday, May 7th. Rev. G. I. Craw gave a very helpful and instructive paper on "The Cheerfulness of Christ's Life."

The second anniversary services, marking Dr. Lee's induction into this congregation, were held on Sunday last, which synchronized with the installation of a splendid new pipe organ by Lye & Sons, Toronto, were pre-eminently successful. Notwithstanding the heavy roads, the church was filled to overflowing, many being unable to gain admission. Miss Walker, of Port Hope, presided at the organ in a most acceptable manner and Mr. Williams, also of Port Hope, delighted the congregations with his solos. Dr. Lee preached and the collections amounted to $240.00, defraying, practically, the whole cost. The improvements made were greatly admired and the organ gave general satisfaction. Altogether, the day was a red letter day in the history of the church.

The annual meeting of the Frazerville Methodist Sunday School was held recently. In reviewing the year's work, the reports are very encouraging, denoting progress in every department of the work. On ballot, Mr. James White was elected superintendent, Mr. Joseph Madill, Asst. Supt., Willard Waterman, Secretary; James Clarke, Treasurer; and Fred Lewers, Librarian.

LLOYD GEORGE TO IRISH LEADERS

HOME RULE QUESTION TO BE DISCUSSED IN HOUSE ON MONDAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 15. — Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons to-day that Premier Lloyd George would make a communication to the Irish leaders on the Irish question which would be in their hands by to-morrow. The Government, he added, was prepared to allot Monday for the discussion of the question.

SCHOOLS WILL BE FILLED TO LIMIT BY JULY 1918

Problem of Providing Increased Accommodation Now Confronts the Board of Education.

The Board of Education are confronted with the problem of providing more accommodation for the school children of the city, and at a special meeting last night the question was considered. Inspector Mowat sent in a report which showed that the attendance and the number of rooms in each of the present school buildings is as follows:

Central—500 attendance; 12 rooms.
Queen Alexandria—340 attendance; 9 rooms.
King George—312 attendance; 8 rooms.
South Central—443 attendance; 10 rooms.
Queen Mary—461 attendance; 11 rooms.
King Edward—520 attendance; 12 rooms.
Total—2576 attendance; 62 rooms.

In the South Central and King Edward schools there are no vacant class rooms. The normal increase in the school population for the past ten years has been sufficient to call for two additional class rooms every year. The greatest increase has always been in the southern part of the city. It is estimated that there will be no available space in the south-western section by July, 1918.

The members of the Board decided to meet at the South Central School at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon and make a tour of inspection of all the schools in the city. The property committee will meet one hour earlier at the office of Chairman Eastwood in the Royal Bank building.

The members of the Board present last night were Chairman Eastwood, and Messrs. Miller, Burnham, Fowler, Denne, Crane and Gordon.

PRISONERS GET ALL PARCELS

GIFTS TO MEN IN GERMAN CAMPS NO LONGER DELAYED.

Mr. Noel Marshall, president of the Red Cross Society, of Toronto, received advice yesterday from Mrs. E. Rivers-Bulkely, chairman of the Prisoners of War Committee in England, that 7,000 parcels had been acknowledged as received by prisoners of war in Germany during the last week. Mr. Marshall also received assurances from Sir George Perley, regarding the despatch of parcels to Canadian boys in the prison camps of Germany. The parcels now go by mail in British mail boats, and there will be no recurrence of the delays caused previously by the uncertainty of the sailing of neutral shipping.

The English committee have also advised the Canadian soldiers held in Germany that in future three parcels, valued at ten shillings, would be forwarded every two weeks, this being the maximum allowance under the new regulations. In addition to the parcels, thirteen pounds of bread will be sent every two weeks to each of the prisoners, but no assigned pay will be drawn in future by the Prisoners of War Committee for food parcels.

More Peace Talk

ROME, May 15.—The Idea Nazionale, the organ of the Nationalist party, prints a report from diplomatic quarters that Turkey has made overtures to Russia through a neutral source for a separate peace on the basis of the complete opening of the Dardanelles to Russian navigation, both for war and merchant vessels.

According to this report Turkey also declares herself disposed to give friendly consideration to the Armenian question and suitable recognition to the principles of nationalities.

STAGE ALL SET FOR "PINAFORE"

EVERYTHING POINTS TO A SUCCESSFUL PERFORMANCE AT THE GRAND.

Everyone should go to the Grand Opera House to-night or to-morrow to see the "Pinafore' performance by local amateurs. There was an excellent full-dress rehearsal last evening, and everything went off well. Music, scenery, costumes, singing, dancing and acting were all that could be desired. An artistic success is assured. All that is required is a full house to-night and Wednesday to make the succes complete in every way. Stanley Adams, the stage director, expresed himself as delighted with the rehearsal, which was over at 11.15 last evening, an unusual thing for an amateur first rehearsal, which generally lasts into the "wee sma' hours."

The members of the caste have been rehearsing steadily for weeks, and all are perfect in the various parts taken. The entertainment is for the benefit of the 57th Band, the city's crack musical organisation, and as such is entitled to liberal patronage.

The members of the band will be in uniform at the Armouries at 7 o'clock this evening to parade to the Opera House.

POLES DESTROYED BY FIRE

The fire brigade was called out to a fire on the vacant lot immediately east of the Nichol's Hospital, on George Street, at five o'clock last evening, when a number of telephone poles were discovered to be ablaze. Despite the prompt response to the call by the fire brigade and their energetic work, many poles of no inconsiderable value were destroyed before the blaze was extinguished. The origin of the fire was traced to burning grass.

This lot is used by the Bell Telephone Company for the storage and peeling of poles.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets have kept him Fit through Two Wars.

Sapper A. Hartley of the A Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 906 Trafalgar St., London, Ont., is one of many who hav written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says: "As a constant user of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt rundown. I always recommend them, for I know that they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 M'Caul Street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. Beware of imitations said to contain hypophosphites. The composition of Dr. Cassell's Tablets is known only to the proprietors, and no imitation can ever be the same.

"THE CRISIS"

To Be Presented Here First Three Days Next Week.

Although dealing with the civil war period, "The Crisis" follows a wholly different trend from "The Birth of a Nation." It is picturization of Winston Churchill's famous novel of St. Louis in the dark and stormy period of the rebellion, and follows faithfully the rich, romantic plot of the Churchill story. Abraham Lincoln is an essential character in the unravelling of the tangled threads of romance that involves the Northern hero and the Southern heroine, and is not dragged into the play merely for the sake of historical background. History, indeed, is so closely woven with romance, that it will take an expert student of the period to discover the line of demacration.

Among the striking scenes of the play are a slave auction in St. Louis, where the hero and heroine first meet and clash; the Lincoln-Douglas debate, amidst torchlight processions and bonfires in the backwoods of Illinois; the fall of Ft. Sumter, with the Stars and Stripes, going down for the first time before the cannonading of an internal foe; a meeting of Lincoln's cabinet to consider plans for saving the Union; and the battle of Vicksburg, fought in detail from both the land and the river. The thread of Churchill's romance runs through the entire play, and is never lost sight of, even in the smoke of battle.

THE LITTLE GARDEN.

Tips About the Plot's Care From Day to Day.

We see fewer lawns cut up into beds, fewer round spots of geraniums and coleus, like eruptions of the measles. The planting is being kept about the boundaries of the property, making a frame or setting. They rightly border paths and drives, hide the porch and house foundations, fill in corners or are made into a little garden.

This little garden question! Just realize that if your border plantings do not suffice for all the flowers you want, then, by cutting up part of the lawns into beds, connecting them with paths and surrounding the whole with a green hedge, you have made a garden. Preferably the extreme back of the lawn is the best place to use, but sometimes the side is the logical spot. Add an arched entrance covered with vines or climbing roses and the effect of seclusion is yours.

When there is a little garden for the annuals and most of the perennials, then the borders may be devoted to shrubs, using some perennials and especially hardy bulbs in the foreground.

A garden of hardy perennials is cheapest in the long run because perennials live from year to year. This does not mean that you must plant no annuals. On the contrary, who could do without nasturtiums, Shirley poppies, sweet peas, asters, zinnias, larkspur and marigolds? But have most of the plants such hardy and delightful things as dwarf sunflowers, tall hollyhocks, delphiniums (the hardy larkspur), lilies, irises, peonies, sweet williams, oriental poppies, phlox, rocket, pinks, feverfew, false dragon head, foxgloves, roses and chrysanthemums.

Be sure to grow tall things at the back, medium ones in the middle and low growing plants in the foreground. Then edge with some very low plant like sedum, alyssum, portulacca or moss pink.

Keep things of one sort together, so as to get a mass of each color. All the roses must be in one place, for they need rich soil and do not like to share their bed with other flowers. However, you may plant such small things as pansies or forgetmenots with them, and this takes away from the bare look of a rose.

Border Dishes.

Now, chili chicken is delicious. Boil the fowl until tender. When it cools cut it into small pieces. Put a cupful of washed and dried rice into hot olive oil and fry for a few moments; add a quarter can of tomatoes, one minced onion, salt, chili peppers or powder. Put in the chicken and some of the broth and cook until the rice is tender.

And ambrosia isn't in it with torto frutas! If you know how to make puff paste why the rest of the making is easy, too. Line the sides of a baking dish with a light puff paste. Then proceed to cover the bottom with sliced pineapple. Atop of that put a layer of sliced oranges. The third story of the dessert consists of sliced bananas, while the fourth layer is made of slices of lemon. Repeat the layers until the pan is full, and sprinkle over the very top some chopped nuts. Over these, however, lay narrow strips of pastry. Bake the goody slowly for an hour or more.

CHEAPER LIVING

A Sanitary Engineer Gives Us These Timely Hints.

FOODS YOU CAN STILL BUY.

It Is Not Generally Known That Peas, Beans, Fish and Cheese Give the Same Nourishment as Meat and at Less Cost—Savory Menus.

The amount of food required as fuel can be measured exactly, just as an engineer knows how much coal to use to produce a required amount of heat.

Clerks, stenographers and the average adult office workers need about 2,500 calories a day. Mechanics and artisans require 3,000 to 3,500. Laborers, longshoremen and others doing manual work must have 3,500 to 4,500 calories a day. Ninety per cent of these should be in the form of starches and fats. The body needs mineral salts. These can be best obtained in milk, fruits and green vegetables.

A cup of cocoa will yield 180 calories and 9 grams of protein. A baked apple with cream will supply 250 calories of fuel for the body and 2 grams of protein. Two heaping spoonfuls of macaroni baked with cheese will give you 440 calories, containing 19 grams of protein. In a slice of apple pie are 300 calories and 4 grams of protein. The cubic inch of cheese that is given with the pie contains 390 calories of fuel and 9 protein grams.

Unless food is properly prepared good health is impossible. However nourishing foodstuffs of themselves may be, their values are lost to a large extent if improperly prepared.

The toughest cuts of meat are the cheapest, but they are just as nutritious as the expensive cuts. By long, slow cooking they can be made very tender and palatable. To keep the juice and preserve the flavor heat the meat on all sides, press it down quickly on a hot pan and then cook slowly on a low fire. Fish as a substitute once or twice a week for meat is a good food and easily digested.

Instead of boiling half a dozen medium sized potatoes (weight two pounds), prepare a bowl of rice by boiling a cupful, or two-thirds of a pound, of rice in water. This will provide even more nourishment than the potatoes and will cost 2 2-5 cents. To avoid pastiness wash the rice in five or six changes of water.

One cupful of rice, two and a half cupfuls of water, one scant teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of butter, butter substitute or oil will contain 644 food units and will suffice for four persons. Never throw the surplus water away. It contains valuable food materials. It may be added to soup or stew.

A combination of baked beans and boiled rice, flavored with a little minced onion fried in butter substitute, constitutes a meal as well balanced as one of meat and potatoes, at a cost of about 4½ cents for 1,000 food units.

Any fish, freed from skin and bones, may be mixed with boiled rice. This combination supplies 1,000 food units at a cost of less than 10 cents. If herring at 8 cents a pound is used the cost will be 8 cents for 1,000 food units.

Take one pint of boiled rice (644 units), one-quarter pound of mixed soup vegetables (45 units), one ounce of butter substitute (250 food units) and one teaspoonful of salt and you have 939 food units, at a cost of about [illegible]

Before and After.

A certain Skookumchuck lady when asked for a testimonial for a tonic she had used wrote the following:

"Your medicine helped me wonderfully. Two weeks ago I was too ill to spank the baby. Today I am strong enough to whip the old man, and I've done it too."

Any druggist who would sell such medicine to a woman should be arrested for inciting a riot.—Skookumchuck Banner.

Reason For Her Tears.

They had all spoken well of the deceased—all except the little woman in the corner.

They turned and looked at her.

"I shall miss him most of all," she said. "The world holds few such men. He never let his alimony payments fall behind."

And she wept passionately.—New York Journal.

Eskimo and Public Opinion.

The Eskimo is very sensitive to public opinion. If anyone oversteps the mark and makes himself obnoxious, he is admonished by some of the old men and women. They do not approach him direct, but inform him of his offense through a third party. This usually has the desired effect, for the Eskimo cherishes above everything the goodwill of his neighbors, and is proud of the reputation of being a "good man." Should the offender take umbrage, however, and continue "bad-hearted," he is then practically ostracized, everyone refusing to speak to him or have anything to do with him. Those conversant with the loneliness of life in the Northland will readily understand that this social outlawry is far worse than any material punishment. Cut off from human companionship and entercourse, the culprit becomes morose, and often commits murder. —From "Round Labrador and Hudson Bay" in The Wide World Magazine.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

NEW YORK, May 15.—After a three-hour conference here the National league club owners decided to adopt a policy of watchful waiting before attempting to grapple with any of the new problems resulting from the war and adverse weather. Every club in the senior circuit was represented.

The magnates discussed the proposed war tax the drafting of players for the army, a later opening of the season, violation of the waiver rules, and a proposition to reduce the club rosters, but no definite action was taken upon any of these subjects.

It was decided to enforce the present rule limiting the number of players any club may carry between May 15 and August 21 to 22, this allotment to include players either injured or sick. In case the army draft hits the clubs hard exceptions may be made to this rule.

President C. H. Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, made a plea for a later opening of the playing season backed by reports of inclement weather for several seasons, but his fellow magnates were unable to reach a unanimous decision, and the subject was held over until the December meeting.

Owing to lack of information as to how the proposed war tax is to be applied the club owners were unable to arrange plans for its collection. The sale of revenue stamps, printing of new tickets with a tax coupon attached, and the collection of the tax in cash were all discussed. It was eventually decided to await further advices from Washington before attempting to solve the problem.

Several complaints of violations of the waiver rule were filed, and it was announced that in future any club which attempts to pass a player into the minor leagues without first asking waivers upon him will be fined $250, in accordance with the rules of the league.

While all the magnates stated that the inclement weather of the past few weeks had affected attendance they were unanimous in the opinion that with better playing conditions there would be a marked improvement in gate receipts. As a result of this feeling it was thought wise to wait a month or two before attempting to pass judgment upon conditions or make changes that may possibly become necessary later.

BOWLING LEAGUE.

Arrangements Made For Playing Off Blind Scores.

Cobb was the big offensive factor in the Tigers' win over the Red Sox on Sunday and Howard Ehmke held the world's champs in check. Cobb poled a double in the twelfth with Bush on second, scoring the winning tally. Cobb had two hits, both going for two bases.

The only extra-base hit in the White Sox-Yanks game was a double by Joe Jackson. Baker and Peckinpaugh were the only Donovan hirelings to hit Eddie Cicotte safely.

George Sisler, with a pair of hits in three times at bat, kept in front of Cobb and Speaker for the batting honors in Ban John's league.

As far as Connie Mack was concerned the Athletics-Browns clash was over in the first inning, when the St. Louis crowd scored five times.

Another Lady.

The east end doctor was attending an injired woman mho had come to his surgery with her arm severely bitten.

He dressed the wound, and as he did so he remarked:

"I cannot quite make out what sort of animal hit you. The wound is too small for a horse's bite and too big for a dog's."

"Oh, it wasn't an animal!" exclaimed the patient. "It was another lady."

She thought that would settle the matter, but early next morning she heard a sound out on the landing and, going to see who was astir so early, found Elsie trotting along the passage.

"Where are you going, dear?" she asked. "It's not six o'clock yet."

"Going to see if Dick and Arthur are dead yet," replied the eight-year-old miss. "I'm not."

GUILTY OF FORTUNE-TELLING WOMAN IS DISCHARGED

But Must Never Consult Cards Again for a Fee Soldier's Wife and Soldiers' Wives Make Business for the Police Court.

At the police court today the wife of a soldier who is overseas, accused of telling fortunes for a fee, was discharged on suspended sentence, she promising to discontinue the offence in future.

TOLD FORTUNES FOR 25c.

Three female witnesses testified that they knew the accused had told fortunes for a price.

First witness, an overseas soldier's wife, said: "I heard the accused told fortunes and a companion and myself went to see her. She used a pack of cards, and told me that my husband would never go to France and would be back in Peterborough in six months' time. She prophesied that I would have a parcel left at my door; it would be something for my boys to wear. Accused's daughter and a boarder were in the room during the interview. My companion paid a quarter. I got a parcel at Christmas, five weeks after the interview, containing shirts from my husband's father and sisters; they sent them every Christmas. Accused had heard witness previously mention this fact. I did not pay anything myself. Many people have been going to see the accused for months, some have asked me to direct them to her house.

To Mr. Gordon witness admitted accused had deceived her a lot. She did once believe in fortune-telling, but not now. "I did not really believe accused could tell my fortune."

To Mr. Hatton, witness admitted that she told Mr. Gordon that she had been deceived by the accused; she believed in fortune-telling [illegible] she visited the accused.

Witness Was Curious.

Another witness, whose husband is also overseas, admitted that she visited the accused once in company of previous witness, being curious in regard to fortune-telling. She corroborated the statement of former witness that defendant told fortunes by means of a pack of cards. "She told me my husband would go to France, but would never get shot. She said a lady would come to my house with a parcel, which I was not to accept because it had been stolen. I paid 25c for the interview; the accused fixed the price. No parcel came to me."

In cross-examination by Mr. Gordon, witness admitted that she visited the accused as a joke, having no faith in fortune-telling.

To Mr. Hatton witness replied: "I knew defendant could not tell my fortune; when she asked me for 25c I recognized that I was paying for a joke."

[illegible] Come True.

Another young woman had visited the accused twice. She testified as follows: "I know accused's daughter, through whom I went to her home. The first time I did so the defendant told my fortune using cards. I was not much interested in the interview. Accused did not ask me for any money, but I left 25c. I don't remember if anything told me came true. Defendant was very friendly and invited me back again. I paid another visit two weeks ago last Monday to spend the evening. Accused told me I was going to be sick, and receive a post card and a letter; also that I was going to a high building, where I would see somebody sick. What she told me has all taken place."

To Mr. Gordon—"I did not believe a person could tell fortunes with a pack of cards, and visited the accused more for the fun of the thing than anything else."

Counsel's Argument.

Mr. Gordon, for the defendant, submitted that no evidence before the court had proved a case of deliberate fraud. There was not a single instance in which witnesses for the crown had been misled or deceived. They had simply visited the accused for a good time. His client was the wife of a soldier at the front, fighting for the Empire, had three small children, and was entitled to the sympathy of the court. She was unquestionably ignorant that the law might be interpreted to make her act a criminal offence.

Crown Attorney Hatton contended that credulous women had been deluded and deceived by the defendant, and for a fee. Witnesses had testified to having had their fortunes told by her for 25 cents a consultation, and hence a case of fraud had been proven, and a conviction justified.

Mr. Gordon here elected to have the case disposed of by his worship, and not sent to the assizes. The police magistrate consented, but ruled that the woman was undoubtedly guilty of fraud. She had taken money for fortune-telling, a criminal offence, and had thus defrauded and deceived other members of her own sex.

Mr. Gordon here pleaded for leniency, and urged that his client be discharged on suspended sentence.

His worship cheerful acquiesced in this, and would not even allow any witness fees, contending that the accused's victims should pay for their own credulity.

FATHER AND SON.

Mrs. Edwin Toms of 508 Chamberlain street, has received a card from her husband, Pte. Toms, who mas wounded at the battle of Vimy Ridge and who is now in the Third Western General Hospital in England. The card says:

"I am not severely wounded and outside of the slight wound am feeling fine. Please write to Willie and give him my address. Give my love to all and tell them I may soon be home."

Pte. Toms and his son Willie enlisted in the 93rd Battalion and were transferred on reaching England.

William Toms, the son, writing to his mother, says: "I have some news for you but you will likely hear it before you get my letter. Dad has been wounded. I just happened to see his bunch and when I noticed they were 21st boys I asked for Dad and they told me he had been wounded. They said he walked down the trench so let us pray that poor Dad is not seriously hurt. I think he has done his bit and I hope he will not have to come back to the line again."

RECRUITING CLASSES.

At a meeting of the officers of the Peterborough Rangers Monday it was decided to organize recruiting classes and classes for the instruction of Non-Coms. These will be open to all men between the ages of 17 and 40 years. Recruiting classes, its is expected, will be held Tuesday evenings, and Non Coms' classes Thursday evenings, at eight o'clock.

Tenders to Hand For Motor Truck

WILL BE AGAIN CONSIDERED TONIGHT BY THE CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council's Committee of the Whole last night opened and considered tenders for a combined pump and hose motor truck, fully equipped, for the fire department. The tenders are the Seagrave Co., Walkerville, Ont.; the White Motor Co., Toronto; and the American-La-France Fire Engine Co., Elmira, New York.

Specifications and the fullest details accompanied each tender but a couple of hours' deliberation left the committee no nearer a decision than before. In fact Ald. Dobbin finally drew attention to the fact that, according to the tenders, the Fire, Water and Light Committee's appropriation is not sufficient to purchase the quality and make of motor truck which seems to appeal to the Committee of the Whole. However this matter will again come before Council tonight, when salesmen from the above mentioned companies will be given an opportunity to address the aldermen.

OBITUARY

MR. WM. BELL.

Mr. William Bell, a grocer residing on the River Road, Auburn, died at his home last evening, at the ripe age of 74 years. Deceased took ill on Saturday, and passed away unexpectedly, death being due to heart failure. He was born in Ireland, and during a long residence in Peterborough has gained the esteem and respect of a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was a consistent and earnest Methodist by faith, and an exemplary citizen. Besides his life-partner of many years, his demise is mourned by two sons, Arthur, of Nassau, and William, of Cleveland, Ohio; also two daughters, Mrs. Geo. Lush of Frobeshire, Saskatchewan, and Mrs. W. Marey, 457 Cedar street, this city. Interment will be made in the Little Lake cemetery. Service will be conducted at the house at 2.30 tomorrow afternoon, and the funeral will leave at 2.30.

NEW MEMBERS IN TEXTILE UNION

TWENTY RECRUITS SECURED BY MISS KELLEHER LAST NIGHT.

Miss Mary J. Kelleher, international organizer for the Textile Workers of America, addressed another meeting last night in Labor Hall in the interests of the local union. There were about one hundred girls and young men in the audience and about twenty new members were secured.

Miss Kelleher told her audience that there was little to be gained in going to Parliament or to Legislature to ask for shorter hours. The workers only hope to secure their boon and better working conditions lay in organization.

The speaker warned her audience against the wiles of the employer, who she said, sent their superintendent and foremen to the meetings to knock labor organization and breed dissension among the members. She asserted that the best and most intelligent of the workers were always to be found in the various organizations.

A report had come to Miss Kelleher to the effect that some local employee had said since the first meeting that only the riff-raff belonged to the American Federation of Labor. This insinuation Miss Kelleher indignantly denied.

Miss Kelleher will hold another meeting in the same place next Monday night. There are only three Unions of Textile Workers in Ontario, one in Toronto, another in Guelph and the organization in Peterborough, but the object of Miss Kelleher's work is to form one in every city in the province.

evere Fighting Now in Progress on Arras Front—Turks Defeated in Mesopatamia.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 16.—The official tement says severe fighting is in gress today north of the Scarpe er in the Arras battle front. Reu- 's correspondent says the British ve recaptured most of the ground y had lost in Bullecourt and have ablished new positions on the west e of that village.

AMSTERDAM: The loss of zep- lin L-22 announced by the British miralty Monday is officially ad- tted in Berlin.

TURKS TAKEN PRISONERS.

LONDON, May 16.—The official ort from the Mesopotamian front ys: "Though no important opera- ns have occurred since the begin- g of the month we have secured prisoners including 29 in a skir- h near Delhi Abbas."

FOUR ASSAULTS MADE.

Further details concerning the hting at Bullecourt show that the em made a deliberate attempt by eries of strong and carefully con- ted attacks, powerfully supported artillery and trench mortar fire, drive our troops out of Bullecourt the section of the Hindenburg held by us east of the village.

In all, four attacks were under- ken by the enemy. The first of se was launched at 4 a.m. upon right flank of our position in the ndenburg line, and temporarily ned a footing in our trenches. The emy was immediately and com- tely ejected by our counter-attack, ving 250 killed and wounded in our s. A simultaneous attack on the flank of our position was dis- sed by our artillery.

Three Planes Winged.

Later in the morning a third at- k was made upon the northeastern ner of Bullecourt. This was suc- fully repulsed by our artillery, and machine gun fire. The fourth ck, delivered from the south and thwest, succeeded in driving back posts in the western portion of village for a distance of about yards. The enemy's losses in series of unsuccessful attempts e heavy.

Hostile artillery wire was particu- y heavy today on both banks of Scarpe.

Two German airplanes were ght down in the air fighting yesterday; another hostile machine was driven down out of control. Two of our airplanes are missing.

"Another hostile counter-attack southeast of Loos was stopped by our artillery. We made a successful raid last night in the neighborhood of Ypres and captured a few prisoners."

Who Will be the Third Recruit?

Two recruits in two days!

This is the proud record of our city's new battery. Major Crocker is now installed in the old cavalry headquarters at the Armories with a very efficient staff of recruiters. Any man who wants to ride a horse, wear a snappy pair of breeches, a shiny bandolier and clinking spurs, would do well in having a talk with Major Crocker.

One of the recruits secured today was Louis W. Hele, whose father and two brothers are already at the front.

Who will be the third to offer his services?

BAKERS DEMAND STATE CONTROL OF FOODSTUFFS

LOCAL MEN ARE PRESENT.

Government Is Asked to Appoint Food Controller With Cabinet Rank.

Bakers from all over the Dominion met in Toronto last night, with a view to securing prompt action by the government in the appointment of a Food Controller of Cabinet rank, to eliminate speculation in wheat and flour and assure food for the masses at living prices. Mr. D. A. Campbell, of the Campbell Milling Co., contends that the big majority of Canadian millers are in favor of the controll of all the Dominion's flour mills by the government, so as to secure flour at a rate within the reach of all people.

This meeting was one of the Bread and Cake Manufacturers' Association, and local interests were represented by the presence of Messrs. T. E. Gilgour, Thos. H. Hooper and Walter Slack.

It is to be hoped that the activities of the Master Bakers and their influence in the country will result in such control of food products, as to result in a gradual lowering of the price of bread instead of the everlasting jump under present conditions.

To Regulate Prices.

At the conclusion of a lengthy business session, at which the pros. and cons. of the situation were thoroughly discussed, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"In view of the very critical situation, the Bread and Cake Manufacturers' Association in convention assembled this 15th day of May, 1917, believe that the time has come for prompt action by the Government in the appointment of a Food Controller, with Cabinet rank, who should have full powers to deal with and regulate the manufacture, delivery, prices, and use of all foodstuffs throughout the Dominion."

NO PEACE OFFER FROM GERMAN CHANCELLOR

Time Is Not Opportune for Revealing Plans of the Government.

REVOLUTION IS IN SIGHT.

Olive Branch Held Out to Induce Russia to Make Separate Terms.

BERLIN, May 16.—The Socialist leader, Georg Ledebour, declared in the reichstag that it was impossible for Germany to win a war of subjugation, and expressed the conviction that a revolution must happen in Germany as it had hapyened in Russia.

"We shall propose a constitutional committee," he said, "to take preparatory steps in the direction of introducing a republic in Germany."

No Peace Offer.

In one of the most vigorous and plain-spoken speeches he has yet made before the reichstag since the outbreak of the war, the imperial German chancellor today bluntly refused to enter into a discussion of Germany's peace aims as demanded in interpellations by the Conservatives and Socialists. Dr. von Bethmonn-Hollwegg asserted that these called for the government's specific peace program, the announcement of which would, at the present time, not only be premature, but which it would be difficult to formulate, and also of no practical service to the nation in the present situation.

Attitude to Russia.

"As regards our eastern neighbor, Russia, he said, I have already recently spoken. It appears as if new Russia had declined for herself these violent plans of conquest. Whether Russia will, or can, act in the same sense as her allies I am unable to estimate. Doubtless England, with the assistance of her allies, is employing all her efforts to keep Russia harnessed to England's war chariot and to traverse Russian wishes for the speedy restoration of the world's peace.

"If, however, Russia wants to prevent further bloodshed and renounces all violent plans of conquest for herself, if she wishes to restore durable relations of peaceful life side by side ver-head Bridge a Condition Upon Which Quaker Oats Will Rebuild in Peterboro—More Work For Local People.

SHBURNHAM RATEPAYERS WILL BOOST BRIDGE BYLAW

he Ashburnham Ratepayers' gue decided last night to boost bylaw providing for the issue ebentures for $280,000 with h to erect an overhead bridge s the river at Hunter Street.

his bridge is the main condition which the Quaker Oats Co. will ild in Peterboro, and ratepayers ld keep in mind this fact. East 's Ratepayers' League is quite inced that if the bylaw is voted Peterboro stands to lose an rtant industry, for which other munities are offering strong in- ents, notwithstanding some low to the contrary.

ll the members present were en- ed with the determination to no stone unturned to assure passage of the bylaw, and have ged themselves to that effect.

Organization Committee

R. B. Rogers, E. A. Peck, E. Hennesey, R. H. Parsons, A. Weir, J. A. Smith, G. L. Hay, J. Ellis, J. Devlin, D. Hennesey, J. Drain, Robert Hamilton, A. A. Fowler, G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., T. B. Maniece, Geo. Gerard.

The committee at once got to work and divided East City into districts, the ratepayers of which will be canvassed and instructed in the desirability of the overhead bridge even without considering the Quaker Oats connection with the project, and advised as to the importance to Peterboro's future that this big industry should remain with us.

IRELAND AT LAST GIVEN HOME RULE

Parliament Is To Be Immediately Established at Dublin.

ULSTER TO BE EXCLUDED

Grand Council Will Transact Business Between Two Sections.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 16.—The Times announces that the Government's plan for the settlement of the Irish question includes the immediate establishment of an Irish parliament in Dublin, the exclusion of southeast Ulster, and the formation of a Grand Council to transact all common business between the excluded area and the rest of Ireland.

SIX ARE KILLED IN EXPLOSION

PIER OF AMERICAN FORT WAS BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

SAULT STE. MARIE, MICH., May 16.—Explosions this morning at the end of the Fort Brady pier, believed to be from dynamite stored under the dock, resulted in the death of six men and injuries to several others, mostly laborers.

NEW'S FROM THE BOYS IN FRANCE

COPIES OF LETTERS RECEIVED FROM KITCHENER LEAGUE.

The following correspondence from two of our gallant boys fighting the Empire's battles "Somewhere in France" will prove interesting to all patriotic citizens:

"France, April.

"Dear Ladies:—

"The parcel of socks which you were so kind to send me arrived a few days ago. I must thank the ladies of the League for their kindness, as the socks were lovely and they certainly will be very useful, as dry socks are just what we boys need. I am very glad that mother joined your League, and feel sure that nearly every lady in Peterborough would become a member if they only knew the great work your League is doing for us boys out here in muddy France. I will close thanking the ladies once again and wish ing you a very successful summer, and I firmly hope that your League grows until every lady in Peterborough is a member.

Sincerely yours,
"PTE. W. D. KEARNS."

"France.

"Dear Ladies:—

"I take pleasure in letting you know the splendid parcel of socks, which the Canadian Kitchener League so kindly sent me, to distribute among the boys, and enjoy myself, arrived in first class condition a few days back. I can assure you that not one pair was wasted and all were very much appreciated. We express thanks to the splendid organization, the Canadian Ktichener League, and accept my appreciation for being remembered on your list. Hoping the League and the members engaged in the work every success. I am,

"Yours sincerely,
"H. W. COON."

U. S. TO THE RESCUE.

LONDON, May 16.—Admiralty today announced arrival of American destroyers in British water.

FRENCH REPULSE COUNTER ATTACKS AT EVERY POINT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 16.—The official statement says: Artillery fighting continued during the night. After a violent bombardment the enemy during this morning delivered a powerful attack on a front of four kilometres in the region of Moulin de Laffaux. We maintained our position in spite of his repeated efforts. Fighting continues at various points. Surprise attacks undertaken by the Germans in the regions of Auberive and Barrenkopf were broken up by our fire. In upper Alsace one of our light detachments penetrated the enemy trenches and brought back prisoners after having wrecked a defensive position of the enemy.

RUSSIANS LOSE GROUND.

PETROGRAD, May 16.—An official statement says that on Friday Russians forced the crossing of the Diala River in Mesopotamia, northeast of Bagdad, and advanced further but were compelled to retire to the bank of the river.

BERLIN CLAIMS SUCCESS.

BERLIN, May 16.—An official statement claims the capture of six hundred metre of trench east of La Neuville with 175 prisoners.

ITALIANS TAKE PRISONERS.

ROME, May 16.—The War Office announced today that as a result of an offensive begun yesterday, the Italians thus far have captured 3,375 prisoners, a mountain battery and thirty machine guns.

TWO MORE PETERBOROUGH BOYS REPORTED WOUNDED

Pte. George W. Lilly and Gun. William Payne.

The department at Ottawa reports that there are 360 names in the noon casualties today, made up of 17 killed in action, 22 died of wounds, 38 missing, 2 previously reported missing but since located, and the remaining 274 ill or wounded.

The list contains the names of two Peterborough boys, as follows:

Wounded.

PTE. GEO. WILLIAM LILLY.
GUNNER WILLIAM PAYNE.

PTE. GEO. WM. LILLY.

Mrs. Geo. Lilly, 185 Park street, received word this morning that her husband, Pte. Geo. William Lilly is wounded, and had been admitted to a base hospital in France. Pte. Lilly left Canada with the 93rd Battalion His wounds, from gun shot, in the head, arms and legs, are reported as serious. Pte. Lilly was engaged as a baker with his battalion, and received his wounds accidentally.

GUNNER WILLIAM PAYNE.

Mrs. Payne, of Smith street, this city, was notified this afternoon that her husband, Samuel William Payne, fighting with the Canadian Artillery division in France, had been wounded sustaining a fractured leg.

PTE. J. CECIL KYLE

Wounded at Battle of Vimy Ridge. His parents reside at 556 Roger street.

SHIPPING LOSS GROWS LIGHTER

REPORT ISSUED TODAY IS MOST FAVORABLE FOR WEEKS.

LONDON, May 16.—The report of the week's losses through submarines, issued to-day, is the most favorable in several weeks. The number of ships torpedoed is well below the average, while the number of ships escaping attack is very large.

Those in touch with the anti-submarine campaign are also very cheerful over the results of actual attacks on submarines, which have been pushed with the unmost vigor during the fine weather of the past fortnight. This has been particularly favorable to airplane activity. According to one report, more submarines have been sunk in the past week than in the month previous.

In New York shipping circles a report is current that the British had bagged a flotila of German submarines bound on a hostile mission to American shores. The capture was said to have taken place early in April. The place of the capture of the means by which it was effected was not revealed. The report was said to have come from an officer of a translantic ship, who was said to have heard of it from sources in touch with the British Admiralty.

REASONS WHY BY-LAW FOR HIGH LEVEL BRIDGE IS ENTITLED TO SUPPORT

Campaign Opened by Issue of Circular Signed by Mayor Duffus and Ald. McIntyre—What Depends on Proposed Improvements

The names of Mayor Duffus and Ald. McIntyre as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee are affixed to the following circular which appeals for support of the bylaw to voted on May 31st:—

The bylaw to be voted upon on May 31st is to authorize the erection of a high level bridge over the Otonabee River at Hunter Street and a bridge over the river at London Street.

These bridges have been talked about for several years, and the question of their erection was brought up definitely for decision in connection with the rebuilding of the Quaker Oats Company's plant.

It was necessary for the company to know what will be done regarding the high leval bridge, because their building must be erected to conform to the conditions that will be created by the bridge. The company was of the opinion that, sooner or later, such a bridge would be erected, and that if they rebuilt their plant as it was before, with their offices on the ground floor, the bridge, when built, would practically destroy their offices and seriously effect their plant. Yet if they re-erected their buildings to conform to the high level bridge, with their offices in the third storey, and the construction of the bridge was unduly delayed, they would be put to serious inconvenience in the operation of their mills and business. Consequently it became necessary for the company to know that the bridge would be constructed, and within a reasonable time.

Further, the increasing business of the company necessitated a rearrangement of their railway spur lines and further railway accommodation. This would be difficult with a level crossing of the railway lines across Hunter Street, and the high level bridge will provide for these spur lines, and will greatly facilitate the company in doing its business The handling of the products of the mills by the railways is of utmost importance, as is shown by the fact that last year the company paid over $1,000,000.00 for freight charges.

The London Street bridge has been petitioned for several times by ratepayers in that section of the city. Since the old Dickson Company wooden bridge became worn out large numbers of citizens have been using the Quaker Oats Company's dam for crossing the river, much to the danger of the people, and the annoyance and inconvenience of the company. The company desired this danger and annoyance and inconvenience to be done away with by the erection of a bridge.

When the company took up the queston of the rebuilding of their plant they considered where it should be located. A slight difference in freight rates would in a year make

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1917

ALDERMANIC EFFORT.

THE MEMBERS of the City Council are at least entitled to credit for their efforts on behalf of the public. They have attempted to solve the fuel problem and the high cost of living burden, at least so far as the one article of diet—potatoes—is concerned. But there is many a slip between the coal mine and the consumer's cellar, between the potato warehouses in the West or the Maritime Provinces and the householder's store rooms.

The city may be able to lay in a stock of coal for the general public, and the Patriotic League to provide for the requirements of the soldiers' dependents in this regard, but all the chances are against both propositions. Where the dealers themselves fail, civic bodies can hardly hope to succeed.

What is true of coal applies, too, in the case of potatoes. It has yet to be demonstrated that the municipality, lacking experience and expert knowledge of such transactions, can either secure greater supplies of potatoes or handle them to better purpose, than the men whose commercial existence depends upon such enterprises. Then, too, if the city proposes to enter into competition with the private dealers, one fact must not be lost sight of. The tax roll still stands, and the civic income depends to a considerable extent upon the men whose trade the aldermen seem intent upon confiscating without offering anything in the way of compensation.

The fact that a proposition may appeal to a certain section of the community is not sufficient to establish either its soundness or its justice. There are invariably two sides from which to regard every question.

THE LIBERALS AND THE TARIFF.

THE DUTY ON BRAN imported into Canada is seventeen and one-half per cent, ad valorem, and on potatoes twenty cents a bushel. These are the figures that prevailed under the Laurier regime. Now the Liberals propose that both duties be removed, true as usual to their policy of being tariff reformers, or free traders, only when they are in Opposition.

The duty on bran is one of the features of the present tariff that tends to encourage the grinding of wheat in this country so as to preserve the by-products. What would the farmers of Canada, the millers and those employed in the mills think of a proposition that would make for the shipping of wheat to the Minneapolis mills and the re-shipment of the bran to the stock raisers of Canada?

Removing the duty on potatoes would not help the Canadian consumer when the trend of shipment is in the other direction and when the foreign market is what regulates the local price. The Liberals have simply found another election cry similar to the "Free Food" platform of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that was sprung at a gathering of the faithful in Hamilton four years ago. The new slogan survived for a night only, and was abandoned just as soon as its unpopularity was realized.

THE RETURNED SOLDIERS.

THE PATERNALISM of the Government over the soldiers of Canada never relaxes, whether they are in the armories, in the training camps at home or in England, in the trenches, or in the convalescent hospitals or elsewhere on their return to their native land.

The returned soldier who has done his duty to the limit of his powers is entitled to the best in the gift of the country. If he wishes to settle on the land, the way is made easy for him. If he is disabled, he is allowed a more liberal pension than any other nation has ever granted its defenders. If he is sick, he is cared for until his recovery. Positions in life suited to his changed capabilities are found for him, and all that his country can do is less than an adequate return for the sacrifices he has made.

And now those soldiers who have lost their sight at the front are to be made the objects of peculiar care.

A patented automatic writing appliance for them has been made available to the Military Hospitals Commission through the gift of an expatriated Canadian lady now living at Pasadena, California. The device, which was her own invention and was patented in 1897, has been endorsed by the principal institutions for the blind, in the United States and commends itself instantly to any observer as an exceedingly simple yet practical help to the blind man using a pencil or pen. The object of the device is to enable the man to write in a straight line across th page and to prevent him from writing over the line again.

Miss Edith Fergusson Black, the inventor, forwarded to the Commission a sample of the article and the necessary jigs, dies and tools necessary to manufacture others. Mr. T. B. Kidner, vocational secretary of the Military Hospitals Commission, has thanked Miss Black cordially, and says that with the set of tools provided it will be quite easy for wounded soldiers in the vocational training workshops to manufacture as many of the instruments as are required. Instructions accompany the manufacturing materials.

Miss Black's letter asking the Commission to accept her gift closes with the following paragraph: "Knowing the comfort and convenience the writer is daily proving to hundreds in this country, I make this offer because it is the only way in my power of alleviating in some degree the sufferings of my fellow-countrymen."

It is a matter of congratulation that to date only twenty Canadian soldiers have been blinded, a majority of whom have been trained at the National Institute for the Blind, London, England, where Sir Arthur Pearson, the backer of the Institute, reports that the men are learning rapidly to overcome their handicap. Nine blinded men have returned to Canada. Two have taken good positions, one with the Hydro-Electric Commission in Toronto. Three are being trained in schools for the blind, one at Sir Frederick Fraser's school, Halifax, one at Winnipeg and one at Montreal. The other four desired no assistance when they returned to Canada.

THE DIFFERENCE.

MR. JOSEPH WEARING is certainly right when he says that there is no parallel between political conditions in this country and in Britain. For that lamentable difference the party to which Mr. Wearing belongs and whose cause he so warmly champions is responsible.

There has been co-operation between the different leaders in the home land ever since the war broke out. There has been discord in Canada, thanks to the Opposition, captious criticism and fillibustering tactics from the start. When the members of the Conservative party in England were asked to work with the Government, they consented, but, although all the elements in the political field there have been given representation in the Cabinet, the Liberal majority has still been maintained. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was asked to make appointments from among his followers on the National Service Commission, and refused to do so. His party has always insisted on a coalition government in which the Opposition would be, numerically at least, equal to the party in power, a request at once unreasonable and unconstitutional, if the principle of representative government is to be maintained.

Yes, there is a difference between conditions here and in England. Across the seas the best statesmanship without regard to party is being employed, with the single purpose of winning the war. In Canada, the game of party politics continues.

THE BRITISH FRANCHISE ACT.

THE PRESENT WAR has been called a struggle on behalf of democracy, and the results are already apparent in Britain. The new Franchise Act, now before the House of Commons, has been born of the conflict, and its aim is recognition of the rights of those who have stood so faithfully by the cause of their Empire for the past three years. The franchise is to be extended among the masses. The commoner's vote is to be made of the same effect as the franchise of the autocrat. The principle of one vote for one man is to prevail, and, most wonderful of all, the ballot is to be placed in the hands of the women on the same terms as men, except that for the former the privilege is to be withheld until they reach the age of thirty years.

Why thirty? Do the British statesmen labor under any delusion to the effect that in woman the process of either physical or mental development is slower than in man? The laws of nature prove the contrary. If the women who are enfranchised by the new Act have any objection to the measure it will be based on this discrimination in the matter of age.

In Canada, too, the Dominion Parliament is considering the extension of the franchise. Every soldier is to be given the vote, whether he be eighteen years old or older. It is held that every man mature enough to carry a rifle in the defence of his country can be trusted with the ballot. There will be no objection to such an enactment from either party, but the members of our own Parliament should go further and take a leaf from the book of the lawmakers at Westminster. The mother of all parliaments should be made a model for the rest of the world.

Canadian women, at least hose who have been enfranchised by provincial legislatures, should be allowed to vote at Federal elections. England is to have proportional representation, in the large urban centres at least. Here is an example for Canada. Furthermore, there are Canadians who believe that the number of members of Parliament should be reduced. This is another reform to be introduced in England by the simple process of raising the standard unit population for each member.

The Canadians at Vimy Ridge.

(London Times.)

Where every unit has done so well, it would be impertinence to single out any in particular. But no one will be inclined to quarrel with special praise to the Canadians who were given the task of taking the famous Vimy Ridge, and performed it, if not with more dash and gallantry than any of their confreres— and that, indeed, would have been impossible—yet with the most conspicuous success. The nation will not grudge the special mention of the Canadians made by the King in his message to Sir Douglas Haig. It looks to them with confidence to hold what they have won, and realizes that the enemy will not spare the utmost desperation of attack to drive them out again.

WHY THE GOVERNMENT REFUSED TO PLACE TAX ON INCOMES

(By Sir Thomas White)

It has been frequently suggested that following the examples of Britain and the United States, we should adopt an ncome tax upon all incomes beyond say $1,000 or $2,000. The comparison in this respect, however, of Canada with either of these countries is fallacous. We are not a country of large accumulated wealth and of incomes derived from investments. Canadian incomes are mostly derived from personal earnings, and while there are many exceptions, the rule prevails generally throughout the dominion. So far as I am aware the incomes of professional and salaried classes throughout Canada have not increased since the outbreak of the war. In the case of many they have actually declined. This being so it does not seem equitable to impose upon those the burden of an additional income tax—for they are taxed now upon their incomes by municipalities and provinces—at a time when owing to the war the cost of living has so greatly increased. If such a tax is to be imposed it seems to me that so far as the great majority of Canadians are concerned, t might better be levied in times of peace, when the cost of living is again normal. It is further to be ponted out that the maximum amount which would be obtained from such a tax in Canada would in terms of Dominion finance be comparatively small and that the administration would require almost a second Civil Service sufficient in number to cover every muncipality, rural and urban, throughout the Dominion. The cost of levy and collection of such a tax would be higher proportionally than in a geographically small, wealthy, densely populated country like Great Britain or than the United States, whch although of the same area as Canada has twelve times the population, and much more than twelve times our wealth. On the whole it would appear to me that the income tax should not be resorted to by the Dominion Government until its necessity becomes clearly and unmistakably apparent notwithstanding the drawbacks which I have mentioned In connection with this tax it is also to be observed that the larger incomes in so far as they are not personally earned are derived in part from holdings in joint stock companies already subject to taxation under the provisions of the Business Profits War Tax Act. It must also be remembered that the Canadian public are voluntarily supporting the Canadian Patriotic, Red Cross, and other funds. The amount contributed annually to these funds is much in excess of the amount likely to be realized from any income tax. It is true that some wealthy men do not contribute their fair share to these funds. But this would also be true in any scheme of income taxation especially with issues of Dominion bonds exempt from Dominion taxation.

A STIFF TEST OF HOSPITALITY

Various unkind things have been said about the Germans of Germany and the Germans in the United States in the last three years. Much of what has been said may have been deserved. Much of it may be ascribed to inflamed feeling which is the natural attendant of times of passion.

Whatever may be the sins of omission or commission of Germans in New York there is one German gentleman connected with the North German Lloyd to whom the test of hospitality was not put in vain.

The North German Lloyd office is in the Bowling Green Building. The nation's visitors, the commissioners of Great Britain and France, were to pass that structure on their way from the Battery to the City Hall. The great sign of the North German Lloyd is spread across a large portion of the lower southern facade of the building. "German" is not a pleasant word to Briton or Gaul today. True hospitality demands that you welcome the coming guest. The people of the North German Lloyd in New York are a part of New York.

It was 4.20 p.m. The Man of the Marne was to arrive in a few minutes. The sign of the North German Lloyd stuck out there over Bowling Green like a sore thumb. It affronted the eyes, offended the spirit, inflamed the mind of many a man at that particular moment who would not have felt resentment at any other time.

And then on the ledge above the great sign appeared several men with a mammoth package which they began to unfold. And as it was unfolded it spread its folds out into the flag of the Union. The Stars and Stripes soon covered two-thirds of that big sign, covered the "German" in it and the "Lloyd" in it and covered the larger part of the office front of the great steamship company.

And as if that were not enough a man came out on the ledge and with flag in hand stood there and waved it in welcome to Joffre, to Viviana and the others.

And the flag he waved was the tricolor of France.

CARING FOR THE VETERANS

The Borden Government's scheme of land settlement for returned soldiers is a broad and generous measure. Under it any returned soldier may, if he so desires, obtain 160 acres of land, a free course in agricultural instruction and a loan of $2,000 to equip and improve his holding. There is nothing consistent with the financial ability of the country that Canada should not be prepared to do for the men who have risked their lives in her defence, and this, we think has been the principle that has guided the Dominion Government in its treatment of returned soldiers since the first of them came back from the front. It was only natural at the beginning that there should have been some complaints, but we believe that early grievances have been remedied and that the men now returning from the firing line are being treated with the consideration and generosity they so well deserve. The Government set a worthy example to employers when it decided to appoint returned soldiers to all vacancies in the civil service. We believe that, with possibly a few exceptions it is being widely followed by private employers. Another splendid step taken by the Government was the decision to give every returned soldier a bonus of three months' pay on his discharge. This helps to keep the men in funds until such time as they are able to find employment, which, under present conditions, is not difficult to obtain. Returned soldiers who are convalescing are splendidly cared for by the Military Hospitals Commissions, an institution that has been highly praised by the British authorities and copied by Australia.

Taken all in all the Dominion's treatment of her returned men is a credit to Canadian patriotism and in line with the ideals animating the nation in this war for humanity and civilization.

AMERICA TO ENGLAND

(Victor Kilspindle, in New York Times)

What! an alien's banner planted
On Old England's guarded shore?
Who the foeman that has triumphed
Where all foes have failed before?
Nay! no foeman, but a daughter

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor, Review

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly give me space and afford me the pleasure to express my very high opinion of the splendid presentation of the beautiful "Pinafore" at the Opera House, last night. I am somewhat of an "Old stager," and from what I have seen, I think I am qualified to know a good thing in the shape of musical or dramatic production when I see it. Last night's "Pinafore" was a most creditable production to the amateurs that gave it. The performers, one and all both principals and chorus, in both singing and dramatic action, were very good indeed. The singing was good, some of it exceptionally so, and the accompaniment was good, what calls for high words of praise for the Conservatory Orchestra. Its work was, without undue praise, excellent. Its accompaniment of the singers, choruses and dances was quite first rate—judiciously ad to the circumstances. The da by a company of young girls sailor's hornpipe chorus I may ca was magnificent in its way—as

BABY PLAYS SAFELY WHILE MOTHER WORKS

A Peep Into a London Creche, where Little Lives are Guarded by Proud Foster Mother

A London paper writes: Even the coldest March morning does not interfere with the little queue of women which forms every day outside a modest shop in Acton. The queue is known as the "Mothers' Queue," and the shop has been transformed into a day nursery, where the babies of the women who work are lodged by the day or the week. Most of the women in the queue are quite young, some are mere slips of girls. Some have babies in their arms and are delivering them over to the "matron mother" for the day. Others have merely come hurriedly to kiss their tiny boy or girl who is a weekly boarder. The Corn-lane creche in Acton is one of many opened in London to aid those women who want to work but have little children they cannot leave. There are forty small boys and girls there every day, and they range from tiny mites of two or three months to sturdy specimens of five years.

Little Chairs for Little Tots

The shop itself is the play room, with little chairs and tables instead of counters and shelves, a mammoth rocking horse which never has a minute to stop rocking, and a variety of toys. For the crawling babies there are little pens, where they can creep on warm rugs and not get into trouble, and for the tiny toddlers there is plenty of space to trundle untiringly up and down after the childish fashion. If there is a ray of sun it shines merrily into the wide windows of the play room as well as into the room upstairs, where in dainty little cribs sleep and laugh and crow the tiniest babies of all.

Boys in Blue; Girls in Pink

"We put the boys in blue overalls and the girls in pink," said the matron as she showed me the succession of bags where each baby's home clothes were folded away when he or she arrived, and the garments of the day nursery put on in their place.

The "matron-mother" was proud of her babies. You could see that, and she displayed the rosy beauties of her charges with as much enthusiasm as their own mothers could have shown, meanwhile keeping a watchful eye on her assistants who play with the children. There were Harolds and Archibalds, Valentines and Francois, there were Dorothys and Graces, Sylvias and Emmelines, but not a plain John or Mary to be found, for most of the mothers are young and romantic, and as one of them said, "I want my baby to like her name when she grows up, and when she falls in love what could be nicer than him calling her Gladys."

Apple-Sauce Cake

Cream together 1 cup sugar and 1-2 cup butter. Add 1 cup sweetened apple sauce in which has been stirred 1 teaspoon soda. With 1 3-4 cups flour sift 1 teaspoon mixed nutmeg, cloves and cinnamon. Beat this with other ingredients, and add lemon peel, chopped nuts or raisins or all three. Bake in a moderate oven.

Baked Fish Balls

Beat one egg very light, add one cup of flaked haddock cooked, one cup of cold rice, one tablespoon of lemon juice, and season with salt and pepper. Shape into small balls and bake in a buttered pan until a delicate brown.

Coffee Custard

Soak a quarter of cup of coffee in two cups of milk a half an hour. Boil five minutes, strain, add two eggs, two tablespoons of sugar and pour into small cups. Set in a pan of hot water and bake until firm.

THINGS TO REMEMBER

If a child should get pepper in its eyes, bathe them freely with milk.

Sand or salt will put out flames from oil or alcohol; water will cause them to spread.

To get rid of the ticking of a watch in a sick room, turn a tumbler over the watch.

How many people know that safety matches can be lighted on common glass?

Use dried fruits as much as possible in the winter when fresh fruit is scarce and dear.

To remove fruit stains from cloths and napkins apply powdered starch, and leave for several hours till the mark has been absorbed by the starch

Potted Tomatoes

If you grow your own tomatoes, or if you can buy them cheaply, you will be glad to know of a delicious way of potting them for use in sandwiches. Peel three or four large tomatoes, and slice them into a saucepan with an even spoonful of butter and a small chopped onion. Boil slowly, then mash well. Add a little vegetable stock, and beat thoroughly. Take the saucepan off the fire, and stir in two ounces of grated cheese (the quantity must vary with the strength of the cheese), and four ounces of fine bread crumbs. When all is mixed well put into pots.

Advice to Husbands

I think the spoken "I love you" means more to women than to men, writes a woman. I wonder why. Perhaps because men are more self-satisfied and so more ready to believe they are loved. Perhaps it is a relic of the days ([illegible], I think) when "man's love was of man's life a thing apart, 'twas woman's whole existence." Anyhow it is so and the man who realizes it and acts upon it, will make his married life happier and easier.

To Tint White Curtains

If you have white curtains and desire them made ecru, get ochre at a drug store or paint shop, which comes in powdered form and is cheap. Be sure when you mix the ochre with water that it is thoroughly mixed and all lumps dissolved, then strain through a bit of cheesecloth and add to the starch or rinsing water, as the case may be. Try a bit of lace first to obtain desired shade, then put in the curtains.

Egged Veal Hash

Chop fine remnants of cold roast veal. Moisten with the gravy or water. When hot, break into it three or four eggs, according to the quantity of veal. When the eggs are cooked, stir into it a spoonful of butter, and serve quickly. If to your taste, shake in a little parsley. Should you lack quantity, half a cup of fine stale bread crumbs are no disadvantage

Good Salad Combinations

Chicken, cabbage and nuts.
Chicken, mushrooms and celery.
Corned beef, spiced cabbage, diced carrots.
Shrimp, celery and lettuce.
Tongue, diced, nuts, celery.
Cottage cheese, diced pimento.
Grated cheese and diced macaroni to be served with boiled dressing.

Baked Potatoes

Boil them first in their skins, remove when done, cut in halves and put in the baking pan. Baste with melted butter until done.

To clean oil paintings, take a rag, just moisten it with linseed oil and rub the painting well, then, with a dry cloth, polish till perfectly dry and clean.

The bone should be left in the roast; it will keep the juice in and add flavor and sweetness.

ZOUAVES OF FRANCE

Although the Zouaves, who covered themselves with glory in the Salonfki campaign, have been a component part of the French army for less than ninety years, they have traditions which older regiments may envy. In the Algerian war the French recruited them from some fierce Arab tribes known by the many-vowelled name "Zooaquas," and their achievements under Lamboriciere and Cavaignac soon attracted enthusiastic, young Frenchmen to their ranks. They adopted the Moorish uniform, fought with distinction in the Crimea, and the regiment became a close corporation for their compatriots, all of African birth being refused admission.

SET EXAMPLE OF SAVING

Peeress Cuts Down on Maids and Valets, Etc.

The woman's branch of the British National War Savings Committee sent a series of questions to peeresses and wives of members of Parliament. From about 200 replies, a number show that some women at least are endeavoring to cut expenses. One peeress writes that her husband is "cutting down indoors and out, putting an end to all luxury. She personally is doing without a maid, while his Lordship has dispensed with his valet, tobacco and spirits. Chocolates, theatres, motoring, travelling and visiting have been cut out, and there is no more entertaining of shooting parties. Economy is being practiced in the matter of clothing, evening dresses being tabooed.

The writer continues: "The castle is being closed, only a few rooms in one corner are occupied. We moved to the small rooms, dismissed all the staff except loyal women thus making drastic reductions possible in every direction. All fireplaces have been re-arranged and fire bricks and coal savers put in. Outside no eligible men were kept on the estate. The wages of the work people have been raised to meet the cost of living. Our cottages are all given rent free and large supplies of coal and wood in addition. Girls are employed in lieu of men in the gardens, and potatoes grown in the flower beds. The lawns are used for hay. The stock in the deer park has been systematically reduced for food supply and keepers have gone."

The wife of a member of Parliament writes: "Personally I economize in every way we can do. I now have only three servants. I have given up my maid and motor cars, and never eat meat more than once a day. I have no bed fire, and buy no clothes, every penny goes into war loan exchequer bonds. I sold all my American securities, but don't find my example makes the slightest effect upon our surroundings. We hold meetings constantly, but people hate them as they are having the time of their lives."

Popular Superstitions

It is a common belief that for a barber to lather the face of a patron with a single stroke of the brush inevitably brings bad luck. It is considered bad luck to see a hunchback in the mirror standing or passing back of one. It is said to foretell a death in the family. Good luck is said to follow the man who has his shoes polished at the time that he is being shaved.

Republican Flag of China

The flag of the Chinese Republic shows five equal horizontal stripes—red, yellow, blue, white and black, reading downward. The red stripe at the top stands for China proper, the yellow for Manchuria, the blue for Mongolia, the white for Tibet and the black for Turkestan.

WOODEN SHIPS RETURN

OLDTIME SHIPYARD TAKES NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

By a Combination of Events Growing Out of the War, a Type of Vessel That Belonged to the Past Will Be Seen Once More on the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Coast.

BY a combination of events which, even in the most vivid flights of imagination, would hardly have been forecast three years ago, the coast cities and the cities on the Great Lakes are about to witness the revival of an industry that flourished at an earlier period, particularly along the Atlantic seaboard. This reviving industry has its impulse in the fact that the world is in need of ocean-going vessels, and that these may be constructed much more speedily of wood than of steel. There is also the point of economy to be considered. The projected fleets are intended to meet an emergency, and will probably give way to steel vessels with the return of world peace; hence cost is a consideration. Nevertheless, the wooden ship is coming back, and the old-time shipyard is taking on a new lease of life.

The shipyard of to-morrow will, however, lack some of the picturesqueness of the shipyard of yesterday. There will be missing, most conspicuously, the tall masts which formerly were the necessary adjunct of the freighter, and, still longer ago, of all ocean-going carriers. Present-day ingenuity has provided, in internal combustion engines of the Diesel type, a means of propulsion, for craft of all kinds, which waits not upon the fickle winds. There will be missing also the legion of ship's carpenters, armed with the adz and the broadax, hewing, fitting, and trying the unwieldy timbers fresh from the forests. The ships to be built are to be "standardized." That is, each is to be a replica of the others of equal displacement and tonnage, and, in sawmills many miles distant from the sea, each part, which likewise will be a replica of every other similar part, will be sawed and shaped ready to take its place when the other parts are assembled. There is, it is clearly seen, wise method in this plan, for by it one ship's carpenter will be able to direct the labor of a crew of carpenters unaccustomed to that particular class of construction. Ship carpentry, it must be remembered, is all but a lost art, and in the present emergency, with wharves and warehouses bulging with stores of foodstuffs and other commodities awaiting transportation, it is not practicable to wait for men to be trained in so intricate a craft. Likewise, with the parts fitted by machinery, and ready to be placed in position almost without the use of tools, the work of construction can be done more quickly and cheaply than in the old way. It is estimated that in four months a 280-foot ship of 3,600 tons, capable of a speed of nine or ten knots an hour, could be made ready for commission. The need of many additional ocean-going freighters is imperative. Now that war has been declared between the United States and Germany, the Navy Department of the Republic will immediately commandeer a large tonnage from the merchant carriers to handle coal and other naval supplies, and for a reserve against possible losses.

Private enterprise will doubtless take over completely the task of supplying the needed number of wooden vessels, to be used mainly in commerce but to be available for auxiliary naval service. The idealist who scorns pure utilitarianism will perhaps see what he may term a reversion to the primitive in this return to methods of a day almost forgotten. Modern methods and inventions, wonderful as they are, are sometimes too complex to be utilized in a great emergency. The weapon at hand is the most useful when defense is imperative. One will hardly walk around a block to purchase the latest device when immediate action is necessary. And so it comes about that the wooden ship and the abandoned shipyard will return to usefulness for a time, to serve, perhaps as greatly as in the years when they were considered the last word in completeness and efficiency.

Better Than Fearlessness.

J. G. Simie, in his book "Canada Chaps," tells of a talk with a young Canadian officer, who spoke about a chum of his, the finest boy that ever stepped, up to everything, scared at nothing, first there and last to come away again. "One day I asked him, 'Are you never scared, same as the rest of us?' He looked at me and laughed. 'Scared!' he replied, 'I'm scared stiff all right. There's never been a day, an hour, since I've been out that I'm not scared and frightened all to bits!'"

He explained: "You folks back there at home all think it's charging and recklessness and rush, and feeling nothing. Well, it isn't—Don't you see that it's far finer just the way it is? The men are scared to death and cheery. They're frightened stiff, and yet they do the things. The men, they're fine. You never saw the like of them. They're brave, they're frightened and they have the courage of the devil; they do the things. What they do! Oh, they're"—he hesitated for the word. "They're irresistible. They're fine."

Before Kemp Took Charge.

"Do ye ken Sam Hughes?
He's the enemy of booze;
He's the great champeen
Of the dry canteen
So we'll all go to bed,
For the place is dead,
And we won't have a head
In the morning."

DESPAIRING WOMAN NOW HAPPY MOTHER

Mrs. Stephens Did Not Need The Surgical Operation.

Patoka, Ill.—"I had been married five years and my greatest desire was to become a mother. The doctor said I never would have a child unless I was operated on for female troubles and I had given up all hopes when a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly for sometime, and I am in better health than ever, and have a healthy baby girl. I praise your Vegetable Compound for my baby and my better health. I want all suffering women to know that it is the sure road to health and happiness."—Mrs. GEORGE STEPHENS, R. F. D. No. 3, Patoka, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

Yorkshire Pudding

Two cupsful of milk, two eggs, six heaped tablespoonsful of flour, one saltspoonful of salt, a pinch of baking powder. Sift the flour into a basin with the salt, stir in the milk very gradually, beat up the eggs and add to the batter when quite smooth; allow this to stand for two hours in a cool place, then add the baking powder, pour into a well-greased baking pan and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven.

Baked Halibut

Arrange in a baking pan 6 small, thin slices of fat salt pork. On top of these place a two-pound slice of halibut, over which spread 2 tablespoons each of flour and butter, creamed together. Cover the top with 3-4 cup of buttered cracker crumbs and over all place a few thin slices of fat salt pork. Bake in moderate oven about an hour.

When You are Tired, Quit

We repeat—when you're tired, quit. That doesn't mean, necessarily, quit work. It means quit spending so much time in other ways that you can't get enough sleep to furnish you with the proper working energy. Whenever you spend more energy than you are getting, you're issuing checks against the bank balance of future health

Popcorn with Cheese

Mix together one quart of finely ground popcorn, one heaping tablespoon of flour and one cup of ground cheese. Pour into buttered baking dish, add salt, pepper and tablespoon of melted butter. Pour over it sufficient milk to cover and bake in hot oven until brown.

Beef Stew with Peas

Get one pound from the neck of a beef. Cut into about six pieces, brown in butter, add one-half can of peas and two medium sized carrots cut in strips. Cover with hot water and simmer two hours.

I HAVE FOUND OUT

I have found, writes a housewife, that there is a use for old table cloths. I had one worn out in the centre that could not be used on the table, but the edges of the cloth were good. I cut out centre of cloth and found I could get out of the good part of the edges eight dinner napkins and two nice sized tray cloths. To freshen black kid gloves when the outer surface has rubbed off, mix a few drops of sweet oil with the same quantity of black ink and apply to the rubbed spots.

I have found that the bottom of a worn out undershirt of my husband's makes an ideal petticoat for my little girl after I have crocheted a little wool lace around the bottom and a flannelette waist on top. It costs very little for the wool to make the lace, and scraps of flannelette make the waist.

RIGHT WAY TO REST

Busy Housewife Can Learn to Take Little Rests

A busy woman writes: Some people can't rest unless they make a business of resting. They must have a quiet house and a free afternoon. They must have nothing on their minds. That is a habit—and a bad one. One can rest in the car, in the five minutes one waits in the waiting room for a friend, in the fifteen minutes before one's guests arrive in the evening. Or one can fill these same spaces with busy thought, with tenseness, with unrelaxed muscles.

If you have twenty minutes to spare between activities and will spend five of it sipping a cup of tea, five of it bathing your face in hot water, and ten lying flat on your back with your eyes closed, you will increase your efficiency for enjoyment or accomplishment in the next few hours, a hundred per cent.

NOTHING WASTED

What May be Done with Worn-out Dressing Sacque

Out of an elderdown dressing sacque that was past wearing we made several pairs of mitts that were very useful to members of the family, writes a mother. The uneven surface of the elderdown made a good polishing mitt for the schoolboy's boots, as well as one of a larger size for the man of the house to use, and was much better than a brush, as the hand was protected. A pair of the same was used in the furnace-room by the one who shovels the coal and ashes. To make the mitt, lay the hand on the cloth, with fingers spread a little, and cut around, leaving enough for a seam; lay three or four thicknesses together and stitch around so that when one is worn it can be cut away and a fresh surface will be left.

Blackberry Pudding

Beat 2 eggs light, put with them 1 pint of milk, a saltspoonful of salt, 1-2 yeast cake dissolved in three tablespoonsful of luke-warm water, and sift in four scant cupsful of flour. Let this rise for about four hours, stir in 3 cupsful of dredged blackberries and turn into a well-greased cake mould. Bake for one hour in a steady oven and eat with hard sauce.

Barberry Jelly

Pick the berries over and wash them; then put them into a kettle with a quart of water to each gallon of berries. To this quantity of berries allow a dozen tart apples, pared and cored. Cook slowly until the apples are soft, then turn them into a jelly bag and drain overnight. Then proceed as for currant jelly.

Bacon and Potato Omelet

Cut three slices of bacon in very small pieces and fry until crisp. Cut two cold boiled potatoes in small pieces and add to the bacon. Beat two eggs and pour over. Cook until the eggs are set. Fold and serve at once.

Rice and Tomato Scallop

Place a layer of boiled rice in a baking dish, then a layer of tomatoes, salt, pepper, a little sugar and a teaspoon of chopped sweet peppers. Repeat until the dish is full, cover with crumbs and bake half an hour.

DO YOU EAT TOO MUCH?

Follow Example of Animals—"Eat Little and Often"

A woman writes: How many people do you know who keep thoroughly fit and active, who go through the day's work without feeling it a burden, who are cheerful and full of life? That is how we all might be if we understood how to keep ourselves in health. The chief reason why nearly everybody feels that he or she might be better in health is that we ask our digestions to do too much work. We only have so much power in our frames. Those whose heads consume too many units suffer from indigestion. They do not let their stomachs have enough. Those who overtire themselves in physical work or exercises are troubled by nerve strain. Their nerves are underfed with energy. Nature always demands payment. Most people who live comfortable lives put too much work upon their digestions. They suffer from a consequent lack of energy in the brain and the nervous system. Follow the example of the animal, the wise animal, whose instinct can teach our reason so much: eat little and often. Then you are always ready for your food and never burdened by it afterwards. You are fresh and fit and cheery. You do not have "that sleepy feeling" in the afternoon!

MEAT MOLD WITH SALAD

This dish may be prepared in the morning. Remove the contents of one can of potted ham and chop fine; or use boned chicken, boned turkey, lunch, calves' or lambs' tongue, chopped, or a mixture of meat to suit the taste. Mix two cupsful of the chopped meat with one-fourth cup of mayonnaise and add one cupful of liquid chicken aspic. Decorate each individual mold with red peppers cut in fancy shape, chopped white or hard-boiled egg and strips of olives held in place with aspic. Fill the molds with the meat mixture and place in the refrigerator or in a cool place to harden. When ready to serve turn out and serve with a watercress salad dressed with French dressing and garnished with tiny egg balls made with the yolks of the eggs, chopped parsley and mayonnaise.

TWO POUNDS OUT OF ONE

How to Make One Pound of Butter Go as Far as Two

To make one pound of butter into two: Cut butter into small pieces and soften slightly by placing in dish of hot water. Take one heaping teaspoonful of gelatine, dissolve it in two tablespoonsful of milk by letting soak ten minutes in dish placed over hot water; one pint of milk or cream. Add the gelatine and the balance of the milk to the cut-up butter, gradually beating thoroughly with a Dover egg beater till all the milk is mixed in. When done, add salt to taste, and place in a cool place until firm. If the milk does not all beat in, warm it slightly.

Pineapple Souffle

Soak one-half a box of powdered gelatin in one-half cup of cold water for one-half an hour. Take half the juice of a can of pineapple and enough water to make one pint, stir in one cup of sugar and boil for three minutes. While still hot, pour over the gelatin. Let it stand until it begins to stiffen, then whip until white, and allow to cool, and add one-half cup of chopped canned pineapple. Allow to become firm and serve with whipped cream. Other fruit may be used in the same way.

Clean White Coats

Gasoline is the best agent for cleaning whole garments. You are sure to be successful if you use a sufficient quantity of the fluid. A little white soap may be used on badly soiled places. Rinse a whole garment in the clear fluid and hang in the shade without wringing. Be very careful when using the gasoline, as it is inflammable. To avoid an accident you had better do your cleaning out of doors.

Girl's 20-Year Trance

In 1883 Margaret Bangerel, a pretty girl twenty-one years of age, became unconscious as the result of a practical joke played upon her. The trance lasted for twenty years, and she became the most talked of woman in Europe. Medical celebrities from all parts of the world flocked to see her, but failed to diagnose the case or bring about any successful remedy. She was never aroused from her comatose state, for she died in [illegible]

NEW OVER-HEAD BRIDGE TO BENEFIT EAST CITY

Will Allow of Street Railway Connection—Doubtful if Heavy Motor Fire Truck Could Cross Present Bridge.

The Ashburnham Ratepayers' League met in the St. Luke's Boys' Club Rooms last evening, Chairman R. B. Rogers presiding. The other members present were Rev. W. White, Very Rev. Dean McColl, R. H. Parsons, Ald. John Smith, Robert Hamilton, Ald. A. Weir, J. Speer, J. Devlin, D. Hogan, W. O'Brien, J. Ellis, E. A. Peck, Geo. Record and Secretary G. L. Hay.

It was not considered wise to enter into the cricket grounds question until the high-level bridge bylaw had been voted on by the ratepayers.

Ald. Smith reported that in regard to a request on the city for more lights, some had already been installed, and more will follow as soon as practicable.

Tree Planting.

The Tree-Planting Committee did not report. The idea, President Rogers explained, that if the city would supply trees, his association would plant them with a view to beautifying East City. Ald. Smith was satisfied the City would supply the trees.

The Overhead Bridge.

In regard to the bylaw providing for the erection of an over-head bridge at Hunter street, Ald. Weir suggested that a committee thoroughly canvass all the ratepayers in the interests of this measure.

City Engineer Parsons explained the agreement with the Quaker Oats Company concerning their rebuilding in Peterborough. The conditions upon which they will remain in Peterborough are: First—That the city construct by December 31st, 1919, an overhead bridge at Hunter street. Second—That the city shall provide a bridge across the river at London street, above the company's power house. Third—The closing of Mill street, and Murray and London streets where they run into the Quaker Oats property; Murray street at that point is practicaly useless. But the part of the agreement, Mr. Parsons said, we are mostly interested in is that which refers to the two bridges. The Quaker Oats Co. propose to give to the city a right of way to the London street bridge both sides of the river; for this bridge the city contemplates removing the spans from the present Hunter street structure, and building 30 feet cement spans at each end. This will probably be a highway structure.

Engineer Parsons here thoroughly explained the proposed construction of the Hunter street high-level bridge in every detail and in a commendably lucid manner. The Quaker Oats Co., he concluded, in rebuilding propose that their offices shall not be on the ground floor, as before, but on a level with the over head bridge, thus affording direct access to that structure.

To Benefit East City.

Ald. Smith here said that heretofore all the sewage from the Quaker Oats had run into the river; that is the reason why the use of ice from the lake has been prohibited. When the new bridge is built, this sewage is to discharge into a pipe running across the high-level structure, which will be of concrete, affordig employment for local labor. The cost of this bridge, $280,000, is not going to burden the city to any serious extent, and we cannot afford to lose the Quaker Oats Co., with the large amount of employment it offers. Again, an over-head bridge is needed to afford connection with West City by means of street cars, and the service in East City of the new heavy motor fire truck about to be purchased.

Bigger Than Ever.

Ald. Weir asserted that the new Quaker Oats mills will be much larger than the old buildings, and the influence, of course, is that more help will be engaged than before the fire. He urged that no stone be left unturned to secure the pasage of the bylaw.

Father McColl agreed with Ald. Smith that if we lose the Quaker Oats Co. we lose enough in taxes to bridge. Should the company not repay the debenture for the new build here Peterborough will receive a black eye in regard to the location of new industries; and the industrial and business activities of a city induce the settlement therein of new citizens. Laboring men should also bear in mind that the new bridge will be erected at a period of depression after the war, thus affording employment at a time when most needed.

Edged Tools.

Mr. R. B. Rogers contended that anyone running away with the idea that the company will stay here whether the new bridge is built or not, is playing with edged tools. Many cities and towns are after this industry, and it is up to voters to see to it that their retention with us is not jeopardized. One reason the Quaker Oats insist on the high-level structure is the elimination of flagmen at their crossing, whose maintenance amounts to $1400 a year, representing a capitalization of $25,000.

The League here appointed its Organization Committee to boost the bylaw, and settled down to earnest work. Not one dissenting voice against the project was in evidence a great difference to them, on account of the immense quantity of freight they had to handle. One cent per 100 lbs. would mean to them about $50,000.00 a year, and any greater difference would mean a larger sum. The Trent Canal is not yet open for traffice; if this canal were completed there would be no question about the company rebuilding here. The building of these bridges will facilitate the business of the company, and the assurance that they will be built within a reasonable time will enable the company to erect their buildings to conform to the high level bridge and without any fear that they will be damaged by the erection of such a bridge in the future.

REASONS WHY BY-LAW FOR HIGH LEVEL BRIDGE IS

The company, after taking everything into consideration, decided, after consultation with the City Council, that they would rebuild here if these bridges would be erected within a reasonable time.

The bylaw does not give anything to the company. It provides for public works that will be of general public benefit, while at the same time facilitating the business of the company.

The high level bridge will do away with the danger to the public of the railway crossings on Hunter Street, a danger that will increase as the city grows and as the business increases. It will provide a way for the extension of the street railway into the East Ward, which is required and has been demanded for some time. It will enable barges, when the Trent Canal is opened, to be taken above the bridge to the mills for which the river has been dredged by the Government. It will be a great convenience to the public in crossing the river to and from the city on the east side of the river.

As has been stated, the bridge at London Street has been petitioned for repeatedly. By making use of the iron super-structure of the present Hunter Street bridge for the bridge at London Street it can be erected at comparatively small cost. It will save the danger to the people of crossing on the dam, upon which there is a railway track, and will result in the development of that part of the city.

If the Quaker Oats Company erected their buildings on plans similar to the old buildings, and later the city decided to construct the high level bridge, the result would be that the property of the company would be seriously damaged, for which damages the city would be liable. By passing the bylaw, and thus giving assurance that the bridge will be constructed, the company will plan their buildings accordingly, and agree not to claim damages, and the city will not have to pay anything to the company for land or other damages on either side of the river, as they would have to do but for this agreement. Consequently the city will save a large sum by providing now for the erection of the bridge so that the company will build with this in view.

The company is giving a right-of-way on each side of the river for access to the London Street bridge in exchange for Mill Street, which is of no public service and only used for access to the company's mills, and a few yards of the east ends of Murray and London streets, which only lead to the unused Mill Street. The rights-of-way are thus secured without expenditure by the city.

While the bylaw provides for the estimatd full cost of the bridges, it is expected that the Dominion Government will contribute to the cost. The high level bridge will enable that part of the river above the bridge, which has been dredged by the Government, to be utilized without a swing, and it is expected that the Government will contribute what it would cost to construct and maintain the swing. As soon as the Minister of Public Works returns from England this will be taken up with him. He has been communicated with and asked that the matter stand over until he returns. Any sum the Government pays towards the construction will lessen the estimated cost to the city as set out in the bylaw.

The company is clearing away the remains of the old building in preparation for the new ones on the assurances given that the bridges will be bult. The new plant will be a large one and will give larger employment than the old one, with good prospects for greater development in the future.

Public convenience will be served by the erection of the bridges; grave dangers to the public will be avoided; the development of a large section of the city will be facilitated, and the continuance of a very important industry will be assured by passing the bylaw—an industry that other cities are most anxious to secure and were ready to expend large sums to get. One city had made preparations to expend $100,000.00 on one public work alone in the hope of getting this industry.

The electors are asked to remember the date of the voting, Thursday, May 31st, and to vote for the bylaw.

NO ELECTION PROBABLE FOR ONE YEAR AT LEAST

Government's Decision to Pass no Franchise Act This Session Taken as Sign of Extension.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The Government will not pass a Dominion Franchise Act this session. It is explained that no general election was to be held for at least a year and therefore no amendment to the Franchise Act would need to be passed at the present session.

Neither the prime minister nor his colleagues who have returned with him from overseas are disposed to discuss Dominion politics. Indeed, they seem anxious themselves for information, and enquire freely about what has happened during their absence, and as to public sentiment in Canada on many questions. Yet, from members of their party and other sources, enough information has been gleaned to justify the rumor everywhere in circulation that the Dominion general election will go over for another year, at least.

Tariff Tinkers.

Three tariff amendments are to be moved by Liberals on the second reading of the Budget resolutions.

Hon. Frank Oliver will move an amendment expressing the desirability of a general revision of the tariff downward. Mr. J. A. Robb will again present his resolution, ruled out by the Speaker during the present debate, to put wheat, bran, shorts and middlings on the free list. Mr. F. B. Carvell, for Mr. W. S. Loggie, gave notice of the latter's amendment to place potatoes on the free list.

CHEESE BROUGHT PRICE PAID LAST SEPTEMBER

The 1,177 cheese that were boarded at the meeting this morning were bought by J. A. Kerr, representing the Alexander Co. of Montreal, at 21 13-16 cents. The bidding, which started at 18¾ cents, was participated in by G. A. Gillespie, Mr. Hodson of Montreal and Mr. Flavelle of Lindsay. Mr. Gillespie's top bid was only 1-16 of a cent below the winner. The price realized today was the same as that paid for cheese at the September meeting of the board. One year ago the highest bid was 18¾ cents.

The cheese sold today is for the home market, as shipments to Europe have been practically stopped.

Today's session was the fortieth annual session of the board; all the old officers were re-elected, as follows:

Robert Duff, president.
J. J. Breckenridge, first vice-president.
G. W. Mann, second vice-president.
E. Hawthorne, secretary-treasurer.
W. A. Anderson, auditor.

The cheese boarded were as follows:

Keene	30
Warminster	60
Shearer	110
Selwyn	60
Villiers	35
Warsaw	60
Westwood	110
Oakdale	52
Lakefield	25
Pine Grove	35
Myrtle	30
Ormonde	100
Young's Point	70
Lang	40
East Emily	15
Trewern	150
Norwood	94
Fleetwood	50
Killarney	45

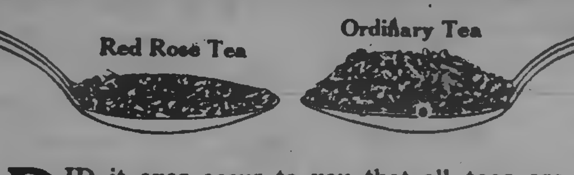
The members spent some time in discussing the shipping situation. The outlook is gloomy for a successful season, owing to the lack of ocean transportation, and that accounts for what is considered the low price realized today as compared with some of the sales last fall.



DID it ever occur to you that all teas are not "Just tea?" In reality, there is as much difference in teas as there is in silks.

There are many varieties of tea: Indian teas, Ceylon teas, Java teas, China teas, etc.—Indians and Ceylons being the choicest of all.

These teas are all just ordinary garden teas, while Red Rose Tea is a blend of teas selected from as many as sixteen different gardens, using largely Assam-Indian teas skilfully blended with Ceylons. The result is that rich strength and smooth flavor that has made Red Rose Tea so popular.

One level teaspoonful of Red Rose Tea goes as far as a heaping teaspoonful of ordinary tea—that proves the true quality and economy of Red Rose.

INTOXICATED GOES TO JAIL

CITIZEN FINED FOR VIOLATION OF AUTOMOBILE ACT.

Joseph E. Labell, of Montreal, pleaded guilty in the police court this morning of being intoxicated on the public streets. His Worship imposed a fine $10 to be paid forthwith, or 15 days in jail with hard labor in default of payment. Having no money nor the means of raising any the accused went to jail.

Labell was on the way to Lindsay, where he claims a position awaits him, but alighted in this city with a bottle of liquor in his pocket, from which he had been imbibing too freely.

FINED $5

W. J. Donovan, this city, was assessed $5 for driving an auto on the public streets with no tail light, a breach of the Automobile Act. The fine was paid.

RED CROSS MEMBERS APPRECIATE SPLENDID WORK OF MISS RUSH

Society Also Thanks All Those Who Helped Make Motor Show a Success.

At the regular monthly executive meeting of the Peterborough Red Cross Society, held Monday, it was unanimously resolved that the executive place on record its deep sense of appreciation of the very capable, devoted and voluntary services rendered by Miss Marion Rush to the Peterborough Red Cross Society, as its chief supervisor. It recognizes that the present satisfactory state of the local branch is due, in a large measure, to her organizing and business ability and to her tactful management While deeply regretting the loss of her services to the society she carries with her, to her new duties, the cordial good wishes, not only of the executive but of the society, which feels certain that the true patriotism and love of Empire that she has manifested in her home city will find an equal opening in the new undertaking to which she is now devoting her energy and ability.

Votes of Thanks.

At the same meeting, votes of thanks were unanimously passed to the following, who so generously contributed to the success of the motor show: Mr. Denne, Mr. Logie, Mr. Waram and the members of the Advisory Board for their hearty and enthusiastic support of the motor show; to the Peterborough Motor League, who afforded us the opportunity of holding a motor show and so enthusiastically co-operated with us; to the officers and members of the Salvation Army and 57th Band; to the Press, who so splendidly aroused the interest and enthusiasm of the public; to Mr. W. H. Hamilton, Peter Connal and Co., Perkins Ince, A. Comstock, Mr. Charles Rishor, T. Kinnear & Co., The Allin Ice Co., Mr. C. B. Routley, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Mr. A. J. Preston, Mr. E. W. Curtis, The Peterborough Floral Co., T. Hooper & Co., A. Blade, Jordan Bros., Page and Shaw for their generous donations; to Mr. G. Graham for raffle, to Alexander & Miller for the use of electric iron, and to Miss Bonnycastle; to the officers of the Armouries for kindly attention and to the very many individual contributors to the tea room and candy booth.

SUNNYSIDE RED CROSS.

The Sunnyside Red Cross Society shipped last week to the supply rooms in Toronto a box containing the following articles: 60 pairs socks, 97 pillow slips, 22 feather pillows, 26 towels, 24 pyjama sets, 4 kit bags, 14 housewives, 14 property bags, 5 union flannel shirts.

The kit bags contained a towel, pair slippers, boracic acid, note paper; the housewives a pencil, court-plaster, safety-pins, needles, thread, note paper.

The box was valued at $115.00.

SPLENDID PERFORMANCE OF "PINAFORE" AT GRAND

Popular Opera Presented to Audience by Well Trained Local Amateurs—Some of the Features

That old opera, Pinafore, that is new every time it is offered to the public, that from the date of its birth has furnished the people with catch phrases and kept the young whistling popular airs, was presented to a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night by the Conservatory Operatic Club and Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. R. Gliddon who is certainly entitled to all the encomiums he is receiving today on the success of the performance. Nothing was lacking, nothing suggestive of the amateur in any of the parts. Every role was played to perfection and the musical features were all that the most fastidious taste could demand. The orchestra as usual won new honors, the choruses were excellent, the stage setting perfect, the costumes all that the play called for and there was not a hitch in the arrangements anywhere from beginning to end. One of the most pleasing parts of the program was the dancing of a number of little girls under the direction of Miss Carrie Littlefield, physical instructor at the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Stanley Adams, of Toronto, who was stage director, certainly contributed his share to the entertainment and the scenic effects were one of the features. The deck of His Majesty's ship Pinafore was arranged according to to rule and the back ground was an ocean scene and a moon-lit sky streaked with clouds.

The Cast.

Mr. Ed. Hanrahan, one of the city's favorite soloists, had the place of honor, wearing the natty uniform of the ruler of the King's navy and Mr. Walter Evans, the captain, was strong in song and dialogue, and acted the part of the captain to perfection. Mr. Harold Lee, as the love sick seaman, was depressed without being over sentimental. Mr. Asa Huycke required considerable make-up to fit him for the part of the heavy villain but he was equal to what is invariably the most difficult role of all in any performance. Newton Staples made an ideal botswain's mate and Mr. F. C. McNallen won fresh laurels as a singer. Bob Langford's part as the sergeant of marines called for little more than to walk with the rolling nautical gait, look dignified and handsome and he did it.

The stars of the cast were Miss Florence Scott as the Captain's daughter, Miss Georgie Cuff, Sir Joseph's first cousin, and Miss Helen MacLaren, who made a charming and bewitching "Little Buttercup."

Those Who Took Part.

The Right Hon. Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., First Lord of the Admiralty, Ed. Hanrahan; Capt. Corcoran, commanding H.M.S. Pinafore, Walter Evans; Ralph Rackstraw, able seaman, Harold Lee; Dick Deadeye, able seaman, Asa Huycke; Bill Bobstay, boatswain's mate, Newton Staples; Bob Beckett, carpenter's mate, F. C. McNallen; Tom Tucker, midshipmite, Lorne Conway; Sergeant of Marines, Bob Langford; Josephine, the Captain's daughter, Florence Scott; Hebe, Sir Joseph's first cousin, Georgie Cuff; Little Buttercup, a Portsmouth bumboat woman, Helen MacLaren.

Sailors and Marines.

Accompanist, Miss Florence Gladman.

Dances directed by Miss Littlefield.

Stage manager, Stanley Adams.

Asst. stage manager, Asa Huycke.

The Dancers.

Mary Watts, Vera Knox, Corrine LeGendre, Alice Hopwood, Marjorie Evans, Gladys Evans, Hilda Aebitt, Bessie Mather, Esme Aylmer, Mae Massey, Edith Price, Olga Kinyon, Edna Allen, Gladys Mulholland, Phillis Young, Laura Park, Gertrude Kirn, Mable Penrose.

Orchestra.

Violins — Dr. Park, Laura Logan, Mrs. Wilson, Charlie Seymour, Mrs. Connor, Gretchen Gladman, Mrs. Foster, Wm. Byatt, Cyril Rathbone.

Notes.

The local musician who after listening to a rehearsal the other night said that the orchestra alone would be worth the price of admission, was evidently not exaggerating.

The performance will be repeated tonight and is entitled to liberal patronage both for its own merits and on account of the object in view, raising funds for the 57th Band.

The entire chorus joined in singing the National Anthem and the effect was magnificent.

MISS MATHER GRADUATES

Give Piano Recital at Toronto College Of Music

Miss Marjorie Mather, daughter of Mr. Francis Mather, 16 Inverlea Street, gave a most enjoyable and educative piano recital in the Toronto College of Music Hall on Monday evening. All her solos were rendered in such a manner as to display real depth of feeling, musicianly taste, and brilliant technique, combined with a quiet restraint and true appreciation of the spirit of the composer. When the nature of the composition called for warmth and passion, Miss Mather responded with the ease and abandon of the real artiste, and demonstrated without doubt that she is no mere mechanical performer. Miss Mather, happily, is not only the possessor of brilliant technique, but added to that is the true musical temperament, without which quality the most perfect technique is soulless and without color, and carries no appeal to the listener.

The programme concluded with an excellent rendering of that most exacting concerto in E major of Moskowskis for piano and orchestra, which afforded Miss Mather every opportunity to show of what she was capable, and which she certainly grasped, fairly excelling herself in this number.

Miss Mather has passed every examination, both theoretical and practical, called for by the Toronto College of Music, and by her brilliant graduation recital has now fulfilled every requirement, and is therefore entitled to use the degree A.T. Coll. M. Miss Mather is undoubtedly one of the best panists in this city, and one of whom Peterboro may be proud. It is likely that Miss Mather will give a recital soon, or in the early fall, when she will render her graduation programme.

Credit for Miss Mather's training and graduation is due to two of our best known musicians, Mr. J. H. Renwick and Mr. John Allan, both of whom must feel gratified at the success achieved by her on Monday night. Programme:

Bach, Prelude and Fugue No. 21 (piano).

Beethoven, Sonata Op. 27, No. 2.

Hayden, "With Verdue Clad." —Creation—(Vocal).

Chopin, Nocturne Op. 9, No. 2 (Piano).

Staub, Sous Bois.

Liszt, Liebestraum, No. 3.

Mendelssohn, Andante and Rondo Capriccioso.

Ganz, "I seek for thee in every flower" (Vocal).

Moszkowski, Concerto in E major, Op. 59 (Piano)—Moderato, Allegro animato.

God Save the King.

Orchestral accompaniment on second piano played by Marion Porter, A. T. Coll. M.

"There's a man planting potatoes," said Farmer Corntossel, "when he ought to be playin' golf." "You don't approve of gardening?" "Yes, I do; but if he'd go ahead and play golf he wouldn't be spoilin' good potatoes that somebody could use."

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines written on the death of Private Thomas Coones, killed in action on April 9 at Vimy Ridge.

Ah! dear friends, you're sad and lonely
And your heart is sad and sore,
Pining for your darling Tommy
Who has passed to yonder shore.

When the call for men resounded
Far and near throughout the land,
He was not among the shirkers
But did join that gallant band.

He dared the direst dangers of that dread and dear-bought day,
For he fell among the foremost in the fury of the fray
And a solemn silence answered when we called him on the roll,
For we knew that we had lost him
And that Heaven had gained a soul.

Where the fight had waxed the fiercest on the margin of the field
How he worked at that machine gun he never more will wield.
There was glory on his visage like a rosy light or flood
And his brother worked beside him as he shed for us his blood.

Do not grieve that God so loved him
That He chose your precious gem
But rejoice that now he's shining
In the Savior's diadem.

Sometimes perhaps you will wonder
Why that bullet took its sway
You will know why it struck Tommy
When the mists have cleared away.

You might picture him as noble
Had he lived through manhood's day
But remember vice and trouble
Might have led his feet astray.

Now he's safe from earthly evils
Safe within the Shepherd's care
God will guard your angel Tommy
Till you meet him over there.

Think not of your boy as lying
In that far away battle field tomb
Think of him as angel Tommy Worshipping before the throne.

He may be your Guardian Angel
Waiting for his friends to come,
First to give you all a welcome
To your peaceful, heavenly home.

—With sympathy from Mrs. Wm. Staples.

Sees Need of Revolt.

Prof. Douglas Durkin, in an address before the Army and Navy Veterans' Associations at Winnipeg, declared the greatest discovery since the outbreak of the war was the insincerity among public men and institutions. He urged the necessity of revolution for the benefit of education, religion, and politics. The speaker paid a splendid tribute to the men of Canada who have given their health, and many their lives, in the cause of freedom. Prof. Durkin declared it was largely due to the readiness of Britishers to spring to the defence of King and country, that there had been seen in Canada and elsewhere throughout the Empire such an awakening of patriotic spirit since the outbreak of war.

Referring to the recent revolution in Russia, the speaker said "it is a blessing that with such ease autocracy and bureaucracy had been displaced by popular government.

"But Russia is not the only country needing revolution," said Prof. Durkin. "The government of Canada to-day is in the hands of second-rate men. It is significant that the majority of the first-class men are found at the heads of banks, private corporations, railways, and other industrial institutions. The political machine and the second-rate men are a curse to Canadian national life, and revolution is required to sweep them away. In this way will come Canada's liberation."

Calls for Skunks.

Come forth ye mighty hunters! Take down your snares and go forth, for the call has gone out for the capture of 100 skunks. The author of this unusual request is "Dan" McCormack, proprietor of the Cecil Hotel, Hamilton. "Dan" has decided to become a little farmer in his spare time. He has purchased an old farm about three miles out of the city, and is stocking it with a variety of fur-bearing animals. This small menagerie contains goats, foxes, rabbits, pigs, and, to add flavor to the venture, skunks. Mr. McCormack is desirous of getting in touch with 100 of the odoriferous gentry. He offers no suggestions as to just how these scent pussies are to be captured, and leaves this problem to the individual who is keen on this kind of hunting. He wants them for their pelts.

Two Zeppelin Stories.

Two more stories from a recent zeppelin raid. When the worst was over, a resident went out into the town to see what damage had been done. In the darkness he heard a group of women talking loudly, and judging them a clue not to be neglected, he followed them along an entry into the back yard of a house. The debate never ceased, but he was unable to get the hang of it until one of the women—the most eloquent—appealed directly to him. "'Ere," she said, "do you call it fair? T' bomb dropped in our yard, an' a bobby's gone and took it away—never even give me a receipt for it. It's a bomb."

The next-door neighbor of a railway guard noticed that that official had a look of intense weariness, and gently sought to find out the cause. "It's like this," said the guard. "I hadn't been long asleep when the buzzer went, and up jumps the missis, makes the tea, and gives me my breakfast. I got to the station before I found out that the buzzer was for an air raid in the middle of the night."

A Barometer of Health.

The tongue quickly betrays all disturbances in the economy of the body. In health it is clean, moderately red in color, and moist. When it is furred or "coated" it indicates fever, some impurity in the mouth, or trouble with the digestive organs. If fever be the cause the temperature of the body will be above the normal, 98½ degrees Fahrenheit. It is easy to determine if bad teeth are at fault, points out the Family Doctor. If these be all right, seek for the source of the trouble in the stomach. Constipation will produce a bad breath and a furred tongue. With nervous diseases a dry tongue is a sign of nervous depression; and a pale, flabby tongue indicates an anæmic condition.

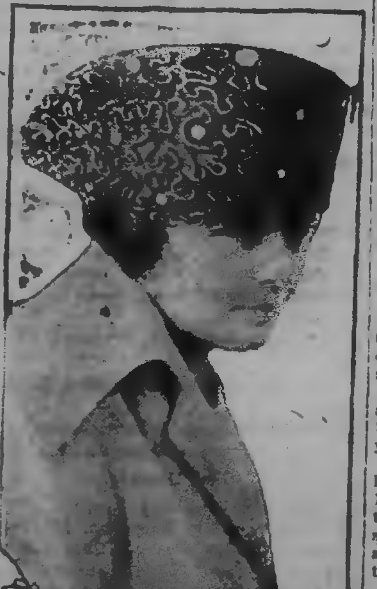
A Trig Hat For Knockabout Wear This Season.

Worn with a covert cloth top coat is this brown turban of fine straw, crown brown, satin faced. All sorts of braiding and outlinings are a new fad, and so gold soutache affords a very rich trimming for this model.



THE LATEST TURBAN.

Metallic Stitching.

Many of the newest gowns are trimmed with metallic stitching. The home dressmaker can make use of this trimming. A small flat metal cord may be bought that is fine enough to go on the bobbin of an ordinary sewing machine. It can be bought in steel, silver and new or old gold.

A Valuable Cow.

"Beauty Maid," a four-year-old cow belonging to A. Boyle, of "The Firs," just outside Woodstock, holds the record for the whole of Canada in the matter of butter yield. Under Government test from January 25, 1916, to January 24, 1917, she gave 14,852 pounds of milk, which yielded 872 pounds of butter fat. The butter equivalent of this was 1,090 pounds in a year. The next best record for a four-year-old cow is slightly under 1,000.

THE "CLUBBER" IS DEAD.

Nova Scotia Man Gave Name to New York Tenderloin.

Former Police Inspector Alexander S. Williams of New York, the man who named the Tenderloin and who, with the exception of William Devery and Thomas Byrnes, received more public attention than any other man on the force, is dead. During his turbulent career he won the nickname of "Clubber." He was also called "the Czar of the Tenderloin."

"Alex" Williams, as he was called, was born July 9, 1839, in Nova Scotia. His father was a Nova Scotian and his mother Scotch. He moved to New York as a boy, and learned the trade of ship carpenter. After several years' work he visited Mexico, Japan, and other countries.

On August 3, 1866, he donned a policeman's uniform for the first time. He was stationed at Broadway and Houston street, a dangerous post in those days, in a district infested with crooks and thugs. Williams had the reputation of never walking away from a fight, and he had plenty to do, for several policemen had been carried from the beat in ambulances. He lost no time in finding the two toughest characters in the district, and he picked a fight with them. It ended when he picked up first one and then the other, and buried them through a plate glass window. It was during the three years he walked this beat that he won the nickname of the "Clubber," and it is said that it was a dull day that did not find him with at least one row on his hands.

He was appointed a sergeant and sent to the mounted squad, then just formed. In 1872 he was made a captain and assigned to the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, then in the "Gas House District." There followed three years in which he was shifted about, always in districts where there were both poverty and crime — fields for his rough-and-ready methods. He did not lose his nickname.

While Williams was in command in the Tenderloin Max Schmittberger, now Chief Inspector, and James Price, later a captain, were his wardmen. When the legislative investigation headed by Senator Charles S. Lexow began in 1894 the Williams regime was one of the things it looked into.

Information was obtained that involved Schmittberger, who went before Chairman Lexow and testified that he had not only obtained bribe money from the keepers of disorderly resorts and gamblers, but that he had paid it over to Williams. Other alleged "interests" of Williams were uncovered. He admitted that he owned a house at Cos Cob, a yacht, and had other property. When asked how he got all these possessions he replied: "I bought real estate in Japan and it has increased in value."

As a consequence of the upheaval that followed the Lexow investigation a reform administration was elected. The three Police Commissioners, one of whom was Theodore Roosevelt, met on May 24, 1895, and retired him on a pension of $1,750 a year, after twenty-nine years' service.

The former inspector did not relish the title of "Clubber," and in 1912, when Mayor Gaynor applied the name to him, he handed out a statement regarding his record. He said that if he had clubbed it was for the good of the city.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

And Cobb gains on Speaker every day. Yesterday the Peach had two out of five, while Tristram could connect safely but once in four attempts.

Ping Bodie is a popular guy in Chicago. On his first appearance in the Windy City yesterday he was the recipient of two bouquets.

The shoe was on the other foot yesterday. It wasn't the Giants who did the hitting, but their opponents. McGraw's hirelings hit Doak safely on five occasions, Zimmerman getting two and Kauff, Burns, and Herzog one each.

Fighting like demons, the Giants tied up the count on the Cardinals in the ninth only to have Hornsby and Co., go out in front again in the tenth.

Hal Chase defeated the Dodgers. His two hits drove in all the Reds' three runs.

It was lucky for Alexander the Great that the Phils staged a ninth-frame rally. He was beaten up to that session.

Big Cy Williams was a hero yesterday. His triple in the sixth inning was the longest drive ever made on the Braves' field, and his double n the ninth scored two runs. Rudolph was easy pickin's for the Cubs, while Douglas allowed only a brace of safetes.

"The man who can play baseball ought to be in a trench or in a furrow," said Governor Bickett in an address issued to-day to the people of North Carolina, urging that baseball leagues be disbanded, and the people of towns and cities to use idle hours and idle men in making food for themselves.

MONTREAL'S 275th BIRTHDAY

St. James' Catholic Cathedral, Montreal.

Dominion Square, Montreal, with the great C. P. R. Station in background.

MONTREAL is proud to celebrate its 275th birthday this year. On May 18th, 1642, Paul de Chomedy, Sieur de Maisonneuve, brought his little flat-bottomed pinnace to anchor close to the site selected by Samuel de Champlain thirty-one years previously, and the new settlement was formally dedicated by Pere Vimont.

To-day Montreal is a city of wide streets and stately buildings, with wealth unaccountable and a population of nearly three-quarters of a million; headquarters of most of the great banking companies and of that world wide enterprise, the Canadian Pacific Railway. But all this springs from the landing of Maisonneuve and his associates in May, 1642.

The Island of Montreal was visited by Jacques Cartier in 1535, and nearly a hundred years passed before another white man came. On the 28th of May, 1611, Samuel de Champlain landed with another Frenchman and an Indian. He seems to have explored the shore line as far as the Rapids, but finally decided that the best place for a settlement was a little strip of meadowland, to which he gave the name of Place Royale. Incidentally, it was de Champlain who first advocated the cutting of what is now the Panama Canal, in 1640.

Thirty years later, plans were perfected for the founding of the settlement, which was called in advance, Ville-Marie de Montreal for Mount-royal. De Maisonneuve was appointed leader of the little party consisting of about a score of people. They set sail from France in a small pinnace, landing at Quebec on the 8th of May. Here they were warned by Montmagny of the danger of annihilation by the Iroquois.

"It is my duty and my honor to found a colony at [illegible] Maisonneuve, "and I would go if every tree were an Iroquois."

The long buffeting across the Atlantic in his cockleshell of a boat had not daunted his courage or that of his companions, nor did the almost equally perilous passage up the uncharted St. Lawrence, which occupied them ten days. He and his associates had their duty to do and they went on and did it.

It was a beautiful afternoon when they first sighted the island, with the forest-clad mountain rising steeply against the sky. The pinnace fetched up by the side of a rivulet running into the St. Lawrence. There was a stretch of meadowland along the shore, with patches of flowers growing amid the grass and brightly colored birds darting to and fro. Beyond the meadowland lay the forest, with who knew what [illegible] in its mysterious depths. De Champlain had told them of the palisaded town of Hochelaga which stood opposite the present McGill University.

De Maisonneuve was the first to spring ashore, followed by Governor Montmagny from Quebec, Pere Vimont, [illegible] Madame de la Peltrie and her servant, Charlotte Barré, and about a dozen farmers, artizans and laborers. A guard was hurriedly set to watch the forest paths. Tents were landed and set up, and the baggage and stores were brought ashore. And then having provided for their immediate safety and comfort, an altar was raised and Divine Service was held.

The sun was sinking as Pere Vimont pronounced the last words of his solemn exhortation and the fireflies were twinkling in thousands about the meadow. The colonists caught them and hung them in phials about the altar, where they gleamed for a little time and then faded one by one into the darkness. Whereupon the little company, having lighted watchfires and strengthened their guard, lay quietly down to sleep on the grassy slopes of what is now Place Royale. From the heroism of those early Canadians to the heroism of those who have immortalized the names [illegible] Ypres, Courcelette, Givenchy and Vimy Ridge, is a long way as time goes, [illegible] it shows that the [illegible] was [illegible] the city of Montreal still survives.

THE GREAT SHOW

The winter nearly killed me off; it gave me grip and whooping cough, the mumps, the measles and the itch, the rheumatiz and gout and sich. I'm thankful that I have survived—the circus season has arrived! To-day the first show came to town; it took three men to hold me down. For always when the circus comes, the ancient blood within me hums, I never worry of its sights, its atmosphere and rare delights. I love the grand free street parade, I love the luke warm lemonad, the gymnasts, india rubber men, the crocodiles from distant fen, the lovely girls with diadems composed of sparkling plate glass gems. I love the tigers in their cage, moth-eaten lions in a rage, the camels with their hilly backs, the snakes, the wart-hogs and the yaks. I love the wild hyena's yell, I love the good old circus smell; there's nothing like that fine rich scent outside the canvas circus tent. The same old fragrance that I knew in youth, when all my skies were blue, and I played hookey that my eyes might see the tented paradise. And when I hear the circus growl, the mingled groan and roar an howl, the bark, the mutter and th whine, the same old thrill runs my spine. WALT MASO

The 57th Regiment Band will parade in uniform to-night at 7 o'clock at the Grand Opera House.

HOLLAND'S BIG TULIP GAMBLE

Tulips were introduced into Holland about the beginning of the seventeenth century by a German Doctor Clusius. He obtained the bulbs from the East, probably Constantinople, and planted them in his garden in Leyden. From that time the culture of tulips increased in the Netherlands, until in 1634 Holland, due to the fine climate, soil and gardening, was the center of an extensive trade, both domestic and foreign in these flowers. Tulip growing soon became more than a fad. The mania spread until people gave up their legitimate businesses or trades to buy and sell tulips.

Soon much of the buying and selling was without any actual transfer of money, bills or bulbs. Traders quit growing tulips to gamble in them. Regular exchanges were established at Amsterdam, Haarlem, Utrecht, Alkmaar, Leyden, Rottendam, Hoorn, Enkhuysen and Meedenblick. So anxious were some to grasp this seemingly golden opportunity that when cash was lacking to purchase the roots they offered their real and personal property. For one bulb of the Viceroy variety was paid: 2 lasts of wheat, worth 448 florins (a florin is equivalent to 40 1-5 cents); 4 lasts of rye worth 558 florins; 4 fat oxen, 480 florins; 3 fat swine, 240 florins; 12 fat sheep, 120 florins; 2 hogsheads of wine, 70 florins; 4 tuns of beer, 32 florins; 2 tuns of butter, 92 florins; 1,000 pounds of cheese, 120 florins; 1 complete bed, 100 florins; 1 suit of clothes, 80 florins; 1 silver beaker, 60 florins; 2,500 florins in all.

Great fortunes were lost as suddenly as they had been made; many that had been long in the making and represented the savings of lifetimes and generations were swept away as quickly. But in spite of the disasters which resulted from the mania for speculation in tulips the flowers themselves remained popular among the careful and skilled gardeners of the Netherlands.

CANNING WITHOUT SUGAR.

"Elderberries, blueberries, and cherries are put up for winter use in pies or puddings in the following way, according to the method of a certain housekeeper. The jars, lids and rubbers are sterilized and the fruit looked over carefully. The cherries are pitted and washed, and the other fruits receives the attention it needs. Then the jars are filled with the uncooked fruit, and the lids set on but not tightly screwed down. The jars are then set in a steamer placed over a kettle of boiling water, or arranged in any other convenient way for steaming, and let steam for about half an hour, being sure the the water is kept at boiling point. Then the jars are removed from steamer, and filled to overflowing with boiling water, and the lids, with the rubber, screwed down tight. The cans are then turned upside down and left until cold. In this way any leak may be discovered. When fruit prepared in this way is used in pies and puddings sugar is added at the time of using.

SOCKS FOR BOYS AT THE FRONT

7,376 PAIRS HAVE BEEN SHIPPED BY KITCHENER LEAGUE.

7376 pairs socks have been shipped by the Canadian iKtchener League direct to our own boys in the trenches. That these socks have been a necessity and a comfort is evidenced by the number of letters received from the boys from time to time, thanking the ladies for their untiring efforts. It has taken much financing to purchase yarn for such a large number of socks, but the generosity of the citizens of Peterborough has made the work possible. The ladies of Peterborough have given freely of their time and energy in knitting 7376 pairs of socks, but the appreciation, expressed by the boys, from the wet and muddy trenches, more than repays the home sacrifices. The war goes on, many of the boys whom the League have helped make comfortable by an extra pair of dry, home-knit socks, have made the supreme sacrifice, but there are many more we can remember and to do this the League requires financial assistance, and they once again appeal to every citizen to do his part on Saturday, May 19th, "Trench Day," be it ever so small, every penny counts.

Wearing Down the Huns.

Gen. Maurice said today: "Our plan on the western front is to wear the Germans down. Until this is done there can be no big advance. Sensational pushes need not be expected at present. It will be slow hammer and tongs with good wear succeeding. When we began the offensive we were thoroughly prepared and the result was the Germans losses were heavier than ours. Lately we have been forcing the Germans to attack us to prevent our going forward. This is just what we want for the Germans are compelled to throw men against us under unfavorable conditions without having time to make deliberate preparations"

SIX ASSAULTS REPULSED.

PARIS, May 17.—Six assaults by the Germans on the French lines have been repulsed with heavy losses according to an official statement issued by the French war office today. Three attacks were made north of Moulin De Laffaux and three northeast of Braye-En-Laonnois.

THIRD RECRUIT A REVERTER

The third recruit for the 74th Battery, which will have its home here next winter, has been secured. Major Crocker received a telephone call from Toronto last night and Mr. S. Hollyman offered his services. He is a qualified artillery officer, but has decided to wait no longer for a commission, and accordingly reverts as a private in order to get into the service.

Mr. Hollyman's home is in Calgary and he holds a lucrative position as travelling freight agent for the C. P. R. His rank is not all that he sacrifices, and his action should encourage others to follow his example. The 74th battery may now be regarded as a home unit. It is one to which any young man should be proud to belong, one reason being that the commanding officer, Major Crocker, is a seasoned soldier who has been through some of the fiercest engagements at the front and who was wounded in the Empire's defence.

CAPT. MOWAT REVERTS AND IS ON DUTY IN TRENCHES

Capt. Grant Mowat, son of Inspector and Mrs. Mowat of Water street, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, has reverted in rank and is now on duty at the front. He and Capt. Widdifield, who reverted some time ago, are both with the 21st Battalion, one of the first and best units to go overseas.

Capt. Mowat was willing to go to the front in any capacity but he was kept in England until the services of a lieutenant were required. The last letter from him to his parents is dated April 24 and in it he stated that he had his kit packed ready to start for France and had his ticket as far as the seaboard. A letter received from Capt. Widdifield yesterday stated that he and Capt. Mowat are both with the 21st at the front.

The 21st Battalion on the original roster contained the names of nearly ninety Peterborough boys, but that number has been sadly reduced by the casualties of war. The first commanding officers of the unit was St. Pierre Hughes, brother of the ex-Minister of Militia, and Major Hounsell, took the contingent from this city to Kingston two years ago.

Capt. Mowat is a teacher by profession. He stood high as an officer while in Peterborough and has made an enviable record during his stay in England. There is no doubt that with the training he has received that his promotion in active service will be rapid.

Corporal Frank Roberts has been with the 21st Batt. for over two years. Very few of the original 21st are left and last November Corporal Roberts reported that there were too few Peterborough boys around him to use a parcel of socks sent to him for distribution. They were gladly accepted by other soldiers now forming the 21st. Later, however, quite a number of Peterborough men have joined the 21st, and Capt. Roberts in letters speaks of meeting Private Brown of the late 93rd and Driver Devey, who enlisted with the 33rd Battery.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

Regular Meeting of Quarterly Board This Evening.

The regular Quarterly Board meeting of George Street Methodist Church will be held this evening at 7.30 in the church parlors. Reports from all departments of the church's work will be presented. As this is the last meeting of the Conference year, all members are requested to be present.

BRITISH CONTINUE TO MAKE PROGRESS AT BELLECOURT

ANOTHER HERO

LIEUT. V. EASTWOOD.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank, has received a letter from his son Lieut. V. Eastwood, who is at the front, stating that he had received the military cross. A letter that came to Mr. Eastwood from friends in London some time ago spoke of the honor as probable.

Lieut. Eastwood in his letter says that the cross which was conferred upon him April 17 was for "a stunt on a raid." He went overseas with the 93rd and was sent to France in a draft for the 18th Battalion. Later he was transferred to the command of a patrol of raiders and observers and it was probably for some daring act of heroism while on this service that the distinction has been conferred upon him and to which he so modestly alludes.

Lieut. Eastwood is another of the young men who have brought honor to themselves and to their city by their gallantry in the Empire's service.

FEDERAL VOTE WILL BE GIVEN TO ALL WOMEN

Premier Borden Surprises Parliament with This Announcement.

LIBERALS' ARE DISMAYED.

The New Voters Will Exercise Franchise in the Next Dominion Election.

OTTAWA, May 17.—Every woman in Canada of the age of 21 and upwards will be entitled to vote for members of parliament at the next Dominion general election. This was the announcement made in the house of commons by Sir Robert Borden. The Liberals, who have been more or less urging votes for women for the past two or three years, were taken entirely by surprise and began at once to urge that the suffrage be restricted to women who had already been enfranchised by provisional legislation. They went so far as to draw a stinging rebuke from Dr. Michael Clark, Liberal Member for Red Deer, who declared that the "so-called Liberal party" seemed to be talking old-fashioned toryism.

Pugsley's Amendment

The debate rose upon a resolution offered by Donald Sutherland, Conservative member for South Oxford, calling upon the Government to take into consideration at the present session the extension of the suffrage to the women of Canada. Hon. Dr. Pugsley countered with an amendment. He said that the women of five provinces had been enfranchised by provincial legislation, but owing

Have Reached Edge of Village--Heavy Loss of Life Among Germans.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 17.—British have made further progress in Village of Bullecourt and have reached the western edge of the hamlet, according to today's official statement.

The official statement issued by the Austrian war office admits gains for Italians on the Isonzo but claims the repulse of a majority of the attacks and the total capture of two thousand soldiers.

Regard It As Joke.

The Executive Committee of the Nationalist Socialist party will take no part in the International Socialist conference at Stockholm which it says "Is of no real importance and can only bring ridicule on the Socialist cause."

Germans Wiped Out.

British Headquarters in France, May 17.—The Germans received a heavy check north of the Scarpe River, where in massed formation they stormed this position which was recently won by the British. After a terrific bombardment lasting a considerable time, the German infantry came down the slopes of Greenland Hill from the direction of Piouvain.

The British artillery made the hillside look like a mushroom farm, bulbs of shell smoke sprouting up thickly over the entire field. Machine guns streamed nickled missles into the enemy ranks on the front and in the flanks.

Sheer weight and momentum carried the Germans beyond the British outposts and even into the Chemical Works themselves, but, like a rubber ball, the rebound was instantaneous and swiftly the defenders struck. After a short and hard fight the enemy was thrown out with heavy losses, leaving the British established more securely than ever.

The fighting continued about Bullecourt and a German partial success recently won there was wiped out. In the meantime the British strengthened their positions eastward toward Roeux and drew a mite closer to Lens. Here the Germans continue their work of wrecking the district. Buildings are being blown up and machinery is being destroyed in order that the great mining centre shall not furnish the slightest benefit to the Allies when the Germans are finally forced to let go.

HOW GERMANS ARE PRESSED.

LONDON, Mty 17. — Gen. Maurice said today that the British and French have forced the Germans to use virtually all the fresh reserves which they had at the beginning of the battle of Arras. When the British offensive began the Germans had forty-nine reserve divisions on the Western front. The British onslaught at Arras and the more recent French offensive have compelled the Germans to employ all but four of these divisions.

ON CAUCASIAN FRONT.

PETROGRAD, May 17.—The official statement today says: On the Caucasian front, west and southwest of Jamapovt, 24 miles southeast of Bushneu, efforts of the Turkish forces were frustrated. On May 9th a detachment of Cossacks and frontiersmen surrounded by Kurds cut their way through after a nine hours' battle, with a loss of fifteen killed and nine wounded.

BERLIN ADMITS REVERSE.

BERLIN, May 17. — An army headquarters statement says the ground captured by the Germans in the village of Roeux yesterday morning was later lost, following a strong British counter-attack.

IRISH LEADER REJECTS OFFER OF HOME RULE

Redmond Accepts the Premier's Proposition for Irish Convention.

FACTIONS WILL CONFER.

The Same Plan As That Which Brought Order to South Africa.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 17—John Redmond to-day rejected Lloyd George's proposal for a settlement of Home Rule, but accepted a proposal for an immediate calling of a convention to decide on a form of government for Ireland.

The convention referred to was mentioned in the following communication sent by the premier to Mr. Redmond, when the proposition was submitted yesterday:—

"We earnestly recommend the proposals which I have outlined above to the dispassionate consideration of the men of all parties. If upon such consideration a basis for immediate action is found in them we shall proceed at once with the necessary steps to carry them into effect. If this should not be the case there remains an alternative plan, which though it has been sometimes seriously discussed, has never been authoritatively proposed—that of assembling a convention of Irishmen of all parties for the purpose of producing a scheme of Irish self-government."

South Africa's Example

" As you will remember, the constitution of the Union of South Africa was framed despite most formidable difficulties and obstacles, by a convention of representatives of all the interests and parties in the country, and the government believe that a similar expedient might, in the last resort, be found effectual in Ireland. Would it be too much to hope that Irishmen of all creeds and parties might meet together in conventon for the purpose of drafting a constitution for their country, which would secure a just balance of all the opposing interests and finally compose the unhappy dscords which have so long distracted Ireland and impeded its harmonious development?

"The Government is ready, in default of the adoption of the present proposals for home rule, to take the necessary steps for assembling such a convention. I should be much obliged if you found it possible to give me your views on the matter in order to allow the Government to consider the matter before Monday."

WORKING FOR BRIDGE BYLAW

A large and enthusiastic meeting of north ward ratepayers was held in the council chamber last evening to discuss ways and means for active co-operation to assure the carrying of the bridge bylaw on May 31st. Ald. McIntyre presided, and G. O. Cameron officiated as secretary. A thorough and promising organization resulted, the ward was divided into districts, and a thorough canvass of north ward ratepayers in the interests of the bylaw arranged for on business lines.

CRISIS HAS BEEN PASSED IN THE RUSSIAN CABINET AND FACTIONS ARE UNITED

Five Socialists, One as Minister of War to be Taken Into Government---New Agreement Will be Signed at Once.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 17.—The cabinet crisis has been settled. The declaration of the government's policy has been accepted by representatives of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates with merely slight alterations, and was signed by them at midnight.

PETROGRAD, May 17.—After an all day discussion between the Cabinet and representatives of Council of Soldiers and Workmen's delegates the ministerial crisis was still unadjusted at a late hour last night, and no definite ministerial announcement has been made. Two events, however, indicated hopeful prospects of a coalition ministry being formed. One was that the Constitutional Democrat Party has consented to its two ministers, the Minister of Public Instruction and the Minister of Agriculture, remaining in office, and that the temporary government has made large concessions to the Council of Deputies in questions of general policy which heretofore were the most serious obstacles to settle.

Crisis Passed

A later despatch says:—Cabinet crisis may be considered as settled. The declaration of the Government's policy has been accepted by the Workmen's and Solders' delegates, and will be signed by both parties without delay. It has been decided to take into the Cabinet five representatives of the different Socialist groups, and A. F. Kerensky will be Minister of War.

Commander-in-Chief Resigns

Generals Alexieff, Dragomiroff, Gurko, and Brussiloff are expected shortly in Petrograd for a conference on the military situation. It is rumored that General Alexieff has resigned.

Mayor Duffus Will be Asked to Call Special Council Meeting to Discuss the Fuel Problem

Union Labor Insists on Necessity for Municipal Coal Yard and Will Appear Before Aldermen to Press Demand---Ask for Appointment of Food Controller.

The Trades and Labor Council of the city will be satisfied with nothing short of a municipal coal and wood yard and the petitions which have been in circulation for the past two weeks have been numerously signed. The action of the City Council in deciding to store 2000 tons of coal to meet emergencies is regarded as a mere compromise, a makeshift measure adopted to sidetrack those who advocate a municipal yard and at the same time preserve something like amicable relations with the dealers. The fact that the dealers themselves were called into consultation in a matter in which their own interests were involved while the consumers of coal were ignored is taken as the best possible evidence that somewhere there is an Ethiopium concealed in the fence.

There is little importance attached, either, to the aldermanic venture in the potato business. It has been given out that a carload of potatoes is to be brought to Peterborough from the Rainey River District and sold to those who apply at $3.75 a bag, each purchaser to furnish his own sack and the rig to carry his purchase home. It is figured that when all expenses are met the potatoes will cost as much, if not more, than if bought from the regular dealers.

At the regular meeting of the Trades Council last night, where the attendance was unusually large the above questions were discussed at length by the delegates. A resolution was adopted instructing President Hartley to ask Mayor Duffus to call a special meeting of the City Council some night next week, preferably Tuesday evening—to discuss the question of a sure enough municipal fuel yard. The Trades Council delegates will attend in a body and all union men and any other citizens interested in the fuel question are asked to be present and work for a solution of the problem.

Want Food Controller.

Another resolution passed last night called on the Dominion Government to appoint a Controller of Food to deal with the high cost of living.

Union labor is convinced that the clause in the Election Law which requires from all Federal candidates a deposit of $200 which is forfeited unless a certain percentage of the total vote is polled, is an injustice and tends to keep labor candidates out of the field. Secretary Stevens had written the government asking that that provision of the law be eliminated. Last night a reply was received from C. H. Payne, private secretary to the Acting Premier, stating that the matter would receive careful consideration.

Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., notified the Council that the death sentence of the boy Spain had been commutted to imprisonment for life.

A resolution of protest passed by the Trades Council of Guelph, against the construction of private-owned electric railways was concurred in Committees will report and general business in the interests of this worthy movement for Peterborough's expanson will be transacted.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1917

THE CHEESE SITUATION.

EVEN WITH THE MORAL and militant aid of a party newspaper, the local cheesemakers can hardly hope to be able to fasten upon the Government the responsibility for the situation that now confronts them. The Government are no more to blame for the conditions that follow in the wake of the war than they are for the war itself. If there are no facilities for shipping cheese to Europe, that is certainly a matter over which the Canadian Government has no control. It is entirely due to the submarine menace, a problem which is the most serious of all confronting the Allies today.

The Liberal party profess to believe that the crying need in Canada now is an embargo on the exportation of foodstuffs. That practically exists now in the case of cheese, and still The Examiner is not satisfied. The object lesson is complete, but none are so blind as those who refuse to see.

If the cheese men object to a restricted market for their products, the man who has potatoes for sale would take exactly the same stand.

The duty on flour was recently removed, and the price of bread has gone up steadily ever since. Once more the men who call for a revision of the tariff downward have laid hold of the ears of the wrong porker.

CULTURE IN PETERBOROUGH.

"LET ME HEAR the songs of a nation," some student of human nature has remarked, "and I can tell you whether the people are slaves or free." He might have added that culture, no less than righteousness, exalteth a nation, and that musical attainment is one of the standards by which culture is measured.

Peterborough as a musical centre stands second to no city in the Dominion. There are more musical experts here, according to populttion, it has been claimed, than in any other urban community in Ontario. Visitors to the city never fail to note this. Some of Peterborough's soloists are known all over the Province. Thec hurch choirs are justly popular at home and abroad, and among the directors of these are found those whose reputation is certainly more than local. Musicians trained here more than hold their own when it comes to competitive examinations.

Peterborough has been for years noted for the amateur performances put on during the various seasons by local talent both in music and the drama. The season just closing has produced more offerings of the kind than usual, all of a standing above the ordinary. And among the best of these was the entertainment staged for the past two nights at the Grand Opera House by Peterborough's justly noted institution, the Conservatory of Music. Mr. R. Gliddon, the head of that institution, has done something infinitely greater than achieving a personal triumph. He has put the name of the city more firmly than ever upon the musical map of the Province, and established the reputation of the city again as a centre of culture.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND.

LLOYD GEORGE has proposed a settlement of the Irish question that is likely to dispose of the problem for al ltime. An Irish Parliament is to be established in Dublin and at once. The southeast portion of Ulster is to be excluded, and a Grand Council is to be formed consisting of equal proportions of members of the Dublin Parliament and Ulster members of the Imperial Parliament, to transact all common business between the excluded area and the rest of Ireland, and to have power to direct as it thinks fit any enactment the Dublin Parliament shall apply to the excluded area.

There is nothing anomalous in such a situation any more than there is in Canada with Newfoundland outside of the Confederation.

THE BRIBE OFFERED RUSSIA.

BOTH GERMANY and Turkey have offered Russia separate terms of peace. The promised bribe is something for which Russia has long been contending—a port on the Mediterranean. If the people in the new republic consent to lay down their arms, they are offered something an ambition to acquire which has been the real incentive for participating in three wars, of which two ended in disaster for Russia, and with the third still in the balance.

In the meantime there seems to be discord in Russia, one party contending for peace and the other advising the vigorous prosecution of the war.

It is hard to believe that the majority of the Russian people can be deceived by any specious terms offered by the country's adversaries. If Russia accepted the terms offered, was given a Mediterranean port, and laid down her arms, if the war was ultimately ended in a draw or even a partial success for the Central Powers, how long would the treaty with Russia be regarded as binding by Germany, Austria and Turkey? Russia's title to the new outlet for her commerce would not be worth a year's purchase. The agreement would simply be regarded as another scrap of paper, to be torn up when it was in the interests of the Germans and the Turks to ignore it.

"THOU SHALT NOT KILL."

PROBABLY the above precept was intended to be binding upon the State as well as upon the individual, although there is an impression to the contrary. It is not only by hanging or electrocuting people that the commandment is broken. It is especially broken in the matter of infants who are allowed to die owing to improper living conditions or impure food supply. The community that permits the existence of slums, that fails to provide sanitary environments, that is negligent with regard to the milk, water and foodstuffs furnished the public, or where children are worked excessively long hours, has a deal to answer for when arraigned under the Divine mandate to protect human life. Dr. W. H. Edmunds, in the Journal of the Royal Sanitary Institute, says:

"The importance of infant welfare work at this stage in the nation's crisis is daily becoming more generally recognized by all classes of the community. For many years our public health authorities have been sowing on what seemed very barren ground, but the outpouring of the nation's blood, the willing sacrifice of thousands of the best and most virile of the race, has caused the apparently lost seed to germinate, and there are now prospects of an abundant harvest. Had we looked after our infant life during the last forty years there ought to have been today between the ages of 18 and 40 another 1,300,000 men available for the fighting forces. In other words, we have allowed, through our blindness, thousands of men to die in their infancy, male babies born often healthy and in all respects capable in due time, if proper attention had been given them, or if their home conditions had been better, of growing up and doing their full duty to the nation as our splendid sons today are doing in the battlefields of the world. Because of ignorance, which is curable, because of improper conditions around them, which are removable, thousands of these fellow-citizens of ours whom we shall 'too late' wished we had saved, now die within twelve months of their arrival in the world."

WHY AN ELECTION!

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT will introduce no Franchise Act at he present session, and this is taken as a sign that there will be no election for at least another year. There has evidently been reached an understanding between the leaders of both parties, and that when another extension is proposed the rank and file of the Opposition will fall into line.

An election in war time would be nothing short of monstrous. The party that precipitated it would be marked for all time by the people. In England the idea of an election is abhorrent to the masses and the leaders alike. When Mr. Bonar Law recently introduced the extension measure in the Commons he said.

> "The considerations which have induced successive governments to introduce such a bill are as strong now as they have ever been during the war. We are now in as critcal a phase of the war as we have ever been in. Our troops are engaged in the greatest operations they have ever undertaken since the commencement of the war.... In these circumstances I cannot help feeling that, as on previous occasions, the Government and the House believe that it would be highly disadvantageous, not to put it more strongly, that we should be plunged into the turmoil of a general election, with all the disputes and divisions which such an election would inevitably produce, and with, in addition, the certainty that the nation would be diverted from the one object on which its efforts should be concentrated."

> "Voters fighting in various theatres of the war would not be able to record their votes. An election under these conditions would not be an election at all. It would be a farce and a sham, and nobody would regard the House so chosen as possessing in any real sense the moral authority either for legislation or criticism or administration. To take a course which would necessitate the holding of an election under such circumstances would be to fly in the face of common law, common fairness and common sense."

A war-time election in Canada would deprive of the franchise the men who are in the trenches.

It would develop such hysteria as no former election in this country has ever known.

It would make racial and other divisions broader than ever and create ill-feeling that would not be allayed in years.

The British people are opposed to a war-time election for good and sufficient reasons, and the same reasons exist in Canada.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE AMATEUR'S GARDENING may be both intensive and expensive.

• • • •

THERE IS STILL ROOM at the front for the officer who is willing to revert.

• • • •

EVERY DEAD GERMAN left behind after a vain counter-attack marks another failure.

• • • •

THE GENTLE SPRING RAIN falls and the May sun shines alike upon the just and those who favor a war-time election

• • • •

THE UNITED STATES, too, is afflicted with the man who writes to the papers offering his services instead of dropping into the nearest recruiting office.

• • • •

THE GOVERNMENT has been blamed for about every human affliction under the sun except the unseasonable weather, and someone may yet spring that as a reason for an election.

• • • •

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND is not the only reform that came slowly. It took man something like 4,000 years to learn that he could get into his shirt without drawing it over his head.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

A German Achievement.

(Macon Telegraph.)

We can say one thing about the Germans: They have made us believe things we didn't believe we could believe.

Oleomargarine.

(Toronto Globe.)

Oleomargarine and butter are both products of the farm. The prohibition of oleomargarine is about the only compensation the farmers have for the multitudinous burdens of protection they have borne almost without complaint. They should not be deprived of it without compensatory relief. The public are indifferent because they know that an oleomargarine combine, if worldly wise, would fix its charges according to the price of butter.

CHANGES MADE BY WAR

"My dear Arabella," said the grocer's boy to the pretty maid, "I'm going to the front!"

"Did you volunteer or conscribe?" asked the pretty maid. "Will you be in the aviation corps, or the artillery, or the cavalry or the infantry?"

"Commissary," replied the grocer's boy, swelling out his chest.

"Oh!" enthused the pretty maid. "That will be just fine!"

"All the swellest fellows and best families want to get into the commissary these days," responded the youth, as he carefully handed out a dainty bag of potatoes.

"You'll be in among the doods and the bank clerks, then," suggested the maid, as she received the bag of tubers with due respect and peered at the costly collection through the opening in the bag.

"Bank clerks!" snorted the grocer's boy. "Me associate with bank clerks! I am particular who I trot around with. A fellow has to be, and bank clerks are common these days. There was a time when a fellow that handled money was the whole squeeze, but that was when money would get you something, and everybody was after it. Gee! People used to rush past our store and get in a long line to do business at the bank! But they ain't doin' that now. They crowd around the grocery store in supplicating attitudes——"

"Swell language!" said the maid admiringly. "Where did you pick it up?"

"At the grocery store. That's where the highborn and the educated gather. You used to find 'em at the lectures and the bridge parties, but not now. The real quality are on hand at the grocery where the eats are.

"A fellow connected with a grocery is right in the midst of the bong tong. There's more of the four hundred on hand for the bean bargains than you'll see at a musical performance or an afternoon tea."

"Maybe," said the pretty maid, with a sniff; "some of theose heiresses hanging around your grocery will get up a case with you and you'll marry one of them when you get back."

"Heiresses!" snorted the grocer's boy scornfully. "Who wants heiresses these days? All they got is money, and what good is money? It's 'Have you got the victuals?' and 'Can you cook 'em?'

"Now, I've got the victuals. I'm a victualist by profession, and the only lady I esteem and admire is the one who knows what to do with the staple and fancy groceries after she gets 'em!"

"Isn't the war interesting?" said the pretty maid.

FEDERAL VOTE

to a clause in the Dominion Elections Act the women of Saskatchewan and Alberta could not vote at Dominion elections. The anomaly, he said, should be at once removed.

Justice Doherty, Minister of Justice, in the course of an elaborate legal argument, convinced the house that no anomaly existed, because as a matter of law no woman in Canada could vote for members of the Dominion Parliament, any provincial legislation to the contrary notwithstanding.

Premier's Surprise

Then came the announcement by the prime minister that votes would be given to all the women of the Dominion. If they were entitled to this on account of their heroic conduct during the war or for any other good reason there was no sense, he said, in giving the ballot to the women of Ontario Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia and denying it to the women of Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

The Liberals, headed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, took alarm at the prospect of a Dominion franchise act. They insisted that the provincial voters' lists should govern, and that each province should settle the suffrage question to suit itself.

The prime minister strongly intimated that a Dominion franchise act was necessary and from the speeches delivered by staunch Conservatives it is pretty evident that such a law will be passed, and that it will not only enfranchise the women, but will disfranchise all naturalized Canadians of enemy origin and subject all citizens of foreign birth to an educatonal test.

No Election Near

Sir Robert Borden clearly intimated that no election was to be held in the near future. He proposed an amendment to the Sutherland motion so as to call for enfranchising legislation, not necessarily at this session, but at some time before there was an appeal to the people.

"DONT'S" TO SAVE BABY

Don't leave a baby in his carriage or anywhere else with his eyes unprotected from the glare of the sun. Don't lift a baby by his arms, actual dislocation may be caused in this way. Don't let a baby put anything in his mouth. He may choke himself, and most certainly will get dirt and germs of all kinds into his system

Don't fasten an array of toys to the hood of a baby's coach so that they are constantly dangling in front of his eyes whether he wishes them there or not. Don't forget to give the baby plenty of pure, fresh water to drink. He craves it; it aids his digestion and supplies his tissues with the amount of fluid which is necessary to his health. Don't be tempted or persuaded by any one else to give the baby a "taste" of anything outside of his regular diet. The most serious digestive disturbances very often result from just this thing

Don't make your baby ride in a low go-cart or a carriage without proper springs, or jolt him up and down the curb by letting the carriage bump carelessly. Very severe injury to a child's spine may be caused in this way. Don't leave medicines around where children can get at them, especially harmful ones. Many children have been needlessly made very ill, and many little lives actually sacrificed, by carelessness of this sort.

Had $351.97 and Slept in Parks

THREE OFFENDERS COME BEFORE MAGISTRATE DUMBLE.

Three cases engaged the attention of the police court this morning.

Thomas Moore, recognized by his Worship as an old citizen, answered the charge of vagrancy with a plea of "not guilty" and produced a bank book crediting him with a balance of $351.97.

"You may be a vagrant," sad his Worship, "for all that."

Chief Thompson: "He has been found sleeping in the parks, your worship."

Accused contended that he could not be classed as a vagrant, while possessing over $300, and asserted that he had been recently working in Keene, and was going to work for the Eastwood's at Buckhorn.

He was discharged on the understanding that he makes tracks for Buckhorn at once.

VIOLATION OF DOG ACT

Nic Blanco, an Italian, was charged with keeping a dog not chained, muzzled, or in leash, contrary to the bylaw. On agreeing to take the animal to the police to-night to be destroyed, he escaped penalty.

CASE ADJOURNED

Louis Decker appeared in answer to a charge of breach of the Transient Traders' Act. Mr. V. G. McElderry, counsel for the defendant, asked for an adjournment, to permit Decker, who is a Toronto man, securing the services of his solicitor from that city in his defence.

His Worship allowed an adjournment until to-morrow.

The accused is charged with soliciting orders in Peterboro for photo-enlarging and photo frames wthout a license. Our authorities are making a test case of this.

Wit and Wisdom

The class in history had been called and the teacher asked her young pupils how many wars England had fought with Spain.

"Six," one little boy promptly replied.

"Six," repeated the teacher. "Enumerate them, please."

"One, two, three, four, five, six," said the little boy with cheerful confidence.

Charles' mother was reproving him for not being more tidy about his hair, when his uncle, who was very bald, thinking to soothe his feelings, said:

"Charles, don't you wish you were as bald as I? Then you wouldn't have any hair to comb."

Charles heaved a long sigh of resignation.

"No, I don't," he said. "There would be that much more face to wash."

Mr. A.—"So the Tompkins-Chorkins match is broken off, is it."

Mr. B.—"Yes. The Tompkinses objected to Chorkins' being so economical."

Mr. A.—"You astonish me."

Mr. B.—"Yes. You know he is a contractor himself, and so sent circulars to all the ministers in town asking for their lowest estimates for performing the ceremony."

He was an energetic young man.

He whisked out of the shop with a window shutter on his shoulder, and almost knocked down a workman who was passing.

"Halloa!" said the workman. "What wad ye hiv done if ye'd knocked ma ear off?"

The energetic one replied:

"Laid you on the shutter, sir, and phoned for an ambulance."

Two boys were having an argument about their strength.

"Why," said John. "I go to the well and pull up ninety gallons of water every morning."

"That's nothing," replied Bob; "I get a boat every morning and pull up the river."

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

From The Review of May 17, 1900:

The annual meeting of the West Peterborough Liberal Association was held and the following officers elected: Hon. Presidents, Hon. J. R. Stratton and Richard Hall; president, Peter Hamilton; vice-presidents, A. J. Gough and Geo. E. Elliott; secretary, G. M. Rogers; treasurer, Dr. Moher. Speeches were made by Dan O'Connell, Hon. J. R. Stratton, F. D. Kerr and the officers, and a resolution was adopted congratulating Mr. Stratton on his appointment as Provincial Secretary.

Music in the Home

THE RUSSIAN NATIONAL HYMN

The abdication of Czar Nicholas of Russia raises the puestion of the fate of the Rusian National Anthem. Will it just die a natural death, or will the music of it be associated with other words? It is generally conceded that among the Canadian masses of all the national airs the music of the Russian National Anthem is one of the most popular and inspiring.

It was composed by Alexis Feodorovich Lvov, who was born in 1799. An account of what led to the producton of this work appears in Lvov's own memoirs, which in brief is this: "In 1833 I accompanied the Emperor Nicholas on his journeys to Prussia and Austria. On returning to Russia, I was informed that the Sovereign had expressed a regret that we Russians possessed no national hymn; being moreover tired of the English tune which had been used for a stop-gap for a very long time, he commissioned me to make an attempt to write a Russian anthem.

"This momentous duty seemed likely to prove difficult of accomplishment. In recalling the British anthem, "God Save the King," which is so imposing, the French song, so full of originality, and the Austrian hymn of which the music is so touching, I felt and fully appreciated the necessity of accomplishing something which would be robust, stately, stirring, national in character, something worthy to reverberate either in a church, through the soldiers' ranks or amongst a crowd of people, something which would alike appeal to the bettered and the ignorant. This problem absorbed me and I was perplexed by the need of fulfilling all these needs.

"One night on returning to my quarters at a very late hour, I composed and wrote out the tune of the hymn on the spur of the moment. Next day I went to the poet Joukovsky, and asked him to suggest some words; but he was by no means musical and had a lot of trouble in adapting them to the minor close of the first cadence.

"When the hymn was ready the Emperor expressed a desire to hear it, and came to the Court Chapel, accompanied by the Empress and the Grand Duke Michael. I had assembled the whole choir and it was supported by two orchestras. The Sovereign ordered the hymn to be played over several tmes, and asked to hear it sung without accompaniment; then he had it played by each orchestra in turn, and finally wth the united body of performers. His Majesty then said to me in French, 'It is really supurb,' and then and there he commanded that the hymn be adopted for the army.

"The Sovereign graciously presented to me a gold snuff-box adorned with diamonds, as a mark of the Imperial pleasure."

PRAIRE DOG FEUDS

Spirit of War Invaded Even the Canine Race

A Westerner writes: A feud appears to have broken out among prairie "dogs," and while there have been extensive arguments and much excitement, it seems that no real damage has been done. The animals occupying the northerly burrows of the village seemed to have declared warfare against a group living in the hillocks near the southwestern portion of the enclosure. There is much popping in and out of heads, shaking of black-tipped tails, shrill calls of squatting sentries and like manoeuvres. Owing to the sharp cold of the morning hours, the fighting does not begin until well along toward noon—and then it occurs chiefly on sunny days. Then the clans issue from their respective strongholds. The method of attack consists in rushing at an adversary that has been sitting up, chattering taunts, and knocking him over backwards.

Home of Indian Peace-Pipe

The calumet or peace-pipe of the Indians was made from a red stone found in ledges near the source of the Des Moines River. "Forty centuries before Christ appeared on earth this spot was solemnly consecrated to the cause of world-wide peace," writes Charles Keyes. "Peace at once reigned among warring nations wherever the smallest fragment of this red rock was carried."

Inks of Olden Days

The ink of the ancients was made of lamp black and gum and was thicker than our commercial inks, being more like Chinese or India inks. The emperors wrote with a special purple ink made from the famous Tyrian purple.

FEELS IT HAS DONE ONE GOOD

Does a person get more good from listening to music in a large assembly than by himself? What is there about attending a musical concert that makes one go home feeling it has done him good? What is the key to the great influence the summer band concerts have on the masses in our cities?

An answer to these questions is furnished by Mr. Arthur Farwell, who once spoke to the Canadian Club in Toronto in his capacity as supervisor of municipal concerts for New York City. Mr. Farwell said: "The 'mass-spirit' is that general something in a crowd which responds in mass to a thing to which there is no chance that any individual could possibly respond alone. The individual in a crowd responds very differently from the way the individual responds alone. I know very well individuals who could not be interested in a page of Beethoven's music, but put them there in a mass in a great crowd, and their enjoyment is something tremendous. That is, if it is conducted by someone who understands it, and if the thing is magnificently done, as it must be. I call that the 'mass-spirit,' the over-soul. It is the most responsive thing in the world. It seems to contain the same elements everywhere; the consciousnesses of all who are present rolled into one."

WHEN R.N.W.M.P. RULED THE PLAINS

In Days of Indian and Halfbreed, Order was Maintained by Small Body of Fearless Men

S. H. Howard writes: For many years before the West was "opened up," wild Indians buffalo hunters, half breeds, cowboys, pioneer settlers, Hudson Bay traders, all alike acknowledged the authority of the mounted red coats, and yielded to the moral force which was the secret of their influence and their strength. The scarlet uniform, the unshakable confidence, the bold bearing of authority, and the personal morale of the Royal Northwest Mounted Policeman cast a spell over savage Indians and wild white denizens of the plains alike. Settlers and all those on the side of law and order looked upon the lonely police patrol of the prairies as their hold on safety and state authority. The Indians were always sure of fairness and justice at their hands, and even the lawbreakers, whiskey smugglers, hold-up men, horse thieves and so forth, recognized the fairness, honesty and the stern high sense of duty animating the men who prosecuted them, and respecting them for their strong personalities, their courage and their unshakable nerve.

Endured Many Hardships

Hunger was necessarily the sauce that accompanied meals, for there were no delicacies of any other kind. In police barracks breakfast consisted of bread and coffee with sugar, but no milk. Dinner brought forth boiled beef, bread and tea with sugar. Supper was simply bread and tea, with sugar. Sugar in each case the one bright spot. No potatoes were furnished the force in the early days; no vegetables except dried beans; no butter. But they grew tough on the diet and thrived on the hardships. Many a time on a patrol or a trip they were compelled to lie down on the bare wet prairie at night, in the rain, with only a rubber sheet and a saddle blanket for a bed, and the saddle itself for a pillow. In the morning often getting up wet to the skin and shivering in the cold wind. They seldom got any harm from the exposure or caught cold. In fact, thrived one it.

Always Got their Man

The Northwest Mounted Police early gained the reputation for "getting their man." They stayed on the trail until they did get him—or he got over the border. The whisky men mostly all tried to keep friendly with the police, personally, and paid their fines of $200 or so good naturedly when they were caught with the goods. The dry belt was supposed to be a strip of 20 miles along the railway, and they would generally stay just outside the limit. Many hard trips were taken. One journey of ninety miles in mountainous country, being performed in a single day on horseback.

JAPAN'S LAW COURTS

The Japanese courts know no trial by jury; a Judge or Judges decide every case. Candidates for Judgeships have to pass examination. They are appointed for life, but may be removed for crime, and they sit in both civil and criminal cases. There is one Supreme Court, with 25 Judges and 6 procurators; below this are seven Courts of Appeals, with 135 Judges and 36 procurators; below these are 955 District Judges sitting in 50 District courts, 74 District Branch courts, [illegible] local and 1,409 branches of local

SENT OVER SEA BY WIRELESS

Imagine sailing on a ship in mid-ocean and being able to hear your favorite pianist in a concert that he is giving on board a vessel hundreds of miles away? The possibility is not as remote as one might surmise, for Tina Lerner, the distinguished young Russian pianist, gave a recital on board the Ventura on her homeward journey from Honolulu, and enjoyed the unique thrill of feeling that her music was being heard by wireless operators on board passenger and freight steamers as far as 500 miles away.

In the concert room where Miss Lerner was playing a transmitter was placed, and by means of a recently perfected wireless telephone apparatus the music was sent out over a large radius.

The experience of listening to this concert was far more novel than participating in the demonstrations which have recently been tried successfully when singers and speakers in San Francisco were heard at meetings and banquets in New York. At these functions the guests were provided with telephones, through which they heard every tone distinctly. Even the applause that the singers received on the Pacific Coast was accurately transmitted, and all the thrills that attended the real concert were felt by this "Proxy audience" on the other side of the continent.

That, however, was over telephone wires. To play the piano while isolated in mid-ocean and have the notes float through the air and bring pleasure to those far distant does much toward the complete annihilation of space and causes us to wonder what tomorrow may bring forth.

When we are far from home and think of the loved ones left behind, shall we be able to commune with them through music,

BEAUTY'S FIVE MINUTES

Every Woman Can Spare as Much to Improve Looks

The busiest woman can spare five minutes a day to make herself better looking. I do not mean at night. There are numberless little treatments a woman can give herself before going to bed—the most leisurely task of the day, always—I mean in the morning, before going out. For instance, while dressing, make sure that every piece of clothing goes on smoothly and evenly, so nothing will sag or bunch under the suit or dress. This takes no more time than getting into one's clothes in a helter-skelter fashion. Take a moment extra to fix the hair, making sure it is off the neck, that it puffs about the face in the most becoming way, that the ears don't stick through hastily-combed strands, and that it is firm enough not to slide down and get wispy during the day.

Take two minutes to go over the hands, pushing back the cuticle of the nail if it needs it, clipping off rough edges of skin, rubbing the buffer over them to bring on a slight polish. Make sure that the collar is adjusted properly, the hat on correctly, the skirt straight and that you look carefully groomed from every viewpoint. Style counts much in good looks, and half one's style is good grooming.

FINE CITIES OF SUDAN

How Khartum and Its Great Suburb are Modernized

Khartum means elephant's trunk, and may well designate that long strip of land which separates the turbid waters of the White Nile from the clear and more rapid streams that come from the mountains of Abyssinia. Across the White Nile stretches the straggling, ancient dervish capital, Omdurman, with a population of over 60,000; and it is practically a part of Khartum. The quays, streets, gardens and public buildings present the picture of a civilized town, as regular and a good deal more ambitious than some metropolis in the growing West. The majority of the streets are wide, macadamized and lined with beautiful trees. There is an excellent system of lighting, and tramcars connect Khartum with the suburbs, from Gordon College on the east to Omdurman on the west, as well as with North Khartum across the Blue Nile. Luxurious express trains, with dining and sleeping cars, run twice a week from Khartam to Cairo.

Trees Can Develop Cancer

A London paper writes: In low-lying, ill-drained places shut in by trees cancer is prevalent. And in such places still further proving the close relation between earth, vegetation, and animal existence—the trees develop wens, or tumours, akin to the cancerous growths of the human residents. Plague, pestilence and famine, cholera, typhus and enteric fevers, the multiple host of diseases arising from insanitation, may be traced back to the simple principle of the earth's need for continued replenishment.

RUSSIAN NORDEN

While the war gave a great stimulus to the public interest in Russian music, the fact that there was any interest to be stimulated is largely due to Mr. V. Lindsay Norden of Brooklyn, now generally known among choral directors as "Russian Norden." With his Aeolian Choir and his All Saints' Church Choir he had the chance of testing some of the remarkable unaccompanied works by Tschaikowsky, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Borodin, and others; works which were written for the exacting requirements of the Orthodox Church. Generally he provided English words and supervised the American publication in octavo form of these compositions. Perhaps Mr. Norden was too enthusiastic over some of these choral works, but undoubtedly a pioneer is entitled to some enthusiasm. His work has certainly brought him into public notice and he has been offered a still larger opportunity. He has been appointed conductor of the Mendelssohn Club of Philadelphia, a choral organization with a continuous activity of forty-two years.

JAPAN'S PARLIAMENT

Big Taxpayers Sit without Election—Other Peculiarities

The Japanese Parliament consists of a House of Peers and a House of Representatives. The House of Peers contains both nobles and distinguished commoners. Princes of the imperial blood and Princes and Marquises sit in it by right of title. Counts, Viscounts and Barons elect members of their orders. The Emperor appoints the commoners of distinction and there are also seats for the highest taxpayers, one from each prefecture. At one, for example, the House of Peers contained 12 Princes of the Blood, 13 Princes, 33 Marquises, 17 Counts, 63 Viscounts, 66 Barons, 122 men nominated by the Emperor and 48 highest taxpayers. Members of the House of Representatives are elected by male Japanese subjects 25 years of age or over and paying a direct tax of not less than 10 yen ($5). There are 381 members, 161 from city districts and the rest from the country districts.

His First Journey

A Saskatchewan farmer, sixty years of age, had his first ride on a railway train one rainy day when he travelled from Lebret, on the Grand Trunk Pacific, to Regina for some necessary hospital attention. He is a highly successful agriculturist who has been on the Western Prairies since boyhood. Thirty-five years had passed since he had previously visited Regina, and the whole development of that city, with its street cars, electric lights and busy traffic amazed him. He knew of trains, of course, for his wheat had been shipped out by rail for years, and of late years the Grand Trunk Pacific had run almost through his farm, but the even tenor of his life had not been disturbed by journeys on such new fangled devices.

Friends of Wild Geese

John Miner, Sr., father of the famous Jack Miner—friend and student of the feathered folk—died in his 89th year. Mr. Miner was a native of Leicestershire, England, and came to this continent in 1852, and first engaged in the adventuresome life of the whale fisheries before treking to the State of Ohio, where he married Ann Broadwell. He came to Canada in 1872, and settled on what became the home of his son "Jack" Miner, and known as "Wild Goose Preserve" at Kingsville.

SGT. DUNCAN MACNEIL OF THE CANADIANS

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured His Dyspepsia Completely.

Sergeant Duncan MacNeil, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, writing from Europe (his home address is 116 Pleasant St., Halifax, N.S.) says: "For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of dyspepsia, often being in bed for days at a time. When the war broke out I joined the Expeditionary Force and came to England. I had not been long there, however, when my old trouble returned and I had to go to hospital. While in hospital a friend told me of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I decided to try them. The first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued the treatment. To make a long story short, a complete cure was effected."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 McCaul Street, Toronto.

Eccentric developments in this style of dress for young women are illustrated in this picture.

MEAT AND POTATO LOAF

Chop any cold meat that you have fine and put on to cook in a little water, half an onion sliced and a teaspoonful of butter. Simmer slowly and thicken slightly, season to taste. A little catsup may be added to give piquancy. Meantime boil and mash a sufficient number of white potatoes, or if you have cold mashed potatoes on hand they will answer. Mix a little flour with the potatoes and line a greased baking dish with them, fill with the meat mixture, cover with more mashed potatoes and bake till a nice brown.

SEEK SLENDER ANKLES

Women Chould Exercise and be Careful About Stockings

Many women write in and ask me what to do to make their ankles slender, says a woman journalist. There is no one special treatment for thinning the ankles. Exercise that will develop the leg will also tend to bring the ankle into ideal form, so the woman who wants slender ankles must develop slender legs at the same time. Walking and dancing will take off much of the superfluous flesh from a fat ankle, and from a large calf as well. Swimming develops legs, and well-developed legs almost invariably have ankles in the correct proportion.

High-heeled shoes help to give a slender silhouette to the ankle, by raising the heel of the foot and forcing to an incurve the tendons running from heel to calf. But too high heels are injurious, nothing higher than a moderate Cuban heel should ever be worn. Well fitting silk stockings will do more than anything else to make an ankle look slim. The silk clings tightly to the ankle itself, and its very thinness makes the ankle actually measure less around than when a lisle or cotton stocking is worn. Moreover, the delicate shaded effect produced by the silk itself, gives an appearance of trimness and slenderness.

Cucumber Boats

A pretty individual way to serve cucumbers is to cut half of the outer rind off, lengthwise. Leave the other part on, but scoop out the insides of the cucumber so that the remainder looks like a toy boat. Put the scooped-out inside in a bowl, flavor with onion juice and French dressing and chill well. Just when you are ready to serve it, place the cucumber out on lettuce, fill with the inside and top off with a long strip of red sweet pepper. If you choose small cucumbers this makes a nice individual dish.

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

Mr. Clendenning, of Lindsay, was a business visitor to Omemee on Wednesday.

Miss Davidson returned to Omemee on Monday, after spending a week end with her niece in Lindsay.

Miss Richardson, of Millbrook, has been spending a few days with her father, Mr. J. Richardson, at The Commerce House.

Mrs. C. L. Morcomb has returned home after a pleasant visit.

Among the new cars to arrive in Omemee this week is a new Overland for Mr. T. A. McPherson, a 1917 Ford for Mr. Wesley Wilson, and also for Mr. W. Henderson.

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Percy Parsons on Thursday, May 10th, it being the annual election of offivers. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. Harry Magee; 1st Vice, Mrs. G. McQuade; 2nd Vice, Miss L. Parsons; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. R. Cornwall; District Representative, Mrs. Widdes; Directors, Mrs. W. Free, Mrs. Wier, Mrs. Lamb.

Mrs. (Dr.) McGould, of Fenelon Falls, addresed the meeting and gave a splendid address along patriotic lines, as well as giving many helpful hints to Omemee branch.

Mr. Huber, Government Engineer, and Mr. James B. Bigg, superintendent of the county road system, were in Omemee on Thursday, and were conducted over this division of the road by Reeve Parsons.

Mrs. McCrea and Miss McCrea motored from Toronto on Wednesday of last week, and spent the day with Mrs. R. J. Mulligan, returning to the city the same day.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nugent spent the week end in Lindsay at the home of Mr. P. S. Nugent.

Mr. Weir motored to Millbrook on Tuesday.

Mr. A. W. Parsons and little daughter, Edna, of Toronto, spent the week end at the home of Mrs. T. J. Parsons.

Mrs. Murray was a visitor to Peterboro on Saturday.

Mrs. Werry, of Fleetwood was the guest of Mrs. Stanley Sluggitt on Sunday.

Mr. Jeff Ashmore, of Dunsford, motored to Omemee on Sunday.

Mr. J. W. Deyell, editor of the Warder, Lindsay, motored to Omemee on Sunday.

A company playing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" were in Omemee a week ago, giving the grand old play in Coronation Hall. Among the many laughable incidents which transpired during the play was the tameness of the blood-hounds which had to be led on to the stage in the scene where they chase Liza over the ice.

Mr. Ross MacPherson, of Toronto, drove Mr. MacPerson's fine Overland to Omemee on Saturday.

A bad wreck occurred on Sunday afternoon between Sturgeon Street Station and the railroad bridge, when five cars were derailed owing to a spread rail. The track for some distance was left in a terrible condition, rails being badly twisted and ties smashed to kindling wood. It was of intense interest to villagers to watch the crew of the wrecking train assisted by Peterboro, Lindsay, and Omemee section-men clear the wreckage. The men worked diligently all night, and as a result trains were running on time Monday mornng again.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mulligan were guests of Mrs. Adams, of Lindsay, on Sunday.

Lindsay Warder had an item a week ago about boys in Bobcaygeon selling suckers this year at eleven cents a dozen. Omemee can go one better, as the boys here get thirty cents a dozen for all they can catch.

Captain Thorn, of Kingston, spent the week end with his family in Omemee.

Mr. Hales, of Greens Music Co., Peterboro, was a business visitor to Omemee on Monday.

Inspector Broderick, of Lindsay, was a visitor to Omemee on Monday.

Mr. Hudson and daughter, of Peterboro, were visitors to Omemee this week.

Mr. Charles Stanton, of Peterboro, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stanton last week.

Mr. George Booth of Toronto is visiting friends in town.

Miss Lazelle Brown, of Hampton, visited friends in town this week.

Sergt. F. W. Black, of Kingston, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Johnston, last week.

Mrs. A. Wood is visiting her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Whyte, at Port Hope.

Mrs French, of Whitley, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 8 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

HOW TO KEEP BABY WELL

Regular Hours, Plenty of Fresh Air and Exercise

Train the baby in regular habits and he will soon become easy to manage. In warm weather a normal healthy baby will be better out of doors after he is a few days old. No baby should be put out of doors when the temperature is below 20 degrees above zero, or if the weather is not clear when the temperature is below freezing. On windy dusty days he is better indoors. For sleeping out, the same rules should be followed. He is just as well left to sleep quietly in his bed out of doors. Wheeling and rocking make him demand attention. A good sleeping bag can easily be made by the mother out of a clean old woolen blanket.

Love Should be Shown

A correspondent writes the following: "Oh, yes, he really loves her," said my neighbor, "but he's the kind that never shows it on the surface or says much about it."

"Doesn't do much good then, does it?" said I.

My neighbor looked scandalised so I hastened to relieve her mind by qualifying that. Nevertheless I must say that I should never be satisfied with that kind of love, and I think few women are. Of course it's good in crises, but how much part do crises play in daily life?

A concert, to be given by Peterborough talent, including violin selections by Dr. Park, banjo selections by Mr. Clark, folk dances by a trio of Normal School girls, songs, etc., will be held in the town hall on May 23rd under the auspices of the Soldiers' Comforts Club.

A little excitement was caused in the village about 11:45 Sunday when the fire alarm sounded. A spark from the chimney of Mr. S. McKibbon's house started a blaze on the roof, which was quickly extinguished by the assistance of neighbors.

A. Y. P. A.

The closing social of the A. Y. P. A was held in the S. S. room Tuesday evening, May 15. It was decided at this meeting that the members, instead of having their annual banquet, send boxes to the members overseas. Mr. Floyd Rogers made knitting needles, which were sold by Miss Hillard, the proceeds amounting to $7. This money was donated to the association to be used in sending the boxes. A meeting will be hled on Monday next in the S. S. room to pack the boxes. On Tuesday, May 29, the closing business meeting will be held.

After all the business had been transacted the evening was spent in games, after which refreshments were served. The committee in charge were: Mr. T. Simpson, Mrs Chappell, Miss A. Watson and Miss R. Alford.

KEEP HENS

For the Sake of Profit and Patriotism.

Next fall and winter poultry and eggs are going to be higher in price than ever before. Last winter they were high enough you know. Many housekeepers will be unable to buy them and the wise ones will therefore keep hens in their back yards, even if they never attempted it before. The wise poultry keepers and farmers will raise double or more than double the number they have raised in other years, and they will reap the profits. Come to the big meeting in the council chamber Friday evening, May 18th, and hear Mrs. Weelard from the Poultry Department of Guelph Agricultural College speak on this important subject. See full particulars of meeting in advertisement in another colum of this paper.

"PINAFORE" WINS ANOTHER SUCCESS AT OPERA HOUSE

Talented Local Amateurs Vie With Professionals---Bouquets Presented to Lady Principals and One to Asa Huycke.

The charming comic opera, "H.M.S. Pinafore," was again presented last night, at the Grand Opera House, to a large and applausive audience. The Conservatory Operatic Club and Orchestra excelled their efforts of Tuesday evening and many encores were demanded, but only one responded to—that for a repeat of the girls' hornpipe number by Miss Littlefield's class, which the demonstrative audience would not be denied. The principal roles were sung and interpreted in quite professional style, while the excellent numbers by the splendid orchestra considerably enhanced the opera's success.

Mr. Asa Hucke's conception of Dick Deadeye and Mr. Ed. Hargahea's impersonation of the First Lord left no room for criticism, and in both voice and action they displayed vocal and histrionic talent which bespeaks for them a successful career in the operatic field were they to make that their profession.

Misses Florence Scott, Georgie Cuff and Helen MacLaren in the principal female characters, charmingly sustained their well-deserved reputations as local entertainers of no mean ordes of merit, and their numbers won unstinted appreciation. Miss Helen MacLaren presented a fascinating and irresistible "Little Buttercup," and Miss Georgie Cuff a very acceptable "first cousin." Miss Florence Scott's interpretation of the Admiral's haughty daughter, who comes down to the level of a faretop man was true to the character and her vocal numbers were rendered with admirable correctness of note and ennunciation.

Mr. Walter Evans, as Captain Corcaran, earned considerable commendation, especially in regard to his song offerings. The work of the whole cast was of an exceedingly meritorious nature, and reflects credit on both instructors and the Conservatory alike.

Bouquets.

At the end of the first act beautiful and costly bouquets were presented to Miss Scott, Miss MacLaren and Miss Cuff. It not being customary to offer floral tributes to gentlemen, admirers of Mr. Asa Huycke sent along to him one of a vegetable nature (a turnip). The exceeding humor of the incident was in keeping with the high-class comedy this talented entertainer was presenting.

Caring For Babies

The babies in Montreal are being looked after by a Baby Welfare Committee, and the week following May 20 will be "Baby Week." "To make a better nation by baby conservation" is the aim of the committee, and their committee rooms at present express the babies' unspoken sentiments by means of these posters. "Do not dose me with patent mixtures." "Do not take me to the motion picture show." "Do not give me a dirty pacifier to suck," or a clean one either, for that matter. When all these babies, Belgian and Canadians, are older, of which shall we naturally expect the most in their all-round development into good citizens?

HORSE MARKET.

The commercial branch of the horse trade provided the great bulk of the activity in Toronto horse exchanges last week. The buying of British remounts, which is proceeding at the Union Stock Yards, has been inconsiderable up to the present on account of the fact that Ontario farmers are very busy with their spring work and are unable to spare horses which they may be inclined to part with a little later in the season. The outlook for this week is considerably brighter, as larger shipments are assured, and during the balance of the season it is expected that the British inspectors will secure a fairly large number of remounts. As soon as the number becomes large enough, daily inspections will be held. The buying of horses for the French Government at the Repository last week was also on a small scale.

Shipments from Toronto to outside points included a load of 28 expressers of about 1,500 lbs. each, destined for Vancouver for one of the express companies. These horses were taken at prices ranging from $200 to $230. A carload of horses was shipped to Fort William that cost $85 to $120. The Doukhobor settlement near Dawson, Man., took a load of mixed farm horses which brought prices ranging from $75 to $150.

Germany Made Request
For Right to Colonize
On Continent of America

A SENSATIONAL rumor has reached one of the New York editors that Washington is in possession of the details of a German peace-proposal recently made to the Entente via Switzerland. It is alleged that Germany offered the Allies peace upon their own terms and signified her willingness to evacuate Belgium, restore Alsace-Lorraine, join Polish Prussia to a new independent kingdom, pay an indemnity, and acquiesce in the partition of Austria-Hungary into separate states according to nationalities. In return for all these concessions in Europe, Germany, it is said, demanded only one thing—a free hand on the American continent. While this story may be either true or false, it certainly adds interest to the activities of German settlers in South America and the attitude that Wilhelmstrasse adopts toward them. The London Outlook says that Latin-America is not awake to the "danger of German dominance" by colonization. This influential British weekly has been devoting considerable space to the discussion of Germany's aims in the southern continent, and it professes itself very pleased at the attitude taken by Brazil on the submarine question. It says:

"Brazil has shown a courageous example in being the first of the neutrals to express a determination to follow America's lead in resisting the insolent aggressions of Germany. We say courageous, for no country has come more completely within the Teutonic grip than the Portuguese Republic. Some of the southern provinces are practically German colonies. In Rio Grande do Sul there are about 300,000 Germans, in Parana 180,000, and in Santa Catharina 85,000. Most of the wealth and the best lands are in their possession, and the male members are reported to be organized for military service and to be in possession of arms. Such a potential enemy in their midst might well make the Brazilians hesitate before committing themselves to a policy antagonistic to the always beloved Fatherland. All the republics of Latin America may, however, have awakened to the unpleasant possibilities of German penetration, and have arranged to act in concert in the event of there being any intention to violate on behalf of the Kaiser the hospitality given to these aliens."

Germany's aims in South America are very frankly stated by Prof. Gustav von Schmoller in a recent pamphlet entitled "Handels und Machtpolitik," where he writes:

"We must desire that at all costs a German country containing 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 Germans may grow up in the twentieth century in south Brazil, and that, no matter whether it remains a portion of Brazil, or becomes a self-contained state, or enters into close relations with our Empire. Unless our connection with Brazil is always secured by ships of war and unless Germany is able to exercise pressure there, our development is threatened."

The Monroe Doctrine, says The Outlook, would not affect the situation, for the German Government does not recognize its validity.

When inspiration is transmuted into perspiration it begins to be effective.

New Austrian Emperor
Read Prayer in Public
At Peace Demonstration

THE Vienna correspondent of an Amsterdam paper sends an impressive account of a solemn peace service held in St. Stephen's recently, the Austrian Emperor and Empress Zita kneeling amid high officials and the sobbing congregation which crowded the edifice, imploring peace.

Cardinal Piffl officiated, and at the elevation of the host Emperor Charles in a loud voice read the prayer as follows:

"Almighty God, who hast promised us that the patient shall taste abundant peace. Thou knowest what patience we observed toward our enemies until righteous self-defence compelled us to draw the sword.

"In the midst of this war, thus forced upon us, we recognize the blessings of peace. We beseech Thee, knowing our impotence, yet trusting Thee, although we have often spurned Thy grace, Lord, oh, give peace to our land. . . .

"The ruler and people of Austria, kneeling this day before Thy holy throne, promise to build a church dedicated to Our Lady the Queen of Peace, where a solemn service will be held every year to commemorate peace day and a requiem mass on All Souls' Day for Austria's fallen warriors. O Lord, bless this undertaking and grant us peace in our days."

EMPEROR CHARLES OF AUSTRIA

Such events as this great service are signs that indicate how close is the debacle of the Central Powers. Yet Canadians will be struck with the unintentional irony of the prayer. The Patient Hapsburg, forsooth!

In 1909 the patient Hapsburg, by means of documents forged by an employe of the Austro-Hungarian Legation at Belgrade, invented a "conspiracy" of Serbo-Croatians, aided by the Serbian Government, against Austria-Hungary. The truth was exposed in the famous Friedjung trial. It never would have been exposed, divers Croats and Serbs would have been shot, Serbia would have been invaded and gobbled up, if Russia had not yielded to the German ultimatum, which forced Russia to accept the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria and to leave Serbia in the lurch.

In 1913 the patient Hapsburg proposed to make war on Serbia, as was officially stated in the Italian Parliament in 1915.

The patience of the Hapsburg toward Serbia, his long-awaited prey, in 1914 is known to the world.

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

Bunny Brief has so far played good ball at first base for the tail-end Pirates.

It is understood Clark Griffith is trying to unload four Washington players.

If the major leagues should decide to cut their player limits to 18 men the second division managers would have an excellent chance to pick up good material.

Benton pitched seven innings on Saturday without allowing a Cincinnati batsman to reach first. Then in the eighth the Reds collected five safe blows.

Tom Seaton's return to life is one of the surprises of the season. He is pitching as well for the Cubs as he did for the Phillies in 1913 before he jumped to the Brookfeds.

Matty intends to recall Pitcher Garner from Montreal. The Reds also need a first-class left-hander.

When the Feds went under McGraw had a chance to buy Lee Magee, but turned him down, believing that he couldn't hit.

Ferdinand Schupp has pitched four games for the Giants this year, winning three and getting a draw in 14 innings in the other.

Matty repudiates the interview in which he was made to say that Red Ames is his best pitcher. Ames has been with the Cardinals since 1915.

There is no longer any doubt as to Jack Barry's managerial ability. The Red Sox are playing faster ball than at this time a year ago.

Frits Maisel is a success at second base. The little fellow's fielding is keeping the Yankees high in the race.

Guy Morton, the Cleveland pitcher, has come back as well as ever, but Joe Wood still is waiting for hot weather.

Rumored that the former Federal League backers, outside of Baltimore, are preparing to sue Organized Baseball for $500,000 due for the peace settlement.

Cy Falkenberg has encountered rough sailing since his return to the big show. Cy was severely jolted by the Browns in his last start.

QUEEN MARY TEAM WON.

In a game of baseball played on Tuesday afternoon at the King Edward grounds the Queen Mary senior team defeated the King Edward seniors by the score of 23-7.

Batteries: King Edward — Clark, Holyman and Robinson; Queen Mary —Barraclough, Beube and Thompson.

CLARENCE WILSON OF THE PRINTERS WINS BLIND SCORE

Last night at the Water street Alleys much interest was manifested in the play off of the 153 blind score. At the end of the game Wilson, Heaslip and Barrett were tie and an extra game had to be played between the three players to decide the winner. Following were the scores:

2nd game—Wilson, 155; Barrett, 156.

J. J. Cocks won from W. Heaslip by two pins in the play off for the weekly prize in five pins.

Tomorrow night the 182 blind score will be played off and a great game is expected.

EVERY CLUB HAS A JINX

A Jinx is an awful thing.

Just question the Giants about the weird and unexplainable spell that certain pitchers weave with their throwing arm. They can tell you. The Giants seem to have more professional Jinxes on their trail than any other ball club. Brown, Covaleski, Lavender, Lou Richie, and old Pat Ragon have pestered the New York boys something scandalous. They were real Jinxes all of them.

Just now Jack Coombs of Brooklyn and formerly of the Athletics is their particular humiliator. The famous "Iron Man" has beaten McGraw's clan just ten times in succession since he has been with Brooklyn. The Giants have never beaten Coombs. John started picking on the Giants 'way back in 1911 while a member of Connie Mack's world's champions. In the world's series of that year Coombs beat the Giants once and held them even for nine innings in another game before he retired owing to an injury. Altogether Jack holds 11 wins, one tie and no defeats. Truly the greatest example of a playing-through Jinx that is known to baseball.

Lou Richie made a living out of his ability to beat the Giants. In fact, he was carried by the Cubs for that sole and dire purpose.

Matty was the particular Jinx for the team he now manages. About all the big fellow had to do in the days gone by was to toss his glove in, and the Reds were through for the day. He lost few games to Cincinnati during his entire career.

Tom Hughes, the first, certainly had Cleveland hoodooed some years back. One season Hughes shut out the club from Cleveland five times in succession. That is the Jinx working at the top of its game.

Here are a few more:

Cicotte of the White Sox has the Yankees hypnotized; Wellman of the Browns has the Tigers eating out of his hand; Rudolph is Brooklyn's Nemesis; Jim Shaw of Washington is another Jinx that causes Bill Donovan to rail instead of smile, and Ray Fisher causes Ty Cobb & Co. to tremble.

WORK OF LADIES APPRECIATED

TWO MORE LETTERS OF THANKS FROM BOYS IN TRENCHES.

Mrs. Knox, the active president of the Canadian Kitchener League, forwards us the following expressions of thanks from Peterborough heros at the front:—

"France, April.

Dear Ladies,—Many thanks for socks you sent me. I assure you a pair of socks is very welcome at this time of year, when we have to stand in mud and water for hours at a post. Our feet are rarely dry. Again thanking you and wishing the Canadian Kitchener League every success.

I remain.
Yours sincerely.
D. McFARLANE."

"France, April.

Dear Friends,—I have pleasure in writing these few lines to thank you for the two boxes of socks, which I received quite safe. I divided them among the 93rd boys as far as they went. We are getting fine weather now, although we had a very cold winter. Thanking the Canadian Kitchener League once again, and hoping that we will come back to Peterboro to thank them for their kindness.

Your sincere friend.
PTE. W. J. DARBOURN."

Pte. Darbourn was reported died of wounds since we received this letter.

BULLECOURT IS CAPTURED AFTER TWO WEEKS' FIGHT

Entire Village With Sixty Prisoners Now in Possession of British---Another Village Taken on Struma Front---Germans Preparing for Retreat.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 18.—Hostile raiding parties were beaten off with loss last night north-east of Armentieres. The British troops here completed the capture of the Village of Bullecourt, according to the announcement from the War Office.

The announcement says:—

"Our troops completed the capture of Bullecourt, taking some sixty prisoners.

"The whole of the village, for the possession of which constant fighting has taken place since May 3, is now in our hands."

King Albert at Front

After a four days' visit to the British front, King Albert of the Belgians has returned to his headquarters. He distributed numerous decorations while at the front. The king seemed greatly impressed by the tremendous strengthening of the British forces since his previous visit.

Field Marshal Douglas Haig greeted King Albert on his arrival Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday were spent in visiting the scenes of the British victories on the Somme, including Pozieres, Thiepval and Combles. The party penetrated as far as Peronne and vicinity, where great interest was displayed in the destruction wrought by the Germans before their retirement. A visit was also paid to Vimy Ridge.

Victory on Struma Front

PARIS, May 18.—A French official communication says:—

"On the Struma front the British troops captured some enemy trenches and the village of Kjupri. They repulsed several counter-attacks and took 85 prisoners

"Intense activity was displayed on the Serbian front West of the Cerna French troops carried on a front of eight hundred metres a series of works which the enemy defended with stubbornness In the course of the last operations, the enemy sent into action a division of reinforcements which had come from Bulgaria.

Huns Ready To Retreat

The desperate German counter-offensive that has been going on since the day before yesterday in the region of Laffaux is considered in competent quarters here as intended to mark a further retirement of the German first line on other parts of the front

THREE MORE PETERBORO BOYS IN THE CASUALTIES

Captain M. Beresfard Hamilton Suffering From Shell Shock Ptes. Stewart and Bell Wounded.

Reports from private sources today give the names of three more patriotic Peterborough young men who are suffering in the cause of liberty and justice threatened by Hun aggression. They are as follows:

WOUNDED

M. BERESFORD HAMILTON.
PTE. VINCENT STEWART.
CORP. BRUCE BELL.

Mr. W. A. Bell, Peterborough R. R. 4, Smith, has received word that his son, L-Corp. Bruce Bell, has been admitted to the 2nd Western Gen. Hospital, Alexandra Park, Stockport, Eng., suffering from shell shock and trench fever.

Corp. Bell went overseas with the 93rd, but has been in France, a member of the famous 4th Canadian Batt., since November, 1916.

CAPT. M. BERESFORD HAMILTON

Mr. Miles Hamilton, accountant with the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, has received word that his son, Capt. M. Beresford, is suffering from shell shock received in action on May 10th. This gallant young soldier left Kingston as lieutenant with the 33rd Battery in December, 1915. From England he first went to France as Captain Instructor of Artillery, and was subsequently returned to England to continue instruction work there. At the time of suffering at the hands of the enemy he was acting officer in command of the 11th Battery; 3rd brigade, First Division Canadian Artillery.

PTE. V. STEWART

It is officially reported that Pte. V Stewart of Peterborough has been wounded at the front in France. He left Peterborough with the 93rd Battalion.

TO REDUCE REJECTIONS

A scheme aimed at reducing the number of rejections among applicants for overseas service is to be inaugurated at once at the Toronto Mobilization Centre.

Hereafter each applicant will be classified according to his physical condition and he will be told which branch of the service he is best fitted for This scheme was the one adopted in England before conscription was introduced and its going into effect will create valuable machinery here which will be useful in case of compulsory enlistment. The details of the plan were settled by a general conference of medical examiners, which met at Exhibition Camp.

BRITISH GUNS AID ITALIANS IN OFFENSIVE

Troops Were Given Warm Reception as They Passed Through Italy.

BULLECOURT IS IN RUINS.

Six Battalions of Austrians Are Captured in New Drive By Italians.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 18.—An official statement says: British heavy artillery is cooperating with the Italian army in the offensive on the Julian front Reports indicate that our gunners have afforded our allies material assistance During their progress through Italy to the front they received an enthusiastic reception.

BULLECOURT IN RUINS.

BERLIN, May 18.—A German official statement says: "The ruins of the former Village of Bullecourt were evacuated according to command without disturbance by the enemy who established himself there twenty-four hours later.

RUS REPELS HUN.

PETROGRAD, May 18.—An official statement says: In the direction of Vladimir Volynsk in the region of Shelvov last night dense enemy formations attempted a sweeping attack on our positions on one of our sectors but were repulsed.

6,432 AUSTRIAN PRISONERS.

ROME, May 18.—The Austrians captured on the Julian front during the present offensive are known to number 6,432. From Tolmino to the sea artillery was active. Austro-Hungarian efforts against new Italian positions were repulsed.

GEMMELL & CO. SUFFER FIRE LOSS

MATERIAL DESTROYED TO EXTENT OF A COUPLE OF THOUSAND DOLLARS.

The work rooms of Gemmell & Co., ladies' whitewear manufacturers, the top storey over Graham's book store, were completely destroyed by fire early this morning, so far as interior fittings and material are concerned First care, however, was given to the machinery, which was secured against serious damage. The flat below the work rooms, is used as store and show rooms, and the goods therein somewhat suffered from water. The blaze started at 4.30, and the flames found plenty of combustible material upon which to feed, and it is due the prompt and efficient service of the fire brigade that the fire was confined to the Gemmell premises. The cause of the fire was an electrical pressing iron being left with the switch being closed and the plug in Damage in the neighborhood of $2,000 resulted. Mr. Graham's book store escaped damage.

367 Vessels Sunk In Three Months

New York Paper Gives a New List of Submarine Casualties.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 18.—The Tribune cable says three hundred and seventy British vessels have been sunk in three months, since the admiralty began issuing statements without giving the tonnage of the vessels. In that period over sixty-five thousand vessels have entered or left British ports.

Seven Recruits For the 74th

The officer commanding the 74th Peterborough Battery reports that the young men of this city are showing great interest in their home unit. Since orders came a week ago moving this unit to this city, recruiting has picked up, and in that time seven men have enlisted from this city and surrounding towns. It is up to the citizens of Peterborough to boost their home unit.

In the past, the young men of the city who wished to join the artillery had to go to other towns to do so. Now this is unnecessary as there is a battery right here, and with the class of men who are enlisting, this will be the crack battery of this district. Among the recruits who have cast in their lot with the 74th the past two days are two bank clerks.

Now is the time for the eligible men of Peterborough to join, so as to be able to spend a pleasant summer in camp.

Major Crocker, officer commanding, expects to take this battery to camp about the 1st of June.

TRUCE LIKELY BETWEEN HUNS AND RUSSIANS

Disquieting Rumor, Probably of German Origin, Has Reached London.

CRISIS NOT YET SETTLED.

Commander-in-Chief of Russian Army Talks Seriously to People.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 18.—An Exchange Telegraff despatch from Amsterdam says there is a rumor at the Hague, supposed to be of German origin, that a truce is about to be arranged between Russia and the central powers as a result of the political changes in Russia.

In an official statement from Petrograd it is announced that the ministerial crisis has not yet been settled. The formation of cabinet in which six Socialists are included has been completed.

Generals Remain At Ports.

As a result of a meeting in Petrograd of the commanders-in-chief from all the fronts except the Caucasus, Generals Brusiloff and Gurko have withdrawn their resignations, and reports of further resignations are refuted by the definite announcement that all the commanders have decided to remain at their posts. Thus, the crisis in the army, which formed an alarming accompaniment to the political crisis, has been averted.

Gen. Alexieff's Warning.

General Alexieff, commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, said: about dangerous results. We can by the army, and this has brought forms cannot be properly understood

"The whole gist of the new idea reovercome the consequent loss of authority if irresponsible persons and organizations will cease further to interfere with our work. I feel assured ment it will be possible to conduct that under the new coalition governmilitary affairs in a more energetic manner. It is time to wake up and stop shouting 'Peace without annexations.' Let us leave peace negotiations to the government."

JAPANESE SEND AID TO FRANCE

GUNBOATS TO MAKE WAR ON SUBS AND ACT AS CONVOYS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, May 18.—A number of Japanese gunboats have arrived at Marseilles to aid in the war on German submarines and convoy French merchantmen. If the experiment has satisfactory results it will be extended.

TO EXTEND LIFE OF PARLIAMENT FOR ONE YEAR

Premier Borden to Make Important Statement in House Today.

NO ELECTION IS LIKELY.

Joint Action With Americans Likely to Control Food Prices.

OTTAWA, May 18.—Sir Robert Borden's review of the work of the Imperial War Cabinet and the Imperial War Conference, which will be given in the House of Commons today will be the prelude to the decisive stage of the present session of Parliament. During that stage it will be decided whether or not a general election is to be forced upon the people of the Dominion, and also the policy which Canada is going to follow in dealing with several important question.

Ask For Extension.

The Prime Minister's statement will be followed almost immediately by notice of a Government resolution calling for an extension of the present Parliamentary term for an additional period of one year, that is, until October 10th, 1918. This important measure, foreshadowed in the speech from the Throne at the opening of the session will thus be formally before the House of Commons next week and the country may know ere long whether or not the Opposition is prepared to assume responsibility for an attitude which will lead to a political contest in the Dominion before October next.

Program For Session.

Upon the fate of the extension resolution will probably depend in some measure the scope of the Government's legislative program this session. Its rejection might be followed by the introduction of a Dominion franchise bill to remove present anomalies in the present electoral system. It is believed here, however, that the extension resolution will be sanctioned, and once it is Parliament and the Government will be in a position to deal with a number of important questions, such as the recruiting situation, control of food supplies and regulation of prices, national prohibition during the war, race track betting and the railway problem. Many members from Ontario and the four Western provinces are said to favor some form of compulsory military service, while those from the East of the capital are stated to be opposed to compulsion.

Joint action with the United States to regulate and control food supplies and the prices of food is possible. The railway problem will be considered, and already representatives of transcontinental companies are in Ottawa to put forward their views against nationalization.

VICTORIA DAY OUTING.

Tickets are selling rapidly for the excursion down the river to Gore's Landing on the holiday, May 24th. A very enjoyable outing is promised.

ITALIANS CAPTURE DUINO NEAR TRIEST

Strong Strategic Position Only Twelve Miles From Austria's Principal Seaport---French Repulse Repeated Attacks.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May .8.—In the region of Chemin des dames the activity of the enemy was concentrated on the Californio plateau where there was a violent bombardment. Attacks in the northeastern part of the plateau were repulsed after very spirited grenade fighting and all our positions were maintained. In the Champagne artillery fighting was intense during the night in the regions of Mount Carnillet and Mount Haut. A surprise attack by the enemy in eastern Aubervie was repulsed. In Lorraine one of our reconnoitering detachments penetrated the adversary's lines near Petoncourt and destroyed a number of defence works. Elsewhere the night was calm.

Italians Capture Duino.

Paris, May 18.—A despatch to La Liberte from Turin reports that the Italian troops have captured the town of Duino. The despatch says an announcement of the taking of this important strategic point will soon be made officially.

The town of Duino is on the Gulf of Triest about twelve miles northwest of Triest, Austria's principal seaport.

Austrians Lose 4,021.

Rome, May 18.—Austrian troops have strongly counter-attacked the Italians in positions they had gained in carrying out their offensive movement. The enemy reaction, however, has failed, the War Office announces.

The prisoners taken by the Italians since Monday now number 4,021. Five additional small-calibre guns have been captured. The Italians have made further progress in their drive, pushing ahead on Mount Vodice and also south of Grazigna, northeast of Gorizia.

SALVATION ARMY WILL CARE FOR WAR ORPHANS

Home to be Established at Ottawa and Toronto For Children Bereft of Parents, Helpless and Unprovided for.

One of the most important war considerations is the looking after the war orphans. Children who have been bereft of father and mother are very much to be pitied and should be cared for well.

The Salvation Army have last week completed arrangements with the Government to establish two homes immediately for this purpose, one in Ottawa and one in Toronto. No doubt others will follow but immediate action is necessary.

The Salvation Army with their efficient staff of trained men and women is going to undertake the care and oversight. It will require, no doubt, a great deal of money and the present Self Denial Effort will assist materially in the grand work.

ROOSEVELT CAN GO TO FLANDERS

SENATE AUTHORIZES HIM TO LEAD VOLUNTEERS TO TRENCHES.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—After a long, tempestuous debate, the Senate passed the army draft bill with the House amendment of last Saturday, which authorizes the President to permit Col. Roosevelt to raise his proposed volunteer army for France. The final vote was 65 to 8. Senators Stone, Norris, La Follette, Kirby, Hardwick of Georgia, Gronna, Gore and Tramwell voted against it.

The bill as passed provides for conscription of men between 21 and 30 inclusive, and raises the soldiers' pay from the present graduated scale of $15 to $21 a month, to $30 to $36 a month.

The bill goes to President Wilson today.

TRY NEW VACCINE.

Health Authorities to Test Whooping Cough Remedy.

The Provincial Board of Health has made arrangements to secure cultures from the New York State authorities for the development of a supply of whooping-cough vaccine, which will be distributed from the Provincial Laboratories in an effort to check the spread of the disease. Ontario is the first province in the Dominion to follow the lead of New York State, where this remedial and preventative measure is reported to have proved very effetcive.

U.S. SOLDIERS ON WAY TO FRONT

STOPPED AT ST. THOMAS AND ARE ROYALLY ENTERTAINED.

ST. THOMAS, May 18.—A royal welcome was given by St. Thomas citizens to three hundred United States soldiers when they made a brief stop-over at the G.T.R.-Wabash station on their way from Chicago to New York, en route to England. The soldiers were under the command of Major C. C. Cothers and Major Frederickerick Reseley, qualified medical graduates of the Chicago University, and included 25 physicians and 56 women nurses. They will sail for England, where they will undergo a short training prior to leaving for France. Miss Eva Silcox of Elgin County was one of the nurses in the unit. The soldiers and nurses were each presented with a British flag and served with a buffet luncheon.

COBOURG HEAVY BATTERY

The eighth draft of the Cobourg Heavy Battery requires a few more men to complete the number This draft should move overseas very shortly, and anyone desiring a quick passage to the front should make application at once. Any information in connection with this unit can be had by writing direct to the Officer Commanding, Cobourg. A number of Peterboro men have already gone overseas through this unit, and there are several on the strength at present.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 18, 1917

THE HIGH LEVEL BRIDGE.

IN EVERY WARD in the city organizations are being formed to bring out the vote on May 31 in support of the bylaw to issue debentures amounting to $280,000 for the purpose of building two bridges across the Otonabee, one at London street and a high level structure at Hunter street It is hard to believe that there are any thinking ratepayers in the city who would vote against the proposed improvement when there is so much involved in the issue. There may be some opposed to the outlay. At all events organization is necessary in order to get out the voters on election day.

Considered altogether apart from the rebuilding of the Quaker Oats plant, the construction of a high level bridge has everything to recommend it. The old structure that has served the purpose so long is now out of date. It does not fulfil the requirements of the present law which provides that all such bridges shall be strong enough to support a weight of ten tons. The fire department is soon to be equipped with a modern motor truck and there is a question as to whether the Hunter street bridge is strong enough to carry such an equipment across in safety

In Ashburnham to be deprived of the advantage of the fire department's services for lack of a proper bridge across the river.

When the residents of Ashburnham agreed to annexation with the city one of the unwritten conditions of the compact was that the East side should be given a street car service and other metropolitan advantages. The car service cannot be extended across the river until a new bridge is built. Ashburnham will never be properly developed, the ratepayers will not be satisfied so long as such service is lacking. The extension of the car line would so increase the assessed value of property on the other side of the river that the additional amount of taxes collected by the city would more than pay the interest on the debentures.

Such a bridge as it is proposed to build at Hunter street will last indefinitely. Posterity will enjoy the advantages just as will the present generations and it is only right to charge those who come after with a portion of the expense.

When the Trent Canal is opened the part of the river that has been dredged will be navigated. A high bridge or one fitted with a swing will be necessary. The Government will have to provide the latter at considerable cost. The chances are that the Department of Public Works will be willing to contribute to the building of a high bridge a sum equal to the amount required to put in a swing in case the old structure remains or another is built at the present level.

The rebuilding of the Quaker Oats plant is predicated upon the city's constructing a high level bridge. The company has issued its ultimatum and the Quaker Oats is an industry which the city cannot afford to lose. If it is built the plant will be bigger and better in every way than it was before the fire. It will employ nearly one thousand hands and this means that the wages paid will support a population of at least 3000 people or more than the total number of residents of Ashburnham, a large town in itself. The daily wages will amount to over $2000, all of which will be spent at home.

Hundreds of skilled workmen will be employed in the rebuilding of the plant at good wages. This and the erection of the bridge will make prosperous times in Peterborough for the mechanics at a time when the close of the war is likely to unsettle industrial conditions.

The erection of the proposed new bridge is a matter on which the development of the city depends. Nothing would so make for the "Greater Peterborough" that public-spirited residents have in mind. Ashburnham is entitled to a share in the benefits that are enjoyed by the residents on the west side.

Who will vote against the bylaw that will be submitted May 31

Certainly not the working classes, to whom the Quaker Oats plant means so much, whether in the process of reconstruction or after it is completed.

Not the business men, for whom a working staff of over one thousand well-paid employes means so much in the way of increased trade.

Not the owners of houses or any kind of real estate the value of which will be increased by the proposed improvement, no matter on which side of the river such property may be located.

It is almost unthinkable that the bylaw will meet with any opposition, but the promoters should not suffer themselves to be caught napping. There is nothing like being prepared.

THE FINISH OF THE SUBMARINE.

UNITED STATES destroyers have reached British waters and will act in concert with the naval forces of the Allies to clear the highways of the seas of the German pirate craft. Japanese gunboats, too, have arrived in the waters surrounding the war zone and will lend their aid in chasing the submarines and acting as convoys to transports and the carriers of commerce. Last week's reports show that the subs of the enemy were less effective than ever, even when the British destroyers dealt with the menace alone. That being the case, the new help from allies beyond the seas is especially significant.

There is ground for hope that the finish of the German submarine is in sight, and that means that the most dangerous factor of all in the war has been successfully dealt with. Everywhere on land the Hun is being driven back toward his own country. The cable every day bears the cheering intelligence of the enemy's reverses. This morning the British, we are told, won an objective point which the Germans have been desperately defending for the past two weeks. France is scoring important successes every day, and the Turks and Austrians are meeting with the same fate as their powerful ally. Russia, it now seems certain, will remain true to the other Entente Powers.

All in all the friends of civilization have every reason to hope that the cause of justice and righteousness will come through the conflict triumphant.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

IT'S NOT NEW VODKA but new freedom that has filled the agitators in Russia.

• • • •

ALL THINGS COME to those who wait, and Ashburnham may yet have a street car service.

• • • •

WHOM THE KAISER would destroy he first makes mad: as witness the sentiment of hostility that he has developed in Russia.

• • • •

IF YOU ARE really in earnest about a "Greater Peterborough," then prove your sincerity by voting for the high level bridge bylaw.

• • • •

WHY DO NOT Lloyd George and John Redmond leave the Home Rule question to the Senate and agitators in this country and settle the matter at once and forever?

• • • •

THE PRICE OF FLOUR in Winnipeg has declined $1.10 a barrel in two days. Has anyone noticed anything like a corresponding decrease in the price of bread?

• • • •

THE MEMBERS of the Imperial Council may have equal authority so far as individual votes are concerned, but the majority will be with England and the majority as usual will rule.

• • • •

"WHAT IS the funniest thing you ever saw?" asks the Chicago News. Here in Peterborough an old-time advocate of reciprocity posing as an embargoist on foodstuffs is about the limit.

• • • •

"WHAT IS the Opposition's policy?" asks the Liberal Woodstock Sentinel-Review. So far as we are able to make out, it is one of waiting without the watching so highly recommended in that connection.

Looking Forward.

(Boston Transcript.)

The Kaiser was taking the ferry for St. Helena, surrounded by his entire staff, Private Schmidt. Seating himself on the deck, he took from his pocket the latest edition of the Frankfurter Zeitung, and a smile of satisfaction overspread his features as he glanced at the headline: "Germany Wins the War."

Fool Standards in U. S., Too.

(New York World.)

Robert Taft, son of the ex-President, has been rejected for war service because of defective sight. In Germany they would have said to him: "Bring duplicate eyeglasses." One reason for the slowness of recruiting is that absurdly high standards of physical perfection are still set up by the military authorities.

The Need of Compulsion.

(Winnipeg Post.)

Voluntary enlistment has almost entirely ceased. That it has been a greater success than we had any right to expect it would be, will be to the eternal credit of those Canadian men who have made up the splendid armies now fighting in France. But we can expect no more from the voluntary system. The demand for men is greater today than it has been in any other stage of the war. That demand is not being met. Thousands of our soldiers are falling in France almost every week. Only scores are being recruited to fill their places. Therefore we must have compulsion and have it at once.

HINTS ON HOW TO PLAY GOLF

(By Charles Evans)

The most common varieties of stance are as follows: The square, the open and the-left-foot-in-front-of-the-right. The square stance seems to be the standard from which all the others vary. In this you stand with feet well apart so that a straight line from toe to toe will be parallel with an imaginary line from the ball to the hole. In the open stance the left foot is placed back of the imaginary line. The-left-foot-in-front-of-the-right, its name describes it, is rarely seen. I have seen it used, however on the tree, or with other wooden shots, but I have never seen a good iron player, with that kind of a stance, for it makes the stroke too rounded for iron play. Some players get a hooked ball by putting the left foot forward and reverse for the slice.

A great many fine players use the square stance entirely, but this also seems too rounded for iron work.

The open stance is generally recognized as the best and its use is almost universal. It permits greater freedom in the use of the arm, and accommodates itself to every detail of the stroke better than either of the other two instances.

I remember once playing very poorly in the tourney, and being worried indeed, and the only thingg that put me back on my game was change of stance. I found that I was playing with my feet too straight. In fact they were olmost too pigeon toed. I pointed my toes ouut and it was just the thing needed for my game. I now believe that the stance with the toes pointed outward is absolutely necessary to teach one to pivot properly. Some excellent players point the tog of one foot, the left if right-handed, keeping the right foot almost straight. I have reduced my game to a system, however and right or wrong, I always play with my toes pointed out. I believe among other advantages that it helps to grip the ground with the hobnails.

While I use the open stance throughout my game it varies slightly with each foot, for instance the stance is almost square in the drive and what may be called wide-open in the mashie chip shot. It is practically the same stance, however, governed largely by a personal feeling of comfort. I believe strongly in uniformity of stance and stroke. Too much energy is wasted in constantly trying for something new.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—In hole to hole competition if a player has made a number of bad shots on a hole and is certain to lose it, is it better to concede the hole or to play it out?

ANSWER—Play the hole out. You have nothing to lose by doing so, and you are likely to make a good shot which will put you in the right frame of mind for the next hole. Whereas if you go to the next tee after a couple of bad shots your mental attitude will not be so good. Sticking to it pays in Golf.

QUESTION— How often should one play to become proficient?

ANSWER—Many a good Golfer is spoiled by playing too much. A good Golfer can get "stale" just as a ball player or a basket-ball player does. Three or four rounds a week are certainly ample. When one's enthusiasm is high he does better.

QUESTION—I do not seem to have any luck with a driving iron and have a tendency to discard it and use a brassy. Can I have just as good success this way?

ANSWER—The one who wants to be a good player should always use the proper club. If your play with a driving iron is weak instead of neglecting it play more with it until you have overcome the fault.

QUESTION—I always seem to get nervous on the grounds. What can I do to overcome this?

ANSWER—Confidence calmness, and control. They are the first requisites of the good golfer. Nerves are fatal. You must exert your power and dismiss from your mind the feeling that you cannot make the shot. Approach the play with confidence.

STYLES IN GARDENING TOGS

"Gardening will never be quite the thing," declared the sensible boarder, "until the style authorities have had time to figure out chic and fetching gardening costumes, and this takes time."

"Gee! That's a pretty conceit!" laughed the cynical boarder. "Imagine the people solemnly putting on gloves, overalls, shoes and official gardening hat as a preliminary to gardening.

"Don't you know that a person never deliberately, cold bloodedly premeditatedly and with malice aforethought goes out and gardens? It's against all reason, it wouldn't be human.

"It's more like this: A fellow all dressed up in patent pumps and best suit of clothes is engaged in manicuring his finger nails when somebody calls from the garden for him to come and see how high the hyacinth is, and then he strolls out, and while among the posies he notes that a petuni is out of time or something, and he starts to fix it, and then he pulls a weed or two, and soon he is groveling in the dirt with his newly manicured fingers, toiling in the sun without the official hat or any other head protection and dragging his patent pumps in the mire."

"Oh, well, that doesn't make much difference," replied the sensible boarder. "He still has the nice gardening boots that have never been worn in the garden, and he can wear them instead of his begardened pumps. All of which shows that, after all, you do need gardening togs to wear when ordinary apparel has been soiled in the garden.

"Gardening togs come in handy, even though you never wear them in the garden, and the less you wear them the handier they are, and if you don't wear them at all they are handiest of all, because you always know exactly where they are and can put your hands right on them when you get up in the middle of the night to cover the little tomatoes and cabbages when they are cold and shivery in their frosty beds.

"Frost has a way of sneaking up in the night, and as every well regulated gardening family keeps a hat, a pair of gloves and a pair of gardening boots on the back porch these things can be picked up without any groping around. You get all the groping around you want feeling for the vegetables. You get all the cool air you want, too, before you have placed the official gardening hat on the last cabbage head and put the last of the tomatoes in the last available shoe.

ANOTHER SLACKER.

That citizen is somewhat phony who hastens into matrimony, that he may dodge the tray; it ought to shame his soul, doggone him, to see how people look upon him, upon his wedding day. Methinks I see him humbly kneeling, his voice all choked with maudlin feeling, before some maiden fair; "The thought," he says, "of doing battle out where the noisy cannon rattle is whitening my hair. So long as I'm remaining single, the chances are I'll have to mingle with men whom I abhor; I have no use for soldiers' labors, I have no use for guns and sabers, I have no use for war. I'd rather hear my neighbors hoot me, than have a husky German shoot me, or prod me with a sword; I'd rather men should call me Rabbit than fall into the beastly habit of being carved or bored. So marry me, sweet Isabella! Have pity on a cringing fellah, who hates the thought of blood, for if you won't avert disaster, by chasing with me to the pastor, my given name is Mud." You'd think the girls would deem him dotty, that they in angry tones and haughty, would order him away; and yet he prospers in his wooing; the girls endure his kind of cooing, and wed him every day.

ONE FORM OF CONSCRIPTION

Speaking in Toronto, Major-General Lessard told his audience that near his home in Meadowvale, Ont., there was a committee for recruiting and other purposes of national service, which had a list of all the eligible men in the district. When recruits were needed these men were called on, as required, and those who did not offer themselves for service were "cut" by the girls, who would not dance with them.

Sliced Pineapple. Tea.

Dinner
Sliced Veal
Creamed Spinach
Nut Bread. Dressed Lettuce
Jam. Shortcake.

Luncheon

Nut Bread.—Mix a cup and a half of sour milk half a cup of molasses, a cup and a half of graham flour, a cup of white flour, a teaspoon each of salt and soda, and a cup of broken nut meats. Bake until done.

Dinner

Creamed Spinach.—Chop fine half a peck of boiled spinach and add to it a cup of cream sauce made with a teaspoon of flour, one of butter and a generous three-quarters of a cup of milk. Season and stir together five minutes and serve.

Dressed Lettuce.—Use only the hearts of lettuce and grate over it two hard boiled eggs. Serve with a mayonaise dressing.

LAYER CAKE

Cream together one cup white sugar, two and one half teaspoons butter, and one cup milk, and flavor with lemon and vanilla. Sift together and add to above two teaspoons baking powder and two scant cups flour. Bake in three layers.

FRUIT DUMPLINGS

Put batter in a greased and well floured biscuit tin, having the top of the batter level. Pour over it about a cupful or more of juicy preserves or stewed fruit, and bake. When baked the fruit will be at the bottom. Serve hot with milk or cream.

APPLE PUDDING

Pare, quarter, and core enough apples to half fill a pudding dish; add about one cup water, and sugar to sweeten. Put the batter on top, and bake. About three-quarters of an hour will cook it. If the apples are hard they can be cooked before adding the batter. Serve the pudding hot, with milk, cream or sauce.

THE BATTER

One cup sugar and butter, the size of an egg creamed together. One cup milk, and two cups flour sifted with two teaspoons baking powder and a quarter teaspoon salt.

SOME BATTER DISHES

The following recipe for batter is sent by one of our readers, Mrs. H. R. H., Ont., who recommends its use in making a number of dishes, some of which we give.

CUP PUDDINGS

Put fruit in cups, about one-third full. Place a heaping teaspoon of batter on top, and steam for about forty-five minutes.

EAT MORE FISH

Sardines, which are known to consumers in Peterboro, as they come to them carefully packed in olive or some other kind of oil, or oil and tomato catsup, owe their name to the fact that they are thought to have originated in the Mediterranian, and were originally found in great quantities off the coast of Sardinia. When the spring comes they are believed to migrate along the coast of Spain, through the Straits of Gibraltar, and up the coast to France, reaching the latter locality about May. The fishing, however, does not commence until July. The roe of the cod is used for bait, and it is said that as many as 100,000 fish are caught in a single net, although this is, of course, exceptional.

White fish and trout are the two kinds of fish which are to be found in the greatest abundance in the waters of the Great Lakes. The white fish prefers the deep waters of the lakes, coming to the shallow portions only for spawning purposes, which is from October to December.

Canada with her lakes and rivers teeming with fish, is admirably situated to meet the situation created by the diminishing supply of animal flesh for food. The Dominion Government shows by means of its exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, something of the value and possibilities of this great resource, as well as giving practical illustrations of how tasty a properly-cooked helping of fish can be made. Fish should come more and more into favor where nourishing food is desired at reasonable prices.

FOOD ECONOMY

The Food Extension Institute, New York City, of which ex-President Taft is the Chairman, in a letter just issued, argues economy in food expenditure by the well-to-do as well as by the poor man, as one of the important measures in the present crisis. The following are recommendations to meet the food situation:—

"1. Economy in food expenditure by the well-to-do. The well-to-do citizen who needlessly destroys food either as a matter of careless waste or in self-indulgence and food dissipation, is unpatriotic.

"2. The country's leaders should consider mobilization of agricultural production and of fuel for the human body. Mobilization of men and factories will be futile unless there is fuel to run the men as well as the factories.

"3. Regulation of food distribution and public knowledge of food stocks. The Government and the people should know where the food is, how much is held, why it is held, if it is held.

The institute recently conducted a diet experiment with a squad of twelve "rookies" from the training school of the New York police department. The men were fed on a satisfying and sustaining diet at the cost of 25 cents a day. The men are said to have been maintained in splendid physical condition. In fact, there is said to have been a gain of twenty-nine pounds in weight in this group during the experiment. The success was attributed entirely to a knowledge of food values.

ELDERLY WOMEN SAFEGUARDED

Tell Others How They Were Carried Safely Through Change of Life.

Durand, Wis.—"I am the mother of fourteen children and I owe my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I was 45 and had the Change of Life, a friend recommended it and it gave me such relief from my bad feelings that I took several bottles. I am now well and healthy and recommend your Compound to other ladies."—Mrs. MARY RIDGWAY, Durand, Wis.

A Massachusetts Woman Writes:

Blackstone, Mass.—"My troubles were from my age, and I felt awfully sick for three years. I had hot flashes often and frequently suffered from pains. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now am well."—Mrs. PIERRE COURNOYER, Box 239, Blackstone, Mass.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness, should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through this crisis.

WORLD LIVES IN "SEA"

Says a correspondent: We crawl about on the bottom of a sea of air. Now we have learned to swim in it We call the performance "flying." The gaseous mixture composing this ocean of air is so fluid and transparent that we hardly realize its presence. Doubtless fishes, in like manner, are not conscious of the water in which they swim. But the air is much denser than we imagine. A small child blows up a toy balloon. Probably the air inside the inflated rubber bag is at a pressure of no more than two atmospheres, yet the balloon has become in effect a solid object that will resist a blow of the fist.

As one climbs a mountain or goes up in a balloon, the air becomes thinner, its density diminishing steadily until perhaps 150 or 200 miles from the surface of the earth there is virtually none of it left. It is reckoned that one-half of the entire bulk of the atmosphere is below the three-mile level. The sea of air is a warm sea, conserving the heat delivered by the sun upon the earth. If it were suddenly removed we should find ourselves exposed to the cold of outer space (466 below the zero of Fahrenheit), and would

HOW TO LIVE ON ONE DOLLAR SIXTY-EIGHT CENTS A WEEK

A Lesson in Economics, Resulting From State Control of Food in England---Much Wanton Waste in Canada.

A Peterborough boy recently landed in England with a Canadian battalion of infantry, is carried away with the beauty of the Old Country, and characterizes the people as indeed a "nation of war." In writing home to his parents he says, "Economic conditions here make me ashamed of the wanton waste of everything in Canada, and I wonder why the people do not wake up to the necessity for conserving all their food supplies. "He then goes on to say that in England the food battle is a phase of the war which is to be waged and won in every house and every street throughout the country and encloses the following weekly bill of fare, drawn up by Food Controller, Mr. E. I. Spriggs, to show how food can be saved:

Food Bill $1.68 Per Week.

Purchases—Bread 15 lb., flour 1½ lb., meat 10 lb., sugar 3 lb., fish 2¼ lb., seven eggs, milk 8¼ quarts, margarine 1½ lb., dripping ½ lb., oatmeal 6½ lb., barley 1 lb., rice 1 lb., lentils and beans 1 lb., potatoes 3½ lb., vegetables 1 lb., tea 6 oz., syrup 1¼ lb., cocoa 2 oz. (stock 5¼ quarts).

Daily Fare—There is bread at each meal, but little or none is eaten at dinner unless there is soup or broth Breakfast: Porridge, margarine, tea, sugar, milk. Tea should only be taken if supper must be late. It includes oatcake, margarine, golden syrup, tea, sugar, milk. Those taking only three meals eat these foods at dinner or supper. Supper: Oatcake, margarine, cocoa, milk, sugar

Other Dishes (breakfast, dinner, tea and supper are shortened to B., D., T. and S.). Sun., B., boiled eggs; D., boiled mutton, white sauce, potatoes, treacle pudding; S., mutton pie. Mon., D., Fish soup, boiled sausages, onions, barley; S., potted meat. Tues., D., hot pot, tapioca pudding; S., cold mutton pie. Wed., D., broth, potted meat, potatoes; S., curried mince, Thurs., D., broth, beefsteak pie, beans; S., stewed mutton. Fri., D., lentil soup, kedgeree, rice; S., curried fish. Sat., D., broth, stewed liver, onions, barley; S., cold mutton.

Potatoes on two days. No meat on Friday. The amounts per head per week of the rationed articles of food are flour (including that in bread) 3 lb., meat 2½ lb., sugar 3-4 lb.

The shilling referred to in the above is equal to 24 cents Canadian money (12 pence English), hence the foregoing menu can be maintained at a cost of but $1.68 per head. And on dipping well into the bill of fare, it will be seen it would really inflict no great hardship; in fact it offers substantial sustenance. And as this ration is calculated to afford sufficient food control to avoid actual want in England until the next harvest, well might Lord Lytton declare that Germany's hope of starving Great Britain by means of submarine warfare was absolutely vain.

An Economic Lesson.

We in Canada might well take a leaf out of England's book on economy and apply it to ourselves. The young soldier referred to on landing in England exclaims, "O, what a state of wanton waste I have left behind me in Canada." Is it not time we realized this, and is not state control of our food a crying need? In England they have learned to economize to the limit and eliminate waste; in Canada we have not yet understood the meaning of the word economy, and are not utilizing our resources to the best advantage. In submarine-girt England they are being taught how to live on $1.68 per week; in Canada, a "land of milk and honey," so to speak, the cost of food is almost prohibitive. Surely it's time for state control of foodstuffs, and the study of economic conditions as applied in England, as arms of war with which to fight the Huns and help our motherland to combat the submarine peril.

OTTAWA'S BIG FAIR

Special Features At The Central Exhibition Sept 1-17

The greatest effort ever is being made by the chairmen and members of the various committees to assure the success of the Central Canada Exhibition Association's Annual Fair at Ottawa, September 8 17, 1917.

The Committee on Grounds and Buildings, of which Controller J. Kent is chairman, will make extensive alterations, including an extension of the main entrance.

The Special Attraction Committee, Mr. Wm. Macdonald, chairman, will visit New York to complete arrangements for special attractions. Besides the many varied vaudeville acts there will be balloon ascension each afternoon and night, aeroplane flights, horse races, and a spectacular forts at Kut-El-Amara, fire-fighting demonstrations by the Ottawa Fire Brigade.

One of the principal features this year will be Government exhibits secured by the Concession Committee, of which Mr. J. W. Brant is chairman. These exhibits will include displays from the department of Indian Affairs, Ottawa Pure Food Show and Household Exhibits, Child's Welfare Exhibit arranged under the supervision of Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Provincial chief officer of health, aided by the Victorian Order of Nurses, of which Lady Foster is president.

In addition to the above the association offers prizes totaling well over $25,000 for live stock and over $9,000 for the light harness horse and trials of speed.

Mme. Galli-Curci, the great soprano, made her initial appearance in Canada at the Massey Hall, Toronto, last night. She sang in four languages, Italian, French, Spanish and English, during which her voice and versatility were emphasized to the fullest extent. A large audience was present.

Amateur Enthusiasts

THE highly creditable presentation of "The Pinafore" in the opera house, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, by local talent clearly demonstrated that Peterborough homes are replete with vocal and instrumental talent of no mean order of merit. While the success of the production was due to the capable manipulation of exceptional amateur talent by clever instructors, still their work was rendered easier to an appreciable degree through a fostering of musical tendencies by home opportunities for satisfying and developing the ear and voice for music. The modern home today must contain music of one sort or another, and young folk demand its presence at all their social gatherings. To the amateur singer and musician Victrolas and such like machines offer the advantage of studying the beauty and correctness of tone and delivery by highly trained vocalists and instrumentalists. To such home advantages we owe the development of a large field of amateur enthusiasts eager and willing to cooperate in the presentation of operas and other musical and dramatic entertainments in a class with many an offering ranking as professional.

Thirty years ago the presence of a piano in a Peterborough home savored of exclusiveness, and the sensibilities of the rank and file of our citizens had not been awakened to a recognition of the talent for publicly entertaining which then lay dormant in them for want of education and home training. It is safe to say that thirty years back amateur productions in Peterborough of such operas as "Pinafore" and the "Geisha," or oratorios like "The Messiah," could not have been produced with any possible hope of filling an opera house like the Grand, two consecutive nights, with appreciative and enthusiastic audiences. Of course, even now, professional direction and instruction is necessary to assure the success of such undertakings; but it is constant home association with, and practice of, music which stimulates young people to emulate the success of professionals, and thus afford material from which to select a worthy amateur company in whose hands instructors can feel safe in leaving the presentation of popular operatic and dramatic successes.

AN ART WONDER.

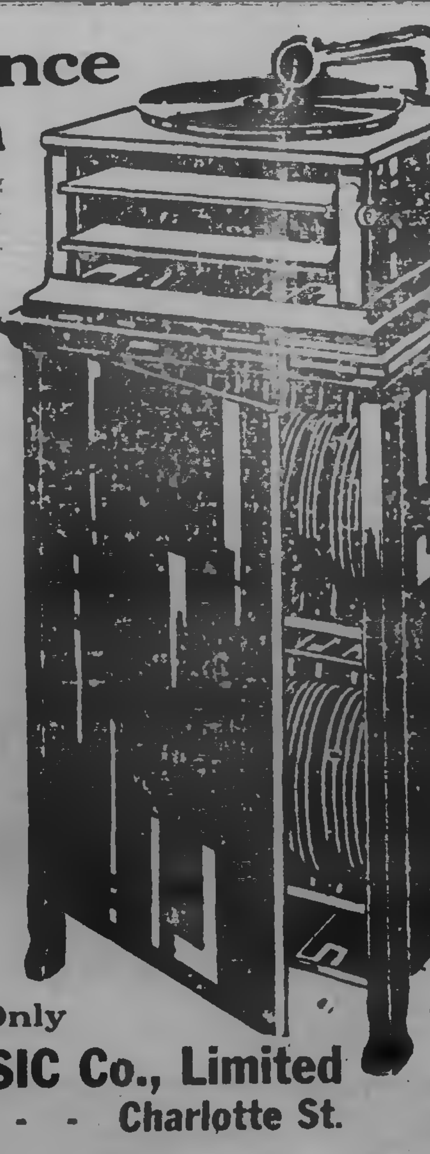
The Maester-Art-Pan Player in J. M. Green Co.'s music store last week attracted much attention and wonder. The instrument is electrically driven by means of attachment to an ordinary electric light socket. It plays the compositions of great masters with a marvellous correctness of tone and expression.

The United States has given a total credit of $670,000,000 to the allies.

A GREEK SLAVE.

The Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Company present on May 24th (matinee and night) and on the evening of May 25th, in the Grand opera house, the merry musical comedy "A Greek Slave." This production by local talent, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, is eagerly looked forward to as a coming success.

Big contracts were awarded by the U. S. Army and Navy Departments.



Grasp This Fine Chance to Own a Grafonola

It's a long time since we could make this offer, and judging by the difficulty in getting Grafonolas—due to the unprecedented demand for them—it will be a long time, if ever, before we can make an offer as good again.

To-morrow we will take orders for

This Splendid Outfit—Grafonola and Record Cabinet—Just as Illustrated, for $32

As a home entertainer the Grafonola stands supreme, and the instrument here illustrated is a Grafonola of unusual merit, having all the features of instruments of two and three times the price, such as new bayonet-joint Tone Arm, Columbia Tone Control Leaves, Columbia Reproducer, Graduated Dial, Speed Regulator, Start and Stop Device, etc., etc. This Grafonola has powerful motor, plays two selections with one winding, beautiful oak case, with handsome panel door Record Cabinet to match for holding records.

No Down Payment Required On This Outfit To-Morrow
If You Will Purchase Eight Records From Us

All that we ask is that you buy eight records, costing you only $6.80, which gives you 16 selections of your own choosing. We will deliver the outfit complete at once, and you can pay for instrument afterward in small weekly sums.

CENTRE WARD RATEPAYERS

TO ORGANIZE AND WORK FOR THE BRIDGE BYLAW.

A meeting of Centre Ward ratepayers and citizens generally is called for Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, in Ald. Dobbin's office in the Patriotic Rooms, Simcoe street. The object is to organize, like the North and East Wards, and work in support of the high-level bridge bylaw. A large attendance is urged as Peterborough's interests are imperatively calling for the construction of this bridge, the main condition upon which the Quaker Oats Co. will rebuild on their old site.

Two alleged rebel agitators were arrested in Ireland.

OBITUARY

MRS. HOWARD SHURTER.

The many friends of Mrs. Howard Shurter will regret to learn that she passed away at 5.15 this morning after a long illness. Deceased lady's maiden name was Anna Bell Kinkaid, and she was born in Cincinnatti, Ohio; she had been a resident in Peterborough for 15 years. Her death is mourned by her husband and four children, Emma and Vernon at home; James in the Northwest; and Mrs. Norman Harper, 586 Sherbrooke street, city. The funeral will be conducted by Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of Knox Church, at 2.30 Sunday afternoon, and interment will take place in the Little Lake Cemetery.

MARGARET PATTERSON.

The death occurred yesterday of Margaret Stewart, wife of Mr. James Patterson, this city. Deceased lady is survived by her husband, five daughters and one son as follows: Mrs. Haggart, Meadville, Penn.; Mrs. Jeffrey, Carnegie, Penn.; Mrs. R. H. Hatley, Toronto; Mrs. J. H. Connel, Peterborough; Miss Robena Patterson, in the West, and Mr. Stewart Patterson, of Toronto. Deceased had reached the ripe age of 77. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MRS. MALCOLM McINTYRE.

Mrs. Malcolm McIntyre, wife of ex-Ald. Malcolm McIntyre, passed away at her home, 443 Mark street, Ashburnham, last night after a lingering illness. Deceased lady was 42 years of age, and was born in Otonabee, her maiden name being Eva Howson. She had lived in Peterborough and vicinity all her life, during which she enjoyed the esteem and respect of a large circle of friends and acquaintances. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Howson of this city; her husband and three children—Elva, Violet and Lorne, three sisters, Mrs. I. Kindred and Maude of Peterborough; and Minnie of Calgary; and two brothers, William at home and Harry of Lampman, Saskatchewan. The funeral will take place to the Little Lake Cemetery, tomorrow afternoon at 2.30. Service at the family residence at two o'clock. Rev. Mr Whattam of Mark Street Methodist Church will officiate.

J. McLAUGHLIN.

J. McLaughlin, formerly of Havelock, who has been living at Mount Dennis for the past six months, died at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Western Hospital, Toronto, after an illness of only three hours. Dr. H. F. Sproule, who was called, decided that an inquest was unnecessary, death being due to uremic poisoning following Bright's disease, from which the deceased had been suffering. The body will be sent to Havelock for interment.

ONE OF THE FIRST TO JOIN THE 24th

HARD TIMES TAR, BUT GOOD WORK BY CANADIANS IN FRANCE.

The work of the Canadian Kitchener League in sending socks to gallant boys at the front is highly appreciated as evidenced in the two following letters:—

"France

Dear Ladies: I am very glad to say that I have just received the very welcome present of socks you were so kind to send to us from Peterboro. I am sure we all thank you very much for your kindness in thinking of us, and I hope we will be able to do our little bit out here in return for your kindness. I am very glad to say I was one of the first to join the 24th in Peterboro, and I have been with them ever since. The Canadians are doing some good work out here, although they have had some hard times but we can only hope thta the war will not last another twelve month. I guess I will have to close now. Again thanking you for your kindness.

I remain,
A true Peterboro boy.
ALF. HUDSON."

"France.

Dear Ladies: I am sending you these few lines to tell you that I received the parcel of socks which were addressed to me, and on behalf of the boys who got a pair out of the parcel I wish to thank you very much. I can assure that the boys out here certainly appreciate the grand work of your league. Wishing you every success in your good work.

I remain,
G. L. PETTY."

WIN THE WAR CONVENTION

The programme for the Win the War Convention has been completed and promises to be a very attractive one and one that will make history.

The Executive Committee meet in Montreal on Monday Morning next, when they, together with any other delegates to the convention will become the guests of the Province of Quebec, and will be taken in autos over the new Quebec-New York high- to the City of Three Rivers. This will be the inauguration of this new highway, of which the Province of Quebec is so justly proud—just a lap ahead of the Province of Ontario in this respect. The first meeting of the executive will be held in the afternoon of Monday, when an outline programme for the convention will be decided on.

A banquet will be given in the evening by the City of Three Rivers. On Tuesday the trip in autos will be continued to the city of Quebec, where the party will be the guests of the city. The second meeting of the executive will be held in the afternoon and a banquet in the evening. The party will then return by the Montreal-Quebec boat, arriving in Montreal on Wednesday in time for the opening of the Convention. The railways will grant the usual reduction rates for all conventions numbering over 300, which is one fare return. Any person desiring to attend the convention as a delegate can do so by applying to Mr. Frank Dobbin, at the patriotic rooms on Simcoe Street, who will give the necessary certificates. Of course, in voting at the convention each province will have a proportionate vote according to population.

Mrs. Malaprop in an Air-raid

THAT the redoubtable Mrs. Malaprop, with her charming array of misused terms, did not pass with Sheridan is evidenced by a recent account appearing in Tit-Bits, purporting to be a recital of the incidents of an air-raid as it would be done by that gay and affable lady. She has lost none of her ease at inept expression, even though the shock of the zeppelin's visit was disturbing, and though, it may be surmised, most of her nerves were considerably unstrung. We gather a full realization of this deadly instance of Teuton frightfulness when we hear the dear lady remark:

"I am not, my dear Lydia, congenially nervous, but ever since this terrible catechism has overwhelmed Europe I have been a prey to torpid apprehensions. Thinking that dissection was, after all, the better part of valor, I consulted the place-names in a gasalier and removed my household penances—pardon this classical illusion—to a quiet provisional town fifty miles from the busy necropolis. Here, I facilitated myself, no zeppelins were likely to perpetuate their murderous deeds. My conclusions have proved sadly farinaceous. I have just precipitated in a zeppelin raid that may be hysterical in days to come. As I do not wish to be paralyzed by the censer, I refrain from giving exquisite geographical details, and will content myself with a general perversion of the alarming experience I have had.

"I had retired to bed about ten o'clock on Saturday night, when I was thrown into a state of permutation by the sound of some powerful mesmerism traveling through the air. I had just raised a pious partition that this might not be a hostile airship, when my solidity was broken in upon by a loud tabu on my bedroom door. With frenzy eligible in her face, my maid Jane entered. Imperiled as she was in white robes hastily snatched from her bedclothes, she looked like Casabianca predicting the fall of ancient Troy. She declared that a zeppelin of compendious size was cruising overhead.

"I hastily dressed, and illuminated every peep of light in the house. Then, in darkness, and trembling with aggravation, we slipped out to the front porch to await possible devilments. We could easily make out the general outline of a giant airship, cynical in shape, with blunted ends. Beneath the huge body we could dimly descry the gorgonzolas that hold the wicked evaders. One of their terrible missives fell near our house, exploding with a deafening discussion and a dazzling polytechnical display. The crash, Lydia dear, must have been edible in London itself. I rushed with Jane—both of us on the verge of asterisks—to the seller beneath the kitchen. Five times in all we heard bombs explode with ear-splitting fumigations. Then the door-bell was rung perennially by a special constable, who cautioned us for leaving the front door open. He told us that the chief damage done was wrought on a three-story temperament that had been struck by a defamatory bomb. The local fire-brigade had been moralized to deal with this confabulation.

"Plucking up courage, we posted ourselves at an upper window, from which we had a pantomimic view of the heavens. The spectacle was one that roused my marital spirit. Shells were bursting around the monster, and cavalcades of little stars streamed like meters down the sky. Some of our gallant little monograms, too, had appeared on the scene, and were flying above the zeppelin at an amazing attitude. The enemy, realizing that the situation was vicarious, was seeking to escape, but his object was filtrated. Suddenly an anonymous cheer from the onlookers announced a hit. With astonishing felicity, tongues of flame began to leap from the monster's body, and within a few minutes the great vessel was in a hopelessly inebriate condition—its stem being broken. It fell from the skies, as Shakespeare says, 'like Luther, never to rise again.'

"In the morning I visited the scene along with hundreds of others in quest of momentums. The field where the wreck fell was strewn with half-insinuated material that was being sifted by a savage corps of military. I was lucky in securing a fairly large piece of that light metal albumen, which I have ordered to be made into two immature drinking-cups. One of these I shall send you, dear Lydia, as an intangible remembrance of our escape."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

IN THE SCHOOL LEAGUE.

South Centrals and Alexandras the Winners Yesterday.

The South Central and King Edward teams of the Junior school series were the contestants yesterday afternoon in a game of baseball which took place on the King Edward grounds. The former team won by a score of 8 to 4. The batteries were: For King Edward—Manley and Howden For South Central, Fuller and Pethick.

The game was umpired in a satisfactory manner.

The Queen Alexandra school grounds yesterday afternoon was the scene of a hotly contested game of baseball. The score being 3 to 2 in favor of the Alexandras, their opponents being the Central school team.

The batteries for Central were Gilchrist and Jordan, and for Queen Alexandra, Stevens, Turner and MacNabb.

Mr. McNeely umpired to the satisfaction of both teams and the "rooters."

NEW YORK, May 18.—Directum I., 1.56¾, world's famous harness horse and holder of many turf records, will be an added consignment to the Billings trotters at the public sale here on June 6.

"I'm afraid," said the junior member of the law firm, "that we are causing our client unnecessary trouble."

"Oh, that's all right," rejoined the senior member, "we'll charge him for it."

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

The great European war has served as a means of greatly popularizing baseball, not only in England, but in France. John G. Lee, secretary of the recently in the United States, and made several calls upon President Tener and other baseball officials in New York. Mr. Lee stated that the war had done for baseball on the continent what no other agency could have effected. The presence of many Canadians and a few from the United States has made baseball the most popular means of recreation that could be enjoyed by troops on furlough or at home in a condition of convalescence. Mr. Lee's trip to America was to study the conditions of the sport, its rules, and methods of competition in leagues and organizations. He stated that there was little probability of the formation of profesional organiaions during the life of the war, but he firmly believed when peace was restored that France and England would establish professional baseball. President Tener, on behalf of the National league donated a trophy to the British baseball association, an amateur organiation, to be played for annully. Competition for this cup will be on the principle of elimintion, as no season schedule can be arranged now, and the games will be played in the interest of the Red Cross. The National league will also donate quite a number of baseballs for use in the Red Cross Games, while the firm manufacturing most of the balls used in this country will also give the British association a large number.

BETTING ON RACES

Social Reformers Ask Sir Robert Borden To Stop It.

OTTAWA, May 17. — That race track gambling, book making, and betting generally on the tracks be put out of business was urged upon Sir Robert Borden by Rev. Dr. Shearer and Rev. T. Albert Moore, of the social service congress. They were courteously received, but got no definite promise.

Mr. Shearer said afterward that horse racing is not aimed at or even harmless bets, but the "business" of betting. He maintained that it is not at all vital to racing.

She—I see they've invented another automatic machine that takes the place of a man, but they'll never invent a machine that could take the place of a woman.

He—Oh, I don't know; there's the phonograph.

WHY NOT KEEP YOUNG?

Spirit of Youth ever Present for Those Who Wish It

Many a father has donned the skates he never thought to use again, and many a mother has joined in the fun of tobogganing with all the forgotten zest of youth. And after a delicious hour in the country air, how many have not declared the exercise to have made them feel quite young again? asks Susan Sage. The pity of it is that this invigorating feeling of youth is so seldom the portion of older people. Why do we with one accord, when the milestone of thirty is passed, resignedly set our feet on the track of middle age and turn our faces away from youth's pleasures and pursuits? The spirit of youth is ever present for those who wish to share it. It is the genuine desire to remain young that creates youth and gives one a healthy, broad minded outlook on life.

Casserole Recipe

One and one half pounds stewing veal, 1 cup of cut onions, 2 cups of cut carrots, 2 cups small potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon caramel, 1 tablespoon cut parsley. Wash put the meat in casserole dish with the onion, carrot, potatoes, seasoning and 1 cup boiling water, cover and put in hot oven. After 30 minutes reduce the heat of oven; bake 1 1-2 hours; add enough water to make 1 cup of gravy; mix the flour with a little cold water and add to the gravy; add the caramel. Sprinkle with the parsley and serve in casserole dish. This can be baked Saturday and reheated Sunday.

Roll Pudding

When putting the bread sponge into loaves, make a pan of plain rolls from the bread sponge, and when light bake in a moderate oven. About 15 or 20 minutes before dinner is served make a sauce of 1 pint water, 2 tablespoons fruit syrup and sugar to taste. Thicken with 2 tablespoons cornstarch wet with a little water. Pour over the rolls, then put in the oven and let simmer until the sauce is slightly thickened, adding more sauce if necessary, that is, if the first pouring all soaks at once into the rolls. Serve with cream and sugar.

German front, both north and south of St. Quentin, has greatly increased. The town of St. Quentin itself, which has been gradually burning for the last few weeks is now overhung with heavy smoke clouds. These facts are considered indications of a retreat, being similar to those which preceded the last retreat in which the Germans left a vast area of devastation.

ALGONQUIN PARK.

Only 200 miles north of Toronto is beautiful Algonquin Park. With an altitude of 2000 feet above the sea level the air is pure and bracing. RUSSIA WILL NOT DESERT ALLIES

NO RUSSIAN OFFICER HIGH IN COMMAND TO BE ALLOWED TO RESIGN WHILE WAR LASTS

Minister of War Says Country is in Danger and All Classes Must Unite to Avert Peril—New Cabinet is Formed.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 19. — Minister of War Kerensky has issued the following order to the army:

"The country is in danger. Each one must do what he can to avert the peril. No request to be allowed to resign, made by officers in high command with a desire to escape responsibility at a time so grave, will be accepted. Deserters are enjoined to return to the army and fleet by May 28th. All infractions of this order will be severely punished."

After a conference with the Government, the Duma committee and council of deputies, the commanding generals returned to the front.

The government and democratic parties have agreed to distribute new cabinet portfolios as follows: Premier and Minister of the Interior, Prince Lvoff; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Terestchenkk; Commerce and Industry, Konovaloff; State Controller, Godneff (Socialist); Labor, Skobeloff; Justice, Pereveiszeff; Food and Supplies, Pieschehonoff (Socialist); War and Marine, Kerensky; Finance, Shingaroff; Posts and Telegraphs, Tsereteili; Ways and Communications, Nekrasoff; Education, Maruiloff. Professor Grimm and Prince Skaznovsky are also members. Milukoff has refused to accept the education portfolio because he disapproves of the projected foreign policy of the Government.

The Government expresses its conviction that the Russian army will not suffer the Germans to destroy Russia's western allies.

SOLDIERS PLAY BASEBALL WHILE WAITING ORDERS

Canadian Corps Is in Excellent Health and Ready for Any Duty.

DRAFTS ARE ARRIVING.

Troops Get a Breathing Spell Before the Next Big Offensive.

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Headquarters in France, May 19.—While the battle to the south between the Canadian front and Scarpe rages and the steady roll of artillery shows the increasing intensity of the struggle, on our front the only important action undertaken today was the destruction of the German defensive works south-west of Lens. Apart from this special artillery activity and counter-battery work, which has been carried on steadily throughout the week, when the weather conditions have been favorable, the last few days have been extremely quiet. The enemy's guns have been silent, or have fired only a few rounds, while his infantry seeks to lead an unobtrusive life.

The Canadian infantry also are having a breathing spell. There is not so much work to be done on the roads as during the spring break-up. An epidemic of baseball exists at the rest camps, and it extends well up to the front. The corps commander gave encouragement to the fans by attending a game between the signals and supply column, and other officers are also glad to see the play, now that they have a little leisure The effect on the spirit of the troops is excellent. No duties are left undone because of the introduction of baseball games and other outdoor sports.

Drafts of men are constantly arriving from England to take the places of those put out of action in the recent operations. They are being thoroughly drilled under the actual conditions which they will be called upon to face when the forward movement is resumed.

Sickness is reduced to a minimum, and altogether the Canadian corps is in good health, fit and prepared for any work that may be given it.

AUSTRIAN FLEET CHASED TO COVER BY THE ALLIES

One British Cruiser Torpedoed Reaches Port—Enemy Ship Damaged.

LONDON, May 19.—The British Admiralty announces that fourteen drifters had been sunk in a raid by Austrian light cruisers in the Adriatic Sea, and that the British light cruiser Dartmouth was torpedoed in a subsequent engagement with the Austrian warships, but reached port safely.

The text of the statement reads:

"The Admiralty announces that from reports received from the Rear-Admiral commanding the Adriatic squadron, supplemented by the Italian official communication, it appears that early Tuesday morning an Austrian force, consisting of light cruisers, subsequently reinforced by destroyers, raided the allied drifter line and succeeded in sinking fourteen British drifters, from which, according to the Austrian communication, 72 prisoners were taken.

"His Majesty's ship Dartmouth, with the Italian Rear-Admiral aboard and H. M. S. Bristol, immediately chased the enemy off assisted by French and Italian destroyers. The chase continued with the enemy under heavy and continuous fire until near Cattaro, when, some enemy battleships coming out in support of their cruisers, our vessels drew off.

Foe Cruiser Badly Damaged

"Italian airmen, after a battle in the air, attacked the Austrian warships outside Cattaro, and confidently affirm that one of the enemy's cruisers was on fire and being taken in tow off cattaro in a sinking condition. One other of the enemy's cruisers was reported by the British Admiral as badly damaged.

"During her passage back the Dartmouth was struck by a torpedo from an enemy submarine, but returned into port with three men killed, one officer and four men missing and believed to be dead, and seven wounded. There were no other casualties to our ships."

U. S. TROOPS TO GO TO FRANCE AT ONCE

President Wilson has directed that an expeditionary force of approximately a division of regular troops (from 25,000 to 28,000), under command of Major-Gen. John J. Pershing, proceed to France at as early a date as practicable. Gen. Pershing and staff will precede the troops.

SELECTIVE DRAFT TO RAISE ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN FOR DUTY IN THE TRENCHES

Conservative Members Cheer Wildly When Premier Borden Announces Conscription For Canada---Sir Wilfrid Laurier Refuses to Commit Himself, Awaiting Details.

OTTAWA, May 19.—"It is my duty to announce to the House that early proposals will be made on the part of the Government to provide by compulsory military enlistment on a selective basis such reinforcements as may be necessary to maintain the Canadian army in the field as one of the finest fighting forces in the Empire," said Sir Robert Borden Friday at the conclusion of one of the most momentous statements which a Canadian Prime Minister has ever addressed to the House of Commons. He said: "The number of men required will not be less than 50,000 and will probably be 100,000. These proposals have been formulated. In part they will be presented to the House with the greatest expedition that circumstances will permit. I hope that when they are submitted all the memebrs of the House will receive them with a full sense of the greatness of the issue involved in this war, and with deep realization of the sacrifice that we have already made, of the purpose for which it had been made, and with a firm determination that on our part we will do our duty in this struggle to the very end, whatever it may be."

A Two Hours' Speech.

It had been anticipated that the Prime Minister would make an important pronouncement upon the results of his recent visit to England, and the gallery of the chamber was filled by an expectant audience. It had not been made known, however, that the Government's plan for dealing with the recruiting situation would be divulged. The announcement came at the close of a speech which occupied two hours in delivery. It was preceded by a careful analysis of war conditions leading up to the Prime Minister's conclusion that the conflict would not be ended this year, and that a great effort still lay before the allied nations.

Canada's Part in Struggle

Then, speaking with deep earnestness, Sir Robert turned to the question of Canada's future part in the struggle. "I think," he said, "that no true Canadian, realizing all that is at stake in this war, can bring himself to consider with toleration or seriousness any relaxation of our efforts." Everything had been done, it seemed to him, along the lines of voluntary enlistment, and now, it was apparent that the voluntary system would not yield further substantial results. Hence he concluded, "the time has come when the authority of the State should be invoked to provide reinforcements necessary to sustain the gallant men at the front, who have held the lines for months, and who have proved themselves more than a match for the best troops the enemy could send against them, and who are now fighting in France and Belgium that Canada may live in the future." The Prime Minister's declaration of policy created a scene in the Commons which will long be remembered. Conservative members leaped to their feet to cheer and applaud, and the spectators in the gallery joined in the demonstration. On the Opposition side of the House it was received in silence, save by Dr. Michael Clark, of Red Deer, Hon. A. K. Maclean, Dr. Cash, and George McCraney, of Saskatchewan, who joined in the applause. The Prime Minister gave no outline of the Government's scheme, and on that ground Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. William Pugsley, who took part in the debate, refrained from taking any definite position. The leader of the Opposition asserted the determination of himself and his followers to see that Canada remained in the conflict until the finish, but decided to await the promised Government proposals before expressing his views as to the method to be adopted to fill the ranks of the expeditionary force Mr Pugsley suggested that it might be unwise to empower a party Government to select those men who should go to the front and those who should stay at home It is understood that the Government's scheme provides for a classification of eligible men, according to their age and lack of dependants and also contemplates the establishment of authorities to decide whether or not persons fit for military duty will be more useful to the State in essential industries or in the field.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 19, 1917

CONSCRIPTION AT LAST.

PREMIER BORDEN announces that the Government has decided to resort to conscription or the selective draft in order to raise an additional one hundred thousand men for service overseas. This will be welcome news to the country, from whom a cry for conscription has been heard for the past year. The only ground on which to base a criticism of the Government is that the matter has been delayed so long.

It has not yet been made clear what method is to be employed by the Government, but it is apparent that the new force to be raised is not for home defence duty. The wastage of war is to be replaced, and the army of Canadians in the trenches kept up to full strength.

It has been claimed that there is at present a law on the statute books—the Militia Act—endorsed by the Laurier Government in 1904, under which it is possible to draft men for overseas service, all that is required to set the Act in operation being an Order-in-Council. If this is really the situation, then the foundation for the draft has already been laid and the machinery set in motion. The different militia units that have been established at various centres can now be recruited to strength. The men who can best be spared for military service will be taken; those most needed at home will be left behind. It is a fair and just method. No man drafted can regard his selection as a hardship or a disgrace, no more than can the man who is chosen for jury duty or any other public service. The militia officers themselves will welcome the new order. In the local field the voluntary system has broken down, either for the overseas service or for home defence. In something like two months only three have volunteered for home defence, and one of these has at his own request been transferred to the overseas branch of the service. In the meantime, the expense of organization continues. No officer is satisfied to work under such conditions.

There is no doubt of the popularity of the selective draft in all the provinces of the Dominion with the possible exception of Quebec, and even there it is a moot question. One of the arguments usually advanced against compulsion has been that the people of Quebec would never stand for it. On the other hand, it has been contended by leaders and newspapers in that province that the majority there would welcome conscription, as all that they desired was an equalization of the burdens imposed by the war.

Premier Borden has decided upon this course after a personal investigation of the situation in Europe. He learned at first hand how the Canadian battalions at the front are being depleted by the ravages of war. He shared with everyone at home the knowledge that the voluntary system has run its course. There was only one alternative for the Government, and that has been accepted. The war situation so far as Canada is concerned is certainly grave. It calls for decisive and effective administrative action, and this is to be taken. There will be no question as to either the wisdom or the popularity of the decision that Sir Robert Borden has just announced.

The Conservative newspapers of the country, and especially those in Ontario, have taken the lead in urging conscription upon the Government. No leading Liberal organ has done more than hedge on the question, calling, like The Examiner, for effective action, whatever that may have implied, without furnishing any specifications. Here at least is a case where the Opposition cannot attempt to steal credit or assert that they hav forced the hand of the Govnrnment. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, particularly among his own race, has always been frankly outspoken against conscription, and his journalistic supporters, lacking a lead, were left floundering in deep water.

If there is a general election in the near future, or any time before the war is over, conscription would be the main issue, and that alone would be sufficient to carry the Government back to power. In the meantime the Opposition will no longer be able to indulge in vague criticism of the Administration's war policy. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers will now be obliged either to support compulsion or to take sides against it.

For the past two years the Government has conscripted the wealth of the country by imposing a special tax upon business profits, and this tax is to be increased. Now a levy is to be made upon the country's man power.

NO LONGER A BLUFF.

COL. P. E. BLONDIN, addressing a recruiting meeting at Quebec the other night, threatened his hearers with that old bogey man, conscription. "Do not wait," he said to them, "until you are forced to go, but come with me now."

A member of the Dominion Government should certainly be in a position to talk with something like authority on this matter. But it seems to us that we have heard that kind of talk before. It sounds like the speeches that used to be made at recruiting meetings in this city when as a final argument the speaker took the conscription skeleton out of the closet and paraded it before the audience. The bluff, as it was generally regarded, always failed of the desired effect. The young men evidently thought the unsightly framework of bones as harmless as it was inert, and failed to be moved. Col. Blondin's threat of compulsion is no longer part and parcel of what we have so often heard at home. The skeleton becomes a living object. Conscription is no longer a myth, but a formidable entity.

The Toronto Star, in a first page double column article Wednesday night, takes the stand that the Militia Act as it appears on the statute books is all that is necessary to enable the Government to put conscription in force by an Order-in-Council. That Act, too, is comprehensive enough to provide that all men drafted under its authority may be sent anywhere out of the country if national defence calls for their service abroad.

The Review took that stand as much as two months ago, when the order was first issued to recruit the militia. It was contended that any man enlisting in the C. D. F. could, by Order-in-Council, be sent to France if the Government decided that national safety called for such a course. If men of the proper age fail to volunteer for the militia, they can be drafted, as the law now stands, and no further legislation is required. The Star says:

> In some quarters the idea prevails that under the Militia Act, troops cannot be called upon to serve outside Canada unless they volunteer for such service. In raising forces the Government may draft the men required if they do not volunteer, and may send them overseas. Section 69 of the Act says:
> "The Governor-General may place the militia, or any part thereof, on active service anywhere in Canada, and also beyond Canada, for the defence thereof, at any time when it appears advisable so to do by reason of emergency."
> Instead of using the word "conscription," many prefer to use the term "selective draft," and it seems to be the proper term, because draft is the word used throughout the Militia Act, and selection is the method employed under its provisions. Some say that the enforcing of the Militia Act will not meet the needs of the case, because it is not necessary to reinforce the Canadians now fighting in the war, but to organize the essential industries of the country. This is true, but if the Militia Act can be put into operation, and if the men are drafted for war, this can be done with the other need in view, and with that kind of drafting going on resistance will disappear to whatever further organization may be necessary for the good of the country.
> Fear is expressed that Quebec will not stand for the enforcement of the Militia Act. But Quebec, like the rest of Canada, made the law, helped draw it up and concurred in its provisions. Let us assume, as we have a right to, that all Canadians will accept this equitable plan of raising necessary forces.
> Fear is expressed also that political opponents of the Government will seek to derive advantage from this action, if the Administration takes it. We think not. The Militia Act, from the provisions of which we are quoting, is the Act passed in 1904 when the Liberal party was in office, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier as Prime Minister. The law was drawn up and enacted for use in such an emergency as this; it has the endorsation of both political parties; the need for its immediate enforcement is evident, and the Government ought to put it into effect and rely confidently on the press and people of the country to uphold it in that action.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Montreal's Disgrace.

(Mail and Empire.)

The Blondin recruiting party got good receptions in rural Quebec, but the Montreal meeting was stormy. Perhaps it is unsafe to judge Quebec Province by the hoodlums and disloyalists of Montreal.

"What Does Count."

(Montreal Gazette.)

"What does count," declared M. Viviani, "is that every citizen should remember that before belonging to any political party he owes allegiance to his country." The advice is sound, especially in circumstances like the present.

Burning Thoughts.

(Montreal Star.)

The weather man talks about an "accumulated deficiency in temperature" this month. This may be scientific talk, but it completely fails to express the sentiment of the man who still has to keep his furnace burning.

Elasticity.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

No matter what the Lord's Day Alliance may dictate in regard to farming or gardening on Sunday, during the present war period its pursuit or otherwise on that day will remain a matter of individual conscience, as in many other less important matters. And consciences are wonderfully elastic.

When Sir Robert Refused.

(London Free Press.)

The Hamilton Herald says Sir Robert Borden has also placed himself in opposition to conscription. The Herald will remembr that when the Dominion Trades and Labor delegation demanded a promise from the Government that conscription would not be enforced, Sir Robert refused emphatically to give such an undertaking.

No Need to Take Over C. P. R.

(Buffalo Express.)

The suggestion that the Canadian Government should take over the Canadian Pacific has received the scant consideration it deserves. It would be too gigantic an undertaking financially. All three commissioners investigating the railway situation agreed that the Canadian Pacific is able to look after itself and that it is giving good service.

PREMIER USED HIS KNIFE

An interesting story about Premier Borden has come over in a letter from Capt. Maines Military Y.M.C.A. secretary, at Bramshott Camp, England.

"The Premier was inspecting some troops of the 6th Brigade, and while the review was on, he writes, one of the staff officers came over and asked us if we could serve some of the party with tea if they should come in. We said 'right away,' and so they filed in and we thought the line would never end. There were twenty or more—Sir Robert Borden, General Turner, General Meighen, Lord Beaverbrook, Col. de Salis, Col. Rattray and other staff officers. By-the-by, we had just had the mess rooms newly papered, washed, and new curtains put up a few days before. We were a little short of teaspoons, however, so at the suggestion of General Turner Sr Robert stirred his tea with his knife. It kept us on the go for a few minutes serving some twenty of them with tea, bread and butter, and cake and jam.

"Sir Robert complimented the Y.M.C.A. on its splendid work. I told him of the concerts, lectures, religious services, writing, etc., in which he seemed very much interested. General Turner took me by the hand, and holding it, very warmly indeed expressed his appreciation, mentioning the work 'right up to the front lines in France.'"

HOW TO LEARN TO SWIM

Now that the bathing season is near every boy and girl in the city has an ambition to learn to swim. The following hints from an acquatic expert may be found useful.

Two summers ago, Vera Stedman, the well-known actress, couldn't swim a stroke, now she is one of the most wonderful girl divers and swimmers in the United States. She has attracted attention from athletes all over the country.

Miss Steadman has an easy explanation for her extraordinary rapid progress.

"Most girls—and men, too—make the big mistake of learning to swim with the breast stroke. I can't imagine why such a stroke is ever taught for any reason. It crooks back your neck like a horse with a tight check-rein; you can't make any progress; when you bring up your legs to kick, you lose all the impetus you gained.

There is only one real stroke worth while in swimming—that is the American crawl. Years ago this used to be regarded only as a stroke for finished swimmers and even then only to be used for short distance swimming; but athletes have now learned that it is a good long distance and any purpose stroke. It is the first stroke I learned.

"The way I began was down at the beach. I used to se the boys swimming around and they were all swimming the crawl stroke. I didn't know any other way, so I learned from watching them. The first stroke I ever took in the water was with the crawl and I was a good swimmer before I ever learned any other way. Of course, I can swim dozens of strokes now, but I learned them all after the stroke that is popularly supposed to be the post-graduate course in swimming.

"The funny part is that the crawl is the most natural and the simplest method.

"You must naturally reach out and claw the water in toward you the way animals swim. The only thing that is a little puzzling at first is the management of your feet. You don't kick as with other strokes. You just keep your legs straight out and wobble your feet up and down a little—straight up and down in the water. Your feet probably help you a little in making progress, but the main purpose in the foot motion is to keep your feet and legs near on the surface of the water. The motion is accomplished with your hands.

"One of the best ways to learn to swim is to hold on to a boat or a piece of a wharf with your hands while you learn to paddle with your feet. One good method is to get a surf board and hold yourself up with that while you learn to use your feet.

Victim of Grave Injustice Explains

"Will your esteemed paper give me a little space to-day so that I may correct a wrong impression that is doing me a grave injustice?" Jude Johnson, of Achison, asks of the Globe. "They are telling about that when I was in the Civil War I deserted the Union army. That is untrue. During the big battle I left the front line of trenches because someone shouted that the brewery back of our lines was on fire, but I did not desert. I have always felt it to be my duty to save property from destruction."

Three Ways To Help

Any American can help his country now in numberless little ways, but the best ways to help, in the light of the present, are three:

Raise something to eat.

Prepare for military service.

Every man, woman, and child can do at least one of these things. Many can do more than one. Everybody who can do any of them without dislocating his moral occupations should begin right away.

SPRING DAYS

The farmer wields the plow, the milkman wields the cow, the lambkins play, the horses neigh, and all is joyful now. Though there be talk of scraps and changing of the maps, the world is fine, the air like wine and life's the best of snaps. Though war clouds gather near, we need not yield to fear; enjoy the spring and smile and sing—no carnage yet is here. We pack our trusty grips and go on joyous trips to scenes afar in our good car, which o'er the highway skips. When Mars begins his stunt and shows his wrinkled front we'll grab with glee the snickersnee and for the foemen hunt. When comes the martial fuss there are no flies on us; we'll slay and slay, ten hours a day, and whoop around and cuss. But, till our captains all stand up and cry "Play ball!" we'll dance and sing for gentle spring sends forth her cheerful call. Oh, friends, don't borrow woe! Be happy here below! Why groan and beef o'er some punk grief that you may never know?

TUPPER'S WAY NOT LIKE MACDONALD'

Blunt, Downright Refusal vs. Adroit Flattery—Story of the Applicant for Nova Scotia Senatorship

Hon. J. W. Longley (Morat.g)... story illustrating the different methods pursued by Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Macdonald: There was a Nova Scotian vacancy in the Senate. A worthy old gentleman, who had carried one of the doubtful counties by a narrow majority, pressed Tupper, as his lifelong friend and leader, to give him the senatorship. Tupper knew that it would be an undesirable appointment, and bluntly told the worthy old gentleman to return to Nova Scotia. "It was good advice and honest dealing."

Mr. Justice Longley tells the rest of the story thus: "But the old fellow was not satisfied with this, and went to see Sir John Macdonald himself. As he was ushered into the Premier's office, Sir John grasped him warmly by the hand and said:

Delighted to See Him

"'My dear —— you are the very man I wanted to see. There is a vacancy in the Senate which belongs to Nova Scotia, and you have unquestionably the strongest claim of any man I know in the whole Province. There would be no question as to your appointment, if it were not that I am said by somebody that [illegible] only man in the Dominion who could carry the county of ——. What do you say to this—is it true or not?

"Elevated to a degree by this insidious flattery, Mr. —— was compelled to admit that it was probably true that he was the only person who could hold this doubtful seat.

His Loyalty and Pride

"'Then I know, my dear fellow, that, however great your claim, you will not put the Government in the embarrassing position of losing an important seat which you only could win or hold.'

"'No, Sir John,' he replied with great fervor, 'I will not put you in any such position.' And went home pleased, flattered, and happy." Any one, says the biographer, is at liberty to choose which method is the more worthy of praise and imitation.

CARAMEL SPONGE PUDDING

Cook stirring, three-fourths of a cup of sugar until it melts and caramels. Add three-fourths of a cup of water and cook until the sugar has melted. Soften one tablespoon of gelatin in a cup of cold water, and when the sugar has melted, turn the gelatin into the softened combination. Cool the mixture by setting in a dish of cold water and add the strained juice of one lemon. Beat dry the whites of two eggs and gradually beat into the combination. Beat occasionally until the mixture will hold its shape, then turn into a mold. Serve with a boiled custard.

Canadians Won Fame on Stage

THERE are a large number of Canadians at the present time exerting an important influence on the American stage. The name that first comes to mind, of course, is Margaret Anglin, who has always kept a close connection with the land of her birth. Miss Anglin belongs to one of the most prominent families in the Dominion, and her success both as an actress and a producer has added to its fame. She won her reputation first as an emotional actress in plays like "Mrs. Dane's Defence" and "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie," but in recent years she has proved herself a very skilful comedienne. Miss Anglin has always been associated with the best movements of the American theatre. She interested herself in the Greek classics, and her productions of Greek plays at the University of California placed her among the most ambitious actresses of the day. Several years ago she toured Canada in Shakespearean repertoire, proving a splendid Katherine in "The Taming of the Shrew." Early in the present season she appeared in one of Somerset Maugham's comedies, but recently she has returned to emotional acting in "The Lioness," a dramatization of Gertrude Atherton's novel, "The Perch of the Devil."

Hardly less ambitious than Miss Anglin is Miss Julia Arthur, the Hamilton girl who appeared at one time with Sir Henry Irving. After rising to stardom, Miss Arthur left the stage to marry a wealthy Boston man, but last season she took up acting again. To the regret of her admirers she appeared in a very unpleasant play entitled "The Eternal Magdalene" by a Cleveland dramatist. This year, however, Miss Arthur has taken up the task of trying to awaken interest in the modern poetic drama. She has appeared with considerable success in a tragedy of the French troubadours entitled "Seremonda," and she has another drama in blank verse which she intends to produce next season.

A younger and less widely known star of whom big things are expected is Miss Kathleen Macdonnell, formerly of Toronto. Miss Macdonnell was trained by Mrs. Fiske, who has developed a great number of skilful actors. She got her first big chance when she went into New York as leading lady with Robert Hilliard in his farewell play. She established herself as an actress with considerable ability for expressing suppressed emotion, and her career is now being carefully watched.

There are three Canadians comediennes who have made large fortunes on the American stage. Miss Rose Stahl, who comes from Montreal, played up and down the continent in a play entitled "The Chorus Lady" until she had established a very large bank account. It is interesting to note that James Forbes, who wrote "The Chorus Lady," was also a Canadian, having been born in Salem Ont., and educated in Galt. Marie Dressler also comes from this country and has many friends in Ontario. It is rather an odd coincidence that the two best plump laughmakers among the women on the American stage hail from the same province. Miss Dressler is one of them, and the other is May Irwin, who was Miss Campbell of Whitby, Ont. She made her reputation at Tony Pastor's in New York, and since that time she has made thousands laugh. Miss Irwin is a wealthy woman, and only comes before the footlights at long intervals now, preferring to live quietly in her winter home in New York or her summer home in the Thousand Islands.

In England there is Miss Lena Ashwell, the famous emotional actress who received her education in Toronto, as did Miss Viola Allen, formerly a matinee idol in the United States. The actors from Canada are not so numerous as the actresses. Henry Miller and James K. Hackett claim to be partly Canadian, as they spent a good deal of their youth in Ontario, but neither one was born here. Donald Brian, the famous dancer, and George McFarlane, the finest of comic opera baritones, hail from Montreal, but they can hardly be ranked as actors. Edgar Selwyn, a former Toronto boy, started well as an actor, but turned aside and became a dramatist, with plays like "Pierre of the Plains" and "The Country Boy" to his credit.

Besides Miss Anglin and Miss Arthur, several other Canadians have appeared on Broadway this year. One of them was Mr. Grant Stewart, a former Torontonian who was represented for several weeks by a romantic comedy "Arms and the Girl," which proved a considerable success. Miss Marie Flynn, a dainty Toronto girl, is appearing in the airy little trifle "Love o' Mike," and two players from the same city, Miss Nella Jeffries and Mr. Roy Mitchell, are appearing in John Galsworthy's "The Little Man," which in a double bill with "Magic" has been among the outstanding artistic successes of the year. Catharine Proctor, an actress of great promise, completes the list.

It will be noted that Canadians are as much at home on the stage as the people of any other land, but one of the things most needed here is the beginnings of a national drama. There have been plays written in the past with scenes laid in Canada, but we need something more than that before we can claim to possess a Canadian drama. Somebody has yet to write a play giving an accurate picture of conditions in the Dominion, a genre picture that will express our life. That is generally recognized as one of the most important steps that has yet to be taken in our literary and artistic life.

LIKED MYSTERY TALES

Great Scientists and Litterateurs Devoured "Shilling Shockers"

Arthur J. Balfour, a statesman and philosopher, perused every "shilling shocker" procurable on board the ship which brought him to America through the submarine area in the great war to confer with the United States Government. The "shilling shocker" is the equivalent of detective thrillers and mystery stories. Not infrequently they have been written by authors of repute who conceal their identity under pen names. Mr. Balfour, once Prime Minister of England, was not alone in seeking relaxation in these exciting tales. Ordinary citizens may surely make a frank admission of their own interest in sensational fiction when it possesses attractions for men of light and leading, of cultivated literary taste, who find in it the anodyne of dreams which makes them forget for the moment the vexing problems of statesmanship. One may freely admit that he shares with Napoleon a fondness for novels.

Darwin was a voracious novel reader in the intervals between his biological studies and scientific experiments. Herbert Spencer was an occasional novel reader all through his life. He read a novel slowly, methodically, just as he did everything else in his philosophic meander from the cradle to the grave. Emerson scorned not the novel and Tennyson kept abreast of current fiction during his vigorous manhood. He was not particular about choosing the masterpieces, but read whatever story came to his hand. Crusty old Edward FitzGerald, the matchless translator of Omar Khayyam, read and re-read "The Woman in White," by Wilkie Collins, at frequent intervals.

Macaulay, the omniverous devourer of books, never withdrew his allegiance from Richardson, although he became acquainted with the principal novelists of a later day. He kept a diary while in India, and his nephew-biographer, Sir George Trevelyan, notes with gratification that "Pickwick," spelled in Greek letters, appeared frequently in the reading lists of his uncle.

Boiled Skirt Steak

Have the steak rolled as usual by the butcher, then cut into slices 1 1-2 inches thick. Heat the broiler very hot, rub with butter and dripping and broil the steaks quickly on both sides for five minutes. Then remove to a dripping pan, pour a very little water in the pan and slice an onion and a carrot over the meat. Cook very slowly for half an hour, then remove to hot platter, season and make a gravy of the juice in the pan.

Green Salad

Mix well three cups of diced potatoes, one cup of cucumbers diced, one tablespoon each of minced green pepper and parsley. Garnish with parsley and hard boiled eggs. For the dressing mix one egg well beaten, one teaspoon of mustard, one saltspoon of salt, one-half sup of sugar, one cup each of milk and vinegar, a dessert spoon of butter, and a dash of pepper. Let come to a boil slowly.

Coddled Apples

Select a number of choice apples and core them. Arrange them in a flat sauce pan, fill the cavities of the apples with sugar, and add water to the depth of a couple of inches. Cook until tender, adding more water if necessary, and then remove the apples to a serving dish. Cook the syrup until it is thick, and then pour it over the apples.

THE LITTLEST CLOTHES.

The Baby's Layette Is Also Big Enough to Be Stylish.

Every mother knows that the new baby's clothes must be as free from bunchy gathers and bumpy buttons as possible. She is always glad to hear of easily made garments which will make her littlest one comfortable and cozy.

There is a flannel petticoat which has a bodice much like a tight fitting corset cover of mother's. The skirt of the petticoat laps in front with the bodice, so that the garment may be passed under the little body and arranged from the front. The two fronts of the bodice cross, the long end on one side passing through a slit in the other side, the two tying with tapes in the center back. There are no gathers worth mentioning in this petticoat and no buttons anywhere.

Another slip petticoat goes on over the head and ties with tapes on the shoulders or buttons there, for buttons on the shoulders could not cause the baby discomfort.

The baby's shirt may be made in much the same way as this last petticoat. While some mothers follow the foreign fashion of keeping soft linen next to the little body, most mothers in this country believe in the wool or flannel vest.

A diaper protection of rubber can be made of a triangle of sheeting attached permanently to a band which ties in front. A button on the front and a buttonhole in the third corner of the diaper does away entirely with the safety pin. The wash diapers can be made on the same pattern and fastened in the same way.

A Use For Curtain Poles.

Sometimes, after you have moved from one house to another, you find yourself with a collection of ends of curtain poles, left over from sawing off the poles you had, to fit the invariably different sized doorways and window frames in the new possession.

These poles are usually too short to use for curtains again, but need not be consigned to the wood pile. Look over your doilies and linen scarfs and see if some of them would not be the right size, with perhaps a little more sawing, on which to wrap them to keep them smooth.

They serve very nicely in this capacity when neatly covered with muslin, silesia or cambric, shirred at both ends.

"Woodsy" Color Scheme.

In a suburban home is a most delightful "woodsy" room. The walls are a cool green. The reddish brown of the wicker furniture reminds one of tree bark, and the ferns nodding in the window boxes bespeak an outdoor atmosphere. Another factor in this "woodsy" color scheme is the grass green carpet under foot. This is of heavy denim, completely covering the floor and carefully tacked down at the edges. About the sides and in the center are brown stenciled designs. Several green pillows, stenciled in brown, ornament the wicker couch and dark green silk portieres hang in the wide doorways. A smaller stenciled design in brown borders the portieres.

ECONOMY ON RAILWAYS

Bad Air in Homes Breeds Disease—A Cross Draft Good

It is regrettable that the interiors of the majority of homes in Canada are breeding places for disease, because of the difficulties in admitting fresh air, says a writer in "Conservation." Foul air, containing exhalations from the lungs of the inmates, constitutes the atmosphere in many homes, and it cannot be otherwise when houses are built to exclude the external air. It is a common mistake to confuse heat and bad air or cold and good air. The atmosphere may be below freezing and still be bad, or it may be excessively warm and still be pure.

Buildings should be ventilated so that it will be impossible for the occupants to breathe air already used. A simple means of keeping the air of a room fresh is by a cross draft, secured through open windows on either side of a house. Where there are windows on one side of a room only, the upper sash should be lowered and the lower one raised. This allows the warm, foul air to escape through the opening above the upper sash as the pure cold air enters below the lower.

To utilize an opening above the upper sash of a window fully for ventilation and at the same time to lower the window shade, the latter may be attached to the roller by four or five pieces of tape, about five inches long. This leaves a space between the roller and shade through which the impure air may escape. The shade should also be shortened so that when drawn down to expose the opening at the top it leaves an opening also at the bottom. This will permit constant changing of the air of a room.

Canadians should be as fond of fresh air in winter as in summer. The benefit of the three or four warmer months with the open-air life is often offset by the shut-tight [illegible] adopted in the autumn, and the health and vigor displayed during the summer months are frequently followed by lassitude and nervous depression, due entirely to the lack of proper ventilation.

After a man has acquired a reputation for wisdom he can say silly things and yet his friends will applaud the man's wisdom.

UNBURIED CORPSES ROT ON FIELD AT VIMY RIDGE

Private Woodbeck, Who Was Wounded in Famous Engagement, Writes Graphic Account to Mother in Apsley.

Pte. Milford Woodbeck, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and was transferred to the 21st Canadians for duty in the trenches where he has been since December, was in the battle of Vimy Ridge and was seriously wounded by shrapnel April 9. His mother, who resides at Lasswade, has received the following letter written in the hospital April 20:

Dear Mother,—

I am going to drop you a few lines as I am feeling like writing today. I would like to know how all our boys are coming on. I got a piece of shrapnel in my side but not bad. I walked from where I got hit which was in Fritiz's front line over two miles back of our lines, so you see I am not dangerous. I am glad to get back to England and may be here until fall before I go to France again.

I suppose you have read about our splendid advance and it was as good as the papers said, if not better. The French lost over 60,000 men trying to take Vimy Ridge and the English could not take it either. They lost about 35,000 men in the attempt. But we took it and the Canadians can hold it too.

There are Frenchmen lying around there who never were burried but just rotted away. Our artillery was grand. At half past five on Easter Monday, we went over the top. Our lads put up the best barrage of fire from the artillery that ever was witnessed before. Talk about paying 60 cents to see fire works. I have seen them at their best but they were as nothing in comparison to our fire. It was the prettiest sight I ever saw.

When you answer this tell me all about the Apsley boys. I only saw Snider. He was hit before I was, but we came about 50 miles together down from the line. Let me know about White especially and all the rest. Good-bye for now. Answer soon.

DUNLOP TIRES

CONTRIBUTE TO EMPIRE'S NEED BY RAISING CHICKS

Every Householder Should do Something to Increase Food Supply—50 Per Cent Profit From 5 Hens.

At the public meeting in the Council Chamber last night on the subject of poultry raising and patriotism, Mr. Joseph Wearing said: "I can't urge too strongly the need that every householder produce something toward the food supply of the Empire next year. We in Canada have never yet been in touch with serious food shortage, but in 1918 we may learn something more about famine than we know now, and this is the time to prepare for it. Every little bit of food production by the individual counts; we who can't go to the front can do our part in the war with spade or by poultry raising in the back yard." Mr. Wearing then gave figures to show that with five hens and a hen house much resembling a dog kennel, at an expenditure since the end of January of $5.6. for feed he had secured twenty-two and a half dozen eggs, netting him the sum of $8.95, and representing practically a profit of 50 percent; and he fed the hens three months before they laid. He contended that nothing is more paying than poultry raising, and that had 5000 householders in this city each kept 5 hens since January last, in keeping with his experience it would have meant a profit of $20,000 from 110,000 dozen eggs produced for the benefit of the empire.

At the conclusion of the meeting the following resolution was carried: Moved by Mr. Wearing, seconded by Mr. Fred Brown, that the Poultry Association be a sub-committee of the Organization of Resources Com., and take up the question of persuading householders to raise poultry. Also that arrangements be made to supply any demand for baby chicks.

Baby Chickens 15c.

Mr. A. Brault here stated that he knew of a man with an incubator who would supply baby chicks at 10 or 15c each. He already has over a hundred on hand.

All citizens willing to raise poultry are invited to communicate with Mr. Brault, secretary of the Peterborough Poultry Association, who will advise them where to secure young chickens.

Mayor Duffus.

In opening the meeting contended that all are anxious for greater food production along any line which will relieve the situation next year, when there will be experienced a greater food shortage than the world has ever known before." All should assist in any way possible. He commended the efforts of farmers in Peterborough district, who are straining every nerve to produce more crops this year than last. In many instances one man is working 100 acres and two men 200 acres, and cultivating more land than before the war. He hoped Peterborough citizens would cooperate in the way of gardening and poultry raising. He was of the opinion that the medical officer of health should, under the circumstances, stretch a point in regard to conditions governing poultry raising within the city. The same in regard to hogs, which can consume considerable table refuse otherwise wasted.

30 Present.

There are 200 members in the Peterborough Poultry Association, and there was an audience of 33 people present, including 6 ladies. Mr. J. J. Hartley was voted into the chair, and he gave his views on successful poultry raising, from experience, and his opinion as to which are the most profitable fowl to keep.

Mrs. Wellard.

From the Poultry Department of the Guelph Agricultural College was the speaker of the evening, and she urged an organized effort to stimulate interest in poultry raising to help over the crisis engendered by the war. The idea of the present movement was, she said, to secure baby chicks from incubators and sell them to citizens at 10 or 15 cents each in stimulation of a try-out as to the profit from poultry raising. Canada has sold to England since the war began two million dollars worth of eggs, and we should endeavor to keep that market, and assure a profitable avenue of trade for after the war. She contended that there is no reason why any woman should not make a living out of poultry keeping, and said, "the first year I bought an incubator, I hatched 565 chicks up to July, out of which but very few died. I fed them for broilers, shipped them to Toronto, and after paying all expenses, had over $200 in the bank.

The speaker here referred to the drawbacks in poultry raising and to the means for combatting them. Feeding does not come expensive, she contended, as there is always a certain amount of the table waste which can be used. But in order to render the proposed movement for poultry keeping by citizens generally sufficiently successful to encourage its continuance and to produce profitable results, members of the Poultry Association and others experienced in the subject must be prepared to instruct inexperienced people how to feed and take care of chicks.

In the course of a lucid and instructive treatise on the question, Mrs. Weelard offered the following advice to poultry raisers:

Don't let children handle chickens.

Keep incubators moist, turn every egg by hand, and let them cool before turning.

Keep accurate accounts of costs and revenue, and strike a balance to see how you stand.

Don't over-feed little chicks; use dry food, such as bread crumbs and rolled oats, with a little green stuff, especially lettuce.

Keep pure clean water within easy reach, but not in vessels they can get into.

They can be raised in home-made brooders of simple character, such as biscuit boxes. A jug of hot water is the best means for heating brooders.

Sweet milk and butter milk makes one of the best foods for young chicks, where not so expensive as in the large cities.

Chickens do better on a free range than yarded.

Do not give wheat until a month old.

In the winter keep hens busy scratching for their food in a litter; they lay better when made to work for their living.

Buckwheat and oats make good food in place of wheat and corn.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Weelard for her instructive and interesting address.

Mr. Fred Brown invited any one interested in poultry to attend the Peterborough Poultry Association's meetings, held in the Labor Hall the second Thursday of every month.

Haileybury and Timiskaming have been created into a new judicial district, and Gordon H. Hayward of Sault Ste. Marie is appointed District Judge.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

OVERSEAS AMUSEMENT COMPANY NOW PLAYING AT OPERA HOUSE

Proceeds in Aid of Soldiers' Dependents anc Performance Entitled to Patronage.

The Overseas Amusement Company, made up of clever amateurs from Toronto, are giving an exhibition of high-class vaudeville at the Grand Opera House, the proceeds to be donated to the dependents of the men in the trenches. The company comes well recommended, and the object is certainly a worthy one. They are accompanied by Major Windeyer of the 234th Battalion, an officer who has seen service at the front and who has been heard at recruiting meetings in this city. The attendance last night was not up to expectations. The patronage at the matinee performance today was more encouraging, and the probability is that there will be a well-filled house tonight.

The performance abounds with interesting features, patriotic solos, and the skit "I Want to Kiss Daddy Goodnight" should appeal to all who have friends fighting in Flanders.

The company has given a number of successful performances in Toronto, and this is one of their first ventures on the road.

FOR FOOD CONTROLLER

Govt. Likely to Appoint J. W. Flavelle to That Position.

The members of the Trades Council at their regular meeting the other night adopted a resolution asking the Dominion Government to appoint a food controller, and a copy will be sent to Ottawa. It has just been announced that the Cabinet has decided to create such an office and to appoint J. W. Flavelle, a former Peterborough man, to the position.

Mr. D. A. Campbell of the Campbell Flour Mills Co., and who may be regarded in a sense as a local man, said in Toronto yesterday, on being asked his opinion on this matter:

"I think the whole country is expecting the Dominion Government to do something. The appointment of a food controller would be a good thing. The powers he would have to be given would make him a food dictator. As far as we are concerned, we would be willing to have the Government take over the mills and operate them. Something has to be done in the matter. If a man of the type of the late Judge Mabee was appointed, or a man like Mark Bredin, a man who will not be influenced by politics, creed or anything else, but consider the people only, I believe a food controller would be all right."

When told that the name of Mr. J. W. Flavelle had been used in connection with the position, he replied: "Mr. Flavelle would be all right. Look at the splendid work he has done on the Imperial Munitions Board."

WEST WARD RATEPAYERS

Will Organize on Tuesday and Work for Bridge Bylaw.

A meeting of West Ward ratepayers and residents of that district in general is called for Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Council Chamber. The occasion is one for organization purposes in the interests of the high level bridge bylaw, which thinking citizens realize must be carried to foster a Greater and more progressive Peterborough.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

In Prosecution for Breach of Transient Traders' Act.

The case of breach of the Transient Traders' Act, in which H. Decker of Toronto is the defendant, was argued at the police court on Thursday afternoon before Police Magistrate Dumble. The defence was ably conducted by Solicitor W. B. Harkins, of the firm of Robinette & Co., Toronto, assisted by Mr. V. J. McElderry, this city.

His Worship reserved judgment for ten days.

This is a test case of considerable local interest to merchants and business men, who will keenly await His Worship's ruling.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

NOBODY LIKES CONTINUAL BOTHER

Eyeglass mounts that keep coming loose and are difficult to tighten are a source of worry that need not be tolerated.

Dr. Fowler's Screwless Mounts hold the lens firmly in place, and the looseness and danger of dropping and breaking is done away with. The principle is an extra good one, and Mr Fowler will gladly show them to any who care to call.

SOLDIERS AND WORKMEN REPLACE RUSSIAN DUMA

Delegates Hold Meetings in Duma Building and Have Practically Usurped Powers of That Body.

PETROGRAD, May 18.—Few people outside of Russia will understand why there has been so much vaccilation about a coalition Cabinet—why the soldiers and workmen's delegates first refused the Duma Ministry's proffer of such a plan; why they changed this refusal into acceptance, on certain specified terms; why the Duma leaders rejected the specified teres and how it comes today that there is so much "jockeying" between the two factions for the reorganized Cabinet. An understanding of what the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council really amounts to is essential.

As a matter of fact, the workmen's and soldiers' delegates have practically usurped the place formerly held—theoretically—in Russian administrative affairs by the Duma. The delegates are representatives of the Russian people themselves.

When the revolution succeeded the Russian people spontaneously began to consider some way of taking advantage of the lessons in co-operation and popular rule, and the experience they had gained in the Zemstvo and other co-operative societies under the old autocratic rule. Such organizations as the Zemstvo many times saved Russia under the old regime by assuring proper food to troops at the front and endeavoring to balance distributions of food. Many of the present leaders of the Ministry were prominent in these organizations—having become prominent because they were originally chosen by the people.

But with the revolution a success the people began electing delegates to meet in the Duma Building to act as a sort of Zemstvo organization to aid in Governmental administration. Workmen all over Russia met in barracks, trenches, workshops, and peasants—including women — in all settlements, to choose representatives. These delegates hastened to Petrograd. Entirely unofficial, they, nevertheless, really constitute the nearest approach to "voice of the people" now possible in Russia.

The delegates occupy the Duma Building. The structure now resembles a convention hall in which a national Christian endeavor society is meeting, or the Federation of Labor, or the Rotarians. Improvised signs in the corridors tell the delegates at what rooms to register, where to find lodging, and when meetings will be held.

Because the workmen and the soldiers have all the rifles they predominate over the purely peasant

A Car of Pleasing Design

The design of the new Willys-Overland Light Four is notably pleasing and satisfying in lines and proportions.

Crowned fenders, sweeping in their curves, and unobstructed running boards, emphasize the long, low appearance.

The attractive finish—in keeping with the other distinctive qualities of this Willys-Overland car—completes its thoroughly stylish appearance.

And the tremendous volume of the Willys-Overland factories makes it possible to offer this efficient, stylish and comfortable car at a reasonable price.

MARKET PRICES

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

Flour is again the commodity in which the heaviest advances have taken place during the week, the increase amounting to $1.50 per barrel and creating a record price that a few months back would have been thought unbelievable. Rolled oats and corn products have been in higher market as a result of high prices prevailing for the grains. Sugar is holding a steady market with more favorable reports of production on the Island of Cuba continuing to come forward.

Meat of all kinds held in a steady position, and there was a tendency toward lower prices in butter. Eggs were firmer in price during the week, owing to the eagerness on the part of dealers to place them in storage. In Ontario the prices at producing points reached such levels that it became cheaper to bring eggs in from Chicago and pay the duty. Several cars of these eggs arrived during the week. The cheese market is uncertain, with the expectancy in certain quarters that lower prices will prevail.

There have been numerous advances in lines carried by grocers, included in the number being evaporated milk, baking powder, soaps, vinegar, cocoas, jams, soups, canned salmon, canned peas, cream of tartar, rice, tapioca, bread, beans. Declines have been recorded in whitefish and trout, due to the greater quantities arriving from the upper lakes. Pineapples were also lower in price during the week, as the season for heavy arrivals is now on. Business in grocery lines has been good, the greatest difficulty being to get sufficient stock to meet the requirements of the trade.

Turkeys $3.25 to $4.25.

The local market was brisk today with plenty of buyers and offerings, although some prices were all but prohibitive. Lake Ontario mullett was sold in abundance at 25c for half a dozen. The following prices for farm products prevailed: Eggs, 40 and 41c; chickens, 65, 90c and $1.25; butter, 43, 44 and 45c; rhubarb, 5c the bunch; lettuce, 5c the bunch; turkeys, for a 9½ lb. bird, $3.25; a 15 lb. one, $4.25. Potatoes were sold at from 80c a peck, and $4, $4.50 and $4.75 the bag. Meat same price as at last Wednesday's market.

BOWLING

Last night at the Water street bowling alleys Harry Carter of the De Laval, won the blind score, 182, making the exact number of pins. Thompson of the West Ends came second with a 184 count, and Outram of the Grocers next with 185. Following were the scores: Carter 182, Fitzpatrick 131, Ruiter 143, Heard 140, Outram 185, Solomon 177, Henderson 165, Fielder 167, Fitzgerald 134, Thompson 184.

With this unofficial assembly added to the Russian Governmental machinery the Duma has been entirely superseded.

The officials selected by the now retired Duma cannot give orders now without the sanction of the workmen and soldiers. The assembly has appointed a committee—or "council" of 24 members, whose duty it is to keep in contact with the provisional leaders and express to them the opinions of the assembly as a whole. If the 24 committee men are in doubt about any question they call a general meeting of all the delegates.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Studebaker
Established 1852

The Best is Cheapest in the Long Run

WHEN you finally select your new car, your ultimate satisfaction of that car will depend upon the comfort you get out of it.

As far as the actual price of the car is concerned, $100 one way or the other makes little difference to you financially. But—to pay less than Studebaker prices for your car may mean a sacrifice of safety and comfort; a constant source of expense and endless trouble.

Experience has built perfection into the Studebaker. Studebaker has spent four years in refining, improving and perfecting this one basic design, selecting the right material, developing the right manufacturing organization.

If it were mechanically possible to produce a car that would give the maximum of comfort and satisfaction for any less than Studebaker prices—Studebaker is better equipped to do it than any other maker.

The beauty of a Studebaker goes beneath its beautiful paint and varnish work, beneath its conservative, dignified lines, beneath its luxuriously soft upholstery. The beauty that makes the Studebaker a joy forever is the beauty of quality—the quality that gives durability, that gives uninterrupted usage, that makes your car as good at 30,000 miles as it was at 5,000.

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH CONWAY HANNAM.

After an extended illness of four years, contracted due to paralysis Mrs. Elizabeth Conway Hannam died recently. Deceased was born in Ennismore, lived for some time in Bridgenorth, but died in Peterborough. She is survived by her husband who is at present in Iowa, one sister, Mrs. Turber of Bridgenorth, and by four brothers, John Conway of Ennismore, William and Michael of Smith, and James Conway of Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. The funeral took place this morning from the Immaculate Conception Church, and then to St. Peter's cemetery.

THIS IS TRENCH DAY.

Prospects Seem Bright For Big Receipts.

Ladies, representing the Canadian Kitchener League, are in evidence on every hand today, irresistibly offering Trench Day tags for "what you please to give in a worthy, good cause. The money so raised will go toward furnishing socks and other comforts for our gallant boys in the trenches, and from the look of things the appeal seems to be being liberally responded to. The majority of those who cannot fight can buy a tag, and thus encourage the loyal patriotism of hundreds of Peterborough boys who are risking life and limb somewhere in France in the greatest cause for which man was ever waged. None should miss the opportunity of contributing his or her mite.

TWO PIGS AT LARGE.

The police this morning discovered a couple of young grunters running at large on the market square, and promptly pounded them in the police station. The owner found trace of them this afternoon, and was allowed possession. They had escaped from a box in which he had brought them to market.

Reports of Drinking Untrue.

Certain representations have been made to me and also to the overseas authorities from time to time, as to the contraction of the drinking habits of the boys overseas. I made it my special business to enquire as to that. I enquired of General Turner, General Steele and of General Child, of the War Office, who has to deal with matters of that kind. The reports received indicate that such reports are all, or almost all, without foundation. The Canadian troops are not afflicted with habits of drunkenness. It was represented to me by General Steele, in whose word I have absolute confidence, that there is less drunkenness among the Canadian troops than among any troops in the United Kingdom, and I thoroughly believe that. Drinking is almost at a minimum. I think General Steele said that three men per thousand per week in the area under his command during a particular period, and that had been brought up on such a charge was a fair average. So far as the wet canteen is concerned, General Steele said he believed it better to utilize that than to permit the men to go to public houses near at hand. When troops go to canteen they are necessarily under discipline and supervision. If there is no wet canteen and the troops go out to public houses they are not under the same discipline, or the same supervision, and almost all the difficulty that has arisen in this connection has arisen in that way and not through the wet canteen.

GREEK SLAVE NEXT THURSDAY

Story of This Fascinating Musical Comedy.

Next Thursday (Victoria Day) there will be given in the Grand Opera House two performances of "A Greek Slave," one at 2.30, matinee, and one at night. On Friday, May 25th, there will be a performance at 8.15. The presentation of Sydney Jones' famous work calls for enthusiastic commendation of the amateur organization known as the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society, who this time have essayed a work of a calibre never before attempted by amateurs in this city, nor, as far as can be learned, anywhere in the Dominion of Canada. The story is woven round the villa of Heliodorus, a wealthy necromancer, whose oracle is resorted to by high and low in Rome. Antonio, a Roman Princess, visits the wizard to learn why she cannot love, and the Persian's daughter, "Maia," proclaims that Antonia is loved by the god of love himself, and pretends to being a statue of Eros, god of love to life, for which her lover Diomed, a Greek slave, has been the model. Heliodorus does not wish his daughter to marry the slave, so sends the real slave instead of the statute to Antonia, whose ardent love making to the slave is of no avail, as he remains true to Maia. Marcus, Prefect of Rome, who aspires to the hand of Antonia, threatens the soothsayer with horrible penalties unless his oracle causes Antonia to accept him as her fate, which she finally does on learning how she has been tricked and forgives "Maia" and Dromed as well as the wizard for the cruel trick they played upon her.

The opera abounds with lovely musical numbers, the invocation scene in which the statue comes to life and sings is one of the most beautiful concerted numbers ever composed, a trio for two sopranos and baritone being accompanied by full chorus.

A Satumalia occurs in the second act, when all the slaves run riot, and abuse their Roman masters and mistresses, and a "Tarantella" is danced by sixteen of the slaves. There are no less than seven dancing numbers. This presentation will be dressed and staged splendidly. The scenery was designed by Mr. W. H. Barry, and made and decorated here. The dresses and costumes, entirely Roman and Greek are exactly like those used in the Daly production in London, England, indeed the whole presentation is rich in lovely music, scenery and costumes. The opera has been taught and staged under the sole direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, the talented organist and choirmaster of St. John's, and the successes of former musical works given under his direction leaves no doubt as to the richness of the treat in store for theatregoers next Thursday and Friday. Ticket holders may change their tickets for seats on Monday next at the box office, the regular sale opening on Tuesday. The proceeds are for the splendid work of the Kitchener League, for trench comforts for our gallant soldiers.

MALE QUARTET FOR THIS CITY

Mr. Asa Huycke is Manager With Three Efficient Colleagues.

Peterborough at last is to have what the local music lovers have long desired—a male quartette, which promises to become as popular and mean as much to the city as the famous Adanac Quartette of Toronto. Mr. Asa Huycke, organist and choirmaster of Murray Street Baptist Church, is at the head of the new organization, and the other members are Messrs. Harold and Edward Jones and Thomas Ward, all well-known church soloists. The quartette has several engagements in view, and will be heard for the first time at the concert to be given by the choir of Murray Street Church Tuesday evening, May 29th. They will sing on that occasion Dudley Buck's famous male quartette, "The Vocal Combat" and "Lead, Kindly Light" as arranged by the same composer.

The membership of the quartette is all that is required to bespeak for it a successful future.

SELECTIVE DRAFT CAUSES BOOM IN LOCAL TRADE IN SUIT CASES AND CLUB BAGS

Number of Young Men According to Local Dealers Are Evidently Getting Ready to Flee for Safety---Labor to Fight Conscription Unless Wealth is Included.

It is evident from what a local dealer said today, that the idea of a selective draft has frightened a number of young men in this city, and that they are preparing to make their escape in some place of security, real or fancied. The dealer referred to says that on Saturday and today, the trade in suitcases and club-bags has experienced a remarkable boom, something that has not been equalled in that line of commerce for months. This is taken as an indication that the purchasers are preparing to pack their belongings and make their escape.

Where they can go to for safety is a question, because the same conditions prevail in the former harbor of refuge, the United States, and if they locate in that country, they are still subject to draft, or may be returned to their native land by the immigration officers.

Major Crocker of the 74 Battery, reports that last week, five local recruits were taken on, and 5 from outside the city. Of the later were from Pembroke, one from Shellville, and two from North Bay. Those from North Bay were both bank clerks.

The 74th may now be regarded as a Peterborough unit, as it will make its headquarters here next winter.

An officer who has just returned from the front, says that men who are conscripted or chosen by the selective draft, will receive little courtesy from the volunteers now on service. The latter have already declared that they will refuse to fight with them, or to associate with them in any way in Europe.

Thomas S. Marks, editor of "The Industrial Banner" of Toronto, and Secretary of the Educational Association, which will meet in London, May 24, has written a local labor man urging the Trades Council of this city to send a delegates to the convention. Mr. Marks says that conscription will be the main topic of discussion and that labor proposes to fight it vigorously unless the Government consents to conscription of wealth at the same time.

REV. R. G. PEEVER'S WORK PRAISED BY OFFICIALS

The regular May meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of George Street Methodist Church was held in the Church parlors on Thursday evening, May 17th, 1917, the following gentlemen being present: Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., in the chair; Rev. Cruickshanks, Messrs. D. W. Dumble, B. Shortly, W. Fisher, T. M. McFadden, G. W. Powell, H. G. Walker, C. C. Parsons, Wm Might, T. W. Robinson, John Howland, H. C. Stabler, Geo. Robertson, R. J. Winch, B. F. Ackerman, A. H Hicks, A. Northey, Felix Brownscombe, S. A. Oke, and S. R. Armstrong.

In the absence of Mr. Geo. Carruthers, the recording steward, Mr. Felix Browascombe asted as secretary of the meening. A leter was read from Mr. George Carruthers tendering his resignation as recording steward on account of his temporary removal from the city.

Mr. Peever presented a very satisfactory statistical report for the year. Reports were presented by Mr. Brownscombe, treasurer of the church; Mr. C. C. Parsons, superintendent of the Sunday school; Mr C. S. Thompson, President of the Epworth League; and the Pastor read reports from the Ladies' Aid and Women's Missionary Society. Mr. Brownscombe sated that the treasurer of the Church Poor Fund, Mr. Wm. Yelland, wished to resign, and Mr. Power was appointed as his successor. All the different branches of the church work appeared to be healthy and progressive and the givings in practically every department showed an increase.

Messrs. H. C. Stabler and T. W. Robinson were elected delegates to the May district meeting, with Messrs. Geo. Powell and H. G. Walker as alternatives.

The following gentlemen were elected stewards for the ensuing year:—Messrs. Geo. C. Carruthers, D. W. Dumble, B. F Ackerman, B Shortley, T. M. McFadden, H. C. Stabler, T. W. Robinson, S R. Armstrong and E. E. Ingall. The latter gentleman was unanimously chosen as recording steward.

REV. R. G. PEEVER

Mr. D. W. Dumble moved that the following letter of appreciation of the pastor's work for the four years be presented to Mr. Peever. The motion caried by a standing vote.

The Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., having served as pastor of George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, for the full term of four years, and being now able to remove to his new appointment at London, Ontario, this board realizees it a pleasing duty to give expresion to their appreciation of his pastoral services while stationed here.

Mr. Peever has been favored with a goodly presence and a clear and far-reaching voice that made him easily heard. In manners he is dignified, courteous and kindly.

Every duty falling to him as a pastor he cheerfully performed: all services as visitor, leader of week day services and presiding officer

CASUALTIES IN CANADA'S CORPS GROWS LIGHTER

In Comparison With Fearful Slaughter Following Battle of Vimy Ridge.

FIGHTING AIR CRAFT.

Enemy's Pilates Forced to Descend in Parachutes by Long Range Guns.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France.—During the past two days there have been no infantry actions on the Canadian front except trifling affairs between patrols. The enemy artillery has been more active again. His observation balloons well back from our front are having a hard time of it and the British aviators often destroy them. Another means of putting them out of business has been tried with success. A long range gun was trained on a balloon yesterday and its observers were forced to descend hastily in parachutes.

A large fire was seen in Lens early this morning. Our guns were shelling the enemy's positions throughout yesterday and during the night, but the origin of the fire is, of course, not known. Its outbreak was followed by a Pyrotechnic display of rockets from various parts of the German front in the vicinity of Lens. The rockets lit up the sky, and in a very few minutes the enemy guns put up a barrage along sectors on our front. The attack was apparently expected.

British guns to the north of us joined in reply to the bombardment, which continued for some time, and sounded like that preceding an important battle. It died down in the vicinity of Lens, but continued to the north.

People at home will learn with pleasure that the daily average of casualties in Canadian Corps hs been much lower recently than at any time since the battle of Vimy Ridge While holding the line the men are having a quiet time at least by comparison with their great exertions immediately before and after the attack on the ridge.

Meanwhile our artillery steadily works away at the task of destroying the enemy's gun position and defensive lines.

A DUTIFUL SON.

Mrs. Edwin Toms, of 508 Chamberlain street, received on Saturday a letter from her son, Pte. W. A Toms, who is now at the front, and who came safely through the battle of Vimy Ridge, in which his father, Pte. Edwin Toms, was wounded. The young man enclosed a money order for $50 as a present to his mother. Pte. Toms enlisted with the 52nd Kingston Battery in February of last year, and was later drafted into the Canadian Horse Artillery One week after his arrival in England he was drafted for duty with the Trench Mortar Battery and has been at the front since June 5th last. His father went with the 93rd to England. Mrs. Toms' other son tried to enlist, but failed to pass the medical examination. The one now in France is an excellent soldier as his early choice for duty demonstrates.

Judge Huycke received a cable on Saturday from officers of the Canadian artillery, stating that his son Lieut. George Meredith Huycke, had been removed to England and had stood the journey well. This gallant young officer is wounded in the thigh, back and arm.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND TAKES STEP FORWARD

Convention of Representative Irishmen to Be Called to Draw Up Constitution.

THE PREMIER EXPLAINS.

Parliament to Give Immediate Effect to Any Agreement That May Be Reached.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 21.—It was announced by the Prime Minister in the Commons that the Government proposed to summon immediately a convention of representative Irishmen in Ireland to submit to the British Parliament a constitution for the future government of Ireland.

Lloyd George, stated the Chairman of the proposed Irish convention would be nominated by the crowd. If a substantial agreement is reached regarding the character and scope of the constitution framed by Convention, said the premier, the government will take the necessary steps to enable the Imperial parliament to give legislative effect thereto. The convention would be held with closed doors.

SLACKERS ARE RETURNING

1,200 RETURN FROM STATES DURING THE PAST WEEK.

The immigration authorities are up against new problems following the entry of the United States into the war. The greatest of these worries is the influx of travellers from across the border, who total for the past week 1200. The selective conscription is given as the reason why more than 500 stepped from trains at the various stations in Montreal last night to take up their residence in Canada.

A great many of them passed across the border to the States following the talk of conscription here. They are now believed to have returned to avoid the drastic laws put into effect in the United States to capture slackers. Every foreign born resident of the United States has until June 1st to get out of the country without hindrance. After that date every man physically fit who comes under the selective conscription ages will be forced to enlist whether of foreign birth or not.

Dr Jamieson, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, has turned over to the Durham Patriotic Society $401, the cost of Speaker's dinners at the present session, they having been dispensed with last session.

PARK STREET BAPTISTS PASS 24TH MILESTONE

REV. DUGALD BROWN
Popular pastor of Park Street Baptist Church.

Anniversary Sermon Preached Yesterday by Rev. Dr. Brown of Toronto.

The congregation of Park Street Baptist Church celebrated their twenty-fourth anniversary yesterday with appropriate services, the sermons being preached by Rev. Dr. J. G. Brown of Toronto, a former missionary to India and brother of Rev. Dougald Brown, the pastor of the church. There was a large attendance both morning and evening. A united service of the Sunday School, Men's Bible Class and Ladies' Bible Class was held in the afternoon and addressed by Dr. Brown. Mr. A.

HE CAME SAFELY THROUGH FIGHT AT VIMY RIDGE

Lieut. Thos. Marks, However, Has Been Granted Sick Leave of Absence.

IS NOW AT HIS HOME HERE

Was Slightly Gassed in Famous Offensive, but Received no Wounds.

Lieut. Thomas Marks, who was in the battle of Vimy Ridge, has been invalided home and is now staying with his family on Aylmer street. He attended services yesterday at the Park Street Baptist Church and his appearance was a surprise to his many friends who extended to him a warm welcome.

When the war broke out Lieut. Marks was attending the Baptist College at Woodstock preparing himself for the ministry. He enlisted with the 91st Battalion in St. Thomas and took officer's course at London. When the 91st Battalion went overseas it was broken up into drafts six days after its arrival and Lieut. Marks was assigned for duty with the 19th Battalion of Hamilton. He was on active duty ever since up to April 10 when he was obliged to leave the trenches on account of lung trouble. A medical examination will be required to determine whether he can be continued in the service.

The lieutenant says he was in the Somme drive but that was nothing, either in the way of preparation or ultimate triumphs as compared with the battle of Vimy Ridge. Any man who was in that engagement is not likely to forget it until his dying day. He was slightly gassed by one of the shells that the Germans sent in among the British ranks., but is suffering no ill effects.

On a recent occasion the enemy sent in over 3000 gas shells in the space of two hours. When the shells exploded the wind carried the poisonous vapor to the neighboring town where the death toll consisted of 27 old men, women and children. As usual the noncombatants receive no consideration from the treacherous foe.

BRITISH CAPTURE GERMAN TRENCHES AND DRIVE BACK ENEMY COUNTER ATTACK

Further Brilliant Successes Reported on Hindenburg Line---Captured Shelters Full of Enemy's Dead---French Troops Too, Win Several Lines.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 21.—British troops during last evening captured a support trench behind the Hindenburg line, beside the trench taken during the morning, the war office announces.

The official statement says: "Our operations in the Hindenburg line were continued with success during the night between Bullecourt and Fontaine les Croiselles. Our troops, who had carried a front trench in the Hindenburg line yesterday morning and had repelled several counter-attacks, renewed the attack in the evening, and after hand-to-hand fighting captured the support trench also. Hostile counter-attacks were again beaten off with heavy losses to the enemy, whose troops were engaged in the open by our massed artillery. A large number of enemy dead were found in the captured positions. About one hundred and fifty prisoners have so far been taken by us in these operations. Two German divisions have been engaged in fighting in this neighborhood since yesterday morning.

"We carried out a successful raid last night near Loos. Early this morning an enemy party endeavored to enter our trenches southwest of Messines, but was driven off."

PILED HIGH WITH GERMAN DEAD.

PARIS, May 21. — The official statement says: "On the Chemin-des-Dames artillery fighting continued during the night in the region to the northwest of Braye-en Laonnis, and on the front between Hurtebise and Cerny. A German attack near Froidmont Farm was checked before the enemy was able to reach our lines. The enemy undertook no further attack after the complete check of his general assault undertaken yesterday. There were brief but violent artillery actions between Miente and the Aisne and northwest of Rheims.

"In the region of Chevreux we made progress and took prisoners. In the Champagne yesterday evening we carried out in two sectors of heights near Moronvilliers an operation which resulted in an important and brilliant success. Our troops captured several lines of German trenches on the slopes north of Carnillet, at the casque and at the Teton. Furthermore all important observation points in this region are now in our hands. German counter-attacks were broken under our fire and thrown back with heavy losses. We took about eight hundred prisoners in these actions. The enemy's shelters were found blown to pieces and piled high with dead bodies."

THE TRACTOR PLOW.

Working Satisfactorily at the Rogers Farm at Auburn.

The tractor plow that was sent to Peterborough by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has been at work for the past week on the farm of Mr. R. B. Rogers near Auburn in a twenty-acre field which Mr. Rogers proposes to plant with corn. Mr. John Storey, who ran the Cressman motor truck for three years, is now in charge of the outfit, and it is working satisfactorily. When Mr. Storey took it over he says the engine was badly out of repair, but he has made good all deficiencies, and the plow can now take care of its daily allotted task — eight acres a day.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 21, 1917

THE DRAFT IN PETERBOROUGH.

ACCORDING TO a census taken by the recruiting officers, there are in Peterborough fourteen hundred men of military age, married and single. It is probable that of these, about one thousand would be able to pass the physical examination. This city will be called upon to furnish something like one hundred and fifty men for the service of the hundred thousand that it is proposed to raise by the selective draft. This number is likely to be chosen from unmarried men from 18 to 30 years of age, that is for the first call, other classes to be drafted later if the necessity arises. The national service cards and the recruiting officers' census has furnished the Government with all necessary information with regard to the eligibles.

Conscription was the only recourse left the Government, unless all efforts in the war work were to be abandoned. The voluntary system, here and throughout the entire country, proved a lamentable and expensive failure. When the recruiting of the 247th Battalion was undertaken, no one anticipated the dismal fiasco which it really proved. Everything seemed to encourage hope of success. The two senior officers of the unit were young men who had been at the front and who had been wounded and invalided home. Both were ready to return to the battle line at the head of the battalion. There was no energy spared to fill the ranks. Every device was resorted to, and some of the plans adopted so commended themselves to the military authorities that they were put ino peration elsewhere.

In spite of all this, it was found impossible to raise more than about one hundred and fifty men in six month, and the battalion was finally incorporated with the 235th, and as part of that unit has been sent overseas.

It was not in every case a lack of patriotism that kept so many young men out of khaki. A sense of fair play was really at the bottom of the trouble. Dozens of eligible men were willing to go if others were not allowed to shirk their duty. "Put conscription in force and I will enlist" was written on more than one of the national service cards in Peterborough. "Why should Ontario be asked to do more while another province shirks?" was another of the excuses offered.

The young man who hesitated, who was unable to decide, is in doubt no longer. The Government has settled the matter for him. Any eligible man who regards conscription as a reflection on patriotism can yet save himself by volunteering before the draft is put into effect. Wasted energy will be saved now, and the recruiting officers themselves will be spared the necessity of actually begging young men to enter the ranks. There will no longer be room for local jealousies or for neighborhood bickerings. The selective draft will put every family in the community on the same footing.

The course decided upon by the Government will be popular even among those who are subject to the draft. It will be especially so among the fathers and mothers and other relatives of those who have friends at the front. The parents whose sons are lying wounded in the military hospitals or who are buried in France, the wives whose husbands have made the sacrifice, can now be comforted with the thought that whet their sons and husbands have done will not be allowed to go for nothing. The British sense of fair play, the demand for equalization of the burden has been at last satisfied. The good work will go on, and all those able to take a hand in the gigantic task will be required to do so.

MR. PUGSLEY'S OBJECTION.

SOMEONE WHOSE NAME has escaped us—not that it is essential—has said that Canada is the most bitterly partisan country in the world. No government can consider any question, it is added in support of the above statement, apart from its political expediency.

Canada may be obsessed with partisanship, but we hesitate to believe that the disease has reached a stage as serious as that which the Hon. William Pugsley, he whose chief characteristic, pugnacity, is so strikingly suggested in the first syllable of his name, appears to believe it has.

Of course, there were sure to be Liberals who would object to the selective draft proposed by Premier Borden. Mr. Pugsley goes a little further than any of his colleagues. He doubts the wisdom of investing any government with unlimited authority to select recruits for the army, hinting that the choice might fall largely upon those who have developed the habit of voting for Mr. Pugsley's party. In this way the ranks of the faithful, now somewhat attenuated, could be further reduced so that the party would no longer be a factor in an election.

The man, or men, who incepted that motto in the coat-of-arms of the nation knew human nature as represented by Mr. Pugsley. It is too much to ask the people to take his objection seriously. Canada, as before hinted, may be honeycombed with partisanship, but not to that extent. We can hardly bring ourselves to believe that Mr. Pugsley's party would avail themselves of such an opportunity, even if it knocked at their portals.

THE UNFAIRNESS OF THE STAR.

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that a newspaper of the standing and influence of The Toronto Star, generally so broad-minded and just, should be so eminently unfair in the treatment of the Government's conduct of the war. In its issue of Saturday it says:

> "The failure of the national service scheme to give any practical results, and the failure of the Home Defence scheme are undoubtedly factors which make for skepticism as to the successful working out of the compulsory proposals by the Government as it exists today. The directors of National Service were appointed on purely party lines. If the Council which it is contemplated will handle the new scheme is appointed on the same lines much criticism will result."

The National Service scheme has furnished the Government with a fund of invaluable information which has already been utilized in apportioning the working forces of the country where the necessity was most urgent. This information, too, was useful in that it was to an extent a plebiscite on the question of compulsory service. Thousands of signers of those cards declared themselves ready for military service if all the men eligible were required to do their part and if every section of the Dominion was forced to assume its share of the burden.

The Home Defence scheme is the final step in a policy which The Star has for months urged upon the Government, a preliminary to the enforcement of the Militia Act. The first call was for volunteers, and the public was given to understand that if there was no response, harsher measures would be taken. The Star has always maintained that the Militia Act now on the statute books is all that is required to get men for the overseas forces, and that an Order-in-Council is all that is needed to put the Act in operation.

The directors of National Service were appointed on purely party lines for the simple reason that Sir Wilfrid Laurier refused to co-operate when asked to select from his following the same number of men as the Government proposed to appoint.

One insurmountable obstacle to the formation of a coalition government in this country has been the insistence of the Opposition upon equal numerical representation in the proposed new cabinet. This demand was made in face of the fact that in a Parliament with a membership of 221, the Liberals, by actual count, have 86 representatives, a trifle in excess of one-third of the total.

COL. ROOSEVELT REPRESSED.

EVERY WAR brings to the front some military fanatic, the man willing beyond all manner of doubt to serve his country, but in a capacity for which he has never been schooled by experience. Too many men imagine that they possess all requisites for leadership, even on the field of battle.

Col. Roosevelt, whose moral and physical courage no one doubts for a moment, has had no militaryl training except that gained at the head of a volunteer cavalry regiment in the Spanish-American war, which was a holiday occasion for the American soldiers when compared with the gruelling conflict now raging in Europe. The Colonel asked the government to authorize him to raise a division of volunteers and proceed at once to France at the head of them.

This request has been very properly turned down. If Col. Roosevelt is anxious to render his country the right kind of service he should be willing to be governed by military ethics. There are military leaders in his country who have made a profession of arms and who at least have been thoroughly trained in the theories of war. They are the men who should be put at the head of the divisions now unless the entire service is to be demoralized. One course has been decided upon by Congress, and that should be followed, no exception being made even in the case of an ex-president of the United States.

Colonel Roosevelt's brigade, raised as he proposes to raise it, would be little better than an unorganized mob, no matter what patriotic enthusiasm animated those who composed it. Leave them to the redoubtable Colonel and they would be led as so many lambs to the slaughter. The venture would be spectacular and magnificent, but not war in any sense.

Modern trench warfare is vastly different from the open skirmishes between the Americans and Spaniards in Cuba nineteen years ago. Colonel Roosevelt has not yet won his spurs as the commander of a brigade. President Wilson, by withholding his consent to the proposition, has not only preserved the dignity of the service, but has saved the doughty Colonel from his own rashness.

(Indianapolis News.)

Reports from Washington make it distinctly clear that there is a decided objection to any tax that can't be passed on to the consumer.

The Vital Thing.

(Toronto Telegram.)

A public man has no right to think of what will happen to himself or his party if he does his duty. The one thought of every public man should be the thought of what will happen to his country if he fails to do his duty.

Sham Socialists.

(Philadelphia Record.)

The true nature of German Socialism has been pretty thoroughly exposed. Its "brotherhood" pretences were proved an imposture when in the spring of 1913 it voted the money for an enormous increase in the German army for the avowed purpose of defeating Slavism in the Balkans.

The Departing Soldier.

(Vancouver News-Advertiser)

It is frequently said that the question of the returned soldier is the most serious now before the country. It is serious enough, but there is a more urgent matter. That is the question of the departing soldier. What shall be done after the war may now be properly considered. But what we shall do during the war to win the war is a more urgent and insistent question.

NOTES FROM BOY SCOUT CAMPS

From out of the depths of the far north—a thousand miles from anywhere, comes an encouraging report of the progress of a Boy Scouts Troop—a troop composed for the most part of Eskimo and Indian boys Far off in the vicinity of the Yukon at a mission station known as Hay River, a thousand miles by water north of any railroad, this little band upholding the principles of the Boy Scout movement thrives. And it thrives under able leadership, for its scoutmaster, Wm. Robert Hunter, who is attached to the Anglican Mission at Hay River, is the very type of man who can be depended upon for leadership.

After journeying for about six weeks, for it takes that long to get to any point in Eastern Canada from Hay River, Mr. Hunter paid a visit to Ottawa recently, and, calling at the Boy Scout headquarters he recounted his many experiences with his little troop. The boys are willing to learn, he says, and like the idea of banding themselves into a troop. They pick up the work readily, and show a keenness in connection some of its branches that would even surpass the best efforts of some eastern or western troops.

These boys are mostly Eskimo and Indian orphans who have been sent to the mission. When they are 18 years of age they are sent back to their tribes where the training they have received while at the mission is made excellent use of.

WHAT ONE SCOUT DID

The braves deeds of a former western scoutmaster on the battlefields of Europe while facing death are recounted in a grim story graphically described in a letter from the colonel of his battalion. The hero was the late Lieut. Hetherington, of Brandon, who received mortal wounds while gallantly leading his men during recent fighting on the western front. The late Lieut. Hetherington was scoutmaster of the 3rd Brandon (1st Indian) Troop, and was also connected with the Industrial School at Brandon. When he left Canada he was accompanied by Lieut. Fred Cox, Boy Scout Commissioner for Prince Albert.

war of righteousness

At St. John's Church yesterday (Ascension Day) Archdeacon Warren of Toronto conducted both services. The reverend gentleman declared that the Allies are waging a war of righteousness, supported by the Almighty, which Germany would learn to her cost. However, he regretted that in Canada the soul of humanity is largely sacrificed to the dictates of fashion, public opinion and materialism. He also contended that much of the interest centred in national undertakings, such as railways to the arctic seas, is not at present called for, and will not be a necessity until Canada has a population of twenty millions.

The flowers on the altar were in loving memory of Pte. Charles Dean (killed in action) and the late Mrs. Charles Perry.

"He was posted to a famous battalion on Sunday, March 12th," the Colonel writes. "He had distinguished himself at a course of musketry and sniping at Aldershot during January and February, and was placed in charge of a platoon at once. During each of several days he accompanied me to the trenches, we had many heart to heart talks on conditions, dangers and prospects. He always showed a spirit of unselfish devotion to a high sense of his duties and responsibilities. We looked upon him as one of our dearest and most efficient officers.

WHY HE QUIT HIS AUTOMOBILE

"Well, professor," exclaimed the lawyer, "I see you are driving a horse again. What was the matter with your automobile?"

"There was nothing the matter with the car," gloomily replied the learned schoolmaster. "It was a good car, sound in wind and limb, and without a blemish on it, but I concluded, after a painful experience, that I wasn't designed for a chauffeur. I am a very absent-minded man and was always doing sensational stunts with my car.

"A horse soon learns my ways and governs himself accordingly. But a car never learns anything. The driver of such a machine must keep his mind on what he's doing all the time, and that is an impossibility for me.

"About a month ago I was seated in the car in the street, waiting for my wife, who was in a neighboring store. When she entered the car I started the engine and shoved the gear lever into reverse, when I should have done just the opposite thing. As a consequence we backed through the show window of a jewelry store, and I'll never forget the look of pained astonishment on the jeweler's face. There was a shower of plate glass and a lot of broken watches and things and I piled up several tons of wreckage before I remembered what to do and got the car going forward.

"The jeweler has made an exorbitant claim for damages, and by the time I have soothed his savage savage breast there won't be much left of the money I had in the savings bank. My wife says she'll never recover from the humiliation. She says she never felt so silly in her life as when we emerged through that broken show window and she saw a lot of her friends standing around trying to look sympathetic when they were suffering for a chance to laugh.

"I never could remember to put water in the radiator of my car and so it kept an able mechanic busy most of the time repairing damages. And every time I went into the country and was about nine miles away from the nearest house the car would stop and I'd find that I had forgotten to supply it with gasoline. I've walked more miles hunting for gasoline than the car ever run.

"I was always running over people and dumb animals because I couldn't remember which was the brake and which the accelerator. I'd see a man in front of my car, and reach for the brake, but I was pretty sure to press the other thing and the car would rear up in the air and then come down on the unfortunate pedestrian, and, as a rule, he wouldn't accept my apologies in the proper spirit.

"My wife insisted that I should quit trying to drive a car when she saw me tear the whole front out of the garage because I forgot to open the doors. She felt sure that I'd come back home in an ambulance before long if I persisted in running my own car. I have a good substantial horse that ought to give me service for years if I don't accidentally kill him off. My wife discovered me pouring gasoline into him this morning, and when I'm driving I find myself dropping the reins and reaching for the steering wheel every once in a while."

THE NEW SISTER-BABY.

My little sister's come! Hooray!
She's very red on either cheek;
She winky blinks her eyes all day,
And "bubbles" when she tries to speak.

Henceforth I must be kind and true,
As older persons ought to be,
And teach her things, and show her, too,
Whatever's good for her to see.

The tripping stairs, the pinching doors,
The corners where I've stubbed my toe,
The sit-down spots on slippery floors,
And all such things one ought to know.

How birds dig worms and grass makes hay,
How Hector buries bones in places;
How cows give milk and poultry lay,
And mother cats wash kitties' faces.

Oh, yes, I must be kind and true,
And teach her useful things and such,
Because she's ignorant and new,
And I am old and know so much.

The true standing of an editor is being appreciated after death, if not before. A lawyer sent the following words to a widow: I cannot tell you how pained I was to hear that your husband has gone to heaven. We were bosom friends, but we can never meet again.

Wilt Tellum was furious. He dashed into the editorial sanctum of the Chin Wagger over the prostrate form of the office boy and confronted the editor himself.

"Look here!" he bellowed. "This paper called me a liar!"

"Oh, no, it did not!" replied the editor calmly.

"It did, I say!"

"I say No!"

"Well, some paper said it!" spluttered Tellum.

"Possibly it was our contemporary down the street," said the editor sweetly, fingering a paper weight. "We never print stale news."

Mrs. Neaurich was talking to her broker over the telephone. "Kindly buy me a hundred shares of steel at the market," she said briskly.

"Certainly, with pleasure," the broker replied, "common or preferred?"

"Preferred," replied Mrs. Neaurich, icily, "I never purchase anything common."

For nearly two hours she inspected linoleums. Roll after roll the clerk brought out, but still she was dissatisfied. At last he paused in despair. "I'm sorry, madam," he said, "but if you can wait I can get more from the factory. Perhaps you will call in again."

The prospective customer rose. "Yes, do," she said graciously, "and ask for one or two with very small designs, suitable for putting in the bottom of a canary's cage."

She was taking her son to the school for the first time, and, after impressing the schoolmaster with the necessity of the boy's having a thoroughly good education, she finished up by saying:

"Be sure he learns Latin."

"But, my dear lady," said the schoolmaster, "Latin is a dead language."

"So much the better," replied she. "You know, he's goin' to be an undertaker."

Evil to Him Who Evil Thinks.

"All right behind there?" called the conductor from the front of the street car.

"Hold on!" cried a shrill voice. "Wait till I get my clothes on!"

The passengers craned their necks. A small boy was struggling to get a basket of laundry aboard.

SPRING TIPS.

Points About Lines and the Newest Touches.

The straight line dress presupposes the use of a girdle or a belt. The apron string girdle has been in fashion for at least three seasons, and it seems advisable to swing the pendulum in the opposite direction and to ring in the sash effects. The wider belts will serve to emphasize the elongated waist line and also to give greater accentuation to the flattening of the hips and enlargement of the waist itself.

Those who like the chemise dress will be able to continue its wear for several weeks to come. It is very probable that the slip-over dress which fastens on the shoulder will be developed in linens and silks as the season advances and the demand comes for summer models. Of course it is likely that a new name will be thought out for dresses that repeat more or less faithfully the fashion features of the current season.

For the average woman many attractive dresses are being evolved that show the normal waistline—that is, the bodice is a bit loose about the waist and the girdle is so arranged that there is no inclination toward a definite delineation of the waistline.

Because of the liking for medieval effects there is a disposition to employ great quantities of metallic tissues and glittering laces in combination with mock jewels. Lanvin, for example, has sent over an afternoon frock, the upper section of which is a shimmering foundation of cloth of gold covered with gold lace, which is elaborated with wonderful beads and embroidery. One instinctively thinks of the crown jewels of some eastern potentate, so gorgeous is the ensemble.

This frock has a round collarless neck and sleeves that do not reach to the elbow. The cuirass form of bodice is more pronounced because of the plain skirt of indigo blue satin. The latter spreads out a little from the edge of the long bodice toward the hip line, and thence to the ankles it is shaped inwardly on a gradual line that gives the new silhouette.

A WEE EASTER COAT.

What the Small Girl Will Wear Next Month.

Almost any clever mother could make this coat. On a short yoke is shirred a full skirt, corded three times to grade the fullness. Novelty buttons close it, double breasted, and any pretty sailor collar adds the finish. A navy blue straw hat is trimmed with ribbon and berries of straw.

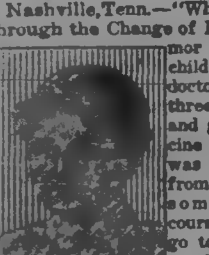
SO DRESSY!

Window Group.

The window group presents many difficulties to the feminine heart. But what could be more simple than to forget the wooden trims separating the window units and treat the grouping as one window? The glass curtains may be two or four—that is, with an opening only in the center of the middle window, or with the opening at this point and in the center also of the two side windows. These thin curtains should reach only to the sills.

In providing for the overdrapery two side drapes only need be taken into consideration and should hang to the bottom of the sill trim. Occasionally these may be held in place by a band of the same material, which may or may not be finished with a bow. But great care should be used not to use this treatment wrongly, for the looped back curtains of older times were worse than eyesores, and any suggestion of like horror today is to be avoided.

The two end side drapes should then be connected across the top by a fulled and simple valance.



HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it."—Mrs. E. H. BEAN, 525 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a pure remedy containing the extractive properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, meets the needs of woman's system at this critical period of her life. Try it.

If there is any symptom in your case which puzzles you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Ceiling Bed.

The problem of what to do with extra company when you have no guest room has been solved by the disappearing bed which is hidden in the ceiling. It is the latest addition to the large number of disappearing and folding beds of all kinds, but it differs in its construction from any bed which may come under the classification.

In the first place, it does not take up wall space, closet, or floor space. It fits in the ceiling of the room, two false panels being used so that the place of concealment is always covered. When the bed is lowered to the floor one of the panels descends and covers up the opening, leaving nothing to suggest where the bed came from. The other panel, held below the bed, fits into the ceiling when the bed has been raised to its hidden day-time position in a box installed between the ceiling and the floor above. Fitted in one of the side walls of the room is a winding drum around which are cables leading through the joists and fastened securely to the four corners of the bed. An inconspicuous door gives admission to the winding drum, and by turning the crank the bed is raised or lowered into position, as desired.—Popular Science Monthly.

Chinese Gardeners.

In Chinese gardens belonging to wealthy men one sometimes sees the oddest sort of plants. It is a fancy of Chinese gardeners to plant statuettes of tiny men firmly in plots, just like real plants, and then to train live evergreens to grow up over these statuettes. The vines thus form a kind of robe for the statuette men, their white faces and hands protruding from out of the greeness. Of course, the vines have to be trimmed very often to keep them in shape.

Had to Change Name.

Rev. and Mrs. A. P. Quirmbach, who represent Trinity Methodist church of Kitchener in the Methodist mission field in West China, have changed their name to "Quentin." A letter from them stated that Chinese prejudice against everything of German origin had made it necessary to select another name in order that they could effectively carry on their work among the Chinese. Rev. Mr. Quentin is a native of Kitchener, and has been a missionary in China for about fifteen years.

German Biologist Has Become Recent Convert To Faith in Militarism

THE famous German biologist and philosopher, Ernst Haeckel, in the second edition of his "History of Creation," published in 1870, just before the Franco-Prussian war, expressed himself severely with regard to the effect on civilization of what he termed "military selection," by which the finest examples of the youth of a nation are marked out for slaughter, while the unfit are exempt. It is pointed out by Professor Caullery, of the Paris Sorbonne, writing in The Revue Scientifique that in subsequent editions these passages were successively emasculated, and finally suppressed. Professor Caullery asserts that these changes marked the conversion of Haeckel to militarism. Whether or not this is true, the German philosopher's former pacifist views and his subsequent unwillingness to father them are of considerable interest. Here is one of the strongest passages quoted by Professor Caullery:

"This infamous militarism, the cancer of contemporary Europe, has assumed an absolute and unprecedented preponderance since universal military service, a republican institution, has been united, forming the most monstrous of hybrids, with the permanent army that serves absolutist and dynastic ends."

PROF. ERNST HAECKEL.

This passage, and others like it, were cut out in the third edition (1872), issued after Germany's victory. Following it, Haeckel goes on to express himself as follows in a passage that was left in the third edition, but had met its fate before the book reached the sixth:

"If any one should dare to propose to put to death at birth, as the Spartans and the redskins did, imperfect infants of whom a miserable existence could be surely predicted . . . our self-styled humanitarian civilization would rightly give a cry of indignation. But this same humanitarian civilization finds it quite natural that with each explosion of war . . . hundreds and thousands of the most vigorous youths should be exposed to the chances of battle! And why, I demand, is this flower of the population thus massacred? Generally, for ends that have not the slightest thing in common with the aims of humanity and which should be removed from the path of every really civilized people - in many cases for purely dynastic interests, which have nothing to do with the real happiness of the nations that have been hurled against each other."

Not only have these denunciations of militarism been cut out of the late editions, but in them Haeckel forbears entirely to criticise "military selection." Instead, he inserts a new passage condemnatory of what he calls "clerical selection," as "dangerous and devastating," acting through clerical celibacy and the influence of such institutions as the Spanish Inquisition, "which carefully eliminated all the noblest and best characters." Professor Caullery notes, as a matter of interest, that the edition containing this matter was issued (1875) at the time of Bismarck's Kulturkampf - his conflict with the Catholic Church; and he says:

"Haeckel - always a propagandist —thus went to the rescue of the Bismarckian policy of the day. The German intellectuals always love to put themselves at the service of the Government, and this is probably another example of the fact."

The Picture Show.

In a recent statement on the much-discussed question of the motion picture, Mr. Albert Chevalier brought out a point which is worthy of special attention. "The cinema, to-day," Mr. Chevalier said in effect, "is in much the same position as was the music hall twenty years ago; managers try to compose their program so as to suit all tastes, good or bad. As a consequence, many people will not, for half an hour's real pleasure, sit out a long series of items which jar or frankly displease." Who that has ever gone to a "picture show," in any part of the world, does not appreciate Mr. Chevalier's criticism?

TWO HUNDRED MILES BY CANOE IN ONTARIO

Magnificent Scenery of the Large Lakes—Canoeing in Helen Falls Resembles Alpine Climbing

W. R. Bocking writes: —There were three of us: myself as organizer of the expedition, a brother of seventeen healthy summers, and a lad of fifteen. Starting from Sudbury with our complete equipment we drove 20 miles to Lake Wahnapitae, where we loaded over 200 lbs. of baggage into the canoe, placed ourselves in the small spaces remaining, and turned north towards the wilderness. All portages, the first two weeks, had to be made in two trips, so that considerable time was spent when we encountered many of these in a day's travel.

Travel Two Days, Rest One

Throughout our trip we adhered strictly to a schedule of two days' travel followed by the third day spent in camp; this frequent resting, with a daily average of only 10 miles while travelling, combined to make the trip not too arduous and hence the more enjoyable. During our travels we had, among others, two famous portages. One, around Helen Falls which is 80 feet high, resembled Alpine climbing more than canoeing; the next, "The Golden Stairs," dropped so abruptly in one place that two long logs have been placed to slide canoes down. Night found us camped in Lady Evelyn Lake. For the next few days we enjoyed the magnificent scenery of the large lakes, Lady Evelyn and Temagami itself, marvelling always at the wonderful translucency of the water and the beauty of the island-studded stretches on every side. The paddling of long distances without a portage, over water 300 feet deep, was in decided contrast to our days on the Sturgeon River.

Two Days at Lumber Camp

Leaving these lakes, a day's journey down the Temagami River, involving six portages and the running of several rapids, brought us to Island Lake. Here we spent a couple of interesting days with the caretaker, the sole occupant, at a lumber camp. It was pleasant to be under a roof once more, to eat at a table, to cook in a real oven, and to have a change in the bill of fare. We saw much to marvel at in the construction of the huge log buildings, and in the tons of food for men and horses stored in readiness for when "the gang" would come in. Our next day was a short one; there were six portages, but a very strong current made us slip along right merrily in between them, and by noon we were at the mouth of the Temagami. Thus ended a trip covering 200 miles of paddling, with 62 portages, lasting four weeks.

MAKE LETTERS SHORT

A professor has been discussing the question of public opinion in its relation to democracy. Naturally he referred to the press, and one of his criticisms is that the newspapers of Canada do not make sufficient use of letters from its readers. The difficulty, says a daily paper, is that letters to the editor are too few and too long. Too many of the writers are under the impression that they must write an essay, covering the whole ground. For such matter a newspaper has not enough space. It would be better to handle the various phases of a subject in half a dozen short letters.

It is not absolutely necessary even to put the idea into the form of an essay. A very useful kind of letter is one containing an opinion or a suggestion, not necessarily for publication, but for editorial consideration. Sometimes a writer will devote a great deal of pains to a letter, will try to get it inserted in one or more newspapers, and will feel angry and disappointed if it is not used or used only in part. A much better way is to write a different letter to two or more papers, so that the publication may be spread over several papers and several days. An editor may not be able to print a letter immediately; then, if he sees it somewhere else, he will throw it aside as stale. That difficulty may be obviated by the plan we have described.

CLOSE TO THE SKY

Loftiest Dwelling-House in the World is in Peru

"The loftiest habitation in the world is in Peru," writes Isaiah Bowman. "Between Antabamba and Cotahuasi occur the highest passes in the Maritime Cordillera. We crossed at 17,400 feet and 300 feet lower is the last outpost of the Indian shepherds. The thatched stone hut that we passed at 17,100 feet and that enjoys the distinction of being the highest in the world was in other respects the same as the thousands of others in the same region. It sheltered a family of five.

"As we passed three rosy-cheeked children almost as fat as the sheep about them were sitting on the ground in a corner of the corral playing with balls of wool. Hundreds of alpacas and sheep grazed on the hill slopes and valley floor, and their tracks showed plainly that they were frequently driven up to the snowline in those valleys where a trickle of water supported a band of pasture. Less than a hundred feet below them were other flocks and huts."

Box that Stops Theft

A box has been introduced on the market which cannot be opened without breaking the wire that seals it. And to break the wire is to leave the tell-tale evidence that cannot be covered. The box is normally sealed by twisting the wire tight and cutting it short, and in this manner the condition of the contents as well as the quantity are protected.

Brazil Has Wealth and Power

OF the ten republics of South America there is one which surpasses any of the others in area, population, and resources. This is Brazil, which also differs from its neighbors in origin. While the other South American States were originally colonies of Spain, Brazil owed its settlement to Portuguese adventurers. It was first discovered by Vicente Pinzon, one of the companions of Columbus. No settlement took place, however, the region being east of the line of demarcation agreed upon by commissioners of Spain and Portugal in June, 1494. In the year 1500 a Portuguese commander, Pedro Alvarez Cabral, on his way to the East round the Cape of Good Hope, was driven far out of his course by adverse weather, until finally he reached the Brazilian coast. Cabral having landed, Mass was celebrated on Easter Day, 1500, a cross was erected and the country was declared to be a dependency of the Portuguese Crown. During the ensuing fifty years settlements, called captaincies, were made along the Atlantic coast from the mouth of the Amazon to the mouth of the La Plata. It was found necessary to provide for the common defence by establishing a central government, and Frome da Sousa was appointed the first governor-general. In 1552 the first bishop of Brazil arrived. The college of St. Paulo was founded and placed in charge of Jesuit professors. In 1578 began a period of humiliation for Portugal, when Philip II. of Spain acquired the crown and the subordination lasted until 1640. During the interval Brazil was several times assailed by hostile expeditions. The Dutch alone succeeded in making good their foothold. When the House of Braganza had wrested the crown from Spain, the new dynasty resolved to imitate the policy of the Dutch in order to oust them from the land which they had usurped. A commercial company was established at Lisbon similar to that which had its headquarters at Amsterdam. This company was authorized to defend Brazil from its enemies. It sent out a fleet and a land force and engaged in a stubborn conflict with the intruders which ended in the defeat of the Dutch and their exclusion from Brazilian territory. For half a century afterwards the Portuguese colonists enjoyed immunity from hostile attack. The discovery of gold and diamonds had the result of withdrawing laborers from the sugar industry in which Brazil had won the pre-eminence. The revolution in North America had an echo in Brazil when some of the colonists of Minas attempted to cast off the Portuguese yoke. The French Revolution affected the fortunes of Brazil still more profoundly. Threat of invasion from France induced the prince regent (afterwards King John VI.) to cross the ocean, with the queen, the royal family and the great officers of state. On the 16th of January, 1815, Brazil was constituted a kingdom. On the 26th of April, 1821, King John returned to Europe, leaving the problem of Brazil to be solved by his son, Dom Pedro. On the 7th of September, 1822, Dom Pedro declared Brazil independent, and a few weeks later became constitutional Emperor. In 1831 he resigned in favor of his infant son, Dom Pedro II. The young Emperor, who was to be known as one of the most enlightened princes of his time, attained his majority on the 23rd of July, 1840, and held the sceptre of a constitutional sovereign until November 15, 1889.

The revolution which closed the reign of Dom Pedro, was without bloodshed. The imperial regime was succeeded by a constitution based mainly on that of the United States. Dom Pedro's successor as ruler of Brazil, was Marshal Deodoro da Fonseca. Brazil is a country of enormous extent, stretching in one direction 4,000 miles, and in another 2,500, and having an area of nearly three million and a quarter of square miles. It consists of twenty states, the population of which ranges from four and a half millions to less than a quarter million. There are a good many residents in Brazil of foreign birth — Italians, Germans, Portuguese, Poles, French, and British. Just at present the Germans are attracting most attention. They are said to number about 350,000. Mr. W. S. Barclay, who visited Southern Brazil some twelve years ago, failed to detect any ardent desire, on the part of the German settlers to substitute the German eagle for the flag of their adopted country, but admits that ill-advised propaganda may have led some of them astray. The German emigration to Brazil took place for the most part in the sixties or early seventies of the nineteenth century. That of the Poles and Italians was of a later date.

The resources of Brazil are varied and great in keeping with its vast extent. They include coffee, rubber, rice, sugar, tobacco, cotton, cacao, Brazil nuts, diamonds, emeralds, sapphires, garnets, and other precious stones, gold, sulphur, bitumen, coal, copper, quicksilver, galena, and lead. It is on her enormous coffee crop that Brazil depends for her income from overseas. Three-quarters of the world's coffee comes from Brazil. Two-thirds of the product is raised in the State of San Paulo. The forests of Brazil are virtually boundless. That of Matto Grosso is a million square miles in extent. The condor, the cayman, the tarpon, the jaguar, the guanaco, the vampire-bat, the acatinga, the bird-killing spider, these are a few of the forms of animal life that are met with in Brazil. As for the vegetable life, its variety is a world without end.

MR. BOWSER QUITS.

Everything Wrong at Home, He Seeks Peace Elsewhere.

HIS WIFE CALLS HIS BLUFF.

She Sings Merrily as He Departs. Turned From Boarding Houses—Old Maid's Fear of Possibilities—Returns For Phonograph Music.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1916, by Associated Literary Press.]

IT was after Mr. Bowser boarded a street car to come home the other evening that he got to thinking. He had come away in the morning with a frayed collar on. Mrs. Bowser was to blame.

One of his suspenders had given way during the day. If Mrs. Bowser was the right kind of wife could such a thing happen?

He had put on a sock with a hole in the heel, and it had hunched up and annoyed him all day. Some one was to blame, and who but Mrs. Bowser?

He had found a grease spot on the sleeve of his coat. He hadn't put it there. Some one must have got up in the night to do it, and who had the opportunity but Mrs. Bowser?

In slipping around on the sidewalk he had discovered that the heel of one shoe was run down. He couldn't exactly say that Mrs. Bowser had been sliding in his shoes, but wasn't it her duty as a wife to take notice of such things and tell him to stop at the cobbler's?

BOWSER ROWS WITH THE CONDUCTOR.

And then she was burning more coal than she ought, and he had no doubt that she lighted all the gas burners during the day to bankrupt him as soon as possible.

There were lots and lots of things to think of, and he was so busy about them that he was carried three blocks past his own street. Of course he had a row with the conductor about it, but Mrs. Bowser was primarily to blame and must be held responsible.

And he got home to find the gate standing wide open. Yes, sir, all the sheep, hogs and cows in town could walk right into the yard and nibble at the stone dog he had for ornament. They might even bite its tail off.

And right on the top step was a hairpin—a hairpin that must have cost a quarter of a cent. It wasn't the cost so much as the principle of the thing. If Mrs. Bowser would throw hairpins outdoors, why not potatoes, milk and butter?

And, lastly, there was the rug. When he left home in the morning that rug was lying as straight as a bee line. Now it was all twisted around and hunched up to boot. If Mrs. Bowser was that careless of a rug, what could she be in money matters? Why, she must waste thousands of dollars a year!

A Grouch With the Dinner.

Mr. Bowser opened the door. There was no Mrs. Bowser to greet him. There was no cat. And right there on the hall tree, on the peg where he always hung his hat, was a dusting rag. If Mrs. Bowser would hang a dusting rag on his peg would she hesitate to murder him as he slept?

Oh, things were all wrong—dead wrong, and something had got to happen! He heard her down in the dining room, and he went down. He clumped on each step to give her notice that he was a determined man. She was bringing things to the dinner table and halted long enough to say:

"The cook had to go to a funeral this afternoon, and that left me the dinner to get. Sit right down."

Mr. Bowser sat. Here was another grievance. There was a funeral. Who had brought about that funeral? Why wasn't he telephoned to that there was a funeral? Was he Mr. Samuel Bowser or a mere cipher in this world?

Mrs. Bowser sat down after a moment and hoped he would like the dinner and that she had taken particular pains with the steak, but he did not answer. She gossiped a little, but he continued glum. She asked for news about Dr. Cook, but he simply glared at her.

Here was another grievance. She must see by his look and attitude that he was put out about something—something that might be positively dreadful—and yet she hadn't asked him to explain. No; she didn't care a cent. She would have treated a barbarian the same way.

By and by he shoved back from the table and started upstairs. He expected to be called back, but no call came. Indeed, he had scarcely reached the head of the stairs when Mrs. Bowser began clearing off the table and singing. Yes, sir, singing, and he might be contemplating suicide for all she knew!

Dawn of the Crisis.

A crisis must come. Things could not go on this way. He put on hat and overcoat and then called to her. She came up with a wiping towel in hand and a smile on her face and was about to say she'd be through in ten minutes when he cut in with:

"Mrs. Bowser, you must have seen that something ails me."

"No, I hadn't," she replied. "Is your rheumatism bothering you again?"

"You must have a feeling that a crisis is at hand."

"About Joe Cannon?"

"About us! Woman, I can stand this no longer!"

"Why, what is it?"

"I leave home tonight—now!"

"You are not going to climb Mount McKinley?"

"I am going because I can live here no longer. You are driving me out. I have got to go to a boarding house."

"I didn't know that I had driven you, but if you feel that you must go I hope you'll get a comfortable place. Don't take a back room. If you do the cats will be sure to bother you. Come around and see me when you have time. My office hours will be all day and all evening. Please excuse me now, as I have the rest of the dishes to finish. Be sure to get a front room."

With that she tripped downstairs, and for a long minute Mr. Bowser stood like a man of stone. He'd been thrown down, and thrown hard. He had met the enemy and he was hers. He had bluffed and been called, and now to save his face he must go. He looked around the room and took a long farewell and then strode down the hall and banged the door after him. As it banged he heard Mrs. Bowser singing "The Good Old Summer Time."

Turned Away From Boarding Houses.

Mr. Bowser felt all the feelings of a man who had turned himself outdoors. He walked down to the corner and then down to where he had seen a sign of rooms and board. He was five minutes making up his mind, and then he rang the bell. A hatchet faced woman came to the door. While he was announcing his mission she was sizing him up, and when he had finished she replied:

"You must have the best of references, sir."

"But my name is Bowser."

"That's nothing to me. I knew a murderer named Bowser once."

"Woman, don't talk"—

But she shut the door on his toes and saved the rest of his speech. He tried again one block below. A young man with a lisp came to the door for his mamma. Mr. Bowser asked if he could get a front room and board, and the reply was:

"We had a manth here who looked just liketh you, and he stole the towels."

"But what's that got to do with me?"

"Why, you might steal the sheets!"

Mr. Bowser invited him to come out and have his head punched, but he refused and shut the door and locked it. The next house appeared to be run by an old maid. At least one came to the door, and as soon as the request was made she answered:

"Do you kick about your meals?"

"Why, I expect good living."

"Are you a married man?"

"I expect I am."

"Then I'm afraid you'd make love to me. They always do, you know."

"I'm not making love to anybody."

"Then you are a bad, bad man, and I'd rather not take you. You see, a girl"—

Mr. Bowser walked down the steps and straight to his own door. He took off his overcoat and hat and walked through to the sitting room, and as Mrs. Bowser looked up from her book he said:

"I was going to a club, but I changed my mind. Let's set that old phonograph going and have some music!"

$1,298.99 FOR RED CROSS FROM RECENT MOTOR SHOW

Sergeant Edwards, an Escaped Prisoner From Germany Will Probably Tell Story of His Life, at an Early Date, Under Auspices of Local Society.

The financial success of the Motor Show was practically attested at the Red Cross Executive meeting of May 14, when a cheque for $1298.99 was handed over to the treasurer of the Red Cross Society, with a promise of $41 more, when a tire, won by Mr. Killaly, who so kindly donatd it to the Red Cross should be disposed of. This substantial addition to the funds of the Society was especially gratifying at this season, when, owing to the active engagements of our armies, the stores of the Red Cross are in such urgent request.

Possibly, there are still many who fail to realize the extensive work, carried on by our local society. For example, it considers it a point of honor to care for all the prisoners of war from Peterborough and the surrounding country, with the result that each month, approximately $500 is sent to the Prisoners of War Department for this purpose. When we consider the steady increase in prices of wool and materials and the immense quantities that must necessarily be purchased to supply the various workers, societies and auxiliaries, we must conclude that it is only due to the most careful and skilful planning and judicious buying, that the finances of the society can be administered, so as to meet the various demands. As we all know, the number of our Canadian troops, during the past few months has greatly increased and the scale of their operations, during the next few months will be of undreamed of magnitude, so that there is an undeniably urgent call to every individual to assist, as never before, with money and work, that our supplies may not run short and the sufferings of the sick and wounded be thereby increased.

For the month of April the convener of the Knitting Committee reported 594 pairs of socks as having been received, 282 pairs being machine-knit and 312 hand-knit. Of the latter, 158 pairs were gratefully acknowledged as donations from the following auxiliaries and societies:

St. Paul's 60 pairs, South End 33 pairs, Murray Street Church 28 pairs and Lakehurst 37 pairs.

In presenting the report of the packing committee for April, the convenor stated that the following auxiliaries and societies had sent in supplies for April:

Ashburnham, P. L. Berean Bible Class, Lakehurst, Lily Lake Red Cross, Murray Stseet Church, Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., St. Paul's Church Auxiliary, Trinity Church and St Peter's Patriotic Club.

The report of the Packing Committee was as follows.

"Madam President and Members of the Peterborough Red Cross, your Packing Committee report for the month of April, 19 cases, containing pairs socks, 180 sheets, 818 towels, dressing gowns, 40 day shirts, 425 the following: 133 pairs pyjamas, 18 133 M. T. bandages, 1 case hot water bottle covers, wash cloths, and personal property bags.

In this connection it will be a cause for thankfulness to note that receipts have been received from St. Johns, N.B., stating that all shipments to that port had been received and forwarded, that the one shipment to Montreal was likewise acknowledged and in addition that word had been received from the Canadian Commissioner, Col. Hodgetts, in London, to the effect that the January shipment of goods had arrived there in safety.

The citizens of Peterborough, in the near future, will, in all probability, have the privilege of listening to Sergeant Edwards, an escaped prisoner from Germany, tell the story of his life in the prison camp and of his escape, as arrangements are being made to have him give an address here, under the auspices of the Red Cross.

URGES PREMIER TO ENACT NATIONAL PROHIBITION

Rev. Ben H. Spence of the Dominion Alliance Addresses Open Letter to Sir Robert Borden.

In an open letter to Sir Robert Borden, Ben H. Spence, of the Dominion Alliance, urges that Sir Robert and his Government take immediate action in curtailing the liquor traffic.

"On your desk, still awaiting reply, is the unanswered memorial of the Dominion Prohibition Committee, presented by the deputation of which I had the honor of being a member, in January last. That deputation represented every province in Canada and, I believe, the general sentiment of the citizens of Canada, regardless of party, creed, race or color. It was, I submit, a moderate, fair, reasonable request, and asked for action along three lines: Prohibition of the manufacture and prohibition of importation of intoxicating beverages, and stoppage of shipment of liquor into dry provinces.

"The figures furnished by Sir George Foster in the House of Commons the other day show that in three years Canadian distilleries used 216,267,947 pounds of foodstuffs, the breweries 336,998,663 pounds, a grand total of 553,266,610 pounds.

"Would that we might have in the Dominion House of Commons a repetition of the inspiring scene witnessed in the Ontario Legislature when the leader of the Government and the leader of the Opposition led the whole House, and without a dissenting voice, the Ontario Temperance Act was put through.

"Sir Robert, if you speak Parliament will follow you. But—it is your move.

"In yearning hope that this Canada we love, through the Premier we honor, will rise to the greatness of the occasion, fraught with such vital possibilities and responsibilities.

BOLD NOVA SCOTIAN

"Strong Arm' Williams, Amazing New York Police Head

Alexander Williams, perhaps the most noted police inspector in the old "strong arm" days, died in New York, where he had lived since his retirement from the force in 1894. Williams was the man who christened "Tenderloin" to which district he was transferred in 1876 from another precinct where the pickings were not so good. "I've lived on chuck steak for a long time," remarked Williams, "now for some tenderloin." Williams was a physical force policeman, who faced death a hundred times single handed and who engaged in countless personal encounters with the most desperate characters in New York.

Williams was 82 years old when he died, and an interesting circumstance is that he was a Canadian, being a native Nova Scotia and a shipbuilder by trade. Times have changed for the better since Williams' day but there is due a tribute to the personal courage of many of the old time officers who took their lives in their hands. There were no Rosenthal murders in those days, at any rate. Perhaps the best epitaph of Williams is contained in the New York Sun: "Alec. Williams, he was no mollycoddle."

The strong man cleaned out notorious districts by beating up the leading bullies and rowdies, raided disreputable resorts and chased murderers and thieves out of the city by fear of his personality. In the Tenderloin he became rich, but eighteen separate investigations into his conduct failed to convict him of wrong doing. Under pressure of the famous Lexow investigation he resigned in 1894, thus obviating a probe into his personal possessions which ran up into the hundreds of thousands.

TO KEEP IN MIND

To remove tea stains—Rub with glycerine, leave for a few minutes then wash in the usual way. To remove ironmould—Rub stain with a lemon dipped in salt. When the stain disappears rinse immediately. Should anything become scorched during ironing plunge it immediately into cold water. Before putting flannels into the wash-tub see that the soap is thoroughly dissolved or the flannels will be hard. Save the water in which potatoes have been boiled. It is excellent for sponging silk and ribbons. When washing handkerchiefs add half a tablespoonful of carbonate of soda to the rinsing water. This will improve the color and slightly stiffen them. If when boiling milk it should burn, pour into a clean jug and stand the jug in a basin of cold water till quite cold. The burnt taste will entirely disappear.

Reckless Shooting

When field shooting in a settled community, never fire a shot within less than forty rods of a house, or of people at work in the field. That express permission may have been given to shoot where you wished is all the more reason why the rights of the generous proprietor should be carefully guarded. For the same reason keep out of stock pastures and away from teams; half the ill-will of farmers towards hunters is engendered by reckless shooting that might do damage.

Prohibitive Courses

How small a proportion of the sons and daughters of farmers in this country can ever expect to take a course in one of the recognized agricultural colleges! Increasing agricultural education must come through the public school.

Dogs and the Dye-Pot

The Chinese sleeve dogs, called Pekinese, are so fashionable and bring such high prices that breeders of them are making a lot of money in the business. Also dealers. The color specially desired for a Pekinese is a delicate shade of brown. Dogs of this kind are of various hues; but an unscrupulous dealer finds no serious difficulty in making them brown, to match any shade. He simply dips doggy into a pail of hydrogen peroxide a few times until his coat is well bleached and then dyes him. By like means, the fashionable tint.

CURTAINS FOR WINDOWS: AIDS TO THE WORRIED

Details of Window Treatment Are Explained—Not so Difficult or Mysterious After All

Window curtains are simple matters when once you understand them. But somehow most people think they are inscrutable mysteries! They are not, indeed! And they can be accomplished much like the handkerchief the little girl had to hem.

"Oh dear, oh dear, oh dear!
How many stitches it will take
Before it's done, I fear.

"Yet set a stitch and then a stitch,
And stitch and stitch away,
Till stitch by stitch the hem is done—
And after work is play!"

That's really all there is to a curtain after you understand the matter! And so that you will understand the matter let us get to business. Almost all windows should have glass curtains; the few that need not are casements, and of course, French doors are another matter, to be taken up separately.

When Window is Narrow

Glass curtains really should have no terrors, for they are, with one accord, quite plain and harmless, the materials being chosen from the voiles, scrims and muslins, in either white or cream color. They are made with a casing at the top, which differs from a heading, you know, hems at the inner sides about two inches wide, and hems at the bottoms of the same width or wider. A tiny hem is run at the outer side, if you object to the selvage. Glass curtains should reach to the window sills; this is an invariable rule, and should be strictly adhered to; and it is in much better taste not to trim them. If your window is very narrow, and you feel that you need not have two glass curtains, it will be perfectly proper to have one width only, and without the central division.

Hang Straight Down

When you use two glass curtains, you may either keep them pulled together in the middle, or push them back a little toward each side, though the former method is the best approved, since the prime need of the glass curtain is to promote privacy, and it is rather contradictory to push it back so it won't. But in any case it should hang straight down without being tied back. And of course it is to be understood that these curtains should be hung just as near to the glass as possible; hence their name. A thin adjustable brass rod is used for the purpose.

Following these directions for the thin inner curtains will simplify the matter into merely a task of stiching—set a stitch and then a stitch, and stitch and stitch away, and you'll find that your curtains will very soon be up—and so pretty!

Carrots with Bacon

Cut four or five slices of bacon into small pieces and fry; when brown add carrots cut into quarters and some small onions to the grease, taking out the bacon; when onions and carrots are brown, not cooked, add water, one tablespoonful of extract of beef, salt and pepper; put back the bacon and let the whole simmer for one-half hour; just before serving put in some chopped parsley.

Celery Soup

Break 3 or 4 white stalks of celery into pieces and pound them fine, then cook gently for 20 minutes in a double boiler with 3 cups milk and a slice of onion. Melt 2 tablespoons butter and cook in it 2 tablespoons flour; then add gradually 1 cup thin sweet cream, and when boiling stir into the celery mixture. Season with salt and pepper and serve very hot with hot biscuits or buttered toast.

Tomato and Pineapple Salad

Scoop the centers from plump, ripe tomatoes and fill with cubes of canned pineapple. Pour good creamy salad dressing over and serve on lettuce leaves.

Pimento Potatoes

Slice cold boiled potatoes. Add three chopped pimentos, turn into a baking dish, sprinkle with grated cheese, cover with milk, and bake in oven twenty minutes.

Whatever fruit is in season should be made the most of, especially for desserts.

DECORATED FOR HEROISM WHERE KING HAROLD DIED

At Hastings, Sussex, England, where many Canadians are stationed, and where the Saxon King Harold met his death in battle with England's invader, William, Duke of Normandy, there recently took place an interesting event to Canadians, which will pass into history as a notable story of the Premier Cinque, part of the British Isles. Here King Harold fought and died in 1066 in defence of English liberty, and on the same old historic site, Sir Robert Borden decorated eight gallant Canadians with medals for heroism displayed in defence of world-wide democracy and justice. This incident is described in an Hastings newspaper as follows:—

Sir Robert Borden (Prime Minister of Canada) and Major-General Turner, V.C., C.B., D.S.O., visited Hastings yesterday for the purpose of presenting medals to N.C.O.'s and men of the Canadian contingent. The event was not publically announced, but half an hour before the appointed time a crowd began to gather around Warrior Square Gardens, and by eleven o'clock it was a dense mass. The weather was all that could be desired. Sir Robert had a word of congratulation for each hero as he pinned on the decoration, and a hearty grip of the hand. "For conspicuous gallantry and devotion," the Distinguished Conduct Medal was awarded to Dolson, C.E. After the safety pin of a bomb had been withdrawn, prior to firing the corporal saw it spark. He immediately snatched the shell from the gunner's hands, scrambled from the gun-pit, and shouting the warning "Take cover!" threw it into a shell hole, where it exploded before touching the ground. A similar decoration was awarded to Private G. Watson, R.C.R. On 23rd January, the R.C.R.'s made a raid, and when they reached their objective Private Watson and a bayonet man went back along a trench to clean up. In the first dug-out they found two Germans and in the second nine. One of them threw a bomb which wounded Watson in the right forearm, and his companion in the head. He fell at the entrance of the dug-out and Watson jumped over him, pulled him round the corner of the trench, and bombed the dug-out. After that he carried the wounded man to a third dug-out, but the one German in it did not wait for him.

Six Military Medals

This was followed by six Military Medals being awarded. That presented to Sergt. J. Fergus was for taking part in a daylight raid on the enemy trenches on 17th January. He was wounded when returning, but almost immediately afterwards he went back and assisted to bring in a comrade who had been severely wounded. Previous to that it is reported that he rendered good service. Sergt. Giggey, J.D., took his award for bringing three guns through to the objective after his officer and sergeant had been wounded, and holding the position for five days after, when he was relieved. "For exceptional good work during the attack on 8th October, 1916, at Regina Trench on the Somme," Private S. Mitchell received his decoration. He was carrying dispatches to the headquarters from the front line through continuous and heavy shell fire and succeeded in keeping up communication with the remainder of the battalion. Lance-Corporal Orchard, C.D., another recipient, was decorated for bringing in several wounded men under heavy shell fire until wounded himself. Lance-Corporal Temperton, J.R., was scouting on 27th September, 1916, in No Man's Land with his company commander, when they saw a number of Northumberland Fusiliers lying in shell holes. Temperton carried seven of them back to safety, being under machine gun fire all the time. Private Foster was the last to receive his award from Sir Robert. His story is as follows: To the left of Courcellette on 15th and 16th September, 1916, the Canadians advanced 1,500 yards. The R.C.R. suffered very heavily from machine gun and shell fire. Foster carried messages to headquarters up the trenches through the German curtain curtain fire, accomplishing this brave act several timestimes.

Hopeful Address

The presentation of the awards was followed by those on parade being drawn up in close formation, and Sir Robert addressing the men. He said that since arriving in England he had felt it his duty to see all the Canadian troops as far as possible in England and France — especially those wounded and convalescent in hospital. Except for one other centre, Sir Robert said he thought Hastings completed his tour. While out in France he was at Thiepval and saw Bapaume in the distance, not then captured. It looked a difficult position to take, but it was taken, and he had formed the opinion that men who could take such positions as that and Vimy Ridge could take anything in the world. In Canada the spirit was one of admiration for the Canadians. They were thrilled with their gallant deeds. They had been able to witness some of the great turning points of the tide, and the war had taken a more favorable aspect during the past five or six weeks than perhaps during the whole three years. Many of those before him had come out of the "valley of the shadow of death." They had done splendid service and brought distinction upon Canada. The future of the world depended upon the result of the war. It must be victory for them and no inconclusive victory. In conclusion Sir Robert said he was confident that the name of Canada would be maintained in all their future efforts, as in the past, and in the name of the Canadian people and the Government he wished them "God-speed" in the great work which still lay before them. This was followed by three cheers from the recipients of the medals, and three for Sir Robert. And so another event at Hastings passed into history.

TANNING FUR SKINS

Detailed Method Given for Any Kind of Hide

After cutting off the useless parts and softening the skins by soaking them in warm water, take away the fatty part from the inside, after which soak the skins in tepid water for two hours. Mix equal parts of borax, saltpetre, and glauber salts (sulphate of soda) in the proportion of about half an ounce of each to each skin, with water sufficient to make a thin paste. Spread with a brush over the inside of the skin, applying more on the thicker parts than on the thinner. Double skin together, flesh side inward, and put in a cool place. After standing 24 hours, wash the skin clean, and apply the following mixture in the same manner as before: 1 oz. sal soda, ½ oz. borax, 2 ozs. hard white soap, melted slowly together without being allowed to boil; fold together again and put in a warm place 24 hours. After this dissolve 3 ozs. alum, 7 ozs. salt, 1½ ozs. saleratus, in sufficient hot rainwater to saturate the skin. When cool enough not to scald the hands, soak the skin in it for 12 hours; then wring out and hang it up to dry. When dry, repeat the soaking and drying two or three times till the skin is sufficiently soft. Lastly, smooth the inside with fine sandpaper and pumice stone.

Brockville Man is Placed Under Arrest

BROCKVILLE, May 21. — A real sensation was caused here when George Munro, a well-known and popular resident of Brockville for the past few years, was arrested by Chief Burke. All sorts of rumors were current as to why the arrest had taken place, as Munro had appeared to be a law abiding citizen and was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

Burke received a telephone message from U. S. Immigration Inspector Robinson of Ogdensburg, N. Y., asking him if he knew a man named George A. Rogers. Chief Burke stated that he knew Rogers, and was informed that Rogers had been in the habit of going to Ogdensburg, where he cashed cheques for Geo. W. Jackson on the strength of a New York City police pension fund. Jackson was wanted by the police of New York, Chief Burke was informed, for the theft of $83,000, but the police in Ogdensburg did not know him, as he always cashed his cheques through a confederate. He had been dodging the police for five years, Inspector Robinson stated, and he felt that it was time he was captured. He gave Chief Burke a description of the fugitive, and in Chief Burke's mind Munro answered the description minutely. He knew Munro well, and knew that he was well thought of in town, and in order to make sure that no mistakes were made, later telephoned and asked Inspector Robinson if he could furnish a photograph of George W. Jackson. The circular arrived, and a glance at the photo it contained convinced Chief Burke that his deductions were correct. The arrest was then made.

CHILD'S SEVERE STOMACH TROUBLE

Harriston, Ont., Father says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved his Child's Life.

Mr Corby, Harriston P.O., Ont., writes: "Our little girl was weak from birth, and though we tried doctors' medicine and other things she got no better. She just lay in her cot and cried, and neighbors all said we could not save her. The doctors said she had stomach trouble, and that the chances were small, yet Dr Cassell's Tablets cured her. They have been worth their weight in gold to us, for we were just giving up hope of saving our little daughter. I don't think there is any other medicine for children like Dr Cassell's Tablets. Publish this letter if you like; it may help others as the Tablets helped us."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 McCaul Street, Toronto.

117,166 MEN SUBJECT TO DRAFT IN THIS DISTRICT

Number Already Enlisted Over Six Thousand Short of Quota Asked for—Million and Quarter Yet Available in Canada.

According to the census of 1911 there were in the third Military District, of which Peterborough forms a part, 164,000 males between the ages of 18 and 45 years, and all regarded as eligible for military service. The records show the total number of enlistments in this district since the war broke out as 46,834. This leaves 117,166 still available for service.

Calculations based on census figures place the number of men who are subject to the selective draft that has just been decided on as 1,259,902. In raising by conscription 100,000 additional men for service overseas, and accepting the same population basis of allotment to military districts as was adopted by the Government in its former plan to secure 500,000 men by voluntary enlistment, the district which Peterborough belongs will be called upon to furnish approximately 10,600 men. In other words about one man in ten of those available is likely to be drafted. Those who can best be spared will be taken.

It must be remembered, however, that not all the men represented as eligible in the census returns are really fit for active military service. Nothing can be decided in this regard until the examining physician places his stetheoscope on the chest of those selected and submits them to the other tests. The percentage of those registered when offering themselve for voluntary enlistment has been surprisingly high and unless the physical tests are lowered a large number must be drafted before the required complement is secured.

This military district was called upon to furnish 53,000 men to raise the army of 500,0000 that were aimed at, under the voluntary system. It is 6,166 behind the mark.

According to figures made public by Col. C. H. Williams, chief recruiting officer for Canada, the total number of men who volunteered for service up to April to raise 500,000 men by voluntary enlistment, was 414,531.

The following figures showing the number it was proposed to raise in each military district, and the actual number who enlisted from each district, are at the present time illuminating as showing where the voluntary enlistment system broke down:

No. 1 Military District (London), proposed enlistment 44,000, actual enlistment 33,659.

No. 2 Military District (Toronto). proposed enlistment, 86,000; actual 94,086.

No. 3 Military District (Kingston), proposed, 53,000; actual, 46,834.

Nos. 4 and 5 Military Districts (Montreal and Quebec), proposed, 139,000; actual, 45,057.

No. 6 Military District (Maritime Provinces), proposed 65,000; actual, 37,844.

No. 10 Military District (Manitoba and Saskatchewan), proposed, 60,000; actual, 79,340.

No. 13 Military District (Alberta), proposed, 26,000; actual, 37,343.

It will be seen that No. 2 Military District has exceeded its number by 3,086; No. 10, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, by 19,340; No. 11, British Columbia, by 12,958, and No. 13, Alberta, by 11,343; while No. 1, London, is 10,341 behind; No. 3, Kingston, 6,166; Nos. 4 and 5, Montreal and Quebec, 93,943; No. 6, Maritime Provinces, 27,156.

Who Are Eligible.

It is anticipated that the selective draft will embrace four classes of men: Unmarried, from 18 to 25, and from 25 to 30; married men, 18 to 35, without dependents; and married with dependents. This differs from the four classes of the Militia Act, which are: Unmarried men or childless widowers, 18 to 30 years; the same, 30 to 45 years; married men or widowers with children, 18 to 45; all men from 40 to 60.

In this city during the past eighteen months the recruiting officers have taken a complete census of the eligibles so far at least as the age limit is concerned. Additional information is available through the National Service cards. The Government has already taken the final steps in the direction of recruiting and there is not likely to be vexatious delay in raising the number of men required.

SCHOOL BOARD ATTACKS BILLS

Asks Parliament to Disallow Acts Passed by Legislature.

OTTAWA, May 21.—An application has been filed with the Minister of Justice at Ottawa by the Ottawa Separate School Board asking for the disallowance by the Dominion Government of the Legislation passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature relating to the bi-lingual schools in Ottawa. The statement which is lengthy, recites in vigorous and forceful language injustices of the legislation.

The legislation attacked are two Government bills, one of which gives the Government authority to appoint a commission to take control of the Ottawa separate schools in the event of the local board failing in carrying out the regulations of the Department of Education and the other to indemnify the late Government-appointed commission for moneys exceeding $200,00" expended during the period the commission was in charge of the schools prior to the Privy Council judgment.

were ably and acceptably rendered. He adhered to the discipline, and as presiding officer was courteous and correct. His preaching was acceptable and profitable, his congregations kept up and the membership and givings to the church increased. Mr. Peever interested himself in the Sunday school and in the several societies of the church and accorded them his full sympathy.

Prudent and discreet, he made no enemies and all his people are friends who regret his leaving, and hope for him and his family all prosperity and happiness in their new home.

Submitted to the Quarterly Board, Thursday, 17th May, 1917, and adopted by a unanimous standing vote.

The meeting then adjourned.

COSTLY SUNDAY SPREE.

Assessed $23.75 For Drunk and Disorderly Conduct.

An Ashburnham young man was fined $23.75 in the police court this morning for a week-end spree in company with four bottles of whisky which he imported from Montreal. He was arrested at 5.30 yesterday evening in a drunken and riotous condition. During the night he smashed his bed, and consequently faced two charges—destroying the door of his steel cage, drunk and wilful destruction.

On examination prisoner testified that he left home yesterday morning at 00 o'clock, walked around the streets, and had dinner at the Albion hotel, Ashburnham, after which he returned home, where he drank considerable liquor, all alone. He then went for a drive at 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon. He was not drunk on getting the horse hut paid more than one return visit home, where he consumed considerable liquor until quite under its influence. He got his liquor from Lawrence Wilson & Co., Montreal, to whom he sent an order for four bottles, Wednesday afternoon. The liquor reached him Saturday. Prisoner was assessed $10 on each charge, with $3.75 costs.

His Worship remarked that with fines, costs of prosecution and horse and rig, the young man's week-end spree had proved somewhat expensive, to say nothing of his police court experience.

SUNDAY STORY OF WAR

The official statement of Sunday says the Germans attacked the Russian position on the northern end of the western front, and attempted an assault on the Russian trenches east of Khvorka on the Roumanian front, but were repulsed in both cases.

General Cadorna's forces extended their position yesterday on Hill 452 on the Julian front, and repulsed counter-attacks by masses of Austro-Hungarian troops, capturing a large quantity of war material. East of Gorizia the Italians broke through the Austrian lines and took a number of prisoners.

An official statement from Berlin says that near Arras fighting activity has again increased. On both sides of Monchy, after short artillery preparation, the English attacked during the evening in strong force. They were completely repulsed.

In the area north of Gorizia the Italians captured two four-inch and two six-inch trench mortars and machine guns.

The Germans made a strong attack north of Chemin Desdames but were easily repulsed, while twelve miles westward the French stormed Teuton defences near Laffaux mill and captured sections of trenches. Saturday was quiet except for artillery fighting.

British heavy guns smashed German attack near Epehy to west of the St. Quentin canal.

The British Admiralty reports the sinking by a submarine April 13 in the Mediterranean of the steamship Colbert with captain and fifty others.

Kennedy Jones, Director of Food Economy, made a statement at Edinburgh last night that the German submarines are being mastered by new methods of attack, and if this success continues there may be an earlier termination of the war than is generally hoped for.

Sir Edward Carson Is a Man Who Does Things.

Has Public Confidence

In Sir Edward Carson the Empire possesses a man it admires, and the Navy, a chief whom it already swears by. Because he is a man who gets things done. If this war has taught us nothing else it has taught us the relative value of words and deeds. And, to be quite frank, the talker has gone flop down in the presence of the doer.

Sir Edward Carson, like the Premier, can both talk and act, with, however, a marked preference for action. Indeed, he has an absolute distaste for mere eloquence, though when at the Bar he displayed unusual gifts as an advocate and unprecedented powers of oratory on behalf of an anxious client. He was a superb pleader, a wielder of a tongue that could flay alive an obstinate opponent. And he was successful as a barrister mainly owing to the fact that he never missed his mark. And that perhaps is the secret of his success at the Admiralty, that and the fact that he always knows what he wants and the shortest way to get to it.

When he entered upon his work at the Admiralty the other day he found rather a chaotic condition of affairs. No settled policy, no definite mode of procedure, a host of advisers and a number of heads of departments all at loggerheads the one with the other. So he just sent for these gentlemen, and when they appeared he said to them: "Gentlemen, in my profession, when a jury cannot agree, it is discharged. Please meet me here again to-morrow morning." And they did—but the "jury" had agreed!

The British Navy is not only the finest service in Great Britain, but it is the most magnificent accomplishment of its kind in the whole history of humanity. But it is dead sick of being "jockeyed about." And that, not to put too fine a point upon it, is what it has been subjected to for a good many years past. It has been mishandled and muddled by well-meaning but incompetent amateurs; it has been torn by internal jealousies, it has been well nigh wrecked by internecine warfare.

Therefore, one of the finest things of all the many fine things and one of the wisest that Mr. Lloyd George has ever done, was to make Sir Edward Carson First Lord of the Admiralty. For Sir Edward won't be "jockeyed about," and he will take jolly good care that the Navy isn't jockeyed about either.

Sir Edward is not [illegible] and agile politician; before all things else he is a statesman. He possesses not only knowledge and judgment, but also insight and foresight. He is unrivalled at picking up the end of the thread and extricating it skilfully and carefully out of the most hopelessly twisted and intricate tangle. Had we followed his Balkan policy, Bulgaria, and possibly even Turkey, would have come in with us, and it was his indignation at the foolish and fatal procrastination over the Salonica expedition that led to his resignation from the "Wait and See" Cabinet.

It is perhaps as a leader of men that Sir Edward Carson is really seen at his best, and that his remarkable and brilliant qualities really find their fullest scope. In outward appearance he might possibly strike the casual observer as somewhat grim and forbidding. His swarthy, determined, clear-cut visage opposes itself to the popular idea of what really constitutes a winning and an attractive personality. But despite these marked characteristics, possibly indeed on account of them, for all that we can say to the contrary, Sir Edward Carson rarely fails first to attract men to him, then to lead them on admiring and enthusiastic adherents, volunteers for the most forlorn hope that ever was. Men would die for him! The outstanding features of his character are his kindness of disposition, his human sympathy, and his great capacity for drawing out the best of the people with whom he comes into contact.

A MOVING CUE.

One Way to Help You Through the Dreaded Ordeal.

Urgent though the need for such miracle may be, it is seldom possible for one person to be in two places at the same minute. And the house mother who packs the barrel of fine china and bric-a-brac, crumpling paper to tuck into all the crevices, must often leave the unpacking of these precious trifles to somebody who has but a vague idea of what to look for when taking out the contents of the aforesaid barrel, even when assisted by a detailed list. There is always the danger that some tiny article of value may be tossed aside into the pile of discarded packing material.

The most effective method of guarding against these losses is for the packer to make use of a few quires of the cheapest bright colored tissue paper—green, orange, red or a blue that is not too dark. If every article of value, however tiny, be wrapped outside its other packing in the bright paper, there is virtually no chance that any of the packets will get mixed in with the crumpled newspaper or excelsior used to prevent breakage. To make security more certain, however, two rules should be strictly observed. No smallest scrap of leftover tissue should be allowed to get in with the pile of loose or crumpled paper used for "stuffing around," and but one color should be used for wrapping the articles in each box or barrel. The color can then be noted either on a large card in the top of the barrel or in good plain letters printed thereon, and the unpacker will know that no smallest wisp of that color is to be allowed to "get away," while the house mother will be able to rest easy in her mind on moving day.

Baked Things.

Select fresh tomatoes, scald them and remove the skins. Butter a pudding dish and slice the tomatoes into it. Sprinkle some pepper and salt over them and a layer of grated cheese. Over that put some fine breadcrumbs and several small pieces of butter. Bake from twenty to twenty-five minutes in the oven, but do not overcook this dish.

Put a tablespoonful of breadcrumbs into the bottom of a bake dish, then add two tablespoonfuls of cream sauce and half of your boiled parsnips add two tablespoonfuls more of cream sauce and a tablespoonful of brown sugar, then the balance of the parsnips and balance of the cream sauce over the top. Sprinkle a tablespoonful of brown sugar and a tablespoonful of breadcrumbs over all. Bake in a hot oven twenty minutes.

THE KAISER IS NOT INSANE BUT IS DEEPLY RELIGIOUS

Honestly Believes God is Behind Germany's Cause—Empire Day Sermon by Rev. R. B. Grobb at All Saint's Church.

At All Saints' Church last evening, the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., preached a strong and strikingly patriotic sermon on "Empire Day." He took for his text God's exhortation to Joshua, on the eve of his leading the children into the Promised Land, to "Be strong and of good courage, for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." In the course of a well prepared and interesting discourse the reverend gentleman, referring to the general opinion prevailing since the war began that there could be but one issue, said that there had been and would be times of discouragement when the Empire felt and would feel the need of reliance on God's assurance to Joshua of his support in a righteous cause. The war waged by Joshua, at God's command, was, like that of the Allies, one for freedom, which the speaker likened to a small stream, in the children of Israel's time, now swollen into a mighty river, so deep and irresistible that nothing can stop it.

While lauding the work of present day public men, the reverend gentleman regretted that so few were deeply religious and recognized the efficacy of prayer. Would to God, he said, that our national leaders were awake to the fact that the Lord is working through them in the cause of freedom and humanity, and that He is with them. But few of our Empire leaders, he went on to say, are dominated by religious principles in defence of that great river of freedom which has flowed down through the ages, from the time of Joshua, with ever-increasing momentum. The British had been entreated by their great admiral of the fleet to pray for victory, and it is said that Lord Kitchener, on hearing of the Germans' retreat from the gates of Paris, had remarked, "Sone one has been praying." Even the German Emperor believes and publicly announces that the Germans are instruments in God's hands for the enforcement of Prussianism. The Kaiser is not insane; he is deeply religious. But his great sin is idolatry; he worships a God of materialism by which moralty is divorced from religion, treaties turn up as scraps of paper, and international obligations violated.

While regretting much fault in British characteristics and conception of the call of religion, he thanked God that the Empire boasts that her morality and faith are very closely united; and that in this spiritual age which the world has reached we are going to realize a new sense of righteousness. This is Ascension Day, the reverend gentleman concluded, and the ascension into Heaven of Christ is a guarantee of the triumph of the people who take Him as their leader. Our cause is based on the teachings of Christ, and God is exhorting us to be strong and of good courage, for He is with us. Let our patriotism find its roots in religion. If we are only true to those great principles of truth and righteousness upon which Christianity is founded, even as the waters of Jordan opened up to allow God's chosen people to cross dry shod to the Promised Land, so will God be our leader to a triumphal conclusion of this awful war.

PARK ST. BAPTIST

Nicholls, the organist and choir master, prepared an excellent program of music for the morning and evening services.

The Park Street Baptist Church has grown from a small mission Sunday School that was started by the Murray Street Church in 1888, the late Mrs. Nicholl contributing liberally to its support. Three years later a building near the corner of Dalhouse and Rubidge street was rented and services were held regularly, the preacher being Mr. J. J. Reeves of McMaster University. In 1892 a frame church was erected on the same site as that occupied by the present edifice and the congregation worshipped in it until it became too small for their needs. The congregation was finally organized in 1893 and its progress has been steady ever since. Park Street Church is the pioneer place of worship in the southern section of this city.

The New Building.

The corner stone of the present church was laid in 1908 and the building was dedicated in May, 1907, the sermon being preached by Rev. W. A. Cameron of Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto. The pastors who have ministered to the congregation since its inception were J. J. Reeves, a student, Rev. W. J. Pady, Mr. J. H. Chapman, a student, Rev. O. C. Elliott, now of St. Thomas, Rev. A. H. Brace to whom is due the credit for raising funds for the new edifice, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, who left to take charge of a church in London and who is now overseas as a chaplain with a Battalion from that city; Rev. F. A. Connor and Rev. Dugald Brown, the present pastor, under whose administration the congregation has made steady growth.

The congregation has sent fifty-three soldiers to the front. One of these, Thomas Marks, was a student in the Woodstock College preparing for the Baptist ministry when the war broke out. He enlisted with a London regiment and has been promoted to a lieutenancy. Lieut. Marks returned to the city last week on sick leave after coming safely through the battle of Vimy Ridge. At the evening service last night he lead the congregation in prayer and offered up a touching petition for the Canadians he left behind him in the trenches.

Dr. Brown preached last night on "The Attractiveness of Jesus," the setting of his sermon being the Bible story of the miraculous draft of fishes when the fishermen forsook all and followed the Master. It was a charming treatment of a familiar theme, a heart to heart talk of pastor to people.

Miss Florrie Nicholls sang at the evening service, "Abide With Me," with splendid feeling and expression.

Miss Margaret Mann, who was one of the first teachers in the Mission Sunday School, is still an active worker in the congregation, the only member of the pioneer band left.

A writer says that the man who trusts another educates him. If he keeps on trusting he will also add to his own stock of knowledge.

More women would be interested in the suffrage movement if it was something that could be decorated with ribbons and hung up over the mantel.

ENTERED BELGIAN ARMY.

Dr. Frederic Nicholai of Toronto Served in Land of Birth.

Dr. Frederic Nicholai, son of the General Director of the Department of Sciences and Arts of Belgium, is back in Toronto after service with the Belgian army in Flanders since the first month of the war. He brings with him no word of his father, mother, sister, or brother, who were in Brussels when war was declared. He has come back also with a pronounced dislike of civilian Belgians in Flanders. In common with French-speaking Belgium he has no use for the native Flemish.

"Civilian Belgians ought to be entirely removed from the war zone," he said in answer to a query. Natives of Flanders, where the allied armies are stationed, are much inferior to the French-speaking peoples of the country, whose lands have been entirely overrun by the German army. "Too many Canadians judge the Belgian people by the Flemish," he said.

Dr. Nicholai went overseas as a civilian August 18, 1914, two weeks after war was declared and offered his services to the Belgian Government. He served with the motor transport section of the army until March, 1916. Then he went to Shorncliffe Camp, England, and enlisted with the Canadian Army Service Corps. His health gave out during the summer and he was in an English hospital from November 6 of last year until December 18 with severe indigestion, and then until February with "red tape." His discharge was delayed several weeks. He refused a place as interpreter for the Anglo-Flemish corps of the Belgian army because he said he had no sympathy with the language.

"Any man who has seen service at the front and says he is anxious to go back is a fit subject for an asylum," he said when he arrived in Toronto. War is—all that Sherman said it was, according to Dr. Nicholai.

Dr. Nicholai had been in Canada fourteen years before the war. He imported building materials from [illegible] have been entirely wiped out.

FIGHTING GRAIN DISEASES.

Enormous Losses Caused to This Country by Rust.

In a recent address, the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Martin Burrell, stated that last year's epidemic of rust in the Prairie provinces had cost this country $[illegible]000,000. That represents $115 for every farmer in Canada. Other diseases and drought occasioned the country a loss of another $50,000,000. No specific remedy for rust has yet been discovered. This much is known, that a late maturing crop is more subject to the disease than one that ripens early. It therefore follows that while no variety of grain is immune, the early maturing varieties will have the best chance of escaping. A reasonably early Spring, early sowing, and a quick-maturing variety of grain constitutes the best insurance against such an outbreak as was experienced last year.

Among other diseases which cause havoc among growing grains, smut is perhaps the most widespread. It is stated that the annual loss due to smut in oats, wheat, and barley amounts, in an ordinary year, to $17,000,000, or 6.2 per cent. of the capital invested in those crops. This enormous loss is almost entirely preventable by treating the seed before sowing in a solution made from one pound formalin to 35 gallons of water. Prevention of this kind is most necessary in these days of high cost of labor and seed. Wherever there is a danger of smut attacking either of these crops, farmers will do well to take this simple precaution.

Stem rust of grain occurs on wheat, oats, rye, barley, and many wild grasses, and appears as red rust in early summer, later in the season as the grain ripens, it develops into black rust. When the plants are badly infected the grains do not mature properly, and are light and shrivelled. The red rust spores of grain spread the disease during the growing season, but when they become black they do not germinate until the following spring, and then they are not able to start the disease on the grain again directly, but produce another form of rust on the leaves of the barberry whence they are blown to the growing grain or grasses and there give rise to the summer spore stage of the stem rust. There appears to be a slight difference in the varieties of rust appearing on the different kinds of grain.

The barberry is not essential to the continuance of the stem rust, though it is conceded that its presence does increase the severity of its attack on the grain, therefore an Act of the Ontario Legislature is in force which makes every person who plants, cultivates, or sells the shrub known as Berberis vulgaris liable to a fine not exceeding $10.

The formalin treatment for the prevention of smut is carried out by various methods. Of these, sprinkling the seed with the solution is a convenient and fairly effective method for oats and barley, but should not be used for wheat. For wheat, immersion of the seed in the liquid, and the removal of the smut balls is most effective. On small farms, simple but effective apparatus for immersing seed in the formalin solution can be devised and used, while on larger farms smut-cleaning machines are recommended. All methods of treatment of wheat seed should provide for the removal of the smut balls from the seed.

Seed treatments are sometimes ineffective for various reasons. The treating solutions may not be of the required strength, the treatments are carelessly or incorrectly performed, and the smut balls are left in the seed, or the seed after treatment is placed in sacks, bins, or machines which contain live smut spores.

The Gray Squirrel.

Gray squirrels, like those common in Canada, having taken possession of the gardens and woods at Kew, England, all the brown British squirrels have disappeared. Whether the two have interbred is not certain, but as only the long-haired gray ones remain it seems more reasonable to suppose that the gray squirrels have killed all the brown ones. The American squirrel is much tamer than the British one, for it is no uncommon sight to see one or two of them taking food from visitors' hands. Seeing these long-haired creatures running about at Kew may induce others to introduce gray squirrels to their pleasure-grounds or parks. This, however, is not altogether desirable, as the experience at Kew is that they are more destructive than the British squirrel, and they also breed far more rapidly. Their liking for nuts of all kinds is well known, and they are also fond of apples from the orchard, and conifer cones. When this kind of food is scarce they eat the bark of young twigs of elm and oak trees. They are also fond of some toadstools, and have a black mark against them at Kew for taking the unopened buds from a bed of roses. It is only five years ago that the Duke of Bedford presented the first two pairs of gray squirrels to the gardens. These were liberated in the Queen's Cottage grounds. They have bred so rapidly, however, and are doing so much damage, that measures have had to be taken to reduce their numbers.

A New Industry.

It is stated that a new industry is to be established in the Province of Quebec—the making of Devonshire cream. As the result of investigations recently carried out in the laboratory of one of the agricultural colleges, a leading authority has come to the conclusion that the making of clotted cream practically identical with the far-famed product of Devonshire is feasible in Eastern Canada. Many farmers in the country districts own large herds of Jersey cattle, and are therefore in a very favorable position, for, while it is not at all essential that Channel Island breeds shall be used, a rich milk is of course preferable.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

BASEBALL

A game of baseball was played Friday afternoon on the King Edward school grounds between the Central Seniors and the King Edward Senior teams. The Centrals were victorious by the score of 11 to 6. The batteries were: for King Edwards, Holyman and Robinson; for Centrals, McGill, Dutton and Duggan. S. McNeely umpired the game.

Sponge Cake

Beat the whites of five eggs very stiff, add slowly one-half cup of granulated sugar; beat till quite stiff. Beat the yolks stiff, add one-half cup of sugar and beat well. Fold the yolks and whites together as you would fold an omelet. Sift in slowly one scant cup of pastry flour with a saltspoon of salt sifted in. Fold the flour in lightly. Do not smooth in the pan. Bake half an hour in a slow oven. This sponge cake never fails.

Nut Cream Pie

In a double boiler cook one cupful of sweet milk with one cupful of white sugar. Thicken with one tablespoonful of flour and the yolks of three eggs; then add the juice of one lemon and one half cupful of pecan or other nut meats chopped finely. Bake crust as for lemon pie; when cooked fill with the nut custard, cover the top with a meringue and brown delicately.

Blackberry Jelly

In making blackberry jelly it is a good plan to have one-third of the juice from barberries, or rhubarb, and the other two-thirds from blackberries. The sugar should be in the same proportion as for strawberry jelly.

In arranging nourishing and inexpensive menus do not forget w[illegible], hominy, dried lima beans, split p[illegible], dried corn and other dried vegetab[illegible] that can be made into soups [illegible] steamed.

Mint will grow in water, like many other plants, if left in a sunny window and given plenty of air.

At the Pop Concert.

The orchestra was playing the "Moonlight Sonata."

"Sweetheart," he cried passionately, "I have loved you ever since you were a child! I have longed for the sweet companionship of such a woman as you ever since"—

"Shut up, will you?" came a roar from the seats at the rear. "We want to hear the music."

"Shut up yourself!" retorted the young man. "They advertise this as a pop concert, and I'm going to pop or bust."

Then, turning to the fair maiden at his side, he began again.—Harper's Weekly.

Getting His Sea Tongue.

Skipper (to passenger making first voyage)—How was the game last night?

"Bad for me. Every time I held a larboard bower somebody took it with the starboard."

A Motto Disproved.

"What broke up your theatrical company?"

"The playwright introduced a line that was sure of a big round of applause. The leading man, the leading woman, the comedian and, in fact, everybody insisted on having the opportunity [illegible] the result was a general quarrel."

"And what was the line?"

"'There's glory enough to go round.'"—Washington Star

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

Tris Speaker did not have to go to work yesterday to regain his lead over Ty Cobb. While Tris was idle Cobb slid up to the plate four times, and back again. He didn't get a hit.

Frank Baker spilled the beans in Detroit. With the bases full in the ninth and the count 3—3, the home run king connected for two bases and emptied the sacks. Thus goes the story of another Tiger defeat.

Babe Ruth has been stopped. And the White Sox did the trick in fine style. They sent him to the showers in the third inning.

Besides winning the game for the Yankees, Home-run Baker helped himself to three hits.

Eddie Plank didn't fare very well at the hands of the Senators, and the Browns dropped their fifth straight game.

Jacobson's homer in the first inning was the longest drive of the season in St. Looey.

The Pirates behaved like a crowd of amateurs, and the Giants had no trouble winning. Bunny Brief tossed the pellet into the Pirates' dugout in the first inning and the McGraw hirelings got a big jump as a result.

Benjamin Kauff made two hits in three times at bat and scored three runs.

Even the presence of Johnny Evers in the Braves' line-up did not result in a victory.

The Cubs stopped at ten. It wasn't their own desire to do so—the Phillies did it. Alexander allowed 'em only four hits. That tells the story.

Matty has decided to take especial pains with Pitcher Scott Perry, who was recently sold to him by the Cubs. Matty is sure there is something in the young man, and he's going to bring it out. Perry pitched several fine games for the Chicago team in September, but when he went to the Coast in February Fred Mitchell decided that he couldn't use him any longer.

Ray Caldwell has come back. All doubt about that point has been dispelled by the fine showing he has made in the box, and the Yankees are more than ever pinning their faith on that big pitcher. Unfortunately, Ray has not been able to chalk many victories against his score, but that hasn't been his fault. The fact is that on those occasions when he has been called on to do the pitching his team mates have failed to deliver the goods in the shape of hits. Caldwell is pitching in the same style that made him feared during his early career with the Yankees. He had the same hard luck in the matter of lack of support during the beginning of the 1916 season.

The Kaiser once said to his son:
"Young man, go get me Verdun."
But [illegible] seemed to forget
That the French were there yet,
And so they, Verdun—yes, Were Done.

A S.O.S. call has gone forth from the Giants, for they will be without the services of Charley Herzog for some time to come. The injury he sustained a few weeks ago is more serious than had at first been supposed, and his recovery is not proceeding as rapidly as was expected. It may be two weeks more before he can take up his work on the diamond and meanwhile his team mates are anxious to have him back. They can't do without Charley's swift playing.

If the White Sox fail to win the American League pennant this year, Clarence Rowland will be removed from the management. Already the gossips are circulating a story that Owner Comiskey has picked out Rowland's possible successor. Tom Needham, who is handling the Newark International League team, is said to be the man. He is highly regarded by Comiskey and Ban Johnson, who recommended his engagement by the Newark club. Needham and Pat Moran once played with the Cubs under Frank Chance. In 1914 Moran was the Phillies' coach and Needham served the Cubs in a similar capacity. Chance, who then was managing the Yankees, made the prediction that one day both Needham and Moran would be major league team leaders. Moran has already made good, and Needham will perhaps have his opportunity next year.

Athletic Girls of Old Quebec

THEN ho! for the northland, and the snow-white city of Quebec, where Canada's fair daughters with their rosy cheeks and true esprit de vivre are famed as the most expert sportswomen on the American continent.

Canadian girls learn to skate and snowshoe as soon as they are old enough to walk. Almost any day, in the governor's garden in Quebec, one may see great shaggy dogs and tiny, rose-cheeked kiddies from two years old onward, playing in the snow, sliding, stumping along on tiny snowshoes or sliding down over the big bump onto Dufferin terrace on their first skis. Many a soldier now at the front fought his first battle in governor's garden—a snow ball battle over a fort of glistening snow, under the very shadow of the citadel and a stone's throw from where Wolfe fell. Boys and girls together are sent out to play in the new-fallen snow, snugly wrapped in their tight little red or blue blanket suits, toques, and warm knitted leggings, with the inevitable scarfs wound tight about their little waists.

And so it is that, almost from infancy, Canadian girls are taught to skate and slide and ski, and to look upon the coming of winter as the dawning of a day all their own. Along with their brothers, they have gone in for winter sports until now they are scarcely less expert than the men themselves, and not a whit less enthusiastic.

Canadian girls have no rivals in skating, the world over. True, some experts like Charlotte and other professionals who have devoted their entire lives to fancy skating, may be able to come across the footlights with remarkable stunts. But for real skating—waltzing, figure skating, the graceful, sinuous, undulating, lazy skating, the real poetry of motion, commend the Canadian outdoor girl as having mastered the art to perfection. American girls are close seconds, and at Tuxedo, Poland Springs, the White Mountains, and the Adirondacks, one may see really fine exhibitions of ice skating. But the Canadian girl leads through superior skill, and takes precedence over all the world for her uniform knowledge of all the joyous sports of winter.

The Canadian girls have their own snowshoe clubs, and when they have donned their gay colored sweaters, knotted the scarfs tightly around their waists, covered their saucy heads with fussy knitted caps and put on their shortest skirts and gayly beaded moccasins—then they are ready for the huge bat-winged snowshoes tied on with thongs of reindeer hide, and are out and away to break a crisscross path across the trackless fields toward the hills up which the m a miniature forest of trees, somewhere a couple of miles from town, the clubhouse squats in the snow, a friendly, yellow-painted clubhouse, with open fire within and steaming mugs of cocoa and soup aux pois and meat pie made after a famous Canadian recipe, and the crisp, nutty French crullers and all sorts of good things to eat, after the brisk tramp over the glistening snow.

Despite the craze for knitted fabries for sport clothes, the Quebec girl is pretty loyal to the old Canadian blanket costume for her toboggan sliding and snowshoeing. The heavy, woolen blankets, gayly striped and warm as hot toast, are made into short, rather narrow skirts and a snug coat with tight scarf and toque to match. Knitted stockings of warm wool and moccasins made by the Indians complete the outfit, not forgetting knitted gloves which are so much warmer than any other sort.

But for skiing and skating, the blanket coats are a bit bulky, and a warm, wooly sweater is the best bet of the Canadian girl. Some of them wear snug little caps of ermine or moleskin that cover all but a few stray wisps of curls that creep out to frame the rosiest cheeks in all the world.

Nowhere in America, save perhaps in the Scandinavian colonies at Milwaukee and St. Paul, does one see so many girls on skis as in Quebec. On the "Glacis," as the steep hill running down from the wall of the citadel to the esplanade is called, on the Plains of Abraham, that historic battle ground back of the Ross rifle factory, or at the high, steep jump of the Quebec ski club at Sandy hill, every day one finds the ski girl, ranging in age from 6 to 26, alert, straight as a reed, lithe and quick as a panther, skimming over the frozen surface of the snow, rising at the jump to land ever so gracefully and slide down the swift descent as a swallow darts downward.

But it is at hockey after all that the Canadian girl springs her big surprise. Half a hundred Americans who were in Quebec for winter sports during the month of February surrounded the fir-tree-fringed, open-air skating rink of the Chateau Frontenac and gasped as two teams of girl hockey players met in conflict upon the glassy surface in a game as swift as the falling of a shooting star. Forked lightning over plate glass is not faster than the tireless lassies who belabored the puck with all the science and speed of a seasoned hockey player. The unexpectedness of football, the science of baseball, and the speed of motor polo, as some of the spectators said, summed up the game between these intrepid damsels in petticoats, waging battle royal for the benefit of "The movies." Not long hence their portraits will be flashed upon a thousand screens from Tampa to Toronto, from Halifax to Portland, and the prowess of the fair Canadian hockey player will be published abroad, following a discreet silence of years upon the subject of women and hockey.

Going Up.

The gentle elevator man,
Who scorns the dull earth clinging plan,
Loves to exclaim whene'er he can,
"Going up!"

He saw the sunshine in the sky
On the thermometer his eye
Paused, and he gave a joyous cry—
"Going up!"

And [illegible]
He said it still [illegible] complete,
"Going up."

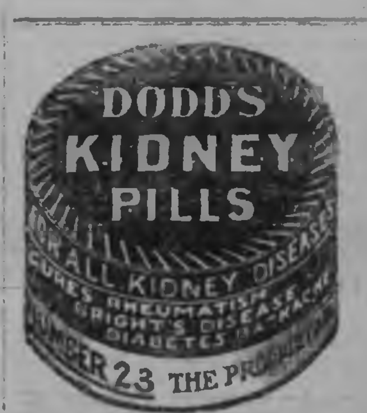
Window Cleaning.

Cleaning windows is a hard task at best, and it usually happens that as soon as the windows are cleaned a storm or rain undoes all the work. Next time you clean your windows moisten a cloth with denatured alcohol, go over the window quickly with this, and polish with a dry cloth. The glass will be brilliantly clear and will repay the cost of the alcohol by never being cloudy, as is often the case when windows are washed in the ordinary method.

Just Jam.

When putting boiling jam into glass jars dip a tea cloth in cold water, then fold it lengthwise and stand the jars on it. Next pour the jam into them and let them stand for a few minutes. This will prevent cracking.

Some headaches are natural and some are acquired.



HOW TO KEEP WELL

DIET IN SKIN DISEASES.

IN REFERENCE to skin affections, one might divide them in relation to food as follows:—

(1) Those directly dependent on diet.

(2) Those in which diet may not be the cause but in which it is of capital importance.

(3) Those in which diet may be an indirect factor.

Pellagra, beri-beri, urticaria (hives), and toxic erythema are examples of diseases which are perhaps largely due to diet.

Pellagra is not very common in this country. It is believed to be due to a diet largely of Indian corn. It is associated with dementia or a form of insanity, and is very fatal. It is common in the Southern United States and in Italy.

Urticaria is a common disease. Some people cannot eat shell fish or certain forms of food without having an attack of hives. Beri-beri is a Japanese disease due to the use of polished rice.

The toxic inflammations of the skin (Erythema) are of the same nature.

In the second class the diet while not necessarily the cause of the skin affection, is still of practical importance. Illustrations of this class are seen in eczema, psoriasis, and rosaceae.

In these affections the best diet is a liberal use of well-boiled rice, milk, fruit, and vegetables. Meat, fish, and eggs should be prohibited for a time. Tea, coffee, and alcohol are, of course, not to be used.

Children often have eczema. In the treatment the diet will need careful selection. In psoriasis, meat, cheese, milk, and eggs must be replaced largely by a vegetable diet. The same with rosaceae, (the red chin and nose so abhorred by delicate skinned women.) In this affection both the starches and the proteins require reduction.

Acne and seborrheal dermatitis are diseases, probably indirectly, the result of the too extensive use of starches and sugars.

Worms.

These are rare in infancy. Most of the symptoms applied to worms are due to faulty digestion. The only sure way to diagnose worms, is to see them in the movements. They (threadworms) look like small white threads seen in a recent movement. These are the only ones which occur in infancy. If worms are discovered, wash out the lower bowel thoroughly with a solution of borax one tablespoonful to a pint of water and inject one-half pint of infusion of quassia daily for several days. An injection of limewater is useful. Wash the parts including the labial folds carefully to prevent re-infection.

Swallowing Foreign Bodies, Such as Coins, Etc., or Poisons.

If the former, they are usually passed without any trouble. Watch the movements.

If poison is swallowed give a teaspoonful of Wine of Ipecac and plenty of warm water. This will cause vomiting and wash out the stomach. In the meantime get the doctor as quickly as possible.

Bow-Legs.

These need not cause any anxiety. Most children grow out of them, and if they do not the doctor will advise the best treatment.

Circumcision.

Some boy babies need to be circumcised, most of them do not.

Vaccination.

All babies should be vaccinated in the first year. Vaccination does not cause any injury unless dirt is allowed to get into the wound. Vaccinate all babies, including girls, on the left arm. It is a splendid badge of your civilization and good sense.

Medical Officers of Health and Local Boards of Health are notified that the Ontario Health Officers' Association will meet in the Medical Building in Toronto, on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 29th and 30th of May next.

One of the features of the conference will be an address by C. E. A. Winslow, Professor of Preventive Medicine, Yale University, on "Safeguarding the Health of Infants and Young Children."

Brig.-Gen. W. J. Neill of London registered at the Snowden House on Saturday.

Mr. R. W. Irwin, formerly of this city, now with the Natural Gas Co., Xenia, O., wil return home tomorrow after a renewal of old acquaintances in his home town.

Pte. Darral Wainwright of the 69th Field Battery, Tornto, was a week-end visitor in the city. Private Wainwright is an old Peterborough boy now resident in Bermuda, where he contracts for the British Government. He noted yesterday that there are twenty-three men from Bermuda in the 69th Battery.

Mr. J. H. Seels, Dominion Express Co.'s agent in Kingston, for the past ten years, has been removed to this city to replace Mr. T. H. McGarrell, who is transferred to the London agency.

There are registered at the Empress: J. C. Williams, Toronto; J. B. Dutten, Kingston; B. J. Aswold, Odessa; Major B. W. Thompson, Ottawa; P. C. Metz, Chicago.

Lieut. O. W. McNabb, of the 252nd, Lindsay, is a guest at the Snowden House.

Dr. C. H. Fulford, of Port Hope, has accepted a position as assistant operator for Dr. Holloway and will give special attention to cases of pyonhea.

Dr. Holloway left this morning to attend the Dental Convention at Toronto for a week. His practice will be in charge of Dr. C. H. Fulford during his absence.

The many friends of Mr. Walter English will be pleased to learn that he is progressing favorably, and was able to contribute to the columns of this issue of the Review.

Peter Mulholland, of the Trinity College School, Port Hope, spent Sunday in town with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mulholland, Homewood avenue.

COUPLE KILLED BY RADIAL CAR

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parsons of Orillia, Meet Sudden Death.

NEWMARKET, May 21.—Struck by a Metropolitan suburban car while crossing the railway tracks at Varney Roach's Point, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parsons, of Orillia, were killed instantly at 9.40 o'clock on Sunday morning. They were carried about 150 feet in their auto, and crushed to death before the street car was stopped. Mr. Parsons was a prominent hardware merchant of Orillia, being proprietor of Parson's Fair. An inquest was opened by Coroner J. W. Wesley, of Newmarket. After vewing the remains adjournment was made until Saturday night. The bodies were brought here to be sent to Orillia.

SAT. TAG DAY NETTED $536.00

FOR SOCKS AND COMFORTS FOR BOYS IN THE TRENCHES.

Saturday last, Trench Day, conducted under the energetic auspices of the Canadian Kitchener League, proved a gratifying success for all concerned. The sale of tags, so cheerfully undertaken by a large number of ladies, produced the sum of $536, to be devoted to procuring socks and other comforts for our heroic boys in the trenches. This may be considered generous giving, in the face of so many financial calls upon citizens' patriotism these days. The thanks of the League are due the Street Railway Company, for free transportation; the Bank of Montreal, for loan of the recruiting roms, and of the bank chambers; Messrs. Walkey, Hague, Phelan and Henry, of the B. O. M. staff, for taking charge of the money collected; and to Caretaker Cole of the bank for preparing accommodation, and attendance on the lady workers.

POOR POLLY GOT TEACHER'S GOAT BY APT SAYING

An Unknown Talkative Parrot Gives Local Instructor a Scare.

Sometime between the present and moving day a well-known man moved from rented quarters to a newly-bought house in the west end. After everything had been settled in proper working order a few relatives began to send in presents to the occupants. Among them was a large cage containing a very talkative, as well as watchful parrot, and for a few days days neighbors passing by were startled by remarks such as these: —"Who dyed your hair?" "Have the barbers gone on strike?" "It's a shame the way you abuse that child." "Did you forget your powder?" etc.

Across the way lives a lady who makes costumes for a few customers, among them a well-known and popular teacher. The latter made a call there a few days ago, and after arranging details about a new dress, stood on the verandah steps talking gossip. The conversation ended, and the teacher came across the street and proceeded past the house of the parrot owner! She was scared stiff and hustled for the house of a nearby friend when this remark came from an unseen source: "You'd think you were a school teacher." "You talk too much." The teacher startled them by talking about the nerve of some men: they ought to mind their own business. For two cents I would call up the police.

The friends who were used to the parrot are enjoying the joke immensely.

OBITUARY

MRS. HOSKINS.

The remains of the late Mrs. Hoskins, of Toronto, reached Peterborough on the morning train today, and the funeral took place from St. John's Church to the Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Jas. Price officiated in the church and at the grave. Mr. R. J. Devey assisted in the church service and played "Jesus Lover of my Soul," "Nearer My God To Thee" and "O Rest in the Lord," on the organ. Mr. W. F. Johnston, Rector's Warden, made complete arrangements for the relatives and friends, who were present both from the city and Toronto.

Deceased was a former resident of Peterborough, and widow of the late Rev. Mr. HoTskins.

ROBERT INNES.

One of the most highly respected, well known and oldest residents of Peterborough, Robert Innes, passed away suddenly on Sunday morning, at his residence, 356 Rubidge street.

The deceased gentleman, who had not been feeling very well for some days, went to bed on Saturday evening, apparently in his usual condition, and rose about seven o'clock Sunday morning, and remarked that he did not feel as well as usual. He requested his housekeeper to notify his physician, adding that the latter need not come till he was leaving on his regular visits. A few minutes later, however, Mr. Innes' condition grew worse and his medical adviser was urgently summoned. He found deceased suffering from serious trouble with his heart. Medical skill proved unavailing and death came quickly.

Mr. Innes had passed his 83rd year. The anniversary had been observed on May 8th. He was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and came to Peterborough in 1854, to enter the employ of the old dry goods firm of Nicholls and Hall. On the death of the late Robert Nicholls and the reorganization of the firm, he became an active member of the new firm—Hall, Innes and Company with which he was identified for many years, and recognized as the principal buyer during that period.

Since his retirement, in the year 1898, the deceased has lived a quiet and unobtrusive and blameless life.

In politics Mr. Innes was a Liberal, and in religion, a Presbyterian, a number of St. Paul's Church, taking, in his days of activity, a warm interest in its work.

Mr. Innes leaves only one relative in this country, a nephew, Mr. Andrew Cameron Innes of Toronto. His wife, Isabella Hamilton, sister of the late William and Peter Hamilton, died about a year ago.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at 10.30 from the residence, 356 Rubidge street.

The clauses in the T. H. & B. Ry. bill relating to an extension from Port Maitland to Port Colborne and to a line from Welland to Port Colborne have been dropped by the Railway Committee.

Citizens in general are also asked to be present and cooperate in this commendable movement to assure a prosperous and progressive future for this city.

THE DEAF HEAR.

An Acousticon Installed in St. Paul's Church.

An acousticon has been installed in St. Paul's Church for the benefit of the deaf. It was used yesterday for the first time to the great satisfaction of a number who have not been able to hear a sermon for years. It consists of an arrangement very much on the principal of the speaking tube of the telephone. Fine wires run from this to the different pews of those for whom it is installed. These wires are connected with batteries that multiply the sound.

The first trial proved satisfactory to all who used it. Mr. Wm. Scott, of the Board of Managers, will be very glad if those belonging to other congregations who are deaf would confer with him and he would give them an opportunity of testing it, in the hope that it might be introduced in other congregations as well as St. Paul's.

Mr. Scott's address is: 109 Hunter street, E. City, and his telephone number 1015.

alk of Property Is Bequeathed to His Widow and Daughter.

500.00 FOR A MONUMENT.

rophies of Son Killed in Action Left to Military College, Kingston.

Edwin Robert Rogers, inspector of risons and Public Charities, who ed on April 21st last, and who was brother of Mr. R. B. Rogers, and a rmer resident of this city, left an tate of $36,110, made up of $22, 0 in insurance on seven policies, ,400 cash, and $12,300 in property 1644 Dundas Street. This last m is subject to taxes and mortgage be deducted. The deceased pro- ded for the payment of $300 per num to his daughter Bessie, and t the remainder of the income to widow for life. Should the money ceived from the estate of the late ary Pellatt be insufficient to main- n the property at 102 Wells' Hill ad, the testator directs that the operty be sold and the proceeds ded to his estate. On the death of s. Rogers the property pases to daughters, Bessie and Rila, the rmer receiving 90 per cent. and the tter, who has been provided for der the will of her grand father, per cent.

The following legacies in cash are ovided for:—$50 each as a mem- al to the testator's son, to the col- el of the 61st King George's Own neers, Bangalore, Mysore, India, and "C" Company, 6th East Yorkshire Regiment; $300 to Alfred B. Rogers to assist in the schooling of his son Percy; $200 to Martha Rogers (sister-in-law); $50 each to the Church of the Redeemer, Calgary, and St. Michael's and All Angels, Toronto; $100 each to St. John's Church, West Toronto; $200 to Winnie B. Murdock, Toronto;; $500 to be expended upon a moderately priced monument and the up-keep of the burial plot in Little Lake Cemetery, Peterboro.

A clause in the will reads: "To the Royal Military College, Kingston, I bequeath the cup won by my son in India for the best British officer at arms, for I feel that much of the succes of my son in the army was due to the training he received at the Royal Military College, Kingston." The remainder of his son's trophies are divided between the daughters.

BRITISH RAID HUN'S POSITION AND BLOW UP MUNITION DUMP

Shock of Explosion Heard for Great Distance Behind Lines---Nearly All of Hindenburg's Line Has Been Won by Gen. Haig's Army.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 22.—We made successful raids last night northeast of Epehy and during the night east of Bullecourt, south of the Arras-Cambrai road and west of Lens, says today's war office report. Yesterday afternoon we destroyed a large German ammunition dump on the Arras Cambrai road northeast of Qenant The shock of the explosion was felt at a great distance behind the lines.

As they rest the British are secure in possession of all the famous Hindenburg line except about 2000 yards of it, directly west of Bullecourt where another heavy battle must be fought before the enemy can be dislodged and sent eastward.

MUNITION MAKERS STRIKE.

STOCKHOLM, May 22.—Information has been received here that a strike has been in progress in the Budapest munition factories since May first.

MEXICO PROTESTS.

AMSTERDAM, May 22.—A despatch from Berlin says the Mexican minister has handed the German government a note protesting against the submarine campaign.

Part of Line Missing.

British Headquarters in France, May 22.—via London—So completely did the British artillery do its work before the attack between Croisilles and Bullecourt that 3000 yards of the Hindenburg line are totally missing. This segment of the German defences was completely wiped out.

Aeroplane photographs taken May 1, show beautifully symmetrical zigzags, but the latest pictures taken contain no trace of the trenches. The support line also was badly "strafed," some 6000 yards of it now being in British hands, leaving the Germans holding the remaining 2000 yards. The Hindenburg front line between the south end of the captured trenches and Bullecourt is in dire danger, as it is flanked on both sides by the British.

The engagement was really made up of two attacks, one in the early morning, when seventy prisoners were taken, and the second, late in the afternoon, the two netting 150 prisoners for the day's work in this sector. The German artillery's response was very feeble and the counter-barrage during the attack were particularly weak.

Though they were concreted, all that remains of the captured portions of the Hindenburg line are cement and concrete machine gun emplacements. An underground corridor parallels the support trench 35 feet below the surface

MR. BURNHAM FOR SLIDING SCALE IN PENSIONS

Says the Rate Should Be Increased to Keep Pace With Living Cost.

$480.00 IS NOT SUFFICIENT.

Men Entitled to Pension Put to Unnecessary Trouble by Board.

OTTAWA, May 22.—Capt. Burnham yesterday addressed the house in support of his resolution calling for more adequate pensions, and asking that the rate of pension be not stationary, but increased with the rise in the cost of living. He pointed out that the $480 pension provided for a totally disabled soldier one year ago was today scarcely more than $240. The cost of living had doubled. The pensioner was not like a man who had made a contract for salary or wages, but had to take what the government saw fit to give him.

Pensions Too Low

The pensions were too low in his opinion. Men badly wounded were compelled to eke out an existence by canvassing. We gave the unmarried soldiers at the front $1.10 a day, which, with his clothes, rations and medical attendance amounted to at least $672 a year. Yet if he became totally disabled the whole family was expected to shift along on about one-third of the amount.

The whole pension system must be revised and upward, Mr. Burnham declared, or there would be great dissatisfaction with the government, not only among the soldiers, but throughout the country.

Allowance for Disability.

Mr. Burnham criticized in some detail the classification of disabilities working under the pension scheme. Thus total deafness was rated as a 40 per cent. disability, but it disqualified a man for nearly every occupation. A man totally deaf in one ear or partially deaf in both only received a gratuity not to exceed $100 dollars. The allowance to a widow with dependent children was regarded by Mr. Burnham as insufficient. If the widow re-married the pension to the children ceased altogether, no matter how young they might be, although the widow received a gratuity for herself and something additional for the children. Mr. Burnham thought that a totally disabled soldier or the widow of a soldier killed during the war should be entitled to not less than $1,200 a year.

Persons deserving pensions were put, he said, to a great deal of unnecessary trouble by the pensions examining board. In one case he had sent to the board necessary affidavits in proper form made by the bishop of Peterboro, the chancellor of the diocese, the parish priest, the family medical man, and himself as the member of parliament for the riding, but the board refused to grant the pension until the case was investigated by the local patriotic fund association.

TREMENDOUS FORCE OF RECENT DRIVE IS FELT BY GERMANS

Enemy Used Eighty-Four Division to Meet it as Compared With Fifty-Six Employed Against Verdun in Entire Year---French Take Thousand Prisoners.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 22.—A semi-official note regarding German losses says while Germany employed fifty-six divisions on the Verdun front from February, 1916, to February, 1917, she put into action eighty-four divisions to meet the Anglo-French offensive from April 9th to May 11th.

An official statement says three separate counter-attacks by Germans on positions captured yesterday by the French were repulsed last night. French yesterday took altogether one thousand prisoners.

HEAVY HUN LOSSES

With the French Armies on the French Front, May 22.—While the Germans were throwing mases of men against the French positions along the Cemin-des-Dames only to suffer defeat with terrific losses, the French effected an attack in the Moronvilliers section and drove the Germans from some of their strongest positions. The French plans were brilliantly conceived and executed without a hitch. Their objective was most difficult, a hilly range filled with deep caverns afforded shelter to hundreds of men and machine guns, but the French infantry stormed the heights of Cacque and Teton, 756 and 754 feet in height, respectively, and caried them with a rush, while other columns captured the trenches lining the northern slopes of Mount Carnillet.

The result of these operations gives the French a commanding view on the left. The value placed on the possession of these hills is shown by the violence of the German counterattacks in the course of the early morning, which everywhere broke down. They left more than 500 prisoners in the hands of the French, while hundreds of bodies of Germans strew the ground and lie in the cavernous shelters.

HOW MEN ARE TO BE TAKEN FOR ARMY

Tribunals Will Be Appointed at All Centres of Population.

COUNTY JUDGES TO ACT.

No Suspicion of Politics in the Plan, Details of Which Are Being Arranged.

OTTAWA, May 22.—Details of the legislation which will implement the Prime Minister's announcement of a system of compulsory military service for Canada are still under consideration and will not be made known in their entirety until the end of the week, perhaps not until next week. At the same time it is understood that certain basic principles have been laid down. For instance, it is said that to avoid even the suggestion of the possibility of political interference in such an important undertaking the Federal Government will take the unique step of renouncing any part in the creation of the local tribunals which will carry out the selection of recruits and also in the supervision of their work.

Local tribunals will be established in every centre of population. In large cities there may be more than one such body. It is possible that a plan will be adopted, whereby the two men to form each such tribunal, will be selected, not by the Federal Government, but by the County Judge. Further, from the decision of such a tribunal, an appeal would lie to a Judge of the High Court, selected by the Chief Justice of the Province in question. If there were a long list of such appeals the Chief Justice might name a number of justices to hear them. Before the tribunals the military authorities would be represented as parties to the cases, but the board would be purely civilian in its compositions.

Registration Ages

It is reported that there will be a general call for the registration of the manhoo of the country, between the ages of 18 and 45 years., or perhaps between the ages of 20 and 45 years. From the men so enrolled the selection would be made, having regard to the age, number or lack of dependents of the men, and the needs of the essential industries, such as agriculture.

The cleavage in the Liberal party on the conscription issue has become clearly defined. Western and Ontario Liberals will support conscription, while French-Canadian Liberals and many from the Maritime provinces

THOUSAND PERSONS ARE HOMELESS AFTER FIRE AT ATLANTA.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ATLANTA, May 22.—The area burned in the fire which started yesterday is bounded by Fort street, Decature street, Ponce De Leon avenue, and the Boulevard. Firemen are now fighting small blazes which still persist. A thousand persons, numbered yesterday among the most prosperous in the city, are now crowding hotels, public buildings and houses of friends. Estimates of the loss run from three to five millions.

BUILDING OF HIGH LEVEL BRIDGE SEEMS ASSURED

Main Task Before Greater Peterboro Assn. is to Swell the Majority Vote for By-Law—Optimism Prevails.

The Greater Peterborough Associa- n meeting in the council chamber, t night, was attended by a large presentative and enthusiastic gath- ng of citizens, all determined to ve no stone unturned to assure carrying of the Bridges Bylaw.

The Mayor remarked that the as- iation intends to secure, if possi- , the adoption of the bylaw by the epayers as nearly unanimously as ssible. With such a result, demon- rating to the Legislature that citi- ns are anxious that these bridges constructed, legislation will be ask- for the issue of thirty year de- ntures, so that the younger gen- tion shall carry their fair share the financial burden. Apart from Quaker Oats proposition for re- [illegible] their plant, based on the as- mption that this bylaw will carry, bridges are a crying need for a ater and more progressive Peter- ough.

The retention of the Quaker Oats ustry in Peterborough, continued worship, fro mthe city's stand- nt, means no expenditure for side- lks, sewers, power, light, etc., as uld be entailed by the location of new industry here, costing half a llion. The decision of the Quaker ts Co. to rebuild in Peterborough been one of the biggest advertise- nts this city ever had, as it had n freely advertised throughout the ntry after the fire, that they in- nded locating elsewhere. Then we ly expect government support in ilding the bridges in question; refore their cost to the city will be as large as expected.

Turning to the question of Peter- rough's expenditure in encourag- the location of factories in her dst, Mayor Duffus pointed out that total amount of assistance given industries does not represent in the xes more than a trifle over half a mill on the dollar. and no plant in the city has used its men better than the Quaker Oats. "We have seen the plans for their new buildings, concluded his worship, "eight stories high—and were you to get a glimpse of them you would be stimulated to exert yourselves to the utmost in the interests of the bylaw. Every man with an auto should get out and gather in the votes on May 31st, in which case I have every confidence in the measure being carried by a vote as nearly unanimous as possible."

Earnest Cooperation.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn had no doubt of the bylaw being carried, if all do their share in their several wards. He could not see why the debentures should not be extended over a 40 years' period, and thus make the future generation pay their share for that which they will be reaping the benefit of.

Mr. Walter Stocker contended that every ratepayer should be canvassed, and a knowledge of who is against the bylaw thus obtained, so that they could be fixed.

A Voice—"No bribery and corruption, Walter."

Mr. J. J. Hartley thought the great majority of ratepayers will vote for the bylaw. The great difficulty to be overcome is indifference as to attendance at the polls, and every facility for getting that indifferent vote out must be utilized. Personally, he had met but one or two opponents to the proposition.

Mr. Stocker had only discovered two ratepayers opposed to the bylaw, in his canvass to date.

Mr. Begley, of South City, contended that perhaps some ratepayers did not recognize the seriousness of the proposition. We should press home to all the absolute need of these bridges to enhance the growth and

STOLE CEDAR FENCE RAILS ALLOWED TIME TO MAKE GOOD

John Doig Had no Wood nor Coal and Used Another's Fence for Fuel---Carted Away Property Valued at $10.

John Doig, of South City, pleaded not guilty in the police court this morning to a charge of stealing 21 fence rails, valued at $10.00, from Mr. John Dinan's property west of Park and south of Lansdowne streets, in Monaghan. The alleged offence occurred during the present year.

Mr. Dinan swore that the fence was re-built last summer of cedar stakes and rails fastened with wire. He visited Doig's property and found thereon cedar chips from such woo as his missing rails were composed of.. In front of defendant's house, amongst some short pieces of rails, he found one perfect cedar rail the same length as his missing property. There are but few cedar fences in the neighborhood of his land, and he is quite satisfied that the rail on defendant's premises was his.

Witness Arthur Carbon testified that he had once seen accused taking rails from the property in question. He had no idea how many rails defendant, who had a horse and rig at the time, carted away. This would be early in the year, perhaps February.

Next witness for the prosecution, Wm. Seaman, knew nothing whatever about the case, and did not know why he had been summoned.

Detective Meagher testified that he had visited the property in question and found 21 rails missing. He was in company with Mr. Dinan and had found on accused's property debris of cedar rails, including one of full length, which answered to the description of those missing by the plaintiff.

The defendant swore that the chunks of cedar fence found on his premises he had taken from beside a a stump fence on John O'Connell's property in Otonobee. He did not know he had a rail on the load until reaching home. Mr. O'Connell had given him permission to use those chunks of cedar, as he (defendant) could get no coal nor wood at the time.

To Chief Thompson, the accused denied taking rails from Dinan's fence, and the evidence of Detective Meagher and other witnesses. He went here informed that Mr. O'Connell had phoned his denial of having given Doig or anyone permission to take cedar wood from his premises.

His Worship found the accused guilty in accordance with evidence for the prosecution, and reserved judgment for a month to give him opportunity to make restitution, and pay the costs of the prosecution.

Mr. Dinan said he would be satisfied were accused to replace the fence as he found it.

ALFRED SWITZER FINED $500 AND $2.60 COSTS

Made a Business of Selling Whiskey at His Home---Has Fled the City Leaving a Wife and 7 Children.

Alfred Switzer, bartender at the Montgomery House, was called at the police court this morning to answer a charge of having imported whisky for sale contrary to the law. Nine bottles of G. & W. whisky were found in his house by Detective Meagher.

Switzer was not present, he having left town.

Sergt. Kidd testified to having searched defendant's house on Thursday, the 17th instant, and finding 9 bottles of whisky therein, unsealed. The whisky reached Peterborough May 16th, by the 1.28 C.P.R. train from Toronto, in a case, addressed to the defendant. Witness saw it arrive. A case usually contains 12 bottles and in searching Switzer's house the following day he could find but nine bottles.

Garnet Innes had visited defendant's house to buy a bottle of whisky or to get a couple of drinks. He had purchased there more than half a dozen bottles from Switzer, who had also sold him whisky at the Montgomery House bar. Defendant has admitted to him that between Christmas and New Year's he had sold eight cases of whisky. Accused had sold three bottles of whisky at his house on Easter Sunday. The liquor was always shipped to Switzer in the name of other men. Accused sold whisky at $2 a bottle or 25c a drink.

Switzer is reported to be in the back country, leaving at home a wife and seven children.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 22, 1917

LABOR AND CONSCRIPTION.

LABOR LEADERS in the Dominion Trades Congress, an organization that at its annual meeting in Toronto last autumn went on record as opposed to conscription, has already registered its objection to the selective draft that has been decided upon by Sir Robert Borden. The labor men say they are not yet convinced that the country is in such danger of destruction as to render conscription necessary. When they interviewed the Premier some time ago, he told them that he was opposed to conscription, and that it would only be used as a last resort.

In employing the selective draft now Sir Robert Borden is not going back on his pledge to Labor. This country is not only threatened with destruction as it never was before, but the entire world is in danger of starvation unless something is done to end the war and restore normal conditions. The voluntary system has failed. There was only one course left the Government, and this is to be followed.

Sir Robert Borden was opposed to conscription. So was everyone else in Canada, provided the voluntary system had not collapsed.

Of all classes in the community, organised labor has probably least of all to fear from the proposed draft. Men who are employed in the production of essentials will be exempted in the first call at least. It is the useless idler who will be caught in the initial spreading of the net.

Liberal newspapers have accepted the situation and are supporting the draft, the only condition being the somewhat vague demand that wealth be conscripted as well as manhood. This is a detail to be worked out later. It is probable that when the scheme is proposed in full that all classes in the community, Labor included, will fall in line and support it to a man.

NEW POULTRY EPIDEMIC.

A NEW DISEASE has broken out among the poultry in Douro Township. One farmer who called at The Review office yesterday has lost forty-five Plymouth Rocks within the past few days from some mysterious malady, and several of his neighbors have been equally unfortunate. The matter was referred to District Representative F. C. McCrae of Norwood, and the mysterious epidemic will receive official investigation.

It will be of interest to poultry keepers throughout the country to know that there is now an expert who devotes all his time investigating the diseases of poultry. Dr. A. B. Wickware, assistant pathologist to the Health of Animals Branch, has been assigned to that work by Dr. Torrance, Veterinary Director-General.

Dr. Wickware is by no means a novice in poultry diseases. For several years, under Dr. Higgins, Dominion pathologist, he has devoted some of his time to the diseases affecting poultry and has given special attention to black head. Realizing the importance of investigations in poultry diseases, Mr. J. H. Grisdale, director of experimental farms, and Dr. Torrance arranged for Dr. Wickware to take up this question exclusively. He is, therefore, now co-operating with the poultry division, Central Experimental Farm, where, since last fall, he has been conducting experiments along this much-needed and very important line of work.

Continued attention is being given to black head in turkeys, and many new investigations are being started. These relate to chick diseases as well as to general diseases of poultry, including parasites of all kinds.

The annual losses that occur from poultry diseases and parasites are tremendous. No person knows what the amount is, but it is well into the millions of dollars each year. Dr. Wickware's work will no doubt do something to eliminate part of this, but the co-operation of all poultrymen who have any disease in their flock will be appreciated.

As usual, communications to the Experimental Farm re diseases of poultry will be welcomed, and with Dr. Wickware now giving all his time to this matter, even more information will be available. Specimens of sick birds should be sent when practicable, and may be expressed collect if addressed to Biological Laboratory, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

SWAT THE FLY.

THE OLD FAMILIAR slogan, "swat the fly," is with us again. As yet, about the only swatting that can be done is upon the survivals from last year, because the new crop has not yet attained to a swattable age. Nevertheless it is a mistake to wait until the summer to kill flies. Instead, see to it that there are fewer flies to kill.

The necessity for vigilance begins with the first warm weather. This is the middle of May and the height of the open season for parental flies. Every fly you kill right now, before she lays her eggs, means a falling off in the fly population of the summer that amounts to some trillions.

Anther epidemic of infantile paralysis is threatened this season. Also, those who claim to be weatherwise as regards flies declare that it will be a record season for these busy little household pests.

Whether or not there is any connection between the two is an open question, but the best armor against infantile paralysis is cleanliness, and flies are the filthiest things that draw the breath of life and one of the most thorough-going and efficient disease carriers known to science.

The best way to guard against the summer crop of flies is, first, to kill, as fast as they come out, all the winter flies that have been hiding in buildings; second, to clean up all manure, filth and rubbish in which flies may breed; third, to keep traps set in covers of garbage cans and on porches where the flies are thickest, to catch them before they can enter the house.

PARTISANSHIP BARRED.

THE TORONTO STAR has at least one reader who shares the suspicions of Hon. William Pugsley that under the selective draft only Grits will be chosen and that the Tories will be left unmolested to do party work. The Star hastens to quiet the fears of its correspondent and replies to him as follows:

"You ask if the selective draft in Canada is 'likely to be applied to Grits only, letting the Tories escape.' Of course, no such distinctions will be made in the Act or in its enforcement. Men of all parties, who have been holding back, are equally ready to help save the Empire, and would feel slighted if they were passed over. It is quite true, as you remind us, that in 1863, in the period of the American Civil War, partisanship was shown in the enforcement of the draft law, the quotas having been gerrymandered so as to throw an enormous disproportion on the Democratic districts; but this partisanship was the work of subordinates and was corrected by the war department when a protest was made. Nothing of the kind will occur in Canada, you may be sure.

WHY WHEAT IS STORED.

EVERY DAY WE HEAR the assertion, confidently made, that there is wheat enough stored in Canada to lower the price of food if it were put on the market. So far no one has been able to locate these hidden warehouses that are supposed to be bursting with the fruits of the earth, just as were thes granaries of Egypt when Joseph established his famous corner in corn.

There is wheat in Canada still in storage, not because unscrupulous speculators are holding it for higher prices, but for lack of facilities to get it to market. Every season when the Western wheat crop is above the average the close of navigation finds a surplus on hand. There is wheat in the elevators in the West ready for transportation when navigation opens. There is wheat, too, stored in the farmer's granaries, but he is ready to exchange it at any time for money. Some of the pioneer farmers of the West who have not yet been able to build granaries and who are far from railroads, have wheat stored in piles on the open prairie. They, too, are ready to accept the first opportunity to dispose of it.

The submarine menace and the lack of ocean carriers has interfered with the shipping of grain to Europe. If there is a scarcity in the visible supply, the reason for it lies on the surface. It was to increase the shipping facilities by opening up a new channel of transportation that the Government accepted the conditions which provide for the free entry of wheat into the United States.

There are millions of bushels of wheat stored in Russia and the grain will be kept off the market just so long as the war lasts.

There is wheat stored in India for the same reason. The holders are anxious to sell. All they lack is the opportunity. In Argentine the crop has been a failure, so that that republic escapes all suspicion of an attempt to force up prices. There was wheat stored in Roumania when that country declared war on Germany, but unfortunately it fell into the hands of the enemy.

Yes, there is wheat stored in the world, but not for the reason cited by the alarmists.

THE POCKETBOOK AS A VOLUNTEER.

HERE IS THE WAY The New York Sun appeals to the patriotism of the American nation:

> All of us pay taxes. We pay taxes when we buy a cigar, a drink, a bit of imported cloth, or pay the rent. We pay taxes directly and indirectly every year of our lives. In peace our money is conscripted in the public service; in war the toll is heavier, but of the same nature. All of us believe in pocketbook conscription. But war offers the pocketbook a unique chance to volunteer.
>
> There is a thrill about volunteering that comes from a sense of doing something more than demanded duty. No man or woman ever got such a thrill from doing merely what he or she was called upon to do.
>
> The pocketbook nerve is the acutest we have. Its especial sensitiveness sometimes shames us. This very acuteness can be utilised to give us the sharpest pleasure. If you have ever given money for a worthy cause you know this. For a moment you were a prince, walking on air.
> The Liberty Loan of 1917 is your chance to give money to your country. As a matter of fact, you won't deserve any particular credit for doing it. You will have the best security in the world, for if the bond of your country isn't good nothing in your world will be worth a cent on the dollar. Nevertheless when you have subscribed for the Liberty Loan you will have just as keen a thrill as if you had given the money without thought of interest, without thought even of recompense, but solely because you believe in liberty, liberty for others as well as for Americans. Your own liberty is secure; the money you are giving is to set other men free.
> You don't have to give it all at once. You can renew the fine consciousness of having done something more than your duty month after month for as long as eighteen months. And by that time your bit may have done the work. The world may then, God willing, have been made safe for democracy.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

AT LAST THE IRISH are to be given a voice in shaping their own affairs.

• • • •

IF YOU ARE an eligible and do not volunteer at once, you will be drafted. Escape is impossible.

• • • •

THE TORONTO WORLD boasts of what it has done for free wheat, but what has free wheat done for the price of bread?

• • • •

EVERY WORTHY private dealer, no matter what his line, is entitled to a chance to make an honest living, war or no war.

• • • •

ONE BLESSING likely to follow the gardening fad is that it will tend to cure many people of a desire to write war poetry.

• • • •

WITH AMERICAN war craft in the fighting zone the Germans may finally be convinced that the United States is really in earnest.

• • • •

"RUSSIA NEEDS a Cromwell," says an exchange. And yet he poet Gray broadly hints that Cromwell was guilty of his country's blood.

CONSCRIPT WEALTH AS WELL AS MEN

The draft has been passed by this country showing that we have learned by observation and wise counsel what Great Britain learned by costly experience, namely, that in the presence of public danger we must not wait for volunteers, but must require every physically qualified man between specified ages to answer the call.

We have taken a long step in the right direction, but if we would be wholly democratic and demonstrate that democracy is able to cope with the boasted efficiency of autocracy we should conscript everybody—men, women and children. If all are included in the call the selective feature will be simply assigning each one to the proper task, whether on the firing line or at home; whether in manning the trenches of the bake ovens. Home industries are as much a part of war as fighting and when no one is exempt there cannot be even a colorable objection to conscription. No one can reasonably object to being drafted to serve his country when everybody is drafted, and those who serve at their regular vocations, instead of going to the front are the fortunate ones. If they refuse to serve thus they deserve to be sent to the front.

If bakers, butchers and machinists are subject to conscription, surely bakeries, butchering establishments and machine shops are also subject to conscription, to being taken over for the time being, together with their managers and all the agencies of efficient operation. In other words, everybody and everything shoud be in the public employ until the urgent communal enterprise of war is ended. Every enterprise should be conducted as a branch of the "home office" at Washington, and nothing but wages, including liberal wages of management, should be taken out of any enterprise during the continuance of the war. As for earnings above wages, they can be adjusted later by such evidences of debt as may be deemed wise and just. This final adjustment ought to be on the basis of liberal wages to all workers and adequate pay (including insurance) to those who are sent to the front. We cannot expect efficient representation on the fighting line if our soldiers receive any common labor wages or less, and no compensation for the "extrahazardous calling" of slaughtering our enemies.

And let us not forget the relative values of men. To send a $10,000 man to the front, or even a competent foreman, unless he can fill a place requiring his skill, would be to impair efficiency at home, without increasing the efficiency of the battle line.

HIS OPPORTUNITY TO HELP

"Well, how do you like my garden?" said the gardening girl to the young man next door, who persisted in hanging over the fence to watch the gardening process.

"I like it immensely," responded the young man. "I was going to say that if you wanted any spading or digging done I would be glad to do it for you."

"Well, I don't need any right now. You see, my brother digs it up for me every Sunday morning."

"He's a nice, accommodating relative."

"He's nice," responded the girl, leaning gracefully upon her hoe. "But he's not so very accommodating.

"I have to get my garden spaded up by strategy. Bob is very fond of fishing and he has to have worms. So I show him where the worms are thickest, which is always where I want digging done. Do you ever go fishing?"

"No," answered the young man, "but I am in favor of it. I'll bet a fellow who is digging for fishing worms spades a lot deeper and faster than a fellow who is only digging worms for the birds to eat—that is, of course, if he has no taste for digging. But I have. I love to dig and any time you want any done—"

"Why, a lady across the street wants to get her back yard dug up—"

"Why, she can get her garden dug by the fishing worm method!" suggested the young man brightly. "She can put an ad in the paper: 'Free fishing worms!' and get her entire lot dug thoroughly.

"Some way or other I don't take much interest in gardening clear over across the street. I'm interested in this garden only, and if I can't dig in this one I won't dig in any. But I would do any kind of work here. Now there's that big bunch of weeds! I would enjoy pulling them all out by the roots if you'd only let me, and I'd do a good job, too. All I ask is a chance, and if I don't give satisfaction you can discharge me—"

"Let me see," said the gardening girl, thoroughly. "It would take you about an hour to weed this row of beans."

"Maybe I can do it in less time than that!" and the young fence hanger sprang lightly over the fence.

"All right," agreed the girl, "you may pull those weeds while I am running off a note to a gentleman friend, and by the time you get the weeding done I'll have my letter written, then I'll come out to see how you're getting along."

"An hour—gentleman friend!" said the fence hanger. But he bent to his task.

"Well," said the gardening girl. "On second thought I can postpone writing the letter. I'll watch you work!"

Walt Mason's Melodies

Thrice is he armed, the sages say, who hath his quarrel just; thrice armed, therefore, is Uncle Sam, who's out to win or bust. For never since the world began has nation gone to fight with nobler purposes in view, with cause more truly right. We covet not a perch or rood of any foreign soil, no treasure chests of friend or foe do we desire to spoil. We were not hunting for a scrap, peace was our end and aim; we heaved a sigh of true regret when we broke in the game. We sighed in pity when we saw the old earth painted red, we suffered wrong with patient hearts and laid away our dead. But patience cannot always last, nor pity still endure, when wrong is heaped on bitter wrong; such ills the sword must cure. And so we took our harness down and strapped it on our breast and reached for claymore, helm and lance and trusty arbalest. And now the fateful die is thrown and crimson war shall last, till autocrats and lords of war are relics of the past. And ever as we pot the foe and bag the kaiser's men, true inspiration shall we find, again, and yet again, in that great truth the sages wrote in volumes filmed with dust: "Thrice is he armed," so runs the rede, "who hath his quarrel just."

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About a Mysterious Little Creature.

THE GOOD EASTER RABBIT.

What He Discovered in the Woods and How Faithfully He Performed a Kindly Deed—Rewarded by a Fairy Queen—Origin of Colored Eggs.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you

AN EASTER STORY.

The little folks in Germany believe that the Easter rabbit lays the beautifully colored eggs that they get every Easter.

Very fond of him are the little ones, and they listen with delight to the many charming stories that are told about the Easter bunny.

One of them is as follows: Once upon a time, in the days when fairies were everywhere and when, if you only knew how to gain their good will, the wild creatures of the wood would talk to you and do you many great favors, there was a beautiful and kind hearted rabbit whom every one loved.

One day, passing through the woodland, the little rabbit saw a nest filled with eggs.

One by one the other wood creatures had passed it with merely a glance, but the rabbit said:

"What a pity! The eggs may get cold, so that the little chicks inside will never come out of the shells."

So the rabbit cuddled down over the eggs to keep them warm with his soft fur until the mother hen should come back.

But the hen never came. She had been snatched up by a hungry hawk. So her little chicks were orphans when they came out of the shell.

This they did one bright Easter morning. As the chicks were very hungry the good rabbit scurried around to get food for them.

The rabbit watched over them until they were old enough to take care of themselves.

The fairy queen wished to reward bunny for his goodness, and so she said:

"More beautiful than the eggs of the hen shall be the eggs which you, little rabbit, shall bring to all good children on Easter morning."

For the rabbit loved children, and the queen knew that it would be the greatest joy to bring happiness to the little ones.

And so when Easter again came round the rabbit hopped up and down the land, leaving in the silence and dark of the Easter night gifts of beautifully colored eggs for the children.

The children learned to leave little nests of straw or leaves on the ground or hang little baskets where the rabbit could find them, and, now, unless a little German child had been very, very naughty he always finds something in the nest when he wakens on Easter morning.

But no one has ever seen the Easter rabbit.

How to Make Musical Glasses.

Some rainy day when you have nothing to do make musical glasses.

Secure any number of glass tumblers or bottles of similar shape. Set them in a row on the table. Get a pitcher full of water and fill several of the glasses or bottles to various depths. You will note that when you lightly strike these glasses with a spoon or pencil each one gives out a different tone or note. The more water in the glass the lower the note.

With this information it will be easy for you so to fill each glass that the entire set will represent the musical scale. At least one octave, or eight notes, should be so provided. Of course, if desired, you may so fill glasses as to give sharps and flats, thus requiring thirteen glasses to the octave.

With a little practice you can play simple tunes on this arrangement. Indeed, if good bottles are used, the tone will be very pretty.—St. Nicholas.

A Bright Little Fellow.

What a smart and intelligent face the collie puppy, here pictured, has. He looks as if he were looking for some boy or girl to romp with him. The collie comes from Scotland, and he is generally one of the most handsome of the whole canine race. In his original home and also in America the collie is much used in herding sheep, and many stories have been told of his intelligence and courage. Collies make splendid playfellows and, like most breeds of dogs, respond to kind treatment.

HIS HEART BADLY AFFECTED

"Fruit-a-tives" Soon Relieved This Dangerous Condition

632 Gerrard St. East, Toronto.

"For two years, I was a victim of Acute Indigestion and Gas In The Stomach. It afterwards attacked my Heart! and I had pains all over my body, so that I could hardly move around. I tried all kinds of Medicine but none of them did me any good. At last, I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". I bought the first box last June, and now I am well, after using only three boxes. I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to anyone suffering from Indigestion".

FAMINE, WARNS LEACOCK

World in Danger, But Canada Very Well Placed

Prof. Stephen Leacock, of McGill University, addressing the Montreal Housewives' League at the Royal Victoria College, during the winter of 1917, said: "We are in sight of a terrible food famine, such as the world has never seen. We must take steps betimes if we wish to avoid national and world-wide disaster. We must at all costs increase our own food supply.

PROF. STEPHEN LEACOCK

"We in Canada are fortunately placed. We have boundless resources in land to draw upon. We must see that every available acre and every available day's labor is turned to use. It is gratifying to learn that our department of agriculture and our national service commission are wideawake to the situation. We must put behind them the force of public opinion and the efforts of individual citizens."

Nations Work Together.

A treaty has been entered into between the United States and Great Britain to protect migratory birds in Canada and the United States. By three great highways the birds and the waterfowl pass back and forth between the two countries. One is along the Eastern Atlantic coast, another is by way of the land included in the Mississippi valley, the other is the Pacific slope west of the Rocky Mountains. There is also a northern, or breeding zone, and a southern, or wintering zone. While in passage, and while in the north or in the south our migratory insectivoreus birds will have the protection of both governments, the game birds also will be protected under laws and regulations agreed upon.

Spanish Jews Thrive

Salonica contains a large number of Spanish-speaking inhabitants, not very surprising, perhaps, in a mongrel city of the Near East, but explained by the fact that large numbers of Spanish Jews, exiled some centuries ago, took refuge there and carried their language. Another part of the world in which the Spanish Jew type is outstanding is the high plateau of Colombia. Its inhabitants are a vigorous people, noticeably of Semitic stamp, and successful commercially.

WINNIPEG MAN CURED

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved Him Nervous Breakdown.

Mr. G. C. Inman, 330 Harcourt St., Sturgeon Creek, Winnipeg, for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada, says: "I was terribly rundown and weak. I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat. My nerves were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. Everything pointed to a nervous breakdown. Then I got Dr. Cassell's Tablets. The first result was that I could sleep, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back."

Mr. Inman is now in England, managing the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 McCaul Street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. BOWSER ASKS WHY.

His Quest to Get Information About the Cost of Living.

HE FAILS IN HIS MISSION.

Mrs. Bowser's Plan to Go to Theater Frustrated — Butcher, Grocer and Shoemaker Put It Up to Others — Farmer Is Blamed.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

THE Bowsers had finished dinner, and Mrs. Bowser was about to ask if they could not go to the theater when Mr. Bowser observed:

"I have got to run out for awhile this evening. I may be gone a couple of hours."

"I wanted to go to the theater."

"But this is a matter that can't be put off. In fact, it is a matter of national importance. I did not know about it until late this afternoon."

"Has it anything to do with the north pole?"

"Humph! The north pole is a back number. Mrs. Bowser, you may have got it through your head that the cost of living in the last seven or eight years has increased almost 40 per cent?"

"As I do the marketing, I think I know something about it."

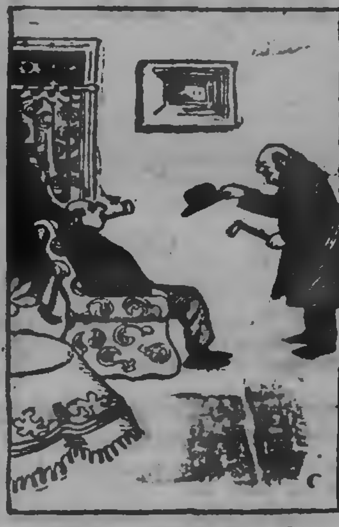
"Well, it has at last attracted the attention of congress. A committee has been appointed to make inquiries and try and ascertain the reason for this increase."

"It's the trusts, of course," said Mrs. Bowser.

"That is denied. Some say it is the farmers and others the retailers, and some lay it to the scarcity. The committee proposes to find out."

"And what's that got to do with you?"

"It was suggested to me this afternoon that I make some inquiries on my own hook and send the results to the committee to aid it in its work. I think I can strike the keynote within an hour. If I can"—



BUTCHER A ROBBER AND A LIAR.

"If there's a committee let that committee attend to its own business."

"If I can, Mrs. Bowser, my name goes on record at once, and the people at large will give me credit and their blessings. I find out why prices are so high and suggest the remedy, and there you are. Carnegie may give free libraries, but I will cut the cost of living in two. Which of us will be the humanitarian?"

Argument With Bowser Useless.

Mrs. Bowser made no answer. She saw that it was useless.

"Twenty years ago butter was 15 cents a pound. Today it is 45. Why? Are cows three times as valuable as then? Can't a man milk the same number of cows he could then? Does it take any longer to churn?"

No answer.

"Ten years ago I bought potatoes for 50 cents a bushel. Today they are a dollar and a half. Why? Isn't the land here just the same? Three times as high as they were, and no one can tell why. It's the same way with all foodstuffs, with shoes, hats and clothing. It makes me boil over when I think of it, and if the trusts are to blame then I'll hunt the rascals to their holes and make them wish they had never been born."

"You'd better hunt up the newspaper and sit down and read," replied Mrs. Bowser. "Perhaps you have read of an individual named Don Quixote?"

"And perhaps I've read of Columbus and a few others, but if I have or haven't that's nothing to do with this case. We are being drained of our life blood, but you sit there as calm as a bump on a log and don't care a copper. I believed you'd chuckle with glee if potatoes were $4 a bushel. The wails and lamentations of tens of thousands of starving people are in your ears, and yet you are reading a novel and chewing gum!"

"You might find out if gum and novels have gone up any!"

Mr. Bowser turned purple and sprang up. He was about to yell "Woman!" at her when he changed his mind and walked down the hall to the hatrack. It had occurred to him that he would need all his coolness in making inquiries. He had his program laid out. As soon as he was outside the gate he headed for the nearest butcher shop. The butcher was at home and reading an evening paper. As he looked up Mr. Bowser began:

"Sir, meats are selling for three times what they used to. I want to know why. I am gathering statistics for a congressional committee."

The Butcher Explains.

"It's on account of the tender hearted farmers," was the reply.

"What do you mean, sir?"

"Why, there was a time when the farmer just delighted to take an ax in hand and go around knocking cattle, sheep and hogs in the head, but he no longer does it. He has become so tender hearted that if he even sees a pig's tail in a knot he unties it. This makes a great scarcity of meat, and scarcity always means higher prices. I am glad you came. I have been called a cheat and a robber, and I want people to know the truth. There's the hind quarter of a steer that a farmer brought in and sold me. He wept while he sold it. He had left a weeping family at home. I wept because I had to buy it. When you can separate sentiment from beef and pork we shall have old time prices back, but not until. Good evening, sir."

"You are a robber and a liar!" said Mr. Bowser as he went out and headed for the grocer on the corner.

The grocer was getting ready to close up for the night, but he was a good and considerate man and stood ready to answer any questions.

"Do you know, sir," began the inquirer, "that it's an outrage to ask the price you do for potatoes?"

"Yes, sir, I do, and I can't tell you how bad I feel about it. I hardly slept at all last night after asking an old woman 12 cents a quart for potatoes."

"And butter, sir—butter?"

"The most outrageous thing in the history of the country. For the last four weeks I have been advising my customers to eat wagon grease instead of it. It isn't bad at all after the first meal. Flavor with a little peppermint essence, and you will think it's the best print. Sell you wagon grease at the same old price, sir."

The Grocer's Reason.

"And there's onions," said Mr. Bowser as his eye lighted on a basketful.

"Dear, me, yes—prices way up. When you meet a man with an onion breath on him you may know that he's a millionaire. Try horseradish in place of onions. A good many more tears in it."

"But I want to know why, sir—why prices are so high?"

"It's the farmer, sir. He's bought him an auto and is riding around the country with his hat on his ear instead of raising vegetables. Where he and his wife used to be hard at work they are now driving twenty miles to attend a matinee. Awful, sir—awful, but don't blame me."

The next call was on the shoemaker. Three days before he had charged Mr. Bowser 20 cents for a cement patch on his shoe, and he was now addressed with:

"See here, you old vampire, but I want to know why you have doubled up on your prices!"

"Vhas I too high?" was asked.

"You are grinding us into the dust. Five years ago a cement patch was 10 cents."

"Yes, dot vhas so, but some change has come, you see."

"Yes, I see, and I want to know why."

"Ten years ago my wife wears her own hair. Now she wears some one else's. She must be in der style, you know. False hair costs money. We have to boost der prices on cobbling. Maype in two years it vhas down again, but I can't say."

Mr. Bowser started over to see the plumber, but met him at the curbstone and was replied to:

"Why are my prices 50 per cent higher than five years ago? Because porous plasters are up 50 per cent, and we have had to follow 'em."

When Mr. Bowser came softly sliding into the house and sat down Mrs. Bowser asked:

"Do you think we can stand this expense much longer?"

"Well, I am busy with my thoughts," he replied. "It is sufficient to say that we can communicate with our respective lawyers the first thing in the morning."

A Necessity There.

"Here's something I've always wanted to know," said Citiman, looking up from his paper. "'Montreal, P. Q.' What does that 'P. Q.' mean, do you know?"

"Well," replied Mr. Subbubs of Swamphurst, "I know what it means out our way. It's a byword with us nearly every day."

"What is it?"

"'Purchase quinine.'" — Catholic Standard and Times.

Music With Charms.

"You call this a cradle song," says the music publisher, "but you have parts marked in double fortissimo, and for orchestras you have parts for drums, cymbals, bells, xylophones and tubas. Too much noise for a cradle song."

"The idea of that," explains the composer eagerly, "is to drown the crying of the baby."—Chicago Post.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. Then come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things—and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 8 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

PERILS OF AIR FIGHTING.

Many Lessons Learned by Very Bitter Experience.

In a particularly interesting article on air-warfare in Everybody's, William G. Shepherd shows how hard has been the road blazed by the nations of Europe:

"The long, hard road along which the nations in Europe have struggled in learning aerial warfare is not pleasant to view.

"It is a feverish and bloody progress that has been made in flying in Europe. In the laboratory of aerial warfare, during the last thirty-three months, human lives have been spent in experiments like the lives of animals on the vivisectionist's table; but thousands of airmen, testing every new idea, and hundreds of aerial engineers and scientists, madly struggling in their laboratories, have achieved a progress that not a hundred years of peace could have brought about.

"While in peace times we find one Pegoud who shocks the world by taking his life in his hand to prove that an aeroplane can fly upside down, there have been hundreds of grim men in Europe since the war began who have lost their lives showing how aerial warfare ought not to be conducted.

"No one, for instance, knows how many lives have been lost, on all sides in proving that the monoplane was not practicable. In England one day, early in the war, two young men of fine families went up in a monoplane to test its value as a machine for observation purposes. They fell, and both were killed. The next day two young men were sent up to try to find out whether or not the accident of the day before was due to inherent dangers in the one-winged type of aeroplane. They too fell, and both were killed. Wherefore the monoplane was wiped off the British books. No army uses monoplanes today."

Cockatoo Island.

In the new Government dock on Cockatoo Island Sydney Harbor possesses a unique ship berth. It is hewn out of solid rock. The formation of the island was originally quite unsuitable for a dockyard, as the rock rose sheer from the water to a height of fifty to seventy feet. This was gradually cut back, first to permit the building of graving docks and later to make room for building slips and shops near water-level. The work has been continued until at present two-thirds of the total area of thirty-three acres has been brought to a practically uniform level of about fifteen feet above high tide.

"THE CRISIS" TELLS VIVID STORY OF LOVE AND WAR

Photoplay Now Running at Grand Opera House Deals With Crucial Periods in History of United States

Winston Churchill's thrilling story, "The Crisis," dealing with all that the name implies in the history of the United States has been put on the films, and the exhibition was offered for the first time in Peterborough at the Grand Opera House last night. The plot of the story has been closely followed by the camera artist and all the characters in the story are represented as the author himself would have chosen.

The photoplay is a war time story and it abounds with startling realisms. It is a more fair and important record of a crucial period in the history of a nation than any ever penned by the professional historian either North or South.

Every breeze that swept from the Sunny Southerland sixty years ago, as the story sets forth, bore on its wings the cry for help and freedom from three million enslaved human beings, and the North heard the cry. The cleveage between the two sections began years before the war. Visitors and settlers from above the Dixie line quarrelled over the same issue. Quietly the war was waged, all the contending forces were at work years before the first shot was fired at Fort Sumter.

Stephen A. Douglas, candidate for president, temporized with the slave question when his opponent, Abraham Lincoln spoke the conviction that were engendered in a heart that felt for humanity, Right and Justice won. Lincoln was elected, the South seceded and the bombardment of Fort Sumter plunged the country into the horrors of a war in which sons often fought against fathers and brothers against brothers, a war all the more bitter because it had the elements of a personal quarrel.

The pictures shown in the Crisis are an excellent representation of the events which it is sought to describe, a quick and easy method of gathering historical information and of forming an adequate conception of what actual warfare really is. The battle scenes attending the seige of Vicksburgh by the Federal Army are thrilling and almost inconceivable feats of heroism are recorded. Men who fought as the American on both sides fought in the Civil War should be valuable Allies of the British in the present conflict.

The music is one of the features of the entertainment. Mr. Jules Brazil, who travels with the company is the director and the orchestra of the Grand Opera House has been augmented for the occasion. Mr. Brazil has composed special music to accompany the pictures while such old airs as "Dixie," "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Auld Lang Syne" and "Marching Through Georgia," are charmingly rendered.

One new feature in the play is the introduction of a solo "Lead Kindly Light," supposed to be rendered by Virginia Cavell, at the request of her father's guest.

There was a matinee performance today and the pictures will be shown again tonight and tomorrow with the usual Wednesday matinee. They are certainly worth seeing, equal in every respect as they are to any of the best of the many splendid bills of the kind that have been put on by the management of the Grand Opera House.

HAD A STRONG SENSE OF DUTY

A TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO LATE LT.-COL. G. T. DENNISTOUN.

Rev. T. G. Wallace, at St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Toronto, last Sunday morning conducted a memorial service in tribute to the memory of the late Lieut.-Col. G. T. Denison recently killed in action on the western battle front. The occasion is of local interest, the deceased officer having been brother to Mrs W. H. Dunsford, 748 Water street, this city. The reverend gentleman said:

"He wrote to me not long ago to say that he was so glad his job was not a bomb-proof one. There was no greater honor for him than to be in the thick of the danger."

"The soldier had been churchwarden of the parish when he went away, and they were expecting him to resume his duties when he returned. His appointment had been welcomed because it kept alive an old family connection with the church, but more especially because he was so keen so interested, so enthusiastic; whatever he did he gave his whole heart to it. His outstanding characteristic was his transparent sincerity, his sterling sense of honor in matters both public and private. He meant what he said, and he said what he meant. He was what is implied in the good old term gentleman, a gentleman of the old school, without any class prejudice, his attitude was the same to rich and poor alike.

After the sermon the organist, Dr. E. R. Doward, gave an effective rendering of the Dead March in Saul, the congregation reverently standing.

Tribute was paid to the memory of the late Lieut.-Col. Denison by Capt. Rev. J. Russell MacLean in St. John's Church, Portland street. The fallen officer, he said, might easily have been alive today if it had not been for his patriotism and strong sense of duty. "Others might seek staff positions, but he preferred to be in the firing line, and in order to be there relinquished a command that gave a large measure of immunity from danger faced by the man in the trenches.

"We thank God that the British race never fails to breed such men. And we thank God that in the declaration of the Prime Minister we have the guarantee that his death and that of thousands of Canadians who have fallen will not be unavenged."

PETERBOROUGH WILL BLOW AWAY

UNLESS STREETS ARE SOON OILED OR WATERED.

At the meeting of the Greater Peterborough Association, last night, Mr J. J. Turner said that if our streets were not shortly either oiled or watered, Greater Peterborough would soon blow away into oblivion.

His Worship the Mayor replied that this trouble would be overcome in a few days. The weather had been too cold to distribute oil. Until such time as appropriate weather sets in he will see to it that the streets are watered.

LABOR MAY ASK FOR PLEBISCITE ON SELECTIVE DRAFT PROPOSITION

Will Oppose it Unless it Can be Shown That Necessity Demands Such Service.

OTTAWA, May 22—Unless Premier Borden can demonstrate that conditions have radically changed from a year ago and that the existence of this country is in danger of destruction, organized labor, as represented by the heads of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, will continue to oppose conscription. That was labor's attitude at the last Dominion Congress in September last year, according to Mr. J. C. Watters, president, who returned from Washington Monday, and Mr. James Simpson, Toronto, vice-president, who is also in the city. According to the views of these men, expressed to-day, labor will oppose conscription unless the Premier has material to back up his plans that the labor men have hithoter been unaware of. The labor leaders say they will hold Sir Robert to his unequivocal statement a year ago, that he was opposed to conscription and that only if Canada was in danger of destruction would it be brought in.

In this case it is highly probable that the labor delegates will ask that before any conscription bill is passed the country will be asked to record its opinion on the matter. Mr. Watters and Mr. Simpson both declared that since Australia had followed that plan, Canada should. It is equally certain that if conscription is to become law, in whatever form, the congress heads will ask for conscription of wealth as a natural corrolary of conscription of men.

They are to have a conference with the Premier.

IRELAND GIVEN CHANCE TO SHAPE HER OWN POLICY

William O'Brien Nationalist Leader Believes Solution of Problem is Near--- Carson Still for Union.

LONDON, May 22.—Speaking on Premier Lloyd George's proposal to summon immediately a convention of representative Irishmen to submit a constitution for the future Government of Ireland, Wm. O'Brien, leader of the Independent Nationalists, said no Irishman would discuss the proposal of the Government without grave and anxious consideration. A Home Rule settlement by the consent of all partes and by his countrymen of all persuasions had been the great object of his political life.

The Government's plan might well make the ears of every Irishman who had fought with him, tingle with satisfaction, because it showed the Government had begun to find out that the only way of dealing with the Irish difficulty was by conference, conciliation and consent. Mr. O'Brien warned the Government there would be grave difficulties to overcome in the election or selection of the members of the convention.

Former Premier Asquith commended the Government's proposals heartily. "If the convention fails, then heaven help us," he said. They would have to admit that, though problems similar in character and not less difficult had been settled elsewhere in the world, "We are so wanting in resources of statesmanship that we cannot settle here at our doors that which is most vital both to our own interests and to our honor."

Maintain Union Says Carson

Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Irish Unionists, said he did not hesitate to assert he found no reason to modify the opinion he had always held that the best solution of the Iris problem lay in maintenance of the union. He did not know whether the Ulster Unionists would accept the Government's invitation, but he did know that no threats would have the slightest effect. Whatever decision they took—and he hoped it would be a wise one—he would be with them to the end. He had not the least intention of deserting them.

UNION AGAIN BIG ISSUE AT ASSEMBLY MEETING

Question to Come up Again At Annual Session of Church Parliament in Montreal June 6.

Rev. J. A. MacKenzie of Knox Church, R. Lees and H. B. Cowan will be the representatives from this city at the Presbyterian General Assembly which meets in Montreal Wednesday, June 6, in annual session.

Unless all signs fail, the Rev. Dr. John Neil, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Toronto, will be the moderator. He has been nominated by a large number of Presbyteries, and there is no competitor in sight. Dr. Neil well deserves the honor. It is almost 35 years since he was ordained and inducted into the pastoral charge of Nassagaweyn and Campbellville, and 33 years ago he was called to his present charge where his labors have been crowned with much success For many years he served as the convener of the Assembly's Committee on Sabbath Schools, and his annual addresses were of a high order. He has always taken a lively interest in the education of the youth of the Church.

Union the Burning Issue.

As has been the case for the past eleven years, the burning question before the Assembly will be that of church union. Last year at Winnipeg it was thought that the matter was settled, for the Church then definitely committed itself to union, and appointed a committee to work out the details in conjunction with the other negotiating Churches. But those opposed to union consolidated their forces at what was called a "convocation" in Toronto last October, and their opposition was so pronounced that the Church is threatened with disruption. Recently the Presbyteries of Peterboro, Hamilton, Kingston, and several others, transmitted to the Assembly, some of have framed overtures which will be them with approval, and some simpliciter, urging the Assembly to adopt measures to prevent a disruption. On the other hand, some Presbyteries are urging the Assembly to consummate the union without delay. The situation is, therefore, decidedly tense. Even though the Assembly should decide to stay proceedings for a while, it does not follow that union is to be abandoned; in fact, some of the Presbyteries which are petitioning for delay, want it to be clearly understood that union is not to be indefinitely postponed. It may, however, have an effect upon the other Churches which are parties to the union.

Prohibition.

As the Assembly has long taken high ground upon the question of prohibition, it is almost certain that it will ask the Dominion Parliament to pass a measure of Dominion-wide prohibition, and may even petition the British Government to abolish the wet canteen It is likely that the Assembly will also request the Canadian Government to make adultery a crime, and to prohibit race track gambling.

Increase Stipends.

The present high cost of living should give zest to a discussion on the increase of stipends. Last year two Presbyteries and one Synod overtured the Assembly to fix the minimum in Ontario and Quebec at $1,200 per annum and a manse. The question was remitted to the Home Mission Committee and doubtless the finding of that committee will be submitted to the Assembly. The cost of living has increased probably about 70 per cent. since the Assembly fixed a minimum salary, whereas stipends have increased by only about 30 per cent., and as is so often the case in other departments, the men who receive the lowest salary, have been given no increase whatever.

NEW MUSKOKA TRAIN VIA GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM.

Effective Saturday, May 19th, new train will leave Toronto Union Station via Grand Trunk Ry. System at 10.15 a.m., for Muskoka Wharf, connecting at that point with steamer for all points on the Muskoka Lakes. This train will continue to run every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday until June 21st. Commencing Monday, May 21st, new train connecting with steamer, will leave Muskoka Wharf 12.45 p.m. for Toronto, and will run every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday until June 22nd. Summer service in effect June 23rd. Full information, tickets, etc., at all Grand Trunk Ry. System Ticket Offices or C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

"Do you ever run across any of your old friends on your automobile trips?" "Not if they have sense enough to get out of the way."

"I was called out of bed at three o'clock this morning to subscribe to a liberty loan." "How's that?" "A friend of mine got pinched and I had to lend him the money for his cash bail."

Nothing else frightens a man so much as his wife's dead silence after he has failed to do the proper thing. It is like a stone wall with barbed wire on top; he can't get around it nor see through it nor walk over it.

BUILDING OF HIGH LEVEL

prosperity of a greater Peterborough.

Mr. W. H. Dennam advanced that a turning down of the bylaw would injure the rating of Peterborough in the industrial world. Industries seeking location, would not consider with favor a municipality which did not encourage the retention of factories already established within its limits.

Mr. J. J. Hartley eulogized the Quaker Oats Co. as having, with its products advertised this city all over the world, "I am," he said, "always looking for something which will encourage the masses to settle down in Peterborough in their own homes, and the Quaker Oats is such an industry, and entitled to whatever trifling benefits it may derive from the erection of the new bridges.

Mr. D. B. Hall here tendered the timely intimation that these bridges are not to be built as a bonus for the Quaker Oats, but to stimulate a Greater and more Progressive Peterborough. Whatever encouragement the company received would be of an incidental nature.

Letter To Ratepayers.

Messrs. Cameron and Pennefather moved that his worship issue to the ratepayers a personal letter, explaining the good points of the bylaw. This carried and the following were appointed to take care of that letter: City Clerk Armstrong, Ald. Dobbin, Chairman Mfrs. Com., and Messrs. Pennefather and Cameron.

Mr. W. G. Morrow felt assured that were the wards properly organized no difficulty would be experienced in getting out the vote. He was confident that the bylaw would carry, and incidentally urged that pressure be brought to bear upon the government to hurry up the completion of the Trent Valley Canal, in which event the Quaker Oats Company would double their output.

The gathering here settled down to organization work, with a lively determination to get out after every

Those Present.

Following are the names of those who were present, all enthusiasts, everyone:

Mayor Duffus, E. H. D. Hall, C. G. Graham, G. O. Cameron, R. H. Turner, W. H. Bradburn, B. D. Hall, Mr. Campbell, of the C.G.E., J. M. Brooks, R. Denne, T. H. Hooper, Aldermen McIntyre, Smith, Dobbin, Saunders, Taylor; C. H. Pennefather, H. Stenson, John McCann, H. Gainey, Ross Dobbin, M. J. Maher, W. Stocker T. F. Matthews, B. F. Ackerman, M. S. Donoghue, J. Begley, M. Roper, Frank Linton, J. J. Hartley, W. Stevens, J. J. Turner, F. R. Breyfogle, G. H. Logie, W. S., Dunsford.

Mr. G. O Cameron submitted the report of the Industrial and Labor Committee, showing commendable activity Amongst other measures this committee recommended steps toward arranging for the easy securement by working men of homes. Ald. McIntyre reported that he was negotiating with Mr. W. G. Morrow re tenders in this connection. The report was adopted.

Improved Freight Service.

Mr. Campbell's report of the Transportation Committee showed negotiations with the C. P. R. for improved passenger and east-bound freight service. While there is every hope for the former is not needed. The question of extension of the Peterborough radial railway service has also been entered into with the Hon. Adam Beck, but with no definite results as yet. A representative of the Legislature will appear at the June session of the county council, in the interest of good roads, if so desired.

Mr. F. R. Breyfogle, of the De Laval Co., contended that the railways had been handicapped by rising costs of operation and maintenance in regard to freight service, and he thought it advisable that manufacturers endorse their demand upon the Railway Board for an increase in freight rates of 10 percent. This would relieve freight congestion to an appreciable extent.

Mr. W. H. Denham could see no reason why the C.P.R. should not run one passenger train through here, from Montreal to Toronto, Sunday afternoons, instead of along the lake front.

This report was adopted.

Civil Improvements, Etc.

Mr. G. H. Logie regretted that his committee had not met; hence he had no report to make.

Publicity.

Mr. Reg. Turner reported considerable progress by this committee, which offered propositions for bulletin signs at railway stations, advertising Peterborough, and one welcoming visitors, at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. Also a proposition for labelling Peterborough goods, such as followed in the United States. This committee asked an appropriation for appropriately printed stationery, and will hereafter work in conjunction with the Council's manufacturer's Committee.

Educational.

Mr. Pennyfather, the chairman of this committee, said he did not know there was such an annex to the association, but would convene the committee at an early date, and submit at next meeting report of its activities.

Industrial Exhibition.

Chairman Hartley of this committee was not ready with a report, but discussion elicited the fact that the exhibition this fall will be held on the old grounds. Mr. Denham drew attention to the delapidated condition of the main building, and submitted that merchants and industries, the Quaker Oats included, would readily exhibit their products were rainproof buildings available. This question will receive the earnest attention of the association.

Mercantile Com.

Secretary Maher was sorry that there was nothing pertaining to this committee to report, as its chairman, Mr. Thos. Barrie was out west. On his return, however, no doubt the committee would get busy, and be prepared for the next meeting.

"Do you like your new motor car?" "Yes," replied Mrs. Chuggins. "My husband isn't away from home nearly as much as he used to be." "How does he spend his time?" "Trying to get the car started."

GENTLE (BUT INSALUBRIOUS) SPRING.

[A doctor's ditty.]

Hail, gentle spring! Hail, balmy winds!
(Unwholesome breezes!)
Hail, springtime's joyous signs of life!
(And fell diseases!)

We breathe once more thine odors fresh
(And miasmatic);
We tread thy spongy meads and vales
(With curse emphatic).

Our pulses beat with vernal joy
(Or vernal fever).
Thou winsome, witching, smiling spring!
(Thou arch deceiver!)

'Tis now the time for love and song
(And stomach bitters).
A time to banish care and grief
(And buckwheat fritters).

A time to doff our winter gloom
(But not our flannels).
To frisk and leap with gladsome cry
(Like foolish spaniels).

The springtime brings new joy to all
(Mad merry makers!)—
To princes, peasants, priests and clerks
(And undertakers).

A Nellie McClung Story.

Mrs. Nellie McClung, the Canadian suffrage lecturer, says The Woman's Journal of Boston, has five children, who inherit some of their mother's wit. At a luncheon given her in Boston recently she told an amusing story of her youngest son. When he was four years old, he was one day spanked and put to bed, for persistent naughtiness. Some time after, his mother looked into the bedroom and found him singing happily to himself.

"Come and lie down by me, mamma," said the child.

"I cannot stay long with you today, dear," answered Mrs. McClung. "I have a headache."

"I know what has made your head ache, mamma," said the little boy.

"Well, what was it?"

And the four-year-old answered: "Too much spanking of innocent people!"

Buried Former Parishioner.

The remarkable incident is reported of a Toronto rector attached to the artillery who was called upon to bury a man who only reached the front the day before with a draft. He found that the man was one of his own parishioners to whom he had only recently bidden good-bye on the other side of the Atlantic.

Master Tunnellers.

I asked a very highly-placed English officer his opinion as to the qualities in which the New Zealanders shine, says a correspondent of The London Times. He summed them up by saying that as individual fighters they were equal to any in France. He spoke particularly well of their work on the Somme, which has been described so often that I will not recapitulate it, but he mentioned something of which I had not heard—the New Zealand tunnelling company which was allotted for work in a special area. In tunnelling work they have outwitted the Germans every time. Many of them perfected their skill in the coal and gold mines of New Zealand, and there are well-trained engineers at their head. They can not only out-tunnel the Germans, but there is no case on record in which the Germans have surprised the British troops provided with New Zealand tunnellers. What this means in peace of mind to an army can only be imagined by those who, like myself, have been at points in the line when there was grave anxiety as to whether or not mysterious sounds heard sometimes by microphone, sometimes by the more simple miners' device of placing the head in a bucket of water and listening, are the approach of subterranean Huns.

When it is remembered that the population of both the islands of New Zealand is less than that of any large London postal district—it is only a little over a million all told—it will be understood that this live and finely-organized band of Antipodean Crusaders constitutes an offering which is a splendid contrast to the levied masses of unwilling Poles, Czechs, Turks, Ruthenes, Slovaks, and the rest whom Prussia has bullied into her trenches.

Colored Sea Waves.

The blueness of sea-water depends greatly on its saltness. In the tropics the tremendous evaporation induced by the blazing sun causes the water to be much salter than it is in higher latitudes, or about 30 deg. north and south of the Equator the waters are of an exquisite azure. Beyond these latitudes the blue changes to green, and in the Arctic and Antarctic Oceans the greens are almost as vivid as the tropical blues.

The extraordinary blueness of the Mediterranean has two causes. Few large rivers of fresh water run into this sea, and, moreover, the Mediterranean is virtually landlocked, and exposed to a powerful sun, so that evaporation is rapid. By actual test the waters of the Mediterranean are heavier and contain more salt than those of the Atlantic.

The Yellow Sea of China is usually supposed to owe its color to the flood of muddy water that its great river pours into it. Living organisms are responsible for the peculiar tint.

Occasionally, for some cause yet undiscovered, great areas of the ocean turn milk-white. In March, 1904, a Japanese merchant vessel, steaming at night between Hongkong and Yokohama, ran into a snow-white sea. It was an expanse of pure snow-white that dazzled the eyes. The phenomenon lasted for six hours.

Polite to Motors.

A bright-eyed little boy in a sailor-suit saluted the occupants of a passing motor-car so quaintly that they stopped to give him sixpence, according to Tit-Bits. "You're very polite, little fellow," the lady motorist said. "Do you salute all the strangers who pass in the same way?" "No, no, ma'am, only motorists," the boy stammered, fingering his sixpence nervously. "Father says I've to be polite to them, because motor-cars bring him trade." The lady seemed disappointed. "What is your father's trade, my little man? Does he repair motor-cars?" "No, ma'm; he's an undertaker," was the little fellow's response.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

"We have won two games from the Giants and we are very proud of it." said Miller Huggins, the shrewd little manager of the St. Louis Cardinals. "But the big reason for our success at the Polo Grounds is the first-class pitching. Doak mystified McGraw's big hitters on Monday, and both Meadows and Ames pitched good ball in Tuesday's game. I've always maintained that good pitching means at least 60 per cent. of a ball club's winning quality. If my pitchers keep up their present work the Cardinals will not finish below the first division, although I could strengthen several positions if I had the proper material.

"Winning work in the box fills a ball club with confidence. If the players see their pitchers holding the enemy in check they are bound to fight harder for runs. A club doesn't lose confidence if a player makes fatal errors behind a competent pitcher. But just as soon as the pitching staff goes stale or loses nerve the rest of the players seem to think that they cannot win. That is the secret of the Cardinal's success to date. We are getting much better pitching than last year, and our men are hustling for all they are worth. Our victories over the Giants will result in much good for the St. Louis players now realize that they ought to hold their own with the other clubs in the National league.

"It isn't easy to whip the Giants. McGraw has one of the most powerful teams I ever have seen, an, barring accidents he ought to produce another pennant winner. But we have shown how good pitching can check the New York players even on their own field. In Philidelphia last week the Cardinals couldn't win a game because Moran's pitchers were too much for us. The Cubs have climbed to the top because Mitchell's pitchers are in wonderful condition. That is the situation in a nutshell. McGraw also has a bunch of high-class boxmen, together with a team that is well balanced and powerful in every respect. But the Cardinals have twice beaten the Giants, and when we visit Brooklyn and Boston we expect to enjoy more good fortune."

Huggin's argument as to the value of effective pitching is clearly illustrated in the American league race. The Red Sox are leading for the reason that Manager Barry's hurlers are working steadily and consistently. Babe Ruth the big factor. The Yankees' excellent performance away from home also are due to splendid box work. The White Sox, too, are getting results with fairly good pitching, while the Clevelands are well equipped in this respect.

BASEBALL

A very interesting baseball game was played yesterday afternoon at the King Edward School Grounds between the King George end King Edward Junior teams. The game resulted in a victory for King Edward by the close score of 8—7. The batteries were: For King Edward, Manley and Howden; for King George, Hagerman and Lipsett. Milton Frost was a very satisfactory umpire.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA WON.

At a junior baseball game held yesterday afternoon the Queen Alexandra team defeated the Queen Mary nine by a score of 7 to 5.

Batteries—Queen Alexandra, Gilchrist and Jordan; Queen Mary, Turner and Davis.

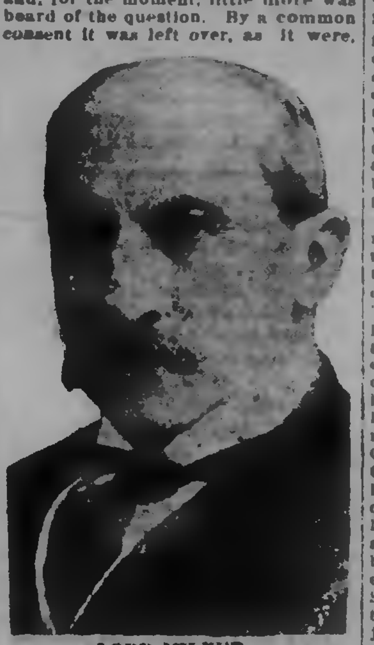
Lord Milner Expresses Hope of the Imperialists In Very Striking Words

"A TIME may come—I hope and believe a time must come — when the supreme direction of Imperial affairs will be in the hands of a Government representative of and responsible to the people of all the states of which the Empire is composed." This statement, made by Lord Milner in the course of a recent speech in London, marks a very definite stage in the working out of the great problem of the future government of the British Empire, which has been growing rapidly in importance during the last decade.

For several years prior to 1914 there had been in process of development a tendency on the part of the self-governing Dominions to claim a more direct share in the government of the Empire, and there was also manifested a growing tendency amongst statesmen at home to admit the justice of these claims, and to welcome the prospect of a more comprehensive scheme of government for the Empire. Then came the war, and, for the moment, little more was heard of the question. By a common consent it was left over, as it were, for discussion in the future, and the Dominions rallied to the support of the Empire without a question asked or a whisper of "terms." Since then, however, the logic of events has gradually forced the matter to the fore again. One by one, as the Dominions' ministers visited England, they were invited to take part in the deliberations of the home government, until the policy came to be not only accepted, but taken for granted. Thus the idea of all Imperial Government, such as that indicated by Lord Milner, no longer seemed to be the dream of a visionary, but, on the contrary, very practical and acceptable politics, and when the calling together of the Imperial War Cabinet was announced, it was accepted almost as a matter of course.



LORD MILNER.

It is not, it is true, possible, at this juncture, to discuss profitably the position which is likely to evolve itself, in this connection, after the war; but if the war is proving one thing beyond doubt it is this, that many so-called emergency measures have come to stay; that there will, in fact, be a unanimous desire, on the conclusion of peace, so to adapt them to peace conditions as to render them, in all their essentials, permanent. "And so we are anxious, as far as is humanly possible," Lord Milner declared in another part of the speech already referred to, "to assure ourselves that we are acting, not only in accordance with our own judgment, but also with that of the men who enjoy the confidence of our fellow subjects across the seas That is the meaning and purpose of the invitation we have addressed them." It is safe to say that the desire for just this assurance will not vanish with the war; but that it will, if anything, be strengthened, and that measures will be taken to make certain that, through some kind of imperial council, or in some other way, such assurance will always be readily obtainable.

"I Know Because I Saw"

ONE of the most terrible indictments of a civilized nation ever launched was that publicly made before the members and guests of the Canadian Club, in New York, at a recent meeting. The speaker was no mere layman repeating the gossip of the clubs or the questionable reports of political organizations. He was the ex-Ambassador of the United States of America, speaking with a full sense of his responsibility and out of a knowledge gained with his own eyes. It was, in short, from the experience acquired during his visits to the prison-camps, in Germany, where the men of the Allied armies taken in battle are confined, that Mr. Gerard spoke, and his words should be given the full publicity intended for them.

"I want to tell you Canadians tonight," Mr. Gerard said, "some of the things I saw your fellow-countrymen endure in the German prisoner of war camps," and, he added, "I know, because I saw." Then in perfectly simple and direct language which had no need of embroidery, he told his tale. He had read one day in the papers that a number of Germans in a certain town had been sent to prison, and their names printed in The North German Gazette, that they "might be exposed to shame, and their falsity made known to generations of Germans to come." When he read that, he was, he said, rejoiced, because he felt that at last some of these people were to be punished for maltreating prisoners of war. He told the United States consul in the town, therefore, to make a report to him on the subject, and, when he received the report, he found, to his astonishment, the circumstances were these. A trainload of Canadian prisoners had been shunted into a siding in the town. The men were starving and had no means of quenching their thirst. Some of the townspeople had given them food and drink, and it was for this ministration to the needs of the prisoners of the Fatherland that the culprits had been sent to prison, and their names held up to execration by the Government.

This, however, was far from all Mr. Gerard had to say. He told how, when typhus broke out in a Russian prisoners' camp, the custodians sent for the English and French prisoners, and, with the brutal jest that "Allies ought to stick together," flung them into the jaws of certain death in the infected camp. So demoralized, indeed, were the very children, by the brutalities they daily witnessed, that he had seen little boys with bows and arrows tipped with nails, marching about the camps, "with German simplicity and kindness," shooting these arrows into the defenseless prisoners. One other story Mr. Gerard told, as bad as any of these. It was the story of a certain camp in which the guards had trained sheep dogs to bite the prisoners as they went through on their rounds, and it was rarely, the Ambassador added, that they failed to bite some prisoners. This particular case was, however, too much for Mr. Gerard. He complained direct to Berlin on the subject, and then when, after a long interval, no notice was taken of his complaint, he addressed himself direct to the commandant. "I told him," he said, "that I was a very good pistol shot, and that I felt like going out, and shooting some trained dogs, and seeing what they would do about it." The hint was taken. Shortly afterwards the commandant was removed.

Such was the story Mr. Gerard told the Canadian Club of New York, almost simultaneously with the publication of the more terrible report of Mr. Sharp, the ambassador of the United States to the French Republic, on the subject of the wanton destruction of the evacuated districts in northern France, and on the very evening of the day on which the most terrible report of all, that of an official of the United States, in Belgium, who had witnessed the methods by which the people of that kingdom have been dragooned into the slavery of forced labor, through the argument of the whip and the machine gun, was given to the press. These three statements have been made by officials of the United States, two of them ambassadors to great powers, and all above suspicion; and, reading them, one is led to wonder why there should be any longer any hesitation in accepting the most terrible disclosures in the awful report of Lord Bryce on the original Belgian atrocities.

"The Song of the Wires."

Every one has noticed the curious "singing" of the telegraph and telephone wires often heard along quiet country roads. Professor Field, of the University of Ottawa, suggests that the noises are due to vibrations transmitted to the wires by the posts, which receive them from the earth, and that they are the results of earth vibrations identical with those that the siesmograph, or earthquake-detector, records. "The song of the wires," Professor Field adds, "is the song of the barometer; if it is low, a change in the weather may come in two days; if sharp, it may be immediately."

Summer Sleds in Madeira.

Instead of wheeling you down the mountains of Maderia, as you might suppose, the hardy natives slide you down. You seat yourself in a comfortable wicker chair mounted on a wooden sled fitted with steel runners, and come down the rocky path of the mountain side as if you were sliding on snow. The human locomotive in the rear steers you down the mountain and pulls the empty basket-cars up again.

Kentucky Coleslaw.

Soak a head of white cabbage for several hours in cold water. Cut in half and dry on a cloth. Shave very fine and put in a cold place.

Dressing: One large tablespoonful of butter, a third of a tablespoonful of celery seed, a pinch of mustard, a teaspoonful of salt, four tablespoonfuls of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of water, a teaspoonful of sugar, one egg.

Cover over a very slow fire until thick. When cold mix with the shaved cabbage. If a very tart salad is preferred add the juice of half a lemon. Two tablespoonfuls of olive oil will improve the dressing. This should be added just before mixing with the cabbage.

Cleaning Tinted Ceilings.

More often than not the ceiling will have black spots over the radiators and gas jets, while the other parts will still be clean. Try this method of cleaning the soiled spots: With a very soft cloth remove all the loose dirt, wiping always in one direction. Then dip a soft, dry cloth into some of the dry calcimine powder of the same shade as the ceiling, finish and rub gently, stroking away from the wall and toward the center and renewing the powder dressing occasionally.

The Hairbrush.

The best way to clean hairbrushes is with spirits of ammonia. No rubbing is required, and cold water can be used just as successfully as warm. Take a teaspoonful of ammonia to a quart of water and dip in the hair part of the brush without wetting the wood; then rinse in cold water, shake the brush well and dry in the air, but not in the sun. Soda and soap soften the bristles.

Mountain of Doubt.

All the high mountains of the world have not been climbed. What is more there is still a "Mountain of Doubt." Colonel Sir Francis Younghusband stated recently that when exploring in 1887 the region at the back of Karakoram range and of the great peak K2—the next highest mountain in the world after Mount Everet—he saw from the north a peak standing high above the others. As it was near where K2 should be he at the time assumed that it was that mountain, but the Duke of the Abruzzi had since conclusively proved that it could not have been the great peak K2. Therefore, the lecturer said, it must be some unfixed peak, and what was required now was that someone should define its position, determine its height, and give it a name. There was, he thought, no chance of its proving higher than K2, but he would be surprised if it proved to be very much less than 25,000 feet in altitude. The mountain overhung the valley of the Oprang—a river he discovered in 1887—and it might be seen from a patch of shrub he had named Durbin Jangal which was about half a dozen miles up the valley from the foot of the Aghil Pass. In 1889 he ascended the valley of Oprang for another couple of marches, but had not time at his disposal to trace the river to its source; therefore that remained to be discovered. He could see in the distance, Sir Francis went on, immense glaciers and mountains which must have been well over 20,000 feet in height, so there was an interesting little piece of exploration to be done there, and in a region so remote and difficult of access that he did not suppose any human being had ever been there.

Small Churches.

Many claims for the "smallest church" have been made; but the distinction, such as it is, belongs to that of Culbone, a lonely and secluded parish on the coast of Somerset. The dimensions of Culbone church are thirty-three feet by twelve feet, and it is a complete structure, with chancel, nave, and south porch. On the Western Heights at Dover may be seen the ruins of a church which in some respects is a rival to Culbone. These ruins form no more than a ground-plan, and were unearthed in 1806. They consist of foundations disclosing a western circular narthex, thirty-two feet in diameter, with a chancel twenty-four feet long. Lullington Church, on the River Cuckmere, at the foot of the South Downs, in the neighborhood of Eastbourne and Newhaven, has been called the "smallest church in England"; but, however small it may now be—it measures only some sixteen feet square—it should be said that this is but the fragment of a church. In this competition for smallness Wasdale church, at the head of Wastwater, in Cumberland, makes what is often considered to be a strong claim, says Mr. G. E. Harper in The Guardian. Its measurements are said to be forty-two feet by sixteen feet, but they do not challenge those of Culbone.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH W. CONDON.

Joseph W. Condon, of Douro Township, passed away on May 11, aged 27 years. The deceased had been in poor health for some time. His death is mourned by his father and mother, and four brothers, John W. of Douro, William of Standard, Alta., Patrick W. and Francis at home; also two sister—Irene of Toronto, and Lillian at home. The funeral will leave the family residence, Lot 12, Concession 4, at eight o'clock Wednesday morning, and proceed to St. Joseph's Church and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery for interment.

HARRIET HEAD.

The death occurred yesterday at 111 Stewart street, of Miss Harriet Head, whose funeral will take place from the above address at ten o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. R. B. Grobb, of All Saints' Church, will conduct the services. The deceased lady was born in England, and had no relatives in this country.

MRS. J. B. HUNTER.

In the death of Eliza J. Stratton Hunter, widow of the late Dr. J. B. Hunter, a beautiful and beneficent life and personality has passed out of Peterborough. Her death away from home was sadly sudden and took place in Toronto, following a minor surgical operation on Thursday of last week, from which she was making good recovery, but complications supervening, the end came as suddenly as unexpectedly.

The late Mrs. Hunter, second eldest daughter of the late James Stratton, was born at Millbrook in 1855, removing in early life to Peterborough, where, with the exception of her seven years of married life, she had since lived. In 1884 she was married to Dr. J. B. Hunter, and lived for a time in Minnedosa, Man., subsequently taking residence in Detroit. On the death of her husband in 1891 Mrs. Hunter came to reside at the old home, "Ardyn," Gilmour street.

Few if any persons who have lived in this city have as deeply impressed the high quality of their lives and characters upon the home and community as Mrs. Hunter had done. As a loving mother and faithful friend her discharge of duty was of a part with her beneficent relations to society and her fellow citizens. She was a neighbor in the full Scriptural sense of the word, loving others as herself in a way that will make her memory blessed by the hundreds that have benefited by her abounding kindness. She was a member of the Murray Street Baptist Church, prominent by her devotion to its interests and active in promoting its work in every branch, in both a personal and official capacity. If Mrs. Hunter will be missed more in one relation of her life, the Murray Street Church will, outside the home, feel her loss most deeply. She was also actively interested in the work of the Young Women's Association, and, indeed, was active and zealous wherever her kindness of heart found opportunity by deeds of love, to give comfort, help or cheer. By her personal geniality and cheerfulness and genuineness she made hosts of friends, and, passing to the higher life, her memory will be blest, as that of one who lived in the world to make it better and happy.

The surviving immediate relatives are one daughter, Mrs. H. D. Robertson, of Chefoo, China, at present visiting in Peterborough; two grandchildren (boys) Egerton and Francis Robertson; three sisters, Miss Stratton, at present in California; Miss Mary Stratton, assistant superintendent of the City Hospital, Hamilton; and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, city; and one brother, Albert H. Stratton.

Funeral from the family residence, Ardyn, 566 Gilmour Street, on Wednesday afternoon. Family service at the residence at 1.30, and service at Murray Street Baptist Church, at 3 o'clock. Internment in Little Lake Cemetery.

THE WEST WARD RATEPAYERS

WILL MEET FOR ORGANIZATION IN COUNCIL CHAMBER TONIGHT.

Ald. Worth, has called a meeting of West Ward ratepayers, in the council chamber at eight o'clock this evening. The object of the occasion is the organization of all willing to cooperate in getting out as large a vote as possible in support of the Bridges Bylaw, the carrying of which it is conceded by all thinking citizens is necessary for the progress and prosperity of a greater Peterborough. A large attendance should be in evidence.

The Government's conscription bill is expected to be introduced in the Commons towards the end of this week or early next week.

A hired man, lately from Toronto, whose name could not be learned at the time of reporting, was burned to death in a barn that was struck by lightning, near Paris.

Harold Mawson, aged sixteen and Harry Smith, thirty-five, at Hamilton, were drowned in Burlington Bay owing to the capsizing of their sailboat Saturday evening.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss E. Elliott was in Lindsay yesterday.

Mrs. Fred Steinberg is visiting her mother, Mrs. James Greenan in Lindsay.

Mr. J. A. McIntyre was in Lindsay yesterday.

Mr. S. Naylor was a Lindsay visitor yesterday.

L. A. Gosselin, Montreal, A. Borodia, Victoriaville, A. S. Husmith, Toronto, are guests of the Empress.

Felix Marchand, Maurice Denness, Montreal, and D. C. Messnall, London, are registered at the Snowden House.

R. H. Williams, of Toronto, is the guest of the Oriental.

The many friends of Mr. Walter English will be pleased to learn that he has sufficiently recovered from his recent operation as to be able to leave the hospital. It is expected that he will shortly be able to resume his duties at this office.

Miss Bessie Coulter returned Monday from Toronto.

NEWFOUNDLAND IN LINE.

Selective Draft is Decided on By Premier.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 22.— A selective conscription law in Newfoundland, along the lines of that now in force in the United States, and proposed in Canada, will probably be introduced at the annual session of the legislature, which opens May 29. Such action was forecast today in a statement by Premier Sir Edward Morris, who returned yesterday from England, where he had been for three months attending sessions of the imperial war conference.

OBJECT TO DRAFT.

Anti-conscription Held by Young Men of Quebec.

QUEBEC, May 22.—Fully ten thousand people assembled at St. Peter's Market Square last night to attend the anti-conscription meeting which was organized by a group of young men headed by Mr. Oscar Drouin, president of the Junior Liberal Club; Ald. Eugene Dussault, of Belvedere Ward, and other young men.

The keynote of the speeches was that the people should be consulted by referendum before conscription was passed and if the people throughout the Dominion voted in favor of conscription, the minority would cheerfully submit to the will of the majority.

FRENCH TAKE THREE LINES OF TRENCHES IN NIGHT RAID

Counter Attack Repulsed and 350 Germans Taken--Joffre Home Again.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 23.—Official statement: We made spirited attacks with good results last evening at three points on the front. On the Vauclerc Plateau and on the Californie Plateau our troops conquered the last of observation points dominating the Aillet Valley. They enlarged considerably their positions on the northern slopes. We carried three lines of German trenches east of Chevreux during the night. A counter attack by the enemy against our new positions on the Californie Plateau was stopped by our fire which inflicted heavy losses on the attackers. We captured 350 Germans of whom eleven are officers.

Enemy attack on the slopes south west of Eparges was checked completely. Everywhere else the night was calm.

Marshal Joffre and Former Premier Viviani arrived at Brest last night on their return from America.

RUSSIA SCORED

LONDON, May 23.—A Petrograd despatch says:—

"Albert Thomas, the French Minister of Munitions, addressing a delegation of the delegates of Moscow, said thousands of French and British soldiers were perishing while awaiting Russia's co-operation in the war. On this co-operation, he said, the soldiers had a right to count, and Russia's intention at the front was equivalent to a separate peace."

It is the Austrian Emperor's idea to offer very generous peace terms to Russia, according to a German correspondent of the Tijd, says an Amstermam despatch. These will include the general re-establishment of Poland, free passage through the Dardanelles, and even a loan to Russia.

As Others See Capt. Burnham

There was a full dress debate in Parliament on Monday over Mr. Burnham's resolution to increase soldiers' pensions. The Government is bringing down a new pension bill, and it encouraged the discussion of this resolution which has been on the order paper for some weeks. Concerning Mr. Burnham's remarks, The Ottawa Journal-Press comments as follows:

"J. H. Burnham gave those members of the special committee who arranged the pensions for soldiers a hot time yesterday. He didn't think much of their work, and in characteristic fashion told them so.

It could hardly be said that the committee relished the precision of the criticism, but the rest of the House seemed to enjoy the play very much, and none more so than the Premier himself. Sir Robert has often betrayed a special liking for Mr. Burnham, but indeed the latter's airy method of attack and absolute lack of malice wins him many friends.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Associated Press issues the following:—The second phase of the great battle of Arras, the Aisne and Champagne has ended in the complete failure of the most determined and costly German efforts to stem the tide of victory now setting against against them. BRITISH STILL HOLD FAST TO POSITION ON "HINDY'S" LINE

Despite Vigorous Bombardment Kept up by Germans---Successful Raid.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 23.—Last night the enemy again heavily bombarded our positions on the Hindenburg line in the neighborhood of Bullecourt, says today's official statement. Our artillery replied vigorously. No hostile attack developed. We made a successful raid early this morning southeast of Gavrelle. A number of Germans were killed without any casualties among our troops. We captured a few prisoners during the night as result of patrol encounters at different points on our front north of Armentieres.

The Central News says the Hungarian parliament has resigned.

THE "BLACK PERIL."

LONDON, May 23.—At a complimentary dinner given here in honor of Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, the famous Boer leader, at which Viscount Milner, the Earl of Selborne, and Sir Leander Starr Jameson, former premier of Cape Colony, and other prominent men were present, General Smuts, in a speech, alluded to Germany's design to establish a great central African empire, and the menace such a scheme would have been to the whole world.

"During my experiences in East Africa," said General Smuts. "my eyes were opened to the serious danger of the plan. In that land there was a gigantic possibility in the huge population—one of the most valuable assets for the creation of the most powerful army the world had ever known. We do not know the value of a black army. If our statesmen had allowed such an army to be created it would have proven not only a serious menace to the future of South Africa, but to the whole of the civilized world."

General Smuts said he hoped that this matter would be borne in mind when a peace settlement came to be made, and that the league of nations would absolutely forbid the military training of the African natives.

Recruits From Far and Near

Recruits are coming from far and near to join Peterborough's crack military unit, the 74th Battery, which is commanded by Major Crocker, who has been through some of the severest fighting at the front. The battery will spend next winter in Peterborough, after returning from the summer training camp.

This week is only half gone, and in that time nine new men have been taken on the strength of the battery. Two of these are from the city, Joseph Feeley and George Whitehead. Two of the new men are from Shawville, near Pembroke, and five from North Bay, the town that produces a hardy type of manhood.

There is still a chance to escape the stigma of conscription. Enlist while that oportunity is left you. Get into khaki before the King's uniform is forced upon you as is the striped garb of the convict. The khaki is a suit of honor now, a mark of distinction to every man who wears it. It may lose much of its significance when put on under different conditions.

MAXIM CAN FOIL GERMAN SUBS

Claim to Have Device for Making Torpedoes Harmless.

NEW YORK, May 23. — Hudson Maxim announces that he had invented and perfected a device which will make ships immune from the dangers of the submarine.

He said that torpedoes, even when fired at close range, and striking their targets, would explode harmlessly against the hulls of their intended victims.

The inventor made the announcement at a luncheon given in Brooklyn. He asserted that the invention soon will be demonstrated by the Government, which already has been advised of the details.

"The invention is practical for every type of vessel," he said. "It can be applied within a few months at a comparatively cheap price to the hulls of ships already constructed. The only change necessary in vessels already built will be a slight enlargement in their beam. My device is of solid material, and encircles the entire hull of the ship from the bow to the stern. It in no sense or manner resembles either a screen or net."

NO PRACTICE TONIGHT.

There will be no practice of the Conservatory orchestra tonight.

GUNS CAPTURED BY CANUCKS AT VIMY RIDGE WILL BE ON EXHIBITION AT FALL FAIRS

Trophies of Famous Victory Now on Way to This Country.

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Headquarters in France, May 23.—Following the penetration of the Hindenburg line in the region between Bullecourt and Arras the enemy has resumed the cutting down of trees along the roads in country north of the River Scarpe.

Were the Hindenburg line south of Arras to become untenable the Mericourt Oppy trench system between Scarpe and Lens would be equally so. Already British troops are inside the German wire at Gavrelle and the enemy has been under the necessity of constructing a new defensive system to the east and between Gaurelle and Avion where the wire ends in a mass of mine buildings. The Oppy lines are in bad condition in the front of La Coulette. Both trenches and wire have practically disappeared. The Germans are at work under our fire on new defences along rising ground to the east of that village.

On the Arleux sector wire protecting the enemy was pretty thoroughly cut before the capture of Fresnoy early in the month. The village has passed again into German hands but the Oppy line there may be said not to exist.

All along the front from the Sonchez river to the Scarpe river the enemy's defences are daily becoming weaker despite the efforts to maintain a wire and trench system. This morning the enemy was busy repairing breaches in his wire.

Cannon of smaller calibre captured by the Canadians at Vimy Ridge have been shipped to Canada and should arrive in time to add interest to the fall fairs. Larger guns which require the use of mechanical power to get them over the ridge could not be brought out in time for the first shipment. Not a few of them are still in use, stores of abandoned enemy munitions still being available.

The Weather

Decidedly cool and unseasonable weather continues. Temperature today, 41 degrees; somewhat higher last night. Rainfall yesterday .21; last night .81 of an inch; total, 1.02. A year ago this date, 77 degrees; two years ago the Salvation Army Band gave an an open-air concert in Victoria Park. Fine, but cool, for the 24th.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

At 6.50 last evening the fire brigade responded to a call to 221 Charlotte street, where the chimney was ablaze. No damage resulted.

GERMAN RAIDER IN ATLANTIC

Allies' Warships Keeping Watch for Sub That Made Escape.

NEW YORK, May 23. — Information that the British naval authorities suspected that a German sea raider escaped from a German port and was at large was brought to America by an arriving Belgian relief ship.

The Belgian captain said his vessel was fired on by a British cruiser May 13 off the north of Scotland. The relief ship halted and was examined by the Briton. The latter, said the Belgian captain, reported that the relief vessel, which carried four masts, was mistaken for a four-masted raider which was believed to have left Germany under the guise of a merchantman.

Another Belgian relief steamship arriving reported sighting a Zeppelin, the L-30, off the Dutch coast on April 3, headed towards the British Isles. On the following day the Belgian ship was halted by a German submarine, which permitted her to proceed.

GRADUATING EXCERCISES IN THE COLLEGIATE HALL

Diplomas Awarded to Graduates, and Prizes For Bandaging—Interesting Addresses—Splendid Musical Program.

The Collegiate Assembly Hall, last night, was the scene of an exceedingly pleasing instructive and entertaining function, when Nurses Graham, Nugent, McGregor, Jory and McGoun were awarded their diplomas and medals. The occasion was the graduating exercises in connection with The Nicholls Hospital, and the large hall was pretty well filled with a delighted and responsive audience. The whole proceedings were of an unusually interest retaining nature, while the musical entertainment included numbers by local talent of considerable merit and whose offerings are always productive of enthusiastic commendation. The contributors were: Miss Dorothy Allan, vocal; Miss Lora Logan, violin; Mr. Douglas Carlisle, vocal. Mr. John Allan and Mrs. W. A. Logan, accompanists.

The platform was a veritable bower of flowers for the graduates from their friends.

Each graduate received a beautiful bouquet from the Board, presented by little Misses Dorothy Meir and Margerie McCulloch.

Absence Regretted.

Mr. John Crane made a very acceptable chairman in the absence of Mr. Richard Hall through illness. The first Peterborough Hospital, he said, was established on the present site of Mr. T. E. Bradburn's home, west of Charlotte street, 33 years ago. Mr. Hall was then a member of the Board, and had only missed once presiding at the graduating exercises. He had been a personal friend of the late Mrs. Nicholls, knew her ideas in regard to the maintenance of this hospital, her bequest, and always saw to it that her wishes were carried out as far as practicable.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1917

VICTORIA.

Born, May 24, 1819. Ascended the throne June 20, 1837. Died January 22, 1901.

"She wrought her people lasting good."

Her court was pure, her life serene,
God gave her peace, her land reposed;
A thousand claims to reverence closed
In her as mother, wife and queen.

And statesmen at her council met
Who knew the seasons when to take
Occasion by the hand and make
The bonds of freedom wider yet.

By shaping some august decree,
Which kept her throne unshaken still,
Broad-based upon her people's will
And compassed by the inviolate sea.
—Tennyson.

WHAT IT MEANS TO THE CITY.

THE NEW PLANT which the Quaker Oats Company will erect in this city, provided the ratepayers consent at the election one week from tomorrow to the construction of a high level bridge and a bridge at London street, will cost $1,500,000. Think for a moment what that means to this city, especially at a time when the ordinary building trade is dead. A million and a half of dollars, a fortune in itself, is to be distributed, largely among the local workingmen. That is equivalent to the erection of one thousand dwelling houses at a cost of $1500 each, and it is not hard to estimate what that would mean as a boom in business. As homes will be required to house the army of workers which will follow the completion of the new plant, one building boom will naturally follow the other.

The erection of the plant itself, even if the consideration of it is not extended to the time when it will employ a small army of well paid workers, is sufficient reason why every ratepayer in the city should turn out and support the bridge bylaw on May 31st. Such an opportunity comes seldom, and never more than once to any community.

CAPT. BURNHAM ON PENSIONS.

THE PROMINENCE which the Opposition papers have given to Capt. Burnham's speech on the pension problem in the House on Monday shows the importance of the measure and the significance of a member of the party in power rising to criticize the acts of the Government. It would be well for the country, on general principles, well for the soldiers of Canada in this particular and other instances, if more members of Parliament had the courage of their convictions such as that displayed by the representative from West Peterborough. The men who are in khaki, whether they be in training camp, in the trenches, or home again unable longer to serve their country, are to be congratulated upon having a friend at court in the person of Capt. Burnham, who can be depended upon as a champion and will see that they get justice.

When the present pension scale was announced it was criticized on all sides as being inadequate, especially in its pensions for men totally disabled in the service. No man, even if he is alone in the world, can possibly live on $480 a year at the present scale of prices. If he has a wife and children, his case is indeed desperate.

Another exception taken to the pension provisions made by the Government had to do with the distinction made between privates and officers. A man above the rank of lieutenant is to receive a higher allowance than the one who has served in the ranks or as a non-com. It has always been held that no such difference should be recognized in the army of a democracy. There are men fighting as privates in the Canadian forces who have given up better positions than some of the officers under whom they serve. If such men are disabled, it is hardly fair to rate them so as to condemn them to a life of poverty for the rest of their days.

The system of pensions in effect in the United States might well be taken as a model by the Government of Canada. No distinction as to rank is recognized. The amount of pension to which a man is entitled is figured solely on the extent of his disability, the length of time he was in the service being also taken into consideration. The highest pension any victim of the Civil War can draw is $100 a month, whether he was a private or a general, and he is entitled to this only in the event of total disability, which implies that he requires the constant services of an attendant to take care of him.

The returned soldiers who have formed a Veterans' Association at Winnipeg have asked the Government to grant a pension of $100 a month to totally disabled soldiers, and Capt. Burnham seconds this request. He believes, further, that pensions should vary to meet the constantly increasing cost of living. His argument in support of this contention is unanswerable. The man working for wages, when his pay proves inadequate, insists upon a raise of wages, and generally gets it. The soldier should not be compelled to accept a fixed amount, helpless in the event of the purchasing power of the dollar paid him shrinking by one-half.

Not only must the disabled soldier, be his disability partial or total, be cared for, but adequate provision must be made for the widows and orphans of those who fall in battle. Capt. Burnham regards the present allowance in such cases as inadequate. If a widow marries again, the pension to her children, regardless of age, ceases, although something in the way of a gratuity is allowed. He believes not only that the disabled veteran should receive at least $100 a month, but that the same amount should be paid to his widow and children until the latter are able to earn their own living.

There should be less red tape about the administration of the work of the Pension Board. Impositions may be attempted, but it is certainly unfair to regard as an imposter every man who applies for assistance. Rules and conditions should be so clearly defined as to leave no room for argument. The pension scale should be flexible, not only with regard to the fluctuation in the cost of living, but in other respects. A man returning from the service may be partially disabled so as to entitle him to one rate of compensation. That disability may increase, due entirely to his military service, until his incapacity becomes total, and his pension should be raised in proportion until the limit is reached. That is the system that has been in successful operation in the United States for years.

Canada appreciates the sacrifices made by the soldiers and is proud of the distinction that they have brought to their country. Gratitude should be concrete, however. No veteran should be allowed to suffer. Every man, no matter what his disability, is certainly entitled to live as well for the rest of his days as he did before the war, and to maintain his dependents in something like the same degree of comfort. The widow and the orphans must be cared for. This is simply a matter of justice, but as a business proposition it has everything to commend it. The soldier should not be allowed to become the beneficiary of public charity. The nation owes him a debt which it should be willing to discharge. It cannot restore him to health, but it can at least preserve the veteran from want.

It must be said on behalf of the Government that the pension system now in force was never regarded as anything but a tentative measure. Such a matter was entirely new in this country, and Premier Borden has promised amendments to the Act. That these amendments will be in the nature of improvements, that the allowances will be more liberal, everyone believes.

NEXT WINTER'S COAL SUPPLY.

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN, so far as we have noticed, does not advocate municipal coal yards, although it does realize the grave danger, in the shape of a fuel famine, that threatens this country next winter. The Citizen takes the stand, however, that the Canadian authorities are not doing all in their power to provide against a national calamity. It says:

"What is the actual situation regarding coal prospects in Canada? Does any responsible authority know? There are nine provincial governments and a federal government, and the federal government has about seventeen salaried cabinet ministers and several assistant ministers; does any one know whether the people of Canada are going to be starved for lack of fuel next winter? Is it any one's business to know or to find out, and to take steps to prevent the possibility of a coal crime of junker frightfulness against Canada about the time when the temperature is twenty degrees below zero?

The shortage of coal last winter came, fortunately, too late to strike Canada as the enemy would like to do it. As a rehearsal for next winter, however, it could very likely have provided an enemy with the experience and information necessary to give this country a blow where it is most vulnerable.

The anthracite coal industry is controlled in the United States by powerful agents of financial imperialism—they might be agents of the Kaiser for all the Canadian public has to say regarding their prices and methods. According to the report of a federal trade commission to the United States Senate, "The retail prices of anthracite coal, generally obtained are unwarranted." Nevertheless public credulity is being prepared for higher prices in the near future—even for $20 a ton. Recently officers of a coal mining company in the United States took oath in a hearing to recover damages to their business, that their production in 1915 and 1916 was the same and that their profits in 1916 were double those in 1915, although the latter represented a handsome figure.

This summer, while the Canadian people bask in the sun's rays and read the war news, if they can be made to believe that coal prices are bound to be higher, and the excuse of a car shortage can be trumped up when supplies are low, the situation would seem to be just the thing to suit junker ideas of what should be done to Canada next winter. One preliminary towards making a freeze out of the whole Canadian people more effective would be to close down the Canadian mines when they should be busiest, at the present time; and this is apparently what is happening in the West.

As a war measure, and before the situation is worse, would it not be wise to remove all risk of a frozen Canada, or of profiteering in a vital necessity, by federal action to socialize the coal resources and supplies such as they are?"

The Railway and Municipal Board of Ontario will hold a session in this city on Wednesday, June 6—the first meeting of the kind called since the recent Act of the Legislature—to enquire into the necessity for a civic coal yard here. Advocates of the proposition and any who may be opposed to it will be given an opportunity to express their views.

The great obstacle to setting up a municipal coal yard is the fact that the real sources of the trouble, the questions of production and transportation, lie outside the jurisdiction of either the federal or provincial authorities. Peterborough aldermen may visit Buffalo with the commendable object of straightening out the tangle, but the success of such a step is yet a matter of doubt.

"Prisoner," said the magistrate, "you have already been sentenced eleven times for vagrancy, violent assault, embezzlement, theft etc."

"No, he's a doctor. He makes his money out of green apples."

CITIES OWN WATERSHED

Canadian Cities Should Gain Control of Water Supply

Statistics respecting Canadian waterworks show that many of our systems are supplied by gravity from distant sources, thus minimizing the danger of pollution. The number of such systems is rapidly growing, as well as their importance; over 100 of them are in use in the Dominion, including those in many large cities from Halifax to Vancouver. The necessity of properly protecting against both pollution and deforestation the watersheds upon which these systems are dependent cannot be too strongly urged.

In this connection, the example of Newark, N.J., is unique. The city owns in fee simple some 82 per cent. of the 63 square miles of the watersheds from which the supply is drawn, and in the course of a few years will probably own the whole area. This case is hardly parallel to that of Seattle and other far western cities which own all or a large portion of the watersheds of their municipal water-supplies, for the impounding reservoirs of these cities are in comparatively unpopulated areas, while Newark's reservoirs are within a 30 mile radius of New York city.

Experience indicates the practical impossibility of enforcing laws and regulations upon an indifferent public, and the only feasible method of protecting watersheds is complete control and exclusion from settlement. In Canada, most of these watersheds are yet unpopulated and immediate action would avoid future complication. Scientific forestry has been conducted with great success on several of these reservations in the United States. With many municipal waterworks departments, forestry has become an important accessory, while a private company, supplying water to Nashua, N.H., has demonstrated complete success on a 1,000-acre tract, which is actually yielding considerable profits, and will continue to do so indefinitely.

RAIN COMES THE LAST

Why the Rain Follows the Thunder and Lightning

Why does a heavy downpour of rain often follow a clap of thunder? Not, as is popularly believed, because the thunder jostles the cloud particles together into raindrops. In the violent turmoil between the positive and negative electricity in a thundercloud there will be places where the production of drops, by condensation, and their subsequent breaking up proceeds more rapidly than elsewhere. Hence in these places there will be more drops to fall as rain, and also more electrification, the rainfall occurring about the same time as the flash. We have, then, starting toward the earth at the same time, light, sound, and raindrops. The light, travelling at a speed of about 186,000 miles per second, reaches us almost instantly. The sound travels far more slowly—about 1,090 feet per second—but the rain falls much slower still. Thus we observe, first, the lightning, then the thunder, and then rain.

Potatoes For Rotation

One great advantage in growing potatoes is that the crop fits in admirably with the regular farm rotation. "For a three-year rotation," says Harry Broughton of Sarnia, Ontario, "you can have potatoes, fall wheat, clover and then potatoes again. A potato crop leaves the land in excellent condition for fall wheat. My brother, who lives near Whitby, had sixty-four bushels of fall wheat to the acre following potatoes. In a four-year rotation potatoes will work in as well: potatoes, fall wheat, oats or barley and then clover."

On any well regulated dairy farm the milking of the cows at a stated period is never neglected. Don't neglect the source of income.

DON'T NEGLECT FRESH AIR

Little Things Not Omitted From Care of Vast Organization

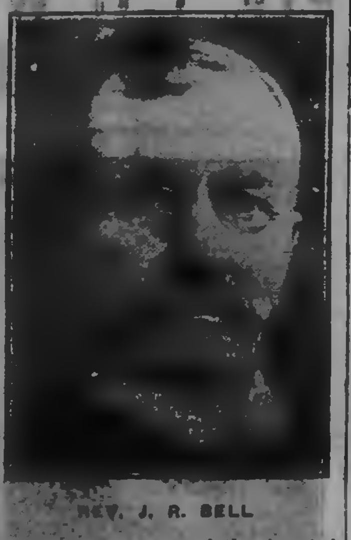
It has been demonstrated that the value of good railway material rescued from scrap amounts to about two dollars per ton, while proper sorting and classifying increases the net selling value of the scrap by another two dollars per ton, the saving thus made amounting to a large sum of money. The Grand Trunk Railway System pays careful attention to the work of salvaging the many tons of discarded material produced on a railway operating many thousands of miles of line. Central scrap yards have been established, where the sorting of this material is carried out. Forty thousand tons of scrap are examined each year, and this work is done under expert supervision, so that full value is obtained for the metal and other commodities sold, while a large amount of material is reclaimed and returned for use.

The Grand Trunk buys each year approximately one million dollars worth of brass. This great mass of metal shrinks in value by usage, but every pound that can be possibly salvaged is returned to the foundry and has a high cash value. Rails with battered ends are re-sawed, used bolts are re-threaded and the couplings of air-brake, signal and steam-heat hose are repaired. The Grand Trunk has in actual use each day about 85,000 pieces of air and steam hose, representing, with the necessary fittings an investment of $200,000. The perishable part of the hose must be replaced at frequent intervals, but under the system of reclamation the various couplings are used over and over again.

DEPLORES RURAL DECAY

Fifty-four Deserted Homes in One Ontario Country Point

Rev. J. R. Bell of Laurel, Ont., provoked a keen controversy by his address on farm and village conditions in Ontario at a conference on Rural Life and Work, at the Ontario Agricultural College. He asserted that within the boundaries of his own parish there were 54 vacant homes which five years previously were occupied by large families. He declared that the villages were being deserted. Village craft was decaying, blacksmiths and other village tradesmen were passing away, and the deserted blacksmith shop is a too common feature in village life. The population of Dufferin County had decreased 3,047 in recent years owing to the exodus from the rural communities.



REV. J. R. BELL

Mr. Bell thought the problem largely an economic one, due to small returns, bad roads, the lure of the city, and the lure of the West. There was a lack of business methods and of credit. He thought it time farmers had a banking system of their own. Mr. Bell painted a glowing picture of the future of rural life under reformed conditions. He regarded the consolidated school, with the teacher's residence, gymnasium, manual training, household science and a school garden, as the educational system which would transform rural life. He also advocated intensive farming.

HANGMAN'S OPINION

Radcliffe of Canada Thought Himself a Great Murderer

In 1912 Radcliffe, previously the official hangman of Canada, was "converted" under evangelistic influences. The son of an English clergyman, he officiated during his term of office at 132 hangings. Crazed by the vision of the souls he had hurled into eternity, Radcliffe declared, "I will go to hell sure, and to terrible punishment, for I am two hundred times a murderer, but I won't kill another man. I believe the Almighty will visit the Christian nations with dire calamity if they don't stop taking the lives of their fellows, no matter how heinous the crime. Murderers should be allowed to live as long as possible and work out their salvation on behalf of the State."

RARE BEAUTY OF MUSIC.

Results of Steady Plugging in Choir Work.

One reason why at least some volunteer choirs never get beyond very limited attainments is lack of confidence in themselves. They are content to just drift along, excusing the lack of progress by saying, "you know we haven't the material to take up really good things." But it must be borne in mind that it takes a good deal of brilliancy to equal the accomplishments of a group of persons with just average voices but determined to do honest plugging every practice night.

By way of example, there comes to mind a certain choir of forty voices without any outstanding members or any paid singers. When their conductor first ran over with them Tertius Noble's "Souls of the Righteous" the members all thought it was ridiculous to attempt any such impossibility. But the leader seeing the good that was bound to result from his choir's knowing such a good composition set to work with the determination of Napoleon getting his army across the Alps.

After several trials the rare beauty of the music unfolded. Its strains fastened upon them until the anthem became a part of each one. It kept running through their heads at home, at work, morning and night. After persistent practice they succeeded in mastering the composition, and then it was only a short step to "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace" and "Fierce Was the Wild Billow," also by Noble. The knowing of these anthems represented a real accomplishment. The choir then feels it has received some worth while training in return for the time spent, which in turn creates a self-confidence that looks around for fresh worlds to conquer.

The conductor's judgment and confidence were primarily responsible for the attainment. But honest plugging rather than brilliant singers enabled it to be carried out successfully. Aim high is a good motto.

TAUGHT BY PERSONALITY.

Tosti will always be best remembered as the composer of "Good-bye," although there is a difference of opinion as to what is his finest work. "Beauties' Eyes," "Venetian Boat Song," "Ask Me No More," "My Heart's Delight," "For Ever and For Ever," and others all gained wide popularity. Tosti was loved by his pupils. He was a great teacher, and as one has put it, "He taught by personality." It has been said the reason he returned to Italy to spend his last years was to prove to his fellow-countrymen that his heart was still with Italy, his native land. To accept the honor of knighthood from the King of England he had to become a British subject. This is said to have been resented by some Italians.

Famous Hungarians.

Liszt is perhaps the best known of the Hungarian piano virtuosos. Remenyji was an eminent Hungarian violinist, and visited America some years ago. Among other distinguished Hungarian violinists s Czinka Panna, a gipsy woman, who more than any other member of her race, made Hungarian folks songs known throughout Europe. Eccentric, brilliant, magnetic, she became the idol of the people. Throughout her wonderful career she wore male attire. She married at fourteen, and when she died her Amati violin was buried with her, according to her will.

PATRIOTISM AND PRODUCTION.

Mr. B. F. Poirier, organist of St. James' Church, St. Denis St., Montreal, has been specializing in Canadian compositions. Last season he gave a series of recitals in which none but Canadian music was heard, and they proved most popular. He has resumed the practice this spring, and on the 12th inst. began a new series. In a letter to the press of his city, he says: "Having at heart the purpose of seeing our composers taking a more active part in the line of serious music production, I will continue for an indefinite time the recitals performing whatever I have collected so far in Canadian works."

Cold bathers before going to bed and in the morning help to harden the nervous system. Exercises in the gymnasium, tennis, rowing, sailing are all of value in maintaining the general nutrition, and help the nervous system a great deal.

The custom of going abroad to finish in music is more a habit than a necessity.

VERY GOOD MATERIAL FOR CANADIAN CITIZENSHIP.

Out in Toronto suburbs lives an English family whose estimate of the worth-while things of life is too worthy to be overlooked.

Coming to this country some five years ago, the father secured work in a shop, and by steady plodding has managed to keep his family comfortable, at the same time putting some money by towarde the purchase of a little home. When their daughter reached the age at which it was advisable to have her start taking music lessons, the family income was not sufficient to afford the expense of the music teacher's fees. But rather than see her daughter grow to womanhood handicapped by the lack of a musical education, the mother commenced to go out to a limited number of places to do light housework.

She still has regular places for two or three half-days a week, her remuneration for which is devoted solely to her daughter's musical advancement. Ambitoin of such a kind cannot be praised too much. It is a splendid ingredient in Canadian character.

HAWAIIAN MUSIC

"Hawaiian music and hula dancers" was the bait in the advertisements of restaurants and cabarets in North American cities in the summer of 1916. Today the "ads" still proclaim "Hula dancers and ukulele orchestras." This is an unusually long time for [illegible] to last. The scoffers who predicted that its fate would be death in infancy are now beginning to suspect that there may be something to it after all. Also, they are wondering what hulu means anyhow. If you ask them point blank, they will dismiss their doubts and answer patronizingly that a hula is "one of those outlandish Hawaiian instruments, you know."

The Old Hawaiian Hulas.

They have made a bad guess. The hula was a religious service combining music, poetry, pantomime and islands before the coming of the dance, and was practiced all over the white man. It was held in honor of the goddess Laka in wondrously constructed bowers of vines and branches, and required a long and severe training of all who took part. In other countries similar religious ceremonies have developed into the opera, the drama and literature. This might have happened in Hawaii, too, but the coming of the Europeans, Americans and Japanese in the last century caused such a radical change in the entire civilization of the islands that no artistic development after that time can be said to be purely Hawaiian.

"Ukulele Means "Jumping Flea."

Modern Hawaiian music is mostly love songs, rendered serenade style, on the ukulele. Ukulele means jumping flea, and probably refers to the rapid, jerky movement of the fingers in playing. This guitar-like instrument, of Portuguese origin, is played by at least half the inhabitants of the islands, and provides a melodious accompaniment to the rich, deep voices of the young men courting their ladies in the tropical moonlight.

Modern Hawaiian Music a Mixture of Many Elements.

The ballads themselves have much in common with the old German folk songs. This is thought to be due to the influence of Captain Berger, a German musician, who for forty years conducted the Royal Hawaiian Band in Honolulu—a great factor in the musical life of the islands, before they became a territory of the United States.

It is this pseudo-Hawaiian music which has found its way to us and won such popular favor. Nor are the gyrations of the sprightly young women who accompany the ballads, those of the ancient hulas. But, then, if the music and the dances were orthodox Hawaiian we might not like them so well.

Hungarians favor string and reed music, while the Slavs excel in playing wind instruments.

PIANO-TUNER, PLEASE

In Very Many Homes He Is a Complete Stranger

"Absolute pitch," that is to say, the immediate recognition of any musical recognition of any musical sound by its tone name, is not common. Theodore Thomas was asked on one occasion what was the note being sounded by a steamboat whistle. He said immediately "F Sharp, and the overtone is E." Such remarkable perfection of the ear is naturally more common among people playing orchestral instruments than among pianists. The piano when properly tuned is rigid in its tone production. There is no possibility of varying the pitch. Therefore the one practising gets out of the habit of listening for faulty intonation and becomes satisfied too easily. Not until a violinist begins to tune his instrument to accord with the piano is the fault discerned. Pianists forget that the strings of the instrument they love are subject to ordinary physical laws, that they contract in cold weather and expand from heat, thus raising or lowering slightly the pitch. They forget that when there is a large number of strings of unequal tension the expansion or contraction will be unequal, thus throwing the instrument as a whole out of correct tune. The periodical visit of a piano tuner is therefore no mere luxury. It is a necesity if one's ear is not to become accustomed to discordant noises.

Fathers of families frequently imagine, when they have bought a piano for Mary and arranged for her music lessons, that they have done everything possible. Yet in many houses the piano tuner is a stranger, and therefore Mary's fingers are being trained while her ear is neglected. In many of the Y.M.C.A. huts for soldiers, a piano has been provided, but the dampness soon makes it a horror to the ears of soldier musicians. "When I come home," wrote one not long ago, "I hope our old piano will be in tune. The one we use at our sing-songs is the limit."

THE DRUMMER.

Problems Average Orchestra Drummer Must Face.

A writer of bright paragraphs in one of the lighter periodicals of the United States wonders over the lack of parental direction which results in a boy learning to be a "trap-drummer" in an orchestra. It is the old story. Everybody abuses a drummer—but the musician. He knows better than to sap the foundations of his art by ill-considered comment. It is true that the mere beating of a drum-stick on a circle of sheepskin is not a great technical achievement. There is no particular brain power employed in the mere act of hitting. The brain power shows in choosing the proper occasion for the hitting. Only a man with the keenest possible sense of rhythm is fit for the drum corner. Consider the task, for example, of counting 125 measures and then "coming in" at the right instant! A story is told of a famous drummer who accepted pupils but who disliked to be kept indoors by his teaching. He was accustomed to start the pupil counting 1,305 measures, then to go outside and smoke a cigar. When he returned, he would stop the pupil and say, "What measure were you at when I spoke?" Perhaps the pupil would say "The 827th." The teacher would reply, "Wrong. Start again." With this he would go out again and smoke another cigar. Perhaps there may be a suspicion of exaggeration in this moving tale but certainly it illustrates as nothing else can do the problems which the average orchestral drummer must face.

MUSICAL VICTORIA.

There is a perpetual musical activity in the Pacific Coast cities within the last few weeks of the season four churches of Victoria have been giving special musical services. At St. Andrew's, under the direction of Frank J. Sehl, Rossini's Stabat Mater was presented with G. Jennings Burnett at the organ, and with a group of specially fine soloists. On Good Friday night the Metropolitan Methodist choir, under Mr. G. A. Downard, gave Sophr's "The Last Judgment," a work always popular with church choirs because of its rich melodic content. The First Presbyterian Church choir on May 8 rendered Haydn's "The Creation," the choir being augmented for the occasion and Mr. Jackson Hanby being at the desk. Stainer's "Crucifixion" was heard in Holy Week at Christ Church Cathedral under Mr. J. D. Watson.

LOUD ACCOMPANIMENTS ARE TABOOED.

A gentleman, who, though fond of music, claims to be "the man on the street" when it comes to criticizing, charges that in many churches the congregational singing is below par because the organ accompaniment is too loud. He attributes what seems to be the organist's pitting the organ against be voices to simply habit, although in accompanying the choir alone it may be from a desire to smother the poor tone quality obtained from a choir where the voice material is not up to standard.

But from whatever cause the organ accompaniment is too heavy, the mistake was forcibly impressed upon his mind in this way. The organ in the church he attended was being rebuilt, and use was made of a piano at the services. The light background afforded the choral and congregational singing by the piano accompaniment he considered such an improvement that he began to hope for the introduction of capital punishment to do away with the invariably loud organ accompaniment.

BRINGING A NOVELTY.

Miss C. C. Caulfield of New Zealand is in New York with a novelty. She purposes introducing to American attention the native music of the Maoris, which, she believes, is more adaptable to the ear of civilized people than the Hawaiian music which has created such ac raze in the United States. Miss Caulfield is one of a group of twelve girls who have been giving concerts in Australia and New Zealand for the Red Cross funds. It is not stated what are the main characteristics of the Maori music. Little has been written of it in the standard works.

WOOD FUEL VS. COAL

Comparisons by Government Expert Value of Various Varieties

The fuel value of two pounds of wood is roughly equivalent to that of 1 pound of coal. This is given as the result of certain calculations made in a Government forest service laboratory, which show also about how many cords of certain kinds of wood are required to obtain an amount of heat equal to that in a ton of coal.

Certain kinds of wood, such as hickory, oak, beech, birch, hard maple, ash, elm, locust, longleaf pine, and cherry, have fairly high heat values and only one cord of seasoned wood of these species is required to equal one ton of good coal. It takes a cord and a half of shortleaf pine, hemlock, red gum, Douglas fir, sycamore, and soft maple to equal a ton of coal, and two cords of cedar, redwood, poplar, catalpa, Norway pine, cypress, basswood, spruce and white pine.

Equal weights of dry, non-resinous woods, however, are said to have practically the same heat value regardless of species, and as a consequence it can be stated as a general proposition that the heavier the wood the more heat to the cord. Weight for weight, however, there is very little difference between various species; the average heat for all that have been calculated is 4,600 calories, or heat units, per kilogram. A kilogram of resin will develop 9,400 heat units, or about twice the average for wood. As a consequence, resinous woods have a greater heat value per pound than non-resinous woods, and this increased value varies, of course, with the resin content.

The available heat value of a cord of wood depends on many different factors. It has a relation not only to the amount of resin it contains but to the amount of moisture present. Furthermore, cords vary as to the amount of solid wood they contain, even when they are of the standard dimension and occupy 128 cubic feet of space. A certain proportion of this space is made up of air spaces between the sticks, and this air space may be considerable in a cord made of twisted, crooked and knotty sticks. Out of the 128 cubic feet, a fair average of solid wood is about 80 cubic feet.

QUEER WAYS OF NAMING Japanese Raffle Themselves—Several Christenings Are Needed

The Japanese have many quaint customs handed down from generation to generation. One of the strangest is that of their christening ceremony. When one month old a Japanese child gets its first name with ceremonial. Trumpets are blown and the child is borne in great state to the family temple, and behind the procession march the household servants carrying the infant's wardrobe. The servant in the rear of the procession bears a huge box, in which is the priest's fee, together with three slips of paper, on which three names are written. On reaching the temple the names are thrown into the air, and the first that touches the ground is the one which the child receives.

When three years old the child is again christened, accompanied by elaborate religious rites. At the age of fifteen his education is supposed to be finished, and as he then enters manhood (according to Japanese law) he is again christened. When he takes to business he receives his "business" name, by which he is known in the commercial world, and upon every upward step in life he receives a new name. If his master happens to have the same name he must at once change it, as it detracts from his superior's dignity. At his marriage his name is altered again, and his last and only permanent one is that given him after death, which is written on his tomb.

THE TONIC THAT BRINGS HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" Builds Up The Whole System

Those who take "Fruit-a-tives" for the first time, are often astonished at the way it builds them up and makes them feel better all over. They may be taking "Fruit-a-tives" for some specific disease, as Constipation, Indigestion, Chronic Headaches or Neuralgia, Kidney or Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism or Pain in the Back. And they find when "Fruit-a-tives" has cured the disease, that they feel better and stronger in every way. FERDY, THE FLOORWALKER.

How Madeleine, the Customer, Returned to Talk Shop.

IT was autumn, and the busy days of effort had been resumed. Ferdinand, with the fresh glow of health on his face, stood by the door looking out upon the crowded thoroughfare, his eyes resting upon the everchanging kaleidoscope of life, but not seeing this. His mind was far away from that restless thoroughfare, and it was only with a listless interest that he answered the many questions that were coming to him from all sides. It was with some degree of discomfort that he realised that he had sent at least three ladies to the chiffon counter on the third floor when they had asked the way to the culinary supply department in the basement, and he knew that this could not continue, and yet the thought of that last sweet evening on the broad moonlit waters of the Mankamunkywunk would not down. That moon, covering with a golden glow the fair face of Madeleine and lighting its way straight into his swelling heart, was never to be forgotten—no, not even here in this mad whirl of commerce. So happy had he been at her whispered "Yes" when he had asked her to be his that he had forgotten to ask her address, and when next morning he had departed for the vortex of business again she had not appeared on the station platform, and he had been forced to return to town in utter ignorance of where he might find her. Would he ever see her again? he had repeatedly asked himself, and now—could it be true?—here she was in all her majestic beauty entering that swinging door and coming directly to his side.

"Madeleine!" he cried eagerly.

The girl stopped and gazed searchingly into his face, but she spoke no word.

"Madeleine," he murmured, "I have found you again. Will you not speak to me?"

Her face went white, and it was evident that she was suffering.

"Madeleine," he continued, "since that night on the lake I have seen nothing but you, thought of nothing but you. Waking or sleeping it has been always the same—your face has been enshrined in my heart as imperishably as the tiny fly in the indestructible amber. Every strain of music that has fallen upon my ears has whispered your dear name to me. The first word I have spoken on waking has been Madeleine. The last word upon my lips at night has been Madeleine."

Still, as if stricken dumb, the girl made no reply.

"Am I never to be thrilled again with the magic numbers of your voice?" he cried. "Is my heart never more to echo and re-echo with the splendid modulations of that exquisite harmony which breathes forth its loveliness from your slightest word? Madeleine, speak to me or I shall go mad."

Her lips moved, and at first he could not hear, but finally her words reached him.

"Will you please direct me to the stove lid department?" she said.

He staggered backward into the hamper of hole proof hosiery marked down from $1.99 to $1.67 and stood gaping awkwardly at her, and Madeleine, without another word, turned and was lost in the surging mass of women come to get the Monday set of the works of Browning with each fifteen cent cake of celluloid soap.—Harper's Weekly.

Samara Held High Place Among Important Cities When World Was Young

THE ancient town of Samara, lying on the Tigris, some hundred miles up the river from Bagdad, enjoys a curious distinction. For about fifty years, in the Ninth Century, it was one of the first cities in the world. Before that time it had hardly even existed, and, after its short-lived greatness, it steadily fell into decay.

It was in the heyday of the power of the Kalifs of Bagdad that the story of Samara began. The reign of the famous Mamun, one of the greatest of the Abbasides, after the Kalif Mansur, had just come to a close, and the succession was sought by one Abu Ishak al Motasim. Motasim, as he has come to be known, had for a long time been preparing himself for this project. Every year he had bought Turkish slaves, and, when he accompanied Mamun on his last expedition, he had with him a formidable bodyguard composed of some 3,000 Turks. Backed by this force, he appears to have compelled Mamun to designate him his successor, and the chroniclers record that he wrote, in the name of the Kalif, to the authorities at Bagdad and elsewhere, intimating that he was to be Mamun's successor. His intentions, however, were not greeted with favor by the army, which insisted that Abbas, Mamun's son, should take his father's place. Abbas, however, publicly renounced all claims to the kalifate, and in the end the army, with that rapid change of front so common in those days, accepted Motasim, who hastened to Bagdad and made his public entry into the city as Kalif on September 20th, 833.

The people, apparently, received him well, but the new Kalif was determined to have more than one string to his bow for the purpose of making his position secure. The approval of the army and the people was well in its way, but he had secured the first steps of his progress with the aid of his Turkish bodyguard, and he had every intention of strengthening this arm of his service, rather than doing away with it. One of his first acts, therefore, on coming to Bagdad was to procure officers for his guard, and for this purpose he bought up all the Turkish slaves in Bagdad, who had in any way distinguished themselves, and many of them afterwards became famous. The Turks, however, were unruly and undisciplined, and they not only outraged the good people of Bagdad by their excesses, but scandalized them by the open contempt they displayed for the religious precepts of Islam. At last the people could stand it no longer, and they rose against the guard and slew as many as they could.

Motasim was in a serious difficulty. He dared not act with severity towards the city, so he decided to solve the problem by moving his capital. Proceeding up the Tigris, along much the same course as General Maude's forces have been following during the last few weeks, he came to the little town of Samara, close to the edge of the great Mesopotamian plateau. There he built himself a new residence, changing the name of the place from Samara, which could be interpreted to "Unhappy is he who sees it," to "Sorraman raa, "Rejoiced is he who sees it." Motasim undertook the building of his new capital with energy, and, within less than ten years, Samara rivaled Bagdad in splendor. Palaces quickly rose on either side of the Tigris, and the minaret of the great mosque which he built was visible for many miles around. Then, Motasim's immediate successors continued to make the city their capital, and great sums were expended on it. Pleasure grounds were laid out on a large scale, and planted with palms from Basra; whilst exotic plants were imported from Syria and Khorassan. Canals were made in all directions, and the desert was transformed into a garden; whilst workmen were collected from every part of the empire, and teakwood, together with marble from Antioch, was imported on a colossal scale. As has been said, however, the days of Samaras' greatness were short. Within fifty years the kalifs had returned to Bagdad, and, with the decay of the kalifate, which quickly followed, Samara lost altogether that glory, the shadow of which, at any rate, Bagdad retained so long.

Three Races.

I have heard from several officers home from the front the following story of Sir Douglas Haig's estimate of the ruling qualities of the soldiers of the three home races under his command, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian. It is true that the account comes at third or fourth hand, but I believe that it is generally accepted at the front. Sir Douglas is said to have remarked that whenever a particularly brilliant and rapid piece of work was reported from any part of the line he thought it would be an Irish regiment, and usually it was so. If a remarkable piece of work had been done by men sticking it under tremendous fire, with no artillery help and holding the position against heavy assaults, he concluded that was an English regiment, and usually it was so. But when he was wrong in either case it was usually the Scottish. The Scottish he thought, were not quite so fiery and immediate in their operations as the Irish, but they were more so than the English, and not quite so tenacious in holding on under punishment as the English, but they were more so than the Irish.

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Words of Encouragement to Childless Women.

Motherhood is woman's natural destiny, but many women are denied the happiness of children simply because of some curable derangement.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is its marvelous power to overcome such derangements, as evidenced by the following letter:—

Worcester, Mass.—"I suffered from female ills, and was advised to have an operation, but a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and who has six children, told me to try it. It has helped me so much that I am now well and have a baby boy who is the picture of health, and I thank the Vegetable Compound for my restoration to health."—Mrs. BERT GARVEY, 20 Hacker St., Worcester, Mass.

In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN HAS NO DOUBTS AS TO ISSUE OF WAR

Expresses Appreciation of Reception Accorded Canadian Forces in Hastings---Historic Port Welcomes Canada's First Minister.

In the latter end of April, Sir Robert Borden, then in England on a tour of inspection of all the Canadian camps, made an unexpected visit to Hastings, Sussex, one of the oldest historic parts in England, and caught the civic functionaries quite unawares. The mayor and members of the corporation had attended divine worship in St. Mary's-in-the-Castle Church, and in accordance with established custom returned to the Town Hall for light refreshments prior to breaking up. There was then no idea in the minds of those present of the very special compliment the Prime Minister of Canada, through the god offices of Colonel Matthews, O.C., was going to pay Hastings. It was therefore, a very great and agreeable surprise when the distinguished party of Canadians arrived and entered the Council Chamber. Official Hastings had the honor of welcoming, in the name of the townspeople, Sir Robert Borden, the Prime Minister of Canada, and the robust enthusiastic cheers which rang out gave the great statesman an unmistakeable assurance of the warmth of feeling which prompted them. He was accompanied by Major-General Turner, and introduced by Colonel Matthews, O.C., whose popularity with the corporation, as well as with the burgesses, has already been well established.

It is almost unnecessary to say that the Mayor of Hastings proved himself equal to the occasion. The memory of townspeople is not so short that they forget the most notable example of the Mayoral presence of mind when confronted by a little surprise at a famous church assembly, and Alderman Hutchings lives up to that reputation. He gave hearty greeting to the distinguished guests, and in a few very happy words proposed the health of Sir Robert Borden. His own pleasure at the visit was transparently deep and sincere. He remarked on the excellent relations which existed between the borough of Hastings and the Canadian forces. Truly interpreting the general wish he voiced the pleasure with which the visit of the Prime Minister of Canada was regarded by the townspeople who were conscious of the great honor thus paid them.

It was the punctuation of the cheers—a quite astonishing volume of sound for the delighted civic fathers—which added the whole weight of the town's feeling to the Mayor's felicitious remarks.

Sir Robert came in for yet another mighty salvo as he rose to respond. It was pleasingly evident that he was conscious of the bond of esteem the Canadians have forged between the ancient Premier Cinque Port and themselves. He said he could only spare a few minutes, but the visit had offered him great pleasure. He had been visiting the camps of all the Canadian troops in England, and after the visit to Hastings there only remained one for him to see. With a touch of profound feeling in his voice he declared his pride in all he had seen and added he was proud of what his countrymen had done and proud that they were fighting side by side with the soldiers of Great Britain.

Once again the civic fathers "let themselves go," and showed for us that we are mindful of the sacrifices and courage from our brothers from overseas.

Then when the cheers had died away Sir Robert Borden went on to forecast that the Canadian Dominion and the colonies would, in the future have a voice in the affairs of Great Britain and be united by stronger ties. He had, he proceeded, never had any doubts as to the issue of the war. He welcomed the entry of Canada's great neighbor and Britain's Allies whose frontier extended for over four thousand miles along the Canadian border, into the conflict, and they had entered into it with characteristic spirit. He for one had not agreed with those who had said that America would never fight except for defence, and it had been shown now that directly she had sufficient cause to take an active part in the war for freedom she had thrown her whole heart and soul into it. In conclusion the Prime Minister expresed his appreciation of the reception which had been accorded the Canadian forces in the homeland and by Hastings to those in their town, and added that they had embarked upon the war not merely in the interests of their homeland or of Canada, but in the interests of humanity.

Once again the enthusiasm and appreciation of civic Hastings was shown in warm and rigorous cheers, and so a surprise and private but historic incident closed.

TWO COINCIDENCES.

A Preacher, Three Churches And a Bank Manager.

Rev. W. L. Rowand, the new minister in charge at St. Andrew's here, held three charges since entering the ministry and the name of each church was the same—St. Andrew's. He came to this city and the same fact applies to his case.

When Mr. Rowand was in Fort William Mr. C. C. Abbott was manager of the branch bank of Montreal there. When the minister moved to Stratford Mr. Abbott was ahead of him still in the same capacity. Yesterday Mr. Rowand was agreeably surprised to meet Mr. Abbott and to learn that he is established in Peterborough as manager of the bank which he has served so many years.

ENTHUSIASM FOR THE BYLAW.

Ratepayers of the West and South Wards Organize.

Last evening the ratepayers responded generously to the call for organization in the South and West Wards, to assure the Bridges Bylaw being carried by as near an unanimously majority vote as possible. West Ward enthusiasts met in the Council Committee room, and those from the South in the Patriotic Fund quarters. Aldermen Duncan and Worth were in charge of the West Ward meeting, and Aldermen Saunders and Taylor presided over South Ward activities.

In both cases scrutineering facilities were arranged for, and the question of providing auto service on voting day gone into with gratifying results. The Wards were divided into districts, and willing workers each given a list of ratepayers whom to canvass in the interests of the high level bridge. The enthusiasm prevailing promises that every effort will be made to secure a record vote for this important measure, so vitally affecting the future of a Greater Peterborough.

Poor Old Lama!

The dalai lama found that he
A change of climate needed.
He paused not for the brisk Chinee,
But from his throne seceded.
He skipped across the border line
With hair and cloak a flying
No more upon the throne he'll shine
With slaves about him lying.

How brief is earthly glory when
Your enemy is stronger!
The lamas ruled a million men
Which they can rule no longer.
The lamas ruled a thousand years
And sought their pride some moment.
The last one is borne by fears

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, May 22. — Miss Edith Feir was a visitor to Lindsay last week.

On Friday evening, May 11, the members of Christ Church choir gathered at he home of their leader, Mr. W. G. Stephenson, and gave Mr. and Mrs. L. Southworth a miscellaneous shower. Among the interesting features of the evening was a musical contest, of which Miss Lula Fee was the winner. After the various amusements a dainty lunch was served, and a most enjoyable evening spent.

Ladies of Omemee are to enjoy a real treat on June 20th when the Omemee branch of the Women's Institute are to have an address from Dr. Caroline Brown of Toronto. Dr. Brown is a splendid speaker, and a large attendance is expected. The meeting will take the form of a picnic and will be held on Mrs. T. J. Parsons' lawn. A silver collection will be taken in aid of the Women's Institute.

Mr. Frank Ford of Peterborough is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ford.

Mr. Butler of Toronto was a business visitor to Omemee on Wednesday.

Mr. W. O'Brien of Peterborough motored to Omemee last week.

Mrs. Soles of Reaboro visited Mrs. Tool on Thursday.

Misses B. Dobson and E. Mullen of Cannington visited Mrs. Southworth last week.

Dr. and Mrs. Earl, accompanied by Mrs. Down, motred to Peterborough on Thursday.

Miss Susie Clark, nurse in training at the Ross Hospital, Lindsay, is spending a few weeks at her home here. Miss Clark, we are sorry to say, is suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. R. J. Weir was a visitor to Peterborough last week.

Mrs. L. Southworth is the guest of her father, Mr. Dawson of Cannington.

Mr. Ross Wilde of London visited Omemee friends last week.

Mr. Conquergood of Lindsay was a visitor to Omemee on Friday.

Mr. James B. Begg of Lindsay was a visitor to Omemee on Friday.

A number of Italians are engaged in constructing a driveway leading to the rear of the Sturgeon street station. When completed, we understand, all freight coming to the village will be unloaded there instead of at the junction.

Lieut. H. Jamieson of Bethany recently returned from England, was the guest of his cousin, Miss Ola Earl, during the past week.

Rev. Mr. Stanton of Bethany was a visitor to Omemee on Friday.

Miss Johnson, teacher at Orange Corners, was the guest of Mrs. Weir over the week-end.

Mr. Parker of the Hydro Commission was a business visitor to Omemee last week.

Miss Maude Laidley of the Lindsay public school staff was the guest of her mother, Mrs. A. Laidley, on Saturday.

Miss Beatrice Lambert, Lindsay, was a visitor to Omemee on Saturday.

General W. J. Neil, who has been overseas since the beginning of the war, arrived in Omemee on Saturday morning from his home in Ottawa. General Neil is on three months' leave, and will spend a few days with his parents here.

Miss Millard was a visitor to Lindsay on Saturday.

Miss Morden, principal of the high school here, was a visitor to Peterborough last week.

Mr. Jack Murray of Peterborough paid a flying visit to Omemee on Saturday.

Mr. Ross Laidley of Orillia spent Sunday under the parental roof.

An early morning fire aroused the west end citizens on Sunday, when the vacant residence owned by Mrs. Hudson of Peterborough was burned to the ground. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Mrs. D. H. Cornell and Mrs. Cecil Cornell were visitors to Peterborough last week.

Mrs. Thornton of Peterborough is the guest of Mrs. D. H. Cornell.

Mr. Melleville Earl and sister Miss Ola, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Irwin, of Lindsay, motored to Toronto on Saturday, where they will spend a few days.

Among the new cars to arrive in Omemee during the past few days is one for Reeve Wilson of Emily. Mr. Stanley Sluggitt and Mr. Wilbert Fee also have purchased machines. To see the numerous cars lined up on each side of King street on a Saturday evening one could easily imagine themselves on George street, Peterborough.

WORKED IN OIL WELLS

CANADIANS HELPED TO CREATE ROUMANIA'S WEALTH.

Were Present When the German Invaders Swept Over the Country and Helped in the Destruction of the Oil Fields Which Huns Were Anxious to Capture and Operate.

A FEW weeks ago Rt. Hon. D. Lloyd George, Premier of Great Britain, announced that a British commission sent into Roumania for the purpose of destroying the wells and refineries of the oil fields of that country had reported the annihilation of property and oil to the value of one hundred and fifty millions of dollars. Every effort was made to leave the territory in such a chaos that the Teuton invader would find it impossible to repair the damage before he could be expelled beyond the mountains.

This report excited only mild general interest—for Canadians live in days of huge destruction. Their attention was more sharply aroused by a news item which stated that drillers from the county of Lambton, in the Province of Ontario, had assisted in the work of demolition.

The late Geo. Normandy, of Enniskillen Township, Lambton County, entered Wallachia as the first Canadian drilling expert. From that time down to the present Roumania has seldom been without a representative from Ontario's own Petrolea or the country immediately surrounding it. Chief among these "knights of the pole and bit" may be mentioned Messrs. Lambert, McCutcheon, Brooks and Drader. The last mentioned is reported to have acquired large personal interests in the Roumanian field and was on the high road to wealth when the war overwhelmed him, as it has overwhelmed many British subjects in those parts of Europe which the modern Hun, like his ancient prototype, has so ruthlessly devastated. For some time Mr. Drader's fate has been uncertain, but it is supposed he is now a prisoner in a Teuton detention camp somewhere in Austria or Hungary.

But Canadian influence in the development of Roumania's greatest industry is not confined to the employment of expert operators. Before the pioneer driller, George Normandy, arrived in Roumania the Canadian system of drilling had been introduced from Galicia. The Roumanian wells are, for the most part, comparatively shallow, oil being found at depths varying from 300 feet to 1,200 feet. For such bores poles are found to be more efficacious than cables, the method of American origin) now universally employed where great depths are to be reached. The pole system originated (or at least was more generally employed) in the Canadian fields at Petrolea and Oil Springs, and is known the world over as the "Canadian system." This Canadian method is still most generally found in the Roumanian fields, but about ten years ago another system was introduced where, instead of rock, sand or clay was encountered. This last method is known as the "waterflush system" and consists in flushing out the bore by hydraulic pressure.

Thirty-eight miles north of Bucharest, at the entrance to the valley of Prahova, stands the city of Ployesti. The district of Prahova is one of the largest oil-producing areas of Wallachia, and this chief city of Ployesti is the refining centre of the whole territory, though small refineries are established at Bucharest and other places. From Ployesti radiate pipe lines in all directions to gather the ceaselessly flowing streams of the brown-colored "juice" into the great central cauldrons, whence it issues in a hundred forms, from the gasoline which drives motor cars, to the greases and oils which lubricate our locomotives and our lathes. In 1914 the Roumanian Government began the construction of a trunk line from Ployesti across the intervening 170 miles of country to the Black Sea port of Constanzia, where the oil would be loaded into tank steamers to find its way more easily into the markets of the world.

But the ruthless hand of war has rent to tatters the iron spiderweb from Bushtenari, Campina, Busen, Moneti to Ployesti, and has broken the thread which was to attach it to the outside world. Ontario oil drillers helped well in the work of destruction. A thousand wells are now choked with steel and cement; a hundred refineries are now heaps of ruins; numberless "rigs" are broken and silent. Drillers from Lambton County were present at the baptism of the infant industry thirty years ago. They watched and assisted its growth to maturity and independence, and they as Canadians and Britishers did [illegible] share as participants in the act [illegible] destruction. But the driller knows that, in a field like that of Roumania, permanent annihilation is impossible. Canadians may be certain that when the hour of resurrection and rehabilitation comes (as it is sure to come), some of their compatriots will be among the magicians to conjure back the departed spirit of progress and prosperity to the Roumanian oil field. This country's part in world development is not confined to the activities of commissioners high or low; her humble and unthoughtof sons are silently laying the foundations of prosperous foreign states whose future historians will write in letters of gold upon the first page of their grateful annals the name of Canada.

Mutton Soup Leads to a Slaughter. Where the Sheep Thief Made a Mistake—Owl's Remark at a Rumpus. Tramp's Grief—Unlucky Rat.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

ONCE upon a time a Peasant found a Wolf in sore distress, and upon inquiring the cause he was answered:

"I can't exactly tell you. I know that I have lost my appetite and feel bad all over. Only an hour ago I came across a pair of old boots belonging to a farmer, but after one bite I turned away from them."

"What you say excites my pity," observed the Peasant, "and I will take you to my cabin and doctor you up. What you need is something to tempt your appetite."

For the next four days the Wolf was fed on soup so excellent that he quite recovered his health and was ready to go back to the woods. Before going and after expressing his thanks he asked:

"By the way, what was that soup made of?"

"Of good fat mutton, my friend. Nothing like mutton soup to sharpen up the appetite."

"You speak truly. I never tasted anything like it."

Two days later as the farmer was walking through one of his fields he came upon the Wolf feasting on a freshly killed sheep and at once cried out:

"Ah, murderer and ingrate, is this the way you requite me for my kindness?"

"I have certainly killed one of your flock," replied the Wolf, "but under the circumstances I don't think you can blame me so very much."

"What do you mean by under the circumstances? I find you ill and take you into my cabin and feed you mutton soup to"—

"That's the trouble. Your mutton soup gave me an appetite for mutton chops, and I have had to kill one of your sheep to get them. If you had only fed me on clam broth I should have had a longing for clams and gone down to the river to dig some."

Moral.—Charity seldom begins at the right end.

effort to regain the initiative has been that he British and French have tightened their grip on the German line, and have placed in peril the key positions held by the Germans in Northern France.

The customary lull which separates all major operations in modern warfare has now come, and the expectation is that it will be broken by a British blow on great scale against the Drocourt-Queant line, already practically outflanked.

In the meantime the usual crop of peace rumors which marks these lulls has made its appearance.

RAN AWAY TO SEA.

Adventures of a Fifteen-year-old Boy in Far East.

To Salonica and back in three months, rescued from a vessel torpedoed by an Austrian submarine in the Mediterranean Sea, and "toured" across France and England, is the experience of 16-year-old "Rex" Reginald Stimers of Toronto, who now admits to being thoroughly "fed-up" with running away from home.

This boy was born in Campbellford, and with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Stimers, moved to Toronto some time ago. Although then only fifteen years of age, Rex was seized with a sudden desire to see the world, and in November last disappeared from home, leaving absolutely no trace of where he had gone. He answered an advertisement for men to travel with a transport carrying horses, and sailing from Montreal to Salonica, receiving $35 for the trip over, and $1 a day coming back.

So on November 8 Rex left Montreal aboard the SS. St. Ursula, 5,100 tons, of the British Government, loaded with 750 mules for the eastern theatre of war, and a crew of eighty-two men. The vessel reached Gibraltar on November 22, but as she attempted to steam by the fortress without entering, a shot from the fort whizzed across her bow warning the captain his presence was requested. After these precautions the voyage to Salonica was resumed.

Her cargo delivered, the steamer St. Ursula left Salonica on Dec. 7, and about ten o'clock in the morning of the 12th she was torpedoed without warning, about 60 miles southwest of the Island of Malta. Four men were killed by the explosion. The vessel immediately commenced to list heavily, and the crew was ordered to the boats, many of them with scant attire.

"I was sleeping at the time," said Rex when telling the story after his return to Canada, "and climbed into the captain's boat with but few of my clothes. Shortly after a submarine appeared on the surface, the VC-12, which I later learned was an Austrian boat, and commenced to circle round us. The commander of the boat stopped his craft, and in very good English inquired if any had been killed. He was informed by the captain that four men had been killed by the explosion. We [illegible] vessel, and the five life-boats, carrying men, got safely away from the vessel. When 100 yards away, the submarine fired another torpedo, striking her amidships, and the St. Ursula disappeared in a little over a minute.

"We drifted all day in a rolling sea," continued the lad. "Every man in the boats was sick and didn't care whether we were saved or sunk, but at 6 p.m. we sighted a vessel and were picked up by the British light auxiliary cruiser Century, 50 miles from Malta. Many of the men, as well as myself, were completely exhausted, owing to the exposure and lack of clothes, but we were given every assistance on the Century. She at once sailed for Malta, but was forced to sail around the island all night, owing to the condition of the harbor because of mines. In the morning we were landed and sent to the town of Valletta, but later to Senclea, where we were bought clothes and other requirements by the steamship company." He now wears a suit with Malta as the manufacturer's address. Rex visited Paris and Liverpool and finally reached Canada.

Rex says he has seen enough of the world, but that he had started out with the intention of seeing California and the Southern States. He is now back at his old job.

A Travelled Ring.

The interesting history of a ring was recently related by the friends of a well-known Canadian athlete. Some years ago a young man living in Toronto was on a local team that won a lacrosse championship. He received a gold ring as an award, and although he was afterwards quarterback of the Argonaut Rugby team, senior champions of Canada, and centre fielder of the Young Torontos, senior lacrosse champions of Ontario, he always prized the ring as his first trophy. When war broke out Sub-Flight Lieut. Fred S. Mills entered the Royal Naval Air Service, and when he left for overseas he was wearing the ring. He did scouting on the coast of England, and after a personal encounter with a Hun baby-killer, he was sent to join the British fleet co-operating with the troops on the Balkan front. Later he flew across Bulgaria and joined the Roumanian army, being with them in their retreat from Bucharest, where he had several narrow escapes. The Grand Duke Cyril entertained the young Canadian aviator and he afterwards returned to England through Norway and Sweden, having completely encircled the war. He recently returned to Canada to recuperate after a sojourn in the hospital. He was still wearing the ring won playing the national game, and it had been with him during his entire adventurous journey. It was the only article in his possession that he took away and brought back with him.

A flax cargo worth over $540,000, and on which the customs duty was $27,000, was brought from Fort William to Toledo by the steamer E. C. Pope. It consisted of 130,000 bushels.

MR. ROWAND TO REMAIN AS PASTOR AT ST. ANDREW'S

Popular Preacher Agrees to Fill Pulpit Until Return of Rev. (Capt.) Rollins From Overseas.

Rev. W. L. H. Rowand, who has preached in St. Andrew's church for the past two Sundays, has agreed with the Supply Committee to remain as minister in charge until the return of Rev. (Capt.) James Rollins who went overseas as Quartermaster of the 93rd Battalion. This arrangement will be pleasing to the congregation and to all others who have had the pleasure of listening to Mr. Rowand's discourses. He is regarded as one of the most successful pastors in the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Mr. Rowand is a native of Walkerton and a graduate of Toronto University and Knox College. His first charge was at Burnside, Manitoba, and during the rebellion of 1885 he acted as chaplain of the 90th Manitoba Grenadiers. In 1902 he was elected moderator of the Manitoba Synod.

From Burnside Mr. Rowands went to St. Andrew's Church, Fort William, where he remained for seventeen years. He was called from there to St. Andrew's in Stratford where he remained for three years. The illness of a member of his family caused his removal to the South where he spent two winters, one in California and the other in Florida.

Mr. Rowand wherever he has been has always taken an active part in affairs outside his regular pastoral work. While at Fort William he was for years a member of the school board and served as chairman of the committee on school management.

The new minister of St. Andrew's has two sons. One is in business in Minneapolis and the other, Lieut. E. M. Rowand is at the front. His father has just received a letter from him from which he learns that the son came safely through the battle of Vimy Ridge. Lieut. Rowand was a lawyer in Toronto when the war broke out and enlisted with the 70th Battery in that city. He took a draft of men to Europe in July last and was himself assigned for duty with the 20th Battery and is with that unit yet.

Members of St. Andrew's Church in this city will recall that Mr. Rowand preached there some years ago. He is popular both as a preacher and pastor and his enunciation is so distinct that there is no trouble in hearing him in any edifice.

Mr. Rowand seeks relaxation on the golf links. At present he is stopping at the Oriental but with Mrs. Rowand, who is now on a visit to Minneapolis, he will be at home at St. Andrew's manse about June 1.

CHANGES SINCE FIRST ISSUE OF DAILY REVIEW WAS PUBLISHED

A Reader of This Paper Speaks of the Progress Made By Peterborough In Past 38 Years.

Some few evenings ago, while perusing my copy of the Daily Review, writes a reader, I noticed under the main heading these words: "Thirty-eighth year of publication."

While only a lad at the time, the writer well remembers when The Review began to publish a daily edition. For several weeks previous to its appearance, the billboards were posted with small bills informing the passerby that on a given date, the publishers of The Review would commence the publication of a daily to be known as "The Daily Evening Review," that its price would be two cents, and that copies could be obtained at the bookstores, and from newsboys on the streets. On the appointed day the paper appeared, and to the best of my knowledge, it has never missed an issue since.

What marvellous and varied changes have occurred since that date! At that time we had no waterworks system nor sewerage system in Peterborough. There were no electric plants for light and power, no telephones, nor trolly lines. The streets at that time were lighted by gas, as were most of the stores, though many still clung to the plebeian coal oil lamps. Cement sidewalks and paved streets were unheard of. Bicycles, automobiles and many things that appear indispensable nowadays, were undreamt of. Our police force, instead of 12 to 15 men, as at present, was composed of one man, and he combined several other offices with that of policeman.

At that date there was no direct railway line to Belleville, nor to Omemee and Lindsay. The C.P.R. Toronto to Montreal line only existed on paper, if it existed at all. There were no through trains, even to Toronto. The nearest approach to the latter was a through coach that was attached to a train leaving here at 6.40 a.m., and coupled to a G.T.R. train at Port Hope, reaching Toronto about noon. The coach was returned in the evening by the same route. The locomotives at that time burned wood, instead of coal. Travel was not nearly as smooth then as now, as the ends of the rails were supported on "chairs," which involved a monotonous "clickety click" as the train passed over the joints.

We Had No Beautiful Parks Then.

As the present generation is favored with, and apparently unappreciative of. What is now Victoria Park was surrounded with a high picket-fence with a stile at the south-west corner. Inside there was a luxuriant crop of hay with numerous small, second-growth cedars. Central Park as we know it, was surrounded with a high board fence with cattle sheds on the inside—almost similar to what is to be seen at the Exhibition grounds now. An oval cinder path afforded opportunity for foot races and walking matches. To the west lay a disused cemetery, but with many tomb stones still standing, some upright, but many in a prone condition.

Many other changes could be noted but these will be sufficient for today. Perhaps others will be recounted some day, if the editor or the reader desires.

A CLEANING HINT.

How to Scrub Your Stays So They Will Look New.

The easiest way to clean a corset is this: If the lace or embroidery at the top is worn, rip it off; also rip off the hose supporters. If they are soiled, buy fresh elastic and insert it in the old buckles or else buy the necessary number of pairs of new supporters. Fill a basin with warm water in which a teaspoonful of borax or ammonia has been dissolved. Dip an old hand brush or clean, small scrubbing brush into the water, rub it with soap and scrub the corset on a small rubbing board or a marble slab. The corset should, of course, be unlaced, and half should be cleaned at a time.

Scrub thoroughly until all visible dirt is removed, then rinse, either by dipping quickly into a basin of fresh, clear water or by throwing water on it with a tumbler or dipper. But at all events rinse it thoroughly. Don't be afraid of getting it thoroughly wet. Dry it quickly in the sunshine, out of doors if possible.

Corsets cleaned in this way will be really clean. Of course they may be slightly stained from perspiration or even from steel rust, and no cleaning can remove these stains. But you can rest assured that they are really clean.

When they are dry replace supporters and mend all broken places. To cover the breaks in the bone casings stitch lengths of stout tape over the bones. Two thicknesses of the tape can be used where the break occurs.

A Memory of 1812.

The Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia was the principal in an incident of the War of 1812 which shows how differently an honorable enemy regarded personal property, let alone human lives of friendly powers. The academy was bringing over from Italy twenty-one paintings and fifty-two engravings, which were a part of the Joseph Allen Smith collection, but a British cruiser captured the ship which was carrying these works of art to Philadelphia. The prize was taken to Halifax. Did England keep these Philadelphia treasures? It did not, says a writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Dr. Alexander Croke, in the court of the vice admiralty, delivered an eloquent decision in that case.

"Heaven forbid," he exclaimed, "that such an application to the generosity of Great Britain should ever be ineffectual! The arts and sciences are considered not as the peculium of this or that nation, but as the property of mankind at large."

And so England sent on these works of art which her cruiser, then battling against the United States, had captured.

Doctor Croke in this interesting prize court opinion even quoted Napoleon, then Emperor of the French, as a champion of this system of amenities where art is concerned.

But Croke called him "the present Governor of France" and not Emperor.

After speaking in great praise of Benjamin West, the famous Pennsylvania painter, who was then and for twenty-eight years president of the Royal Academy in London, Doctor Croke observed that the day would come when the Pennsylvania Academy's influence would "turn out new Wests to revive the school of Raphael in the wilds of America."

Anyhow, this British authority declared that "in time "England and America shall know no other enmity than a liberal rivalry in every elegant and manly accomplishment."

And 102 years of peace seems a complete verification of that prophecy.

High Prices for Apples.

When the embargo on apples was announced by the British Government there were about 50,000 barrels left in Nova Scotia which had been intended for overseas. It was discovered that there would be no great difficulty in obtaining tonnage for the transport of these apples, the space, in fact, having already been booked. The rail transportation condition was such that there was no other freight available if the steamers were to sail on time. The chief cause of worry was in regard to what would be done on the other side if the apples were forwarded. An explanation of the situation was cabled to Sir Robert Borden, himself a native of the apple-growing district and familiar with conditions. Sir Robert was able to secure the necessary assurance that the apples would be allowed to enter, and the shipments were completed. Cabled advices from London show that these apples sold at from $8 to $12 per barrel, and the growers will in consequence receive a net return of from $5 to $9 per barrel for fruit, a large quantity of which was of second and third quality.

Indians in Canada.

There are at present 105,561 Indians in Canada, and if the Eskimo were added they would bring the number up to 108,850. In Ontario there are 26,305, which is less than the total number of the Hurons when the country was discovered, if the estimates of the Venerable Fathers can be taken. In religion there are 41,135 Roman Catholics, 18,849 Anglicans, 12,780 Methodists, and the remainder belong to the nondescript faiths of their fore-fathers.

The Facetious Judge.

"My wife," said the injured husband, "treats me with contempt. She turns her back to me a good deal of the time."

"Keeps you buttoning her waists, I suppose," chuckled the judge as he dismissed the case.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Preferable.

Mr. Askum (after the performance)—I shouldn't think you'd care to take part in amateur theatricals.

Did You Know?

One woman who is noted for her practical, not petty, economies uses all the flour sacks she gets for dish towels. She rips them open and hems them. Sometimes, if they are small bags, she joins two together. The material is soft and absorbs the water quickly. The printing on the material disappears after one or two boilings.

Curry Sauce.

To one-half pint of boiling water add one teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of butter, a little onion seasoning, some chopped parsley and a teaspoonful of curry powder. When nearly boiling add sufficient flour (previously mixed with water) to thicken. Boil one minute and use immediately. This sauce is delicious used with boiled fish.

A SPRING HINT.

Putting Woolens Away Is One of the Housewife's Jobs.

Economy has become almost as great a virtue as patriotism or industry. Indeed, economy nowadays is almost synonymous, to many of us, with both a love of country and a determination to work for what we get. Nobody knows in just what state this country and the world at large may be by the time we open our cedar bags and chests next autumn. Even if the world is at peace, as we all hope it will be, we can be sure of this—wool is going up. So the preservation of all our winter clothes is a duty that devolves on everybody.

The spring precaution to make sure that autumn will find all of our woolen possessions in good order is this—pack away everything clean. Moths are much more likely to eat soiled garments, and dust is in itself destructive. If you put perfectly clean woolen garments away as soon as they have been washed and pack them in a clean, air tight receptacle, moths cannot get at them.

The two things to guard against in washing woolens are shrinking and stiffening. Choose a bright, sunny day for the spring washing of woolens of all sorts—sweaters, blankets and bath robes and the other winter comforts that do not go regularly to the laundry. Use medium hot water and use water of the same temperature for all the rinsings. For the first water dissolve a tablespoonful of borax in every twelve quarts of water.

Use neither soap nor scrub board, but agitate the woolen articles in this solution. Then prepare a second water of the same temperature, in which a plentiful amount of pure soap has been dissolved. Never use soap directly on the wool, but agitate the garments in the suds until they are clean. Never wring violently in the hands or in the clothes wringer, but squeeze the water gently from them. Then put them in a third water, slightly soapy and blued. Rinse them thoroughly in this water.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

PROPER WAY TO GRIP CLUB WHEN PLAYING GAME ON GOLF LINKS

(By "Chick" Evans.)

It is very important for the prospective golfer to learn the proper way to grip his club. It might be supposed that knowing the use to which the club is to be put, one would know instinctively the right way to grip it, but experience shows that almost every one grasps the club the wrong way—that is in the palms of the hands. Perhaps we do this because most Canadians before beginning golf, have played baseball, and in consequence, they grab a golf club as if it were a baseball bat. This is absolutely wrong and the sooner the beginning golfer forgets his baseball grip, the better for his game. It is true that the object of both ball player and golfer is to hit a ball with a club, and the best batters have something of a golfer's swing, but the ball in one case is stationary and in the other, moving. The greatest difference in the two strokes, however, lies in the fact that in the baseball stroke force is dominant, and in the golfing stroke the leading idea is control and placement, and this control is best acquired by the delicate sense of touch in the fingers. This finger grip is sometimes called the double V grip, because when properly done the forefinger and thumb of each hand form a sort of V on the shaft of the club.

In the finger grip the club is grasped firmly with the thumb and the small joint of the forefinger of the left hand, the other three fingers, finding a natural position about the shaft, the thumb is at the left side of it. The right hand grasps the club below the left hand also with the fingers, the thumb and first finger forming a V. If the grip is overlapping, the tip of the little finger of the right hand is placed on the knuckle of the forefinger of the left hand, and the ball of the right thumb is placed over the left thumb. This is the Vardon grip and he considers it superior to all others. The theory is that thus fastened together, the two hands work as one. There is always the chance that the two hands may work against each other, and it is easily seen that the farther the hands are part the more easily it is to do so.

The interlocking grip is another device to make the hands work together. The grip is the same except that the forefinger of the left hand is interlocked with the little finger of the right hand. The interlocking and the overlapping grips are merely variations of the finger grip, and are a matter of individual preference.

In my own game my hands are placed firmly and closely together, but I neither overlap, or interlock. I have sometimes considered adopting the Vardon grip, but I am satisfied with my present grip and do not like to change. I believe that all golfers should have the same general methods of play, but details should be adapted to the individual.

The question is often asked whether it is better to grasp the leather or rubber grip on the club in the middle, near the top or the bottom. My own practice is to make this a matter of feel and balance. I grip my wooden clubs about the middle of the leather; my cleek, midiron and jigger are gripped at the top; my mashie I grip in all three places according to the distance to be made,—top for full shots; middle for half shots and the lower end for quarter shots. I am not at all sure that this matters; it may be merely a comfortable habit of mine.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

QUESTION—Should one take the same st[illegible]e in playing with a brassy that he takes in playing with a driver?

ANSWER—Yes.

QUESTION—In playing out of a bunker, A says that if one has a reasonably good chance he should try for a distance. B insists that the player should simply try to get out of the bunker. Which is correct?

ANSWER — The conservative steady player will content himself with getting out and not try for distance. In the long run this policy is best.

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

The Cubs have released Infielder Herbert Hunter to the Bernon Pacific Coast league club. Hunter, with Doyle and Jacobson, was traded to Chicago by the Giants last year for Heinie Zimmerman.

Petty gambling at Braves field, Boston, has become a nuisance. There's a lot of it in Pittsburg, too.

Jack Barry, manager of the Red Sox is receiving praise for the way he has rejuvenated Catcher Sam Agnew.

Pat Moran says that when Oeschger masters control he will become one of the best pitchers in the National league.

With Pratt on the hospital list and Weilman in retirement, the Browns are in a bad way. Just now Fielder Jones is trying First Baseman Paulette at the middle bag with rather dubious results.

President Hickey of the American association evidently is up against the same old game in that circuit. He lacks both authority and backbone.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the International League, says that the sport in his cities is thriving in spite of the weather. Barrow is a real fighter.

The Newarks are still playing good ball. If they win the International league pennant either Tom Needham or Jim Price can be elected mayor.

Lee Fohl is playing Miller, a young minor leaguer, at first base for the Clevelands during the enforced absence of Louis Guisto, the big Italian.

If the Yankees go home in first place nothing will be too good for them. New York fans still are rooting for a world's series between the Yankees and Giants.

Peterkin Kilduff plays second base like an old timer instead of a kid just out of the bushes. He's as game as they come and makes an able understudy for Herzog.

The Pirates don't show much interest in their work. One player who did not take part in Friday's game spent the afternoon in conversation with a spectator in a field box.

The early leads which the Giants have piled up in their last two games have given Lobert and Kelly opportunities to play a few innings.

The Giants are again perched on top of the National league heap. While they were nosing out the Pirates yesterday the Cubs were subdued by the Phils.

Catcher McCarty is responsible for the present position of the McGraw crew. He drove out a homer in the second inning and in the sixth inning his single scored Benny Kauff. McCarty collected three of the Giats' nine hits.

With a thre-run lead Jeff Tesreau eased off. His letup almost cost him the verdict, for the Pirates closed strong, getting within one run of evening up the score.

Wilholt, rightfielder for the Braves, is evidently serious in his efforts to get up with the leading hitters in the Tener league. Yesterday he had two hits in twice at bat.

Larry Cheney hurled two innings against the Cardinals. That was plenty long enough to allow the St. Looey club to get a stranglehold on the tumble. Try as they did, the Dodgers were unable to overcome a four-run lead secured in the second inning

Baseball is a funny old game. The Phils not only tripped up the Cubs in their mad dash for their gonfalon, but they have made it three in a row. All of the Phillies' runs were scored in the second inning.

Ban Johnson's clubs were all idle yesterday. The watering can was working overtime.

Guns Are Short-Lived.

The life of a gun depends upon the progress of erosion, which sooner or later is certain to impair the accuracy of fire. Erosion is caused by the action of the explosive gases at high temperature and pressure. The hot gases cause a thin film of steel to absorb heat. The film expands and becomes set. Upon the release of the pressure it contracts, which causes minute cracks that grow larger with every discharge. As they increase in size they form passageways for more hot gases, and that tends to enlarge them still further. The inner surface becomes roughened and the bands begin to corrode. Finally the bore becomes so enlarged that it allows the gases to escape. The shell does not then acquire its proper rotation and its flight becomes erratic.

All guns except small ones are now constructed with linings in the tube, which, when the bore is worn out, are removed and replaced by new ones. The cost of relining a gun is approximately thirty per cent. of the cost of the gun.

There appears to be no limit to the number of times that a gun can be relined. The small arms used in this country are considered to be worn out after 5,000 to 7,500 rounds have been fired. Small naval guns can be fired about 1,000 times before they are regarded as worn out. Large 12-inch and 14-inch naval guns are considered to have a life, on one lining, of from 150 to 200 rounds.

Low-velocity guns, such as howitzers and mortars, have correspondingly longer lives than high velocity guns of the same calibres because of the pressures they develop, and hence the temperatures are lower.

Cleaning Window Shades.

To clean light colored window shades and make them almost like new again take them carefully from the rollers and stretch at full length on the table, pinning them taut with thumb tacks. Then, with a pad of coarse white flannel dipped in finely sifted starch, treat the shades on both sides to a vigorous dry scrub. Change the pads as frequently as necessary. After a final rubbing with the starch replace the shades on the rollers and put aside for twenty-four hours. Then give another good rubbing with a clean piece of flannel and your shades are ready to be re hung.

"Nature" chose Assam

Scientists tell us that Assam in northern India was the original home of the tea plant. Thousands of years ago "Nature" chose the climate and soil of this favored region as most suitable for growing tea.

It is, therefore, natural that the hillside gardens of Assam (see picture) grow the teas which to-day are famous for their flavor, fragrance and rich strength.

It is of these Assam teas, skilfully blended with choice Ceylons, that Red Rose Tea consists. It is this rich Assam strength that users of Red Rose Tea must thank for its splendid economy—for the greater number of cups it yields to the pound, fully one-third more than ordinary teas.

To make certain that these Assam qualities are fully preserved for you we put Red Rose Tea into dust, odor and air proof sealed packages. Red Rose Tea reaches you pure, fresh and full strength—we guarantee it.

GRADUATING EXERCISES

man, he would certainly practise nursing. He strongly urged nurses to entertain a spiritual sense of their responsibility, for the application of religious consolaton by them to patients is always acceptable.

History of Nursing.

Dr. Cameron gave the graduates appreciable advice in regard to tactful conduct when on duty in homes; and also submitted a brief, but lucid history of nursing since practised by monks in the monastries to the time of Florence Nightingale, whose heroism stimulated women to enter the nursing field; and on to the present day. He also offered an instructive comparison of the responsibilities of nurses in the last and present century. He held a high opinion of nurses graduating from the Nicholls Hospital, many of whom are holding responsible positions in the United States. He gave the graduates commendable advice for guidance in the practise of their profession, and advanced the qualities needed by all young women contemplating nursing. In conclusion, he paid touching tribute to the graduates of this hospital on the Honor Roll, doing their duty in defence of the Allies' Cause, to the sacrifice of personal comfort and safety.

Prize Winners.

Dr. Amys presented the bandaging prizes, accompanied by a few brief but appropriate remarks. The recipients were Miss Nugent and Miss Graham.

Mr. John Crane conferred the diplomas, and Miss Sanderson, Acting Superintendent, pinned on the medals.

THE FUNERAL OF MRS. J. B. HUNTER

Touching Tribute to Memory of a Christian Lady.

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. B. Hunter this afternoon was largely attended in testimony of the high esteem and respect in which the deceased lady was held by the community in general. Service at the family residence, 566 Gilmour St., was conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church, of which she had been a constant member and earnest worker.

The pallbearers were Messrs. T. H. G. Denne, Vincent Eastwood, Robert Fair, A. J. Grant, Reg. H. Turner and L. D. W. Magie.

Interment took place in the Little Lake Cemetery.

Touching Tribute.

The beautiful and impressive funeral service at 3 o'clock in the Murray Street Baptist Church and at which Rev. J. R. Webb officiated, was a touching tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Hunter. The attendance was large and deeply sympathetic.

In the course of eulogistic reference to the exemplary Christian and charitable life of the deceased lady, Rev. Mr. Webb said he could not conceive of more suitable surroundings than in evidence in which to refer to the life of one so much beloved and respected in the community as the departed sister. He feelingly extolled her Christian fortitude in adversity, especially during the past few months during which she had sustained several bereavements. Mrs. Hunter had a great mind capable of grasping tasks many others were incapable of, and he did not believe her labors in this city and church would be in vain, but would have a growing influence on the future.

Mr. Asa Huycke sang the beautiful hymn, "Abide With Me."

AUCTION SALE OF VALUABLE HOUSEHOLD PROPERTY

For the purpose of closing out the estate of the late THOMAS SHEEHAN, there will be offered for sale by public auction on Saturday, the 26th day of May, 1917, at the hour of 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Munro House, at the City of Peterborough, a double house at 128 and 130 James Street. This property may be otherwise described as Lot Number 99, North of James Street and East of Mark Street, in the City of Peterborough. It has a frontage of about 120 feet, and a depth of about 200 feet, while the measurement across the rear of the lot is about 43 feet. Upon this lot is a brick veneer, one and a half storey double house with frame kitchens attached, and a small barn. It has a good well and the property is well located in Ashburnham. The buildings and fences are in a good state of repair.

The above property will be offered for sale by W. J. Hancock, Auctioneer, subject to a reserve bid, and to conditions of sale which will be read at the time of sale.

TERMS OF SALE: Ten per cent of the purchase price to be paid at the time of sale, and the balance within one month thereafter without interest.

The Vendors will give a conveyance to the purchaser of the above lands without charge.

For further particulars apply to the Trustees, THE TRUST AND GUARANTEE COMPANY, LIMITED, TORONTO; the above-named AUCTIONEER; or to GORDON AND WIDDIFIELD, the Vendor's Solicitors, Peterborough.

Dated this 14th day of May, 1917.

ENGLAND IN NO DANGER OF STARVATION, PREMIER SAYS

Submarine Warfare of Germans Sure to Prove Another Failure But Economy in Use of Food Still Essential---French and Italians Both Report Gains.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 25.—"The successes against the submarines have resulted in a distinct improvement in our food situation," said Premier Lloyd George today, in the House of Commons. The Premier said more effective blows have been dealt the submarines during the last three weeks than in any corresponding period of the war.

The shipping losses for May, the Premier said, probably would show a reduction from the April figures.

Mr. Lloyd George asserted there was no danger to the country from starvation but that utmost economy of foodstuffs was still essential. "The submarine menace need cause no fear that the war is going to be lost for that reason," he declared. "If it is true that the Germans are depending mainly upon submarine warfare for success I am able to say they are doomed to disappointment. The Germans submarine warfare is destined to be the greatest miscalculation in the whole series of miscalculations of that hated empire."

ON THE FRENCH FRONT.

PARIS, May 25.—The French official statement says: "On the Chemin Des Dames the night was marked by pronounced activities of artillery in the region northwest of Braye En-Laosnois especially near le Pantheon. A German attack on our trenches north of Vanuclerc windmill was repulsed. Further east in region of Chevreux we carried out an operation late yesterday in part of the Chevreux wood situated southeast of that town where enemy resisted energetically. The attack was completely successful. We found a number of dead in the shelters destroyed by our artillery. Thirty prisoners, including an officer, remained in our hands.

In the region of Courcy we drove back a German detachment which had succeeded in penetrating one of our posts on the east bank of the canal. Patrol encounters occurred southeast of Rheims and near Bezonvaux.

FRENCH LOSSES BY SUBS.

PARIS, May 25.—One French merchantman of more than 1600 tons and two under that tonnage were sunk by mines or submarines. During the week ending May 20th three ships were unsuccessfully attacked while 991 entered French ports and 1016 sailed in the same period.

AUSTRIANS CLAIM SUCCESS.

LONDON, May 25.—An official statement issued by the Austrian war office on Thursday admits Italian successes in Carsoplateua but claims that the Austrians inflicted severe repulses upon their assailants elsewhere.

VICTORY FOR DEMOCRACY.

AMSTERDAM, May 25.—A Budapest despatch says that the Emperor has summoned Counts Apponyi and Andrassy to an audience. Hungarian newspapers declare the resignation of Tisza cabinet means victory for modern democratic ideas.

SOCIALIST ORGAN FOR WAR.

COPENHAGEN, May 25.—The Berlin Vorwaerts declared that no German after the horrors of three years of war could think of purchasing peace on the terms indicated in the speech of Premier Ribot. The Socialist organ asserts that rather than this the war must last for another three years.

ON ITALIAN FRONT.

ROME, May 25.—Italian troops engaged in the offensive movement south of Gorizia have captured fortified heights north of Jamiano, the war office announced. Italians positons have been extended still further, the announcement adds.

NO CASUALTIES TODAY.

LONDON, May 25.—"During the night a local hostile attack against one of our posts in the Hindenburg line southwest of Fontaine les Croisilles was driven off," says today's war office report. " AGerman raiding party northeast of Arleux also was repulsed with heavy loss. We had no casualties."

In a minor operation this morning southeast of Loos we captured a further portion of the enemy's front trench system in the neighborhood and took twenty-eight prisoners. A counter attack failed. There were successful raids by our troops south of Armentieres and west of Messines. We secured a few prisoners? z

COAL DEALERS ASSURED OF LIBERAL SUPPLIES

Mine Operators Say They Will be Able to Furnish Plenty of Stock in July and August.

Mr. H. B. Taylor, of H. B Taylor and Son, told The Review this morning that the local coal dealers have received assurances from the American mine operators that they will be in a position to furnish them with plenty of stock in July and August. The proposals for an adequate supply of fuel next winter appear to be growing brighter. Mr. Taylor adds that the panic has subsided to a great extent and that the householders are no longer so anxious to buy coal in bulk and store it for future use.

Ald. Dobbin who went to Buffalo to purchase coal for storage as a precaution against a future shortage in the supply has not yet returned but the degree of his success may be approximated by considering the result of a similar mission undertaken by a London man. The Forest City sent Mr. Frank McVean to Scranton, Penn., to purchase a supply of coal for the municipal yard which it is proposed to establish. He was selected by the Trades and Labor Council at whose request the municipal yard is to be established. Mr. McVean returned empty handed. The mine operators refuse to sell coal to municipalities. Civic ownership naturally does not appeal to them and they hold the whip hand.

Mr. McVean was offered coal by the independent companies but only at a price which the private dealers would have no difficulty in meeting. The best he could do was $8 a ton.

Municipalities may at the outset be able to buy from the independent companies but when the operators learn of what is in progress they are likely to clamp down the lid upon the latter. The London representative suggests that the only remedy is for the Government to pass a law regulating the price of coal, apparently overlooking the fact that the Canadian authorities have no power to legislate for American railways and coal miners.

FLITTERS HELD UP AT WINDSOR BY OFFICIALS

No Man of Military Age Allowed to Enter Detroit Without Special Permit.

CONGESTION AT THE FERRY

Thousands Were Questioned And Regular Business Was at a Standstill.

DETROIT, May 25.—Thousands of persons attempting to come to Detroit from Windsor this forenoon were detained at the ferry station by Canadian officials who began a rigid enforcement of the Dominions military laws. No person of military age was allowed to board a ferry until he had convinced the officials that he was not seeking to avoid conscription.

Every person passing through the ferry gates was questioned and great congestion resulted. Most of Windsor residents who are employed in Detroit were detained at least an hour at the station on account of the crush.

AT NIAGARA FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 25.—Local immigration officers are interpreting very strictly the Order-in-Council issued at Ottawa yesterday referring to passports out of Canada to males between 18 and 45 Special provision is made for those living in Canada and working in the States for a few days, when they will have to comply with the full letter of the law. Those not known by the immigration officers have been turned back sharply.

WARM WELCOME FOR MR. BALFOUR BY CANADIANS

Prominent Men of Toronto Met British Statesman at Niagara Falls.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., May 25.—Mr. Balfour and party left Niagara Falls at 1.45 this afternoon for Toronto. A Grand Trunk special brought Sir John Hendrie, Sir William Hearst, General Logie, P. W. Ellis with the Governor's secretary and others from Toronto arriving, at 9.55. Mr. Balfour's party arrived at the American side about 9 o'clock and were given an auto drive around Goat Island.

At 11.45 they crossed into Canada and were met in the centre of Suspension Bridge by a reception party headed by Lieut.-Governor Sir John Hendrie, Sir William Hearst, Premier of Ontario, Major General Logie and P. W. Ellis of the Niagara Falls Park Commission. The American officials who had escorted the British and the car moved on.

THE HIGH-LEVEL BRIDGE TEXT FOR TOPICAL SONG

A Local Boy, as "Prefect of Rome," Cleverly Converts Old-Time Topical Song to Peterboro Issues--"Oh Shall I be Popular Then."

(While it is generally conceded that the Bridges Bylaw will carry, and a high level bridge at Hunter street be assured, still it is also recognized that no effort must be neglected to get out the indifferent vote, and thus reach a record majority to influence the Legislature's ruling when authorization for the issue of unusually long-term debentures is sought. With this end in view, organized ratepayers are working with beaver-like industry to convert indifference into interest, and this seems especially so in the West Ward, where one citizen's 'phone, the last 48 hours, seemed to have but one object in its existence—to convey to some ward enthusiast the assurance that its owner would vote for the bylaw. Then his pedestrian excursions yesterday brought him face to face with the same persistent question, "Are you going to vote for the Bridges Bylaw?" but he did not expect, on dropping into the Opera House in search of a little relaxation, to be assured with forceful conviction by so distinguished a personage as the Prefect of Rome that the bridge would be built anyway. But that was so, and in this way:

Mr. W. H. Barry, who impersonates the Prefect of Rome in "A Greek Slave," in splendid style sings a very catchy topical song, composed by himself, two verses of which run as follows:

When I was elected the Mayor of the city,
  Improvements I promised a few;
My address to the press was both lengthy and witty,
  And free from all malice, and true.
I judged with that candor for which I am noted,
  Gave justice to women and men,
And if, through my speeches, you get bathing beaches,
  Oh, shall I be popular then?

CHORUS:

Oh, I want to be popular, popular, popular,
  Worshipped by women and men;
If my edict arrives, you may bathe with your wives;
  Oh, shall I be popular then

Another small matter that seems, to my mind,
  Has kept this old town in a fidge—
The why and the wherefore, the ways and the means
  For to get a new Hunter Street Bridge;
And if, through the cost, the new bylaw is lost,
  You need not be troubled at all,
For I venture to say there'll be no delay,
  And your bridge will be built in the fall.

CHORUS:

Oh, I want to be popular, popular, popular,
  Worshipped by women and men;
With our new bridge complete we'll have cereals to eat:
  Oh, shall I be popular then

Mr. Barry has struck the right keynote: the new bridge will be erected, and the Quaker Oats buildings reconstructed on a bigger scale than ever. And His Worship will be as popular with our citizens as Mr. Barry was with his audience, who applauded him to the echo.

SUBS CAPTURE SWEDISH SHIPS

TRAFFIC BETWEEN FINLAND AND SWEDEN SUSPENDED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

BRAZIL AWAKES TO DUTY'S CALL

REVOKES NEUTRALITY AND WILL POLICE SOUTH ATLANTIC WATERS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

RIO JANEIRO, May 25.—According to the Journal De Commerceo it was decided at a meeting of the Parliamentary and Diplomatic commissions called yesterday by the foreign minister to adopt the principle of revocation of Brasil's neutrality in the war between the United States and Germany and to police the South Atlantic with the Brazilian fleet.

TODAY'S DEATH TOLL LIST OF FIVE NAMES

Members of Old 93rd Battalion Lay Down Lives for Empire--Others Are Reported Wounded or Missing --- Canada's Total For One Day 242.

Many Peterborough homes were the recipient of bad news from the Western battle front. Five of the boys have paid the Supreme price and the others are either missing or wounded.

PRIVATE DANIEL ALLEN.

Mr. Robert Allen, 629 Roger street, received word that his brother Private Daniel Allen of the 93rd Battalion had been killed at the battle of Vimy Ridge on May 12th. Private Allen, whose parents live in Kinmount, was one of the first men to enlist with the famous Peterborough regiment. He was 23 years of age and was very popular with officers and his comrades.

PRIVATE FRED LEGON.

Mrs. Fred Legon, of Sophia street, Ashburnham, received word from the war office this morning that Private Fred Legon, a member of the 93rd Battalion, had been killed in action.

PRIVATE NORMAN FINLAY.

Mr. Joseph Finlay, of Centre street, received the sad news this morning that his son, Private Findlay, another member of the 93rd Battalion, had been killed in action.

PRIVATE WALTER WAGGSTAFF.

Mrs. Walter Waggstaff, 31 Brown street, Byersfield, was notified that her husband, Private Walter Waggstaff, had paid the supreme price and was officially reported killed in action on May 9th.

PRIVATE ALBERT STOREY.

Mrs. Albert Storey, Louis street, received a message from the Record Office this morning that her brother in-law, Private Albert D. Storey, had been killed in action.

PRIVATE WILLIAM HEFFERNAN.

Mr. Patrick Heffernan received word from the War Office that Private William Heffernan was reported missing.

DRIVER JAMES McCORMICK.

Mrs. James McCormick of Orpington Road received word this morning that her husband, Driver James McCormick, had been admitted to a base hospital on May 13th with a slight wound in the thigh.

DRIVER J. CRUICKSHANK.

Driver J. Cruickshank is among the local men reported wounded but the nature of the wounds are not state.

PRIVATE WILLIAM MELLING.

Private William Melling, a member of the 93rd Battalion, is reported as being admitted to one of the Clearing Stations with a gunshot wound in the head.

SAPPER DAVID CARLISLE.

Sapper David Carlisle was admitted to the Lord Derby War Hospital, Warrington, May 18, suffering from a gunshot wound in the head. He is a son of Mr. Carlisle, 359 Euclid Ave. He enlisted with the first draft of the Winnipeg Engineers, and has been in France one year. He, previous to the war, owned a profitable ranch in Saskatchewan, which he disposed of to enlist with the colors. One brother, Lance Corp. A. M. Carlisle, of the 5th Field Ambulance, was wounded a year ago, and is now back in the trenches. A second brother, Major G. H. Carlisle, left for overseas a year ago, and is now Adjutant at the Westcliff Hospital, Folkestone, England.

TODAY'S TOTAL 242.

A despatch from Ottawa says that in today's casualty list of a total of 242 names there are 109 killed in action, 5 died of wounds, three presumed dead and 19 missing, three of the latter are believed to have been killed.

TURN ORIENTAL HOTEL INTO HOME FOR CONVALESCENTS

Froposition to be Made to Military Authorities---Building Answer All Condition Required for Such Institutions---Three Hundred Patients Could be Cared for-

Some weeks ago the civic authorities took up the question of establishing a hospital for convalescent soldiers in this city, to take care of the veterans who were wounded in the war and who return only partially recovered. The services of the Federal member were enlisted, and in due time Mr. Burnham wrote the city stating what conditions were insisted upon by the Military Hospital Board for such an institution. A suitable building was essential, as tents would not be acceptable. Such a building would have to provide accommodation for at least two hundred patients and the surgical and office staff as well.

Opportunity again comes knocking at the city's portal. The Oriental Hotel is to be closed down on June 1, and the owners have not yet decided as to what future use is to be made of the building. It has, however, been suggested that the hotel be converted into a home for convalescents and the matter will be brought to the attention of the Hospital Commission or to the Federal body that has control of such institutions. The members of the Greater Peterborough Association can get busy at once to some purpose. Prompt action is required, as the fixtures and furnishings of the hotel are to be sold at an early date, but the sale would be postponed if there appeared any likelihood that the building would be devoted to the purpose proposed.

The hotel could be easily converted into a home for convalescents. The accommodations are ample. There are seventy bedrooms, well furnished, lighted, and the ventilation is perfect. The building is steam heated throughout, modern in every respect. The most of the sleeping apartments are large enough to accommodate two or more cots, and there are at present fifteen commercial sample roms, any one of which is large enough for from two to four beds. As it now stands, the building will take care of at least three hundred patients as well as the members of the staff. The attic has never been completed, but at a comparatively small outlay this floor, too, could be fitted up with thirty comfortable rooms.

About a year ago the military authorities sent an official here to look over the Oriental with a view to converting it into a hospital, but nothing definite was ever done. There was no one to urge the movement, and at that time other cities were pressing their claims. The Brant House at Burlington was one of the propositions under consideration, but that hotel, it seems, is not to be taken over by the government.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 25, 1917

THE BRIDGE BYLAW.

TO THE REVIEW it almost seems like a waste of space, an insult to the intelligence of the ratepayers of Peterborough, to appeal to them to vote for the bylaw that is to be submitted to them May 31st, to authorise the issue of debentures for the building of a high level bridge at Hunter street. The proposition is one that does not admit of a single argument on the negative side. The only reason that could possibly induce any man to oppose the bylaw is the question of cost, a policy wise perhaps as regards pennies, but the reverse when dollars are the consideration. The increased value of property in Ashburnham alone, when the bridge is completed, will more than meet the extra outlay. The improvement, too, is to be charged up to an extent upon posterity, who will share the advantages that the structure will bring to the present generation.

The bridge is needed. Peterborough will never attain the status of a thriving city until all parts are linked together by the street railway system. No municipality can flourish half city and half village any more than a nation can exist half slave and half free.

But the crowning argument is what the new bridge will immediately bring to the city in the shape of industries—the Quaker Oats plant—a structure to cost $1,500,000 to begin with. Such a building boom as this city has never known, to be followed by the erection of homes for the hundreds of working people who will be required to man the plant when it is completed.

With all the facts before him, how can any civic patriot do other than support the bylaw?

FREE TRADE AGAIN.

PROTECTION for farm and factory has been a fixture in Canada ever since the people declared for it so emphatically in 1878. At the general elections held since that time no political party has ever gone to the people with absolute free trade or anything at all resembling it as a policy. The Liberals, sometimes referred to as free traders, for the purpose of distinguishing them from their opponents, were in power for fifteen years, and left the tariff as inherited from their predecessors practically intact. In 1911 they proposed a measure of free trade, but what the people of Canada did to the Liberals in the election of that year is a matter, to the ousted party, of painful history.

Undismayed by the record and untaught by the experience of five years ago, Hon. Frank Oliver has introduced a resolution into Parliament providing for sweeping reductions in the tariff, absolute free trade, in short. Mr. Oliver, somewhat belated, demands free wheat and flour. He has these already, and the result, or lack of result, is before him.

Mr. Oliver's policy, if given effect, would close the factories in Peterborough now engaged in the manufacture of farm and sawmill machinery. The cement plants in the country would share the same fate. He would have free trade in all natural products with all nations that would reciprocate in this regard. Furthermore, he demands, with that lip loyalty so characteristic of the politician in a corner, that the British preference be increased.

Mr. Oliver is speaking only for himself and for a small proportion of the electors of the West. The tariff must be left undisturbed. The majority of Canadians have declared themselves on that issue time after time. When the duty on imports was raised seven and one-half per cent, two years ago as a war measure, an exception was made of goods coming from England. This amounted to an increase in the British preference, although Mr. Oliver and his friends appear unable to see it.

CONSCRIPTION IN QUEBEC.

IT IS POSSIBLE that the rabid anti-conscriptionists in Quebec do not represent the sentiments of the majority of the French-Canadians. Their meetings are given the widest measure of publicity in the Canadian papers and the most is made of everything they say. On the other hand, the saner element of the population are not heard from. The man who is in favor of the selective draft does not as a rule find it necessary to proclaim the fact from the house top. The faction that makes the most noise is not always the stronger, either in numbers or influence.

There are prominent residents of Quebec who are in favor not only of a vigorous participation in the war, but of some equable plan of raising recruits for the army. The members of the delegation who went to Quebec a few months ago gathered that impression, and the same was emphasized when Quebec members of the Bon Entente paid a return visit to Ontario.

There is, however, friction, and serious friction, in the French-Canadian province. At an anti-conscription meeting the other night one of the speakers, of sufficient importance in the community to be carrying on a correspondence with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, read a letter from the Liberal chieftain, in which the latter declared that he would oppose not only the extension of Parliament, but the selective draft as well. While Sir Wilfrid takes such a stand the attitude of his followers is easily accounted for.

"Before we have conscription," declared one of the speakers, "we will have revolution." It is that man's good fortune that he lives in a country where the taking of undue liberty with the freedom of speech so frequently passes unheeded and unnoticed. But if there ever is a revolution in Quebec over this matter, the rest of the Dominion will not fail to place the responsibility where it belongs, and to hold to account the political leader who has by speech and in writing helped to foment the agitation that is now in progress.

At the meeting referred to it was stated that Canada had done her whole duty when she sent "four hundred thousand of our fellow-citizens to England." Canada has not done her whole duty. She will be derelict so long as an available man is left at home and the war is not yet won. She cannot boast of duty performed until at least all the gaps in the ranks of her forces at the front, caused by the death and injuries of those who have volunteered, are filled up.

Canada, it is true, has raised four hundred thousand men for military service, but the burden has not been equally borne. The number of men now under arms would be less by fifty per cent. if the young men in all parts of the Dominion had shared the disloyal sentiments that are being voiced so violently now by Quebec agitators, who draw their inspiration from the teachings of a man who was once Premier of the Dominion and who this nation has every reason to thank heaven was helpless in Opposition when the war broke out.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S DIET.

PROF. WELDNER, an agricultural expert in Bavaria, holds out a shred of hope for the comfort of the German people, who now find themselves facing a threatened shortage of food. They need not starve to death, even if the supply of bread and meat fails them. There is plenty of grass left, and, like the famous Babylonian monarch, who was condemned to special punishment for his sins, the German masses must take to browsing in the fields with the lower animals. Alfalfa is specially recommended as a pinch diet when the regular articles are no longer obtainable.

A French aristocrat made himself extremely unpopular with the starving proletariat when he recommended a similar bill-of-fare to that suggested by the German savant, and when he fell into their vengeful hands, grass was the food thrust upon him. It has yet to be demonstrated that he diet was either palatable or nutritious.

Alfalfa may have kept the ancient monarch alive for a number of years, because it certainly possesses a higher percentage of food value than any form of vegetation. But it was designed for the beasts of the field rather than for humanity. If there is ever a revolution in Germany, and Prof. Weldner is captured by the populace, he may well tremble as he thinks of the fate of the resourceful French gentleman from whose wheel he borrowed a spoke.

THE OLEAGINOUS MR. BLAIN.

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN refers editorially to Mr. Burnham's speech on pensions as follows:

> Mr. J. H. Burnham's resolution regarding pension injustices, in the House of Commons last Monday, brought up sleek Mr. Blain of Peel, in a kind of purring excuse for the pension policy. When Mr. Blain stated that Mr. Burnham had been misinformed, the latter member promptly characterised Mr. Blain's remark as impretinent. The same Mr. Blain, it will be remembered, two years ago tried to gloze over the maggotry along with Mr. Fripp, M.P., of Ottawa, in the profiteering on bandages and field dressings for the wounded.

It will be recalled, too, that Mr. Blain assumed the role of official apologist for Mr. Fallis of Peel—his own constituency—and that his specious pleading failed to convince the voters that war grafting is other than a reprehensible line of conduct for a member of the Legislature.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

MR. W. H. BARRY'S topical song on the bridge bylaw should be adopted as the marching tune of the voters as they go to the polls next Thursday.

My Dear Madam:

We have safely arrived home. As you know, we did not intend coming back from our trip until next week, but Algy thought it would be nice to have a week all to ourselves before he starts work. And it is such fun when he brings my breakfast up to bed; he sits on the side and has his with me.

This morning we had eggs and bacon. Algy said the eggs were scrambled. I think they must have been, as he dropped the tray coming upstairs. But the Smoked Ham was lovely. Oh! and that reminds me—I have found such a peach of a store to deal at. They are much cheaper than the other stores, as they deal only for cash, and they keep such awfully jolly things. They had some new kind of Chocolates in yesterday, so I bought six boxes—only 21c a box. Algy wanted me to try some this morning, but we couldn't find a box with any in, and I didn't feel like candies. Algy helped me get the dinner yesterday. I got the cookery book and sat in the rocker and told him what to do. Algy thought he ought to have some soup so I went to my special store, and the nice man there showed me all kinds of packets and cans, so I bought some of each. The packets were only 5c each and the can 15c, 25c and 35c each. When I got back I sat on Algy's knee while we decided which of them we would have for dinner; finally we decided on a can of clam chowder, and I got the book to see how to cook it, but Algy found the directions on the can, so he did that and I helped lay the table, and then we had the first course, and it was so delicious we never left a drop. Then we remembered we had forgotten all about the other courses. Well, Algy looked at me and I looked at Algy. Then I remembered my nice grocery man had put some cooked meat in my parcel (pressed veal and tongue, I think, only 29c a pound), so we had that and a pie I got at the same place, and after that we had no appetite for anything else, so we decided not to do any more cooking that day

Now I must close this long letter, so with love and kisses, I remain,

Your loving
MINNIE.

P.S.—Algy sends love and kisses, too.

P.P.S.—If you can't find my house when you come to Peterborough, inquire at my grocery store. Everybody knows that. It's RISOTTO OF RICE.

Take a small teacupful of rice and place it in a pan with half a pint of milk, two Spanish onions chopped, six small or four large tomatoes sliced, pepper and salt, a pinch of sugar, and about half a saltspoonful of mixed spice. Cook gently until the rice is soft, adding more milk if necessary. The rice should be soft and moist when done. Serve very hot with or without grated cheese. In this recipe it is not necessary for the rice to be dry and the grains separate, therefore, it is cooked slowly in the milk and not put into fast boiling liquid, as rice for curry or for serving as a vegetable with meat should be. It is worth noting that plain boiled rice makes an excellent accompaniment to roast mutton, boiled chicken, or rabbit, and is a pleasing change from the potato.

THE HOUSEKEEPERS' GUIDE

Watch the advertisements on this page, They will appear every Friday.

KEEPING FLIES OUT OF THE HOUSE

The season is here when we must all do our bit to exterminate the pestiferous house fly and discourage the persistent mosquito. As part of the public we are somewhat educated in regard to the latter. Kerosene in quantities large enough to delight the soul of John D., is sprinkled on pond, puddle and in ditches, and drainage is installed, for without moisture mosquitos cannot thrive.

How to kill flies is not an inspiring topic; flies bring no vision to mind of fishing or camping trips or the lovely rural out of doors. Rather they conjure up all sorts of unpleasant places and conditions, and no wonder it takes much printer's ink to get up much enthusiasm.

The New York Merchants Association has thousands of pamphlets ready to distribute telling the best methods to use to fight the pest. April May, and June are the best months to have anti-fly campaigns. "Kill flies and save lives" is the New York slogan. One fly killed early in the season means millions less during the summer.

The United States Government bulletins are also helpful and tell how to use formaldehyde and salicylate acid and borax, all simple drugs, easy to secure, in the fight to secure peace. Sticky fly papers is also suggested, but this only catches a few and is disagreeable to have about. It will cost you just four cents to send to the department of agriculture for their booklet on the house fly and to New York's association for their pamphlet, and stamps cannot be better invested.

Since the fly is the tie that binds us to fevers and many other diseases we want to keep it out of the house and away from the porches altogether. This means screens. A makeshift is about as good as none; little dependance can be put in them; they warp, bend, twist and shrink and are poor economy. Good screening well fitted to frames will last several seasons. Screen paint prevents rust and makes the wire look like new.

Screens that are adjustable are seldom fly proof, but a screen in a frame that can be hinged to the side of the window and unhooked and opened to allow the window to be washed or the screen to be dusted are delightful.

Screen wire, like everything else, is just a bit more costly this summer than it was last year, so we must make what we have go as far as possible. Big screens worn at the edges can be cut down and painted and used for smaller openings and small holes may be patched with fine wire and squares of netting fitted in nicely. Never was saving more honorable than in the cause we are fighting for to-day. If we have to patch our screens turn our rugs, do without treasured importations, shall we grumble? Let us not sink below the height of the hour but be saving for honor's sake and use what we save for the Red Cross or some other equally deserving object of solicitude and love.

OBITUARY

ANNIE JEMIMA ERMATINGER.

Miss Annie Jemima Ermatinger, a cousin of Dr. Burnham and well known in this city where she had been a frequent visitor, died at St. Thomas Wednesday morning after an illness of several weeks' duration.

Miss Ermatinger was the second daughter of the late Edward Ermatinger, who was member of Parliament for Middlesex (then including Elgin county) at the time of her birth in St. Thomas on August 9, 1843. Her mother was the daughter of Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, of Cobourg, Ont. Her elder sister was Maria, who married the Rev. Maurice S. Baldfin, who was then rector of St Thomas' Church, St. Thomas and who later became Bishop of Huron. Two other sisters died in Winnipeg. The late Frank Ermatinger, who was postmaster of St. Thomas when he died, was a brother, and Judge Charles O. Ermatinger is her only surviving near relative. She also leaves several nephews and nieces, including Capt. Percy Ermatinger, of the Canadian Army Service Corps in France; Mrs. Maxwell K. Moorhead, wife of the American Consul at Swansea, Wales; Mrs. Bevan, wife of Lieut. Basil Bevan, of Toronto, and Mrs. George Hamilton of Detroit. Miss Ermatinger in recent years spent her winters with intimate friends in Victoria, B. C., which city she greatly admired.

Although her quiet and retiring disposition kept the late Miss Ermatinger out of the public eye, she was active in many ways in the social life of St. Thomas, more particularly in the Woman's Art Association and in the work of Trinity Church, where her counsel and assistance were of special value and importance. To a rich natural endowment Miss Ermatinger added a large experience gained from her extensive tours of Europe, where sh had visited every country, with the exception of Russia. Her love of travel led her also to Japan. An observant eye and a keen intelligence enabled Miss Ermatinger to acquire an exceptional degree of information regarding foreign peoples and their artistic and other attainments, which was freely given in conversation and in her social activities. Greatly respected by her large circle of friends and acquaintances, Miss Ermatinger's demise will be greatly mourned, and the utmost sympathy felt for her bereaved relatives.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the residence of Judge Ermatinger, St. Thomas.

S. A. EXCURSION

Was Enjoyed Yesterday In Spite Of Bad Weather

The excursion to Gore's Landing yesterday was not favored with the best of weather, but nevertheless, like Salvationists always do, they took everything as for the best and made the best of them.

Sometimes they were able to get away from the boat and play and roam about the lovely green spots, and other times had to stay in the boat. However, everybody was glad and happy and got home safely at 7.30 last night.

Methodists in District Meeting Pass Resolution of Regret at Departure of Rev. R. G. Peever.

The annual Methodist district meeting of Peterborough was held in the George Street Methodist Church on May 22.

Rev. B. Greatrix, chairman of the district, presided. The members present were Ministers: Revs.R.G. Peever, S. Cruickshanks, Dr. J. P. Wilson, R. A. Whattam, B. Greatrix, Wm. Higgs, W. H. Clarke, W. T. Wickett, C. W. Barrett, J. G. McKee, D. R. Clare, J. G. Lewis. The laymen present were: H. C. Stabler, T. W. Robinson, J. M. Green, John Speer, J. O. Fife, G. E. Burnham, Thos. McIndoo, J. W. Dawson, W. J. Northey, Jas. A. Bell, Nathan Paine, W. H. Lee, W. H. Pollard, and Stephen Harrison.

Others present were Rev. F. Johnston, Rev. Jos. Wilkes and R. E. Benson. Of the ministers of the district, Major Frost and Sergt. Smart are on active service.

Fourteen of the fifteen circuits of the District reported and the growth of the work was seen to be quite gratifying. Thirty-nine preaching places in all and thirty-four report a total membership of 4,305, an increase of 60 over the total of last year, if those not reporting are taken the same as last year.

The total amount raised for Connexional Funds (incomplete) was $12,170, an increase of $400 over last year's total.

Missionary givings reported (incomplete) $7,704, an increase over last year's total of over $600.

The total raised for all purposes over last year's total of over $5,000. (incomplete) $67,403, an increase

Rev. J. G. Lewis was elected to the Conference Stationing Committee with Rev. R. A. Whittam as alternate.

A motion of regret at the early departure of Rev. R. G. Peever was passed and kindly expressions of his companionship and co-operation in all the affairs of the Church and district were made by several of his associates.

Rev. Peever replied with very fitting words, speaking of the interest he had in Methodism, and priding himself in his connection with such an expansive and aggressive denomination.

Congratulations were extended to Dr. Wilson on the recent well-deserved honor conferred upon him by Victoria College.

The pastor and people of St. James' Church were congratulated on their splendid work in the erection of their new church.

The next district meeting was voted to be held in St. James' Church.

CHINA NEAR WAR

President Dismisses Premier Who Insisted on Peace

PEKIN, May 24.—President Li Yuan Hung has issued a mandate dismissing Premier Tuan Chi Jiu from office and naming Dr. Wu Ting Fang, former Ambassador to the United States, as acting premier, and empowering him to form a new Cabinet. This action probably will end the deadlock in Parliament and make possible a declaration of war by China against Germany.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion or sour stomach you should try a mixture of Sanol Pepsin and Iridin.

This is said to be the formula of Dr. Banta's famous prescription which gave him a world-wide reputation.

These powders are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store, 143 Hunter Street.

THE BOARD OF WORKS.

Only a Reminiscence Meeting On Wednesday Night.

A meeting of the City's Board of Works was called for Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Five members, loyal to Chairman Weir's call, put in an appearance; one was absent through a regrettable incident, another was out of town, while three more were floating around the city somewhere—at least their phones said so. There not being enough aldermen present to constitute a quorum, the five who had turned up resolved themselves into a Reminiscence Society, and in an hour thus meandered (in memory, of course) through Germany, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, France, the British Isles, and the United States, landing back in Nova Scotia, where (it was asserted) every other farm team is oxen still. This program proved intensely interesting, but from a business standpoint the Board of Works' session, Wednesday night, proved a failure.

"A GREEK SLAVE" PRESENTED BY TALENTED AMATEURS

Successful Entertainment Given at Opera House Local Holiday Feature.

The honors of this year's celebration of Vctoria Day, as far as the City of Peterboro is concerned, were easily carried off by the members of the Peterboro Operatic and Dramatic Society in their delightful presentation of "The Greek Slave," in the Grand Opera House yesterday. The weather man was hopeless, and during the snow flurries in the noon hour it look dark for the performance, but both afternoon and evening the house was crowded.

MR. R. J. DEVEY

organist and choirmaster of St. John's Church and director of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society. Mr. Devey has a long list of successful performances by local amateurs to his credit, all prepared and presented under his sole direction. He put on the Mikado twice in 1906, San Toy in 1916; The Geisha in 1911 and 1916, The Crucifixion in 1906 and annually ever since; The Daughter of Jarius in 1908; Come, Let Us Sing in 1909; the Messiah in 1914 and Judas Maccabaeus in 1915. "The Greek Slave" in generally conceded to be his crowning triumph.

It was fine from start to finish. The comedy was presented without a dull moment. Beautiful music, splendidly rendered, interspersed with a truly witty dialogue, intelligently delivered caused the afternoon to pass like a dream.

Owing to the length of the opera the conductor steadily proceeded with the play, declining to accept calls for repetitions, an example much to be comended. The choral work was most enjoyable, and all who heard the "Invocation" number will agree that it was finely sung.

Mrs. Nichols acheved a great success as the Persian wizard's daughter, Maia, after having bravely responded to the call to take the part two weeks ago, which Mrs. Perks had to give up owing to the death of her father. Possessed of a lovely soprano voice, Mrs. Nichols sung all her numbers in a most charming manner.

Miss Lela Smyth is to be heartily congratulated on her fine singing and acting in the part of Princess Antonia, proof-positive of assiduous study and skilful training.

Antonia's "Pretty Greek Slave," "Iris" was irresistible and Miss Lyle Waterman was thoroughly at home either in teasing her lover, tormenting the Prefect, or singing and dancing. "I'm a naughty girl."

Enjoyable numbers were those of the Roman ladies, Miss Mary Easson (Tullia), Miss Bessie Francis (Cornelia), Miss Ruby Quartermaine (Lucinea), and Miss Roper (Tullia), their dignified deportment, as examplified in Act 1, giving way to the lure of the "Saturnalia," in Act 2.

Dainty and tuneful indeed were the four lute players, Miss Minnie Allen (Circe), Miss Ethel Sheppard (Lydia), Miss Amy Rathbone (Nysa), and Miss Dorris Rathbone (Leona). They made a great impression with their fine singing in the opening of the "Invocation," as well as in the lighter numbers of the "Step and sing," and "The Revels."

Miss Dorothy Fenwick (Melanopis) ably assisted by Miss Anna Jordan (Nepla) was very pleasant throughout the opera as heads of the wizard's slaves.

The "Tarantella," danced by 16 very pretty girls, made an equally

CRUCIAL TIME IN HOUSE

Conscription and Extension To Be Discussed Next Week

OTTAWA, May 25.—Notice of both the conscription and the extension of Parliament bills was given in Parliament by Premier Borden but neither bill will be introduced for some days yet. During the interval the Government will canvass the whole situation, and will also, doubtless, hear further from the country outside as to the political outlook, and what public opinion, as well as war conditions, demand.

In the meantime the Government has officially stated that compulsion will not apply to men under 20 years or age.

On the Liberal side the attitude of the party in regard to the conscription question will not be defined until the measure comes before the house and the Government's proposals in detail are made known. When the bill is brought down a party caucus will be held, and a policy then decided upon. Liberal leaders declared to-night that the vital consideration would continue to be, above all things, how Canada could play its best possible part in helping to win the war.

The coming week in Parliament promises to be a crucial and intensely important one.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

(By Ty. Cobb)

Base running more important than batting? Bunk you say?

I am strong for the stolen base because I believe it is possible to do more damage to the opposing team's defence by daring base running than by batting or fielding or anything else. When you are making a lot of hits you may discourage the opposition. But at the same time they reason that the players are not so much to blame. It is really the pitcher who is getting his. Therefore team play and defensive play, so far as the club is concerned, are not impaired in the least by the fusilade of hits which may win the game and drive the pitcher from the box. The same applies to fielding. If a misplay is made it is the fault of some one player. It doesn't affect the other players and it doesn't even affect the man who made it very much. For he reasons. "I missed that one all right, but when the next one comes this way I wil' stop it or break a leg."

All these things are important. But no one of them, not even a home run with the bases crammed, can quite demoralize an infield and get the defence up in the air as clever base running can do.

Such base running strikes deep at the foundation of the defence. It destroys confidence, and when confidence is gone everything is gone. When a base runner gets to first base and then starts running wild and gets away with it, he completely demoralizes the infield and gets the pitcher and catcher up in the air as well. Infielders get to throwing the ball around, missing plays, making errors, and looking like a lot of boobs. They become completely rattled, and when a ball player is rattled he is done for the time being. He might just as well take off his uniform and go to the club house.

It is the element of the unexpected which makes successful base running so valuable. The batter at the plate is always likely to make a hit. If he does it is no surprise to anyone So is an infielder likely to make an error. Those things are all a part of the game. But the good base runner who doesn't follow any set rule creates opportunities for himself which are unexpected. For when he is on the path no one knows what he is going to do next, and the very uncertainty makes it impossible for the infielders to do their best work.

A stolen base is looked upon by too many managers as a risky hazard. They are inclined to follow machine schedule of working for passes, sacrificing, and that sort of thing. All this is important, but if I were a manager I would try to develop the unexpected attack rather than follow the routine form. If a thing is unexpected it is immensely valuable on that very account. The defence cannot be prepared. They can't have any set plan. They are swept off their feet. And the attack wins because of its suddenness and its variation from the usual schedule.

GOOD WORK FOR SICK WOMEN

The Woman's Medicine Has Proved Its Worth.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies were first introduced, their curative powers were doubted and had to be proved. But the proof came, and gradually the use of them spread over the whole country. Now that hundreds of thousands of women have experienced the most beneficial effects from the use of these medicines, their value has become generally recognized, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women.

The following letter is only one of the thousands on file in the Pinkham office, at Lynn, Mass., proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an article of great merit as shown by the results it produces.

Anamosa, Iowa.—"When I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered with a displacement, and my system was in a general rundown condition. I would have the headache for a week and my back would ache so bad when I would bend down I could hardly straighten up. My sister was sick in bed for two months and doctored, but did not get any relief. She saw an advertisement of your medcine and tried it and got better. She told me what it had done for her, and when I had taken only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my head began to feel better. I continued its use and now I don't have any of those troubles."—Mrs. L. J. HANNAN, R.F.D. 1, Anamosa, Iowa.

WHERE TROUT FAILED.

Toronto Paper Says He Was Weak At Batting.

The Toronto News speaks thus of the release of Trout, from the Internationals of Toronto, the player who in 1912 was the best all round man on the Peterborough Canadian League nine and the favorite with the fans:

Trout's departure from the Toronto Club was hardly any surprise. Though a steady reliable all-round performer the former Canadian leaguer was not by any means a star and there was no place for him on the team. His batting and base-running were too weak to give him a regular assignment and for that reason Manager Lajoie preferred to play pitcher Thompson in the outfield. Trout is headed for the New London Club of the Eastern League, a class B., organization, and he should make good in that company. The experience he has gained during his three years connection with the Leafs should stand him in good stead.

MAY STOP RACING.

Government Likely to Close All Tracks Until After War.

The indications are that there will be no racing on any track in Canada after July first, and that means that there will be no fall meeting at the Woodbine and that Hamilton will only have five days' racing instead of seven Dufferin Park and Hillcrest, the local half-milers, will get in one session each, and also Dorval, Montral Jockey Club, and Connaught Park. Devonshire it is announced will hold a second meeting at Windsor, beginning June 9th and will consequently have an edge on all the other clubs. Fort Erie, Kenilworth and Windsor, will suffer if the ban upon racing is put into force, as these tracks are not scheduled to operate until after the first of July. That the Devonshire track should be permitted to have two meetings, and clubs of larger standing, none, will doubtless cause much adverse comment.

SECURED FOR FOX FAMILY

Willet Ketcheson, of Belleville, is now the owner of ten young foxes which he is endeavoring to raise. One day last week he saw one old fox enter a hole in the ground and he took some water to the place, which he poured into the cavity. Out came ten little foxes about the size of young dogs which he took charge of.

pretty number, and Miss Annie Bickersbeth, who so successfully undertook their training, received hearty applause for an original dance to a repeat of the "Tarantella" music.

Miss Betty Burnham (Ione) came from Toronto specially for two artistic dances, cleverly and gracefully executed in the opening scene of Act 2, one of which, "The song of the robin," met with enthusiastic applause and was followed by another pretty dance in Mazurka time.

Mr. Fred Hartshorn, (Diomed), who has figured in all three of the Daly plays produced lately in this city, improves each time, and it is not saying too much to say that "Freedom," "The girl of my heart," and two duets with Maia were among the best numbers of the whole play.

Mr. W. H. Barry (Marcus) did full justice to his part, and his solo number, "I want to be popular," brought down the house at both performances. Mr. Barry designed the special scenery used in the production, and, assisted by members of the society, carried out its construction and decoration.

In the part of "Heliodorus," Mr. Vernon Dredge excelled his previous work in "The Geisha," and by good acting kept the audience on the tter all through his scenes. His part is the longest in the cast, and was distinctly good.

Mr. James Liddell portrayed "Archias," the sculptor, in excellent style, and Mr. Wilfrid Hartshorn defied detection as the Statue of Eros.

The Roman Patricians, Mr. W. Hutchinson (Manilus), Mr. W. H. Taylor (Curius), Mr. Cyril Devey (Lollius), Mr. Ernest Boyle (Sillius) sang, acted and danced well, besides providing lots of fun while their fortunes were being told by Heliodorus.

Mrs. R. J. Devy, assisted by Mr. R. G. Sturgeon, performed the duties of stage managers, and their excellent work ran the play smoothly throughout. It may be here mentioned that Mrs. Devy took the part of "Antonio" at a production of "A Greek Slave" in in England some years ago.

The orchestra played the score with great success. Mr. R. J. Devy both played and conducted with his usual ability and added another to his long list of productions given in this city proving alike splendid versatility and energy.

The final performance takes place to-night at 8.15 when another capacity house is likely to assemble.

The proceeds are to be devoted to the work of the Canadian Kitchener League.

The costumes were thoroughly in keeping with the play and with the general color scheme of the scenery.

Those Who Took Part

In addition to those above mentioned the following were in the cast:—

Messrs. Arthur J. McLeish, Alfred Marshall, Joseph F. Fallon, Geo. W. Cannon, Everett W. Glover, Albert Lee, Harry G. Flowers, Fred Goodfellow, Jack Stoneley, Herbert Frost, Percy Harrison, Wilfrid Hartshorn, Arthur Pitchford.

TURN ORIENTAL

Peterborough's war record is one of the brightest. This city has sent to the front some of the best units that have fought under the banners of the Empire, and the annals of the war are filled with the records of gallantry and heroic deaths of the young men from this district. No city in Canada has so long a list of volunteers who have won military medals for gallant conduct.

In one thing only is the community lacking—the caring for the veterans who return wounded or ill. These men are certainly entitled to an opportunity to regain their health amid home surroundings, where they will have a chance to see their friends at least occasionally, instead of being sent to recover in a hospital in a strange city.

There are grounds adjacent to the Oriental spacious enough to make a playground for the patients. There are parks convenient, houses of amusement, boats on the lakes and river, in short all the metropolitan advantages which the authorities insist shall be a part of each institution. There is not a single condition lacking, and the owners of the property are ready to listen to any reasonable proposition.

The city that has sent so many men to the front should be able to give them the best of care when they return as invalids. Every day they are coming back, and unfortunately the prospects are that the number will constantly increase while the war is in progress.

STEEL VESSELS TO FIGHT SUBS

LOCAL BOARD OF TRADE TO BE ORGANIZED ALONG NEW LINES; ALL INTERESTS INCLUDED

Manufactures, Retailers, Labor, Financial, Professional and Agricultural Societies to be Represented in Membership--Powerful Organization in Sight.

The Board of Trade, whose untimely and somewhat undignified demise was made the subject of considerable jest at a recent civic banquet is to be resuscitated. The first effort to revive it was made when new officers were elected to take charge of the remains. These officers have decided that the supposed defunct organization was not really dead but only somnolent. It is to be given another chance for existence under conditions which promise a vigorous and influential career.

The Board of Trade of which Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., is the new president, is to be reorganized along entirely new lines. All the business organizations in the city—six altogether—are to be taken in. These are the Manufacturers Association, the Retail Merchants Association, the scope of which is to be extended, the Trades and Labor Council, the Bankers Association, the Professional Organizations and the Agricultural Society. Each of these will have their own official staff and will discuss their own affairs in their own meetings. There will be a common meeting place for all and the six associations, gathering in common on set occasions, will constitute the Board of Trade. The interests of one branch will be made the interests of the general body. Every branch it is held is best fitted to manage its own affairs and to define its own requirements. Such a body will constitute one of the most powerful organizations ever got together in this city and should be able to get almost anything they ask for in the gift of the City Council.

The growing influence of organized labor in this city is being recognized more and more. One evidence of this is the fact that the Trades Council has been asked to co-operate with the business interests of the city as a member of the Board of Trade. Labor and capital will come to understand each other better by personal contact.

Another evidence of the importance attached to the local Trades Council is the fact that the Retail Merchants' Association has sent a communication to President J. J. Hartley of the former organization asking that a committee of labor men be appointed to discuss with a committee of merchants matters in which there is a mutual interest.

It is worthy of note, too, that the Educational Association of organized labor, which met at London Thursday, and of which a Peterborough man was elected president, has decided to call a provincial convention at an early date for the purpose of organising an independent political party for Ontario.

CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY'S URGENT APPEAL FOR SUPPLIES

What the Society at Large and the Local Branch Has Done and Plans to Do for Soldiers.

The Canadian Red Cross Society, in its latest bulletin, makes the following urgent appeal for supplies:

"There is no need to tell our readers that when our armies are actively engaged with the enemy, the stores of the Red Cross are in urgent request. During the winter there is comparatively little activity and few casualties; with the Spring, all is changed." The past winter Canadian women did not send to the Red Cross such a large quantity of supplies as in the previous year, while, owing to the present number of our Canadian troops, the demand has greatly increased. Urgent cables from England tell the story of the fear of our representatives lest supplies run short, and warn us of the consequent sufferings of sick and wounded.

The bulletin adds: "We have most fortunately been able to make such arrangements for the transportation of Red Cross stores as will enable us to accept shipment of all suitable supplies, but we urge workers to confine themselves to making what we ask for. We append a list of articles required, and we call upon all women to respond to this appeal for the supplies which alleviate the sufferings of our men, who have risked life and health for us.

It is satisfactory to know that these are the very articles which the Peterborough Red Cross Society and its auxiliaries have concentrated in making for some time. There is also an urgent appeal for kit bags, in order that every wounded Canadian soldier may be supplied with a filled kit bag immediately upon entering a hospital. Fortunately we have at present on hand one hundred of these kit bags ready to be filled and sent away.

It is also most satisfactory to know that our local Red Cross Society anticipated this urgent appeal for supplies, and in January and February of this year forwarded to England a splendid contribution valued at $4500 for materials alone. We are glad to know that these supplies are now in France, where they are most needed.

However, in view of the fact that the need is still very great, it would seem that we should make plans for increasing our shipments and that we should try to prevent the usual falling off in the work during the summer months. We know that when the need is brought before the auxiliaries and the women of Peterborough, they will not fail in their response.

During March and April the Peterborough Red Cross Society has sent materials to the following societies: St. Andrew's Patriotic League, Berean Bible Class of Knox Church, Murray St. Baptist Church Auxiliary, St. Paul's Church Auxiliary, St. Peter's Patriotic Society, South End Auxiliary, Trinity Church Auxiliary.

MR. ROGERS SAYS GALT CHARGES ARE BASELESS

Had no Knowledge of Crooked Work While Minister in Manitoba.

ONLY A PARTISAN SCHEME.

Kelly Did Not, So Far As He Knows, Contribute to Campaign Fund.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 26.—Hon. Robt. Rogers made the following statement this morning when asked for his views on the Galt report of Mr. Justice Galt:

"Yes, I have seen the carefully prepared and specially staged report emanating from Liberal headquarters at Winnipeg, respecting volley number two from Commissioner Galt. I do not propose to make any statement covering the whole case until I have seen the full text of the report. This much let me say for the present: That any statement to the effect that I was a principal in any conspiracy with Thomas Kelly and Sons is deliberate and inadulterated falsehood in every particular.

And to say that there was an organized atmosphere of laxity to be created by me is equally false and untrue. While I was a minister of government of Manitoba I had no knowledge of Thomas Kelly contributing one dollar to party funds for the assistance of that government and since I entered the government of the Dominion I have never known Thomas Kelly to contribute one dollar for party funds for Dominion purposes, and as far as I know, no evidence was produced before the commission that could be constructed as even implying that such was the case, and the only excuse that I can find for this deliberate and dishonest misrepresentation is the apparent and immediate need of a bought and paid for Liberal organization to endeavor to destroy anything that appears to them to be a menace to their success."

Hundred and Seventy-Four Hurt---British Airships Destroy 2 of Enemy's Craft.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 26.—German aircraft numbering in the neighborhood of sixteen, raided the southeast coast of England on Friday evening. Seventy-six persons were killed and one hundred and seventy-four injured. Nearly all the damage was done in one town where some bombs fell in a street, causing considerable casualties among the civilian population. Three hostile airplanes returning from last night's raid were brought down.

The Admiralty statement says: Naval airplanes attacked an aerodrome near Brugees Friday morning, dropping many bombs. In the evening several enemy aircraft returning from the raid on England were engaged by Royal Naval Air Service machines. An encounter took place between one British and three hostile airplanes in mid-channel and one of the latter was destroyed. Several encounters also took place off the Belgian coast, in which two large twin-engined hostile machines were shot down. All our machines returned safely."

STREETS WERE CROWDED.

A later despatch from a town on the southeast coast says: The most ambitious airplane raid undertaken by the Germans against Great Britain occurred here late Friday afternoon, while the streets were crowded with shoppers, promenaders and workers returning home. The raiders dropped a large number of bombs, apparently in haphazard fashion, from a mile or two above the town, killing seventy-six, mostly women and children, and injuring one hundred and seventy-five more. The first raider to arrive was the leader of a squadron of five. It was flying at such a height that it could not be seen against the brilliant sunlight except by trained observers with good glasses. The leader was followed by the other four at a slightly lower elevation. They sailed in a beeline across the town, dropping bombs continuously.

Many persons in the streets first learned of the raid when they heard the explosions around them. The zone in which the bombs were dropped cut a wide swath across the city, with the chief damage being done in the shopping and residential districts.

The bombs, which were of a large size, demolished completely the houses and small shops which they struck.

COUNTY JUDGES ORDERED TO PAY TAX ON INCOMES

Vexed Question Finally Settled By Finding in Case At Whitby.

NO OFFICIALS ARE EXEMPT

Ruling Means Much to the Tax Rates of All Ontario Cities.

Local Government officials who have refused to pay the municipal income tax will be interested in a decision just handed down and which settles the vexed question definitely.

A case with an important bearing on the matter was decided at Whitby by Judge McGillivray in the suit of the City of Toronto v. Morson.

Judge Morson had refused to pay his income tax, on the ground that Government officials are exempt. Judge McGillivray awarded the plaintiffs the amount of their claim, $126.98, costs to be payable by the defendant. Inasmuch as many Government officials in Ontario have refused to pay their income tax pending decision of this case, the city of Toronto and other municipalities will be naturally benefited by the award. It is more than a year since this case was first brought into court.

Besides Judge Huycke there are a large number of Government officials in this city whose yearly salary is large enough to be reached by the income tax and who will be affected by the decision of Judge McGillivray.

WANT A SIDEWALK.

Many of the citizens who have to use Wolfe street to get to the C.P.R. station would like the City Fathers to get the Railway company to build a walkway across the track where the street approaches the west entrance to the platform. GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE INCESSANTLY ACTIVE ON FRENCH AND BRITISH FRONT

Hostile Raiding Parties Directed Against Both Armies Are Repulsed and Positions of Allies Are Improved---French Take 120 Prisoners.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 26. — The official statement says: Hostile raiding parties were repulsed last night to the north of Gouzeaucourt and east of Armentieres. We improved our positions slightly on the right bank of the Scarpe. Hostile artillery has shown incessant activity on our front between Croisellers and the Scarpe.

PARIS, May 26.—Official Statement: On the Chemin des Dames the enemy's artillery vigorously counter-attacked by ours showed great activity from a point north of Jouy as far as the region to the east of Chevreux. Two German attacks against our salients east and west of Cerny brought no result. All our positions were maintained. We enlarged appreciably late yesterday our positions on both sides of Mont Carnillet, in the Champagne. In this attack we took one hundred and twenty prisoners, of whom two were officers.

ITALIANS PRESS ONWARD.

ROME, May 26. — Italians have captured 3,500 more prisoners on the Carso, the war office announces. Heavy fighting continues. The Italians made important progress in the coastal region in the direction of Trieste. They carried trenches from the mouth of the Timavo River on the Gulf of Trieste to a point east of Jamiano, and also the heights between Flondar and Medezza.

STEEL SHIPS TO FIGHT THE SUB

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT GIVES UP THE IDEA OF WOODEN SHIPS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 26. — Major-General Goethals informed the American Iron and Steel Institute convention last night that the ships the American Government will build to defeat the German submarine campaign will be constructed of steel, and was assured of the enthusiastic support of the steel manufacturers. The design to build wooden ships in large numbers has been abandoned.

Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR BUDGET

May 28 to June 8, Set Apart as Period in Which Subscriptions will be Solicited---$9500 Required for Next Year.

May 28th to June 8th has been set apart by the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. as a period during which the budget of the expenses of the Y.M.C.A. will be covered by subscriptions. A special meeting of the Board of Directors will be held Monday evening, May 28th, with supper at 6.30 p.m. On Tuesday evening, May 29th, the Board will meet at a supper conference at 6.30 p.m. with leading business men of the city at which time the financial needs of the Association will be thoroughly considered. During the coming week the leading contributors will be interviewed with an idea of getting a consensus of opinion as to the possibilities of providing for an existing deficit as well as the current expenses of the Assocation to December 31st next. The final line up of canvassers, will be held at a supper on the evening of June 4th and the general canvass for subscription will be conducted between June 5th and 8th.

Increased Prices Felt.

The average budget of the local association previous to 1914 was $7900. During the past three years the average budget has been $8400. The increased cost of fuel and the probability that alterations will have to be made to the heating plant to accommodate a change in the kind of fuel used, together with the increased cost of other supplies has made it necessary for the directors to fix $9,000 as the minimum budget for 1917.

$10,000 Needed.

Repairs have been made to the building at intervals during the last ten years but at no time have they made provision for two very important items: namely, the painting of the exterior of the building and the provision of fire fighting apparatus. The directors very much desire that these last two items be cared for this year and if this is done another five hundred dollars should be added to the budget making a maximum budget of $9500. The directors of the association are leading business men of the city and are most careful in their management of the association affairs so the supporters of the association should understand that the expenses of the association are conducted in the most economical manner. The directors wish to assure the friends of the association that this is not an extraordinary budget for an association in a city the size of Peterborough, in view of the work that is done by this organization. It is interesting to compare the work and budgets of eleven associations of the Dominion with which the Peterborough association is classed. These eleven cities have an average population of 35,000 and the average Y.M.C.A. budget in these cities is $14,300 as compared with a budget og $8300 of the Peterborough Association taken from the same year in which the average of the other eleven cities was computed.

Membership Now 675.

Regarding the young men in association membership, it is also interesting to note that the average membership in these eleven cities is 742 which would mean a membership of about 386 in a city of 20,000. Peterborough's present Y.M.C.A. membership is 675. The results obtained

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1917

MISLEADING REPORTS.

A STATEMENT MADE in a Toronto paper last night with reference to the work of the Red Cross is certainly misleading. The article in question states that tobacco, food and clothing are no longer forwarded to prisoners of war in Germany, and that it is useless to send them as the parcels will never reach their destination.

The citizens of Peterborough who have so generously contributed to this worthy cause in the past would do well to pay no heed to what the Toronto paper says. An explicit statement by Mrs. John Allan, one of the most active workers in the local branch, which appears in another column, should set at rest all doubts on this score. The Peterborough boys who are prisoners in Germany are receiving their parcels. They acknowledge them, too, with gratitude. The gifts are their only solace in the lonely and harsh existence that has been forced upon them by the fortunes of war.

The good work done by the local branch must go on. What Mrs. Allan says in her official statement should have weight with the Peterborough public, and unauthorised reports in the newspapers are not entitled to consideration.

The German authorities have consented, Mrs. Allan explains, to allow parcels from the Red Cross to be delivered to prisoners. They have not, however, extended the same consent to parcels sent by private individuals, and it is such donations, evidently, to which the Toronto paper referred, although it failed to make the point clear.

HOARDING COAL.

A RESIDENT OF THIS CITY is building a bin that is large enough to hold ten tons of coal, sufficient fuel to carry him through two seasons. When the structure is finished it will be filled from a local yard, with the owner of which the householder has already bargained for a supply. This is a situation by no means unusual in the city at present, and explains why the dealers with plenty of stock on hand refuse to sell to the small purchaser. All that they have in their sheds is contracted for.

It has been proposed that the Government regulate the price of coal. Such talk is idle so long as the supply comes from American mines, moved for part of the way at least by American roads, both of which institutions are beyond the jurisdiction of the Canadian authorities. If the Government went to the limit of its powers and set the rate of profit for the Canadian railroads and dealers, all the Americans would have to do to offset this action would be to put prices up another notch or two.

The Government, however, could render the public a service of value in a time of fuel scarcity if they passed legislation making the hoarding of coal illegal. We hear a great deal these days about the selfish policy of laying up supplies of food. To do this, to conserve a supply, even though a portion of the community goes hungry while there is plenty for all to go around if properly distributed, is no more a heinous offence than for some plutocrat, simply because he has the required capital, to allow his poorer neighbor to freeze while his own coal bunkers are overflowing.

The Governments has precedents in abundance for such legislation. The authorities do not hesitate to drag a man from the bosom of his family for military duty. A police officers is not backward in the matter of raiding a man's garage, woodshed or place of business in quest of liquor. His coal bin should not be more sacred from official molestation than any other portion of his possessions.

The man who selfishly hoards food either to assure himself a supply or to corner the market may deserve all the hard things that are said of him. Be that as it may, he is no worse than the citizen who gathers up all the fuel his cellar will hold, even though a neighbor and his family slowly freeze to death.

THE RED CROSS'S TASK.

ACCORDING to the New York Sun at least $100,000,000 will be needed to finance the work of the American Red Cross in the present war. Henry P. Davison, recently appointed chairman of the Red Cross War Council by President Wilson, so told the conference on Red Cross needs held at Washington. Representatives from forty cities were present to make plans to raise the necessary money, and the week of June 18-25 is to be devoted to getting a dollar for every man, woman and child in the country.

The sum is large only in the aggregate. With the vision of a man accustomed to business on a big scale, Mr. Davison outlined the situation that confronts the Red Cross. We have hundreds of doctors and nurses at the front, says the Sun. Twelve thousand engineers will shortly be rebuilding French railroads. Over 25,000 Americans are fighting in the Allied armies. As many more American regulars are soon to go abroad. "Within a few months," said the chairman, "we should and will have in service an army of 1,000,000 and a navy of 150,000 men." Doctors, nurses and ambulances; mountains of hospital stores, linen, bandages, and supplies of all kinds must be assembled ready for use. For an army of less than half a million Canada raised a Red Cross fund of $16,000,000. We must do proportionately as well.

As Mr. Davison pointed out, the cost will be greater because Americans will be fighting three thousand miles from home. French and English fighters on leave go home. Ours cannot, adds the Sun. They and the soldiers of the other Allies go to Paris, and we must prepare to give them there as much of the home nursing as we can. Our Red Cross will also have to fight tuberculosis, which has become prevalent in France, and supply the essentials of life to the people of fifteen hundred destroyed French towns. The condition of Russia is such that help must be immediately forthcoming. On one thousand miles of Russian front there are six thousand ambulances, compared with sixty-four thousand ambulances on the four hundred and fifty miles of the French front.

Mr. Davison's estimate of the sum required at the outset is not a bit overstated. The American Red Cross must be not less effective than the American soldier or farmer in fighting the fight for democracy and in bulwarking the free peoples of the whole world.

WHAT GERMANY WOULD HAVE DONE.

WHAT, IT MAY BE ASKED, would Germany have done if she had been fortunate enough to possess the power of naval blockade? The reply has been furnished by a predecessor of Bethmann-Hollweg. In 1892, Caprivi, when holding the office of imperial chancellor, explained what the German fleet would do if the enemy was ever at their mercy:

"He who makes war," he said, "wishes to attain his ends; and, when he possesses the energy, he succeeds, by employing every possible means, including in war at sea that of interrupting the communications of his enemy. No one can renounce this supreme weapon. It is, moreover, what is done in land warfare. If anyone during the siege of Paris had sent a train of provisions towards the French capital, that train would have been arrested. It is the same at sea."

For a true appreciation of the Berlin Note, with its pitiful tale of privation and its claim for freedom of the seas, Caprivi's words suffice.

SIR WILFRID AND CONSCRIPTION.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S attitude on conscription has been indicated by Mayor Martin of Montreal, who stands close politically and personally to the Liberal leader. At a recruiting meeting the mayor stated that Sir Wilfrid would take the position that the present Government had no right to enforce the selective draft, seeing that the life of Parliament has been extended by courtesy of the Opposition.

It is apparent then that the veteran leader does not intend to come out squarely for or against conscription, but is to evade the real issue by resorting to technical objections.

The parliamentary term was extended by unanimous consent according to law. The object of the extension was to enable the Government to proceed with the work of carrying on the war. Whatever may be the position of the Liberals, it will appear to the general public that in enforcing conscription the Government is surely carrying out the task with which it has been entrusted.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

• • • •

WHILE THE GALLANT SOLDIER does his bit, the war profiteer is satisfied to merely get his.

• • • •

THE TROUBLE with the selective draft is that it is so likely to leave the useless idler unmolested.

• • • •

IN SPITE OF the unseasonable weather it is still possible to identify the springtime by the flying dust.

• • • •

CANADIAN HOSPITALITY with its banquets and the ever-changing climate has its dangers no less than war.

• • • •

EVEN A FOOD CONTROLLER will not be in it with the man who produces a bumper crop of potatoes in his backyard.

• • • •

THE QUEBEC MAN who is unable to place himself politically can at least join the mob that shouts "Down with conscription."

• • • •

THE SLACKER who fails to get a passport to emigrate will wish more than ever that he was a diplomat able to go where he pleases.

• • • •

NONE BUT A LINEAL descendant of Queen Victoria could carry himself in a crisis as King George has done ever since the war broke out.

• • • •

AS IF THE BASEBALL umpire had not already trouble enough, he is now called upon to decide between a "bean ball" and an ordinary wild pitch.

• • • •

THE NEW YORK SUN says: Our own Congress is the only national legislature that has ever gone out of its way to make its people sick of war.

IF YOU ARE thinking of investing in a spring suit, do not forget that Col. Walker has an assortment that enables him to guarantee a fit and at a price to which there can be no possible objection.

THE ONLY OBJECTION to a flyer in amateur gardening is that it may have a tendency to discourage the back to the land movement by bringing home to those interested the strenuous duties of the farmer.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: "Better late than never" may sound right, but does not show promptness.

I apologize for delay in writing, but I wish to convey to you the hearty thanks and appreciation of the deacons and members for the courtesy shown in giving the preliminary announcements of the Anniversary Services of the Park Street Baptist Church held last Sunday, May 20th, and also for the very able and interesting report of the services, and particulars of the church which you so kindly set forth in your valued paper.

Thanks, I know, are not of much commercial value, but when given with sincerity and gratitude no doubt engender a feeling of satisfaction and pleasure to the receiver in having done something helpful.

Walt Mason's Melodies

The soldier for the battle leaves, and to his girl he says, "My pet, I've donned my vambrace and my greaves, my pauldrons, hem and solleret. My country calls, and I must go, to fight for her on land or sea, and every time I bag a foe I'll think, Miranda Jane, of thee. We'd planned our wedding for this spring, the month of June should see us one; but there will be no wreath or ring until this righteous scrap is done. We'll join our hands when I come back from scenes of turmoil and of gore; I love you nine ways from the jack, but dear, I love my country more. You could not honor me, dear maid, if in your secret heart you knew that I was shrinking and afraid, when banners waved and bugles blew. I hear of young men wedding girls that they may dodge the battle line; those brides, alas, are casting pearls before the cheapest kind of swine. Unless I have my girl's respect I do not ask her for her love, and so I go forth to collect a lot of German scalps, my dove. My tassets, cuishes, shield are on, my gorget's fastened in its place; and so one kiss and then I'm gone, to make some Prussians run a race." WALT MASON.

Healthy Children

It is natural for little ones to be well, and with care every baby can be kept well. The main thing towards keeping little ones well is to keep their little stomachs sweet and their bowes regular. Baby's Own Tablets will do this. Thousands of mothers keep the Tabets in the house, as they find them an efficient guard against illness. Concerning them Mrs. Hilaire Desmarais, St. Joseph de Sorel, Que., writes: "I believe Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine in the world for children. My baby was terribly constipated but the Tablets promptly cured him, and now he is a big healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MAYOR MARTIN QUOTES LEADER

SIR WILFRID SAYS GOVERNMENT HAS NO RIGHT TO ENFORCE CONSCRIPTION.

MONTREAL, May 26.—An important statement made by Mayor Martin, at the anti-conscription meeting was missed by the reporters of the morning papers here because they were not able to get close enough to his Worship to hear what was being said, and because the din prevented his words from carrying. Mayor said that he was able to state that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would take the stand that Parliament has no right to pass conscription. He made no reference to a referendum and his words are taken to mean that the Liberal Chieftain will take the stand that Parliament has no right because its term of office has expired and that it legislates now only by grace of the Opposition.

NO RATIONING IN ENGLAND

MERSEY RIVER SWARMS WITH SHIPPING.

A Peterborough soldier boy, writing from England says "We are well looked after in England, and the pessimistic reports of camp life here, often circulated in Canada, are all wrong. The weather has been really wonderful, and I am quite pleased with the English summer so far."

To Avoid Bread Tickets.

He then goes on to say that there has been no rationing in England, and that the government is giving wide publicity to submarine losses to encourage voluntary economy and avoid resort to bread tickets.

Swarms of Ships.

Referring to his arrival at Liverpool he says the river was literally swarming with ships, and fishing smacks, and all had a warm welcome for us Canadins. We travelled from Liverpool to Shorncliffe at the speed of 60 miles an hour, which is not considered anything out of the ordinary here.

EMPIRE DAY AT THE CENTRAL

The pupils of Central School fittingly observed Empire Day Wednesday afternoon. The teachers instructed the pupils regarding the meaning of the flag and told them what it stands for.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson gave a very interesting address to the senior classes. He spoke ably of Confederation, and of men such as Sir John A. Macdonald and George Brown. Dr. Wilson pleased the pupils with his apt and interesting stories.

Miss M. V. Armstrong, a teacher of the staff, conducted the pupils in several patriotic songs.

There is a very healthy and patriotic spirit maintained at the Central, due largely to the interest taken in the pupils by the teachers.

HYDRO POWER NEEDED FOR ONTARIO MINES.

Mr. Kirkegaard Urges Construction of Dams to Hold Water Back.

(Toronto Globe.)

"Back to the land" is a cry which must mean more for Ontario than the mere cultivation of the soil, if it is to appeal to the returned soldier. The land must be cultivated deeper than the plow's shade. The proper development of the mineral resources of old Ontrio would provide work of all kinds, maimed or whole, in Canada's veteran army. This is a bold statement to make, but it can be substantiated by actual facts in the example of what is already being done under the present adverse conditions in Eastern Ontario. There are many examples, but for immediate purposes one will be sufficient.

Cordova gold mines are situated in Belmont township, county of Peterborough, 12 miles northeast of Havelock. These mines have been in operation for about twenty years, but owing to lack of cheap power they have not been developed to their full capacity. Coal nuggets are almost as valuable and expensive as gold nuggets these days, and this has been the chief drawback to mining development in Cordova.

What is the solution? Where are they to get this cheap power? The answer is, they want hydro. Millions of horsepower are running to waste every year in the small rivers of Eastern Ontario which, if harnessed, would bring that part of the country into the forefront of industry. In the course of an interview with Mr. Peter Kirkegaard, manager of the Cordova Mines, the Globe learned some illuminating facts in regard to the struggles of miners. Mr. Kirkegaard is an engineer of twenty years experience in mining in Canada, he knows the mining possibilities of Eastern Ontario, and he is ready to stake his reputation upon the following prophecy: "That country will be full of mines if they can get cheap power."

"How are they to get cheap power?" inquired the Globe.

"By damming the streams at the water heads. Take my own case, I have recently put in a 1,200 horsepower hydro plant at Cordova by damming the Deer River at that point. This has enabled me to dispense with steam power. But it is not sufficient. The Deer River extends sixty miles northward to a number of large lakes. During the spring freshets there is an abundance of water, but it is all gone by the end of June, because there are no dams to hold it back. The consequence is the work is demoralised and we have to stop working."

"We have at present sixty to seventy men working at the mines; they earn on an average $160 a month as long as we can get power."

"Suppose you got power, how many men would you be able to employ?"

"We could find work for five hundred men there with the mines working properly."

"This would mean, then, that where you at present have only about 350 people living at Cordova, you would, under more favorable conditoins, raise the population to between two and three thousand?"

"Certainly, Cordova would be a big town, with proper facilities for the development of mineral there. It is much pleasanter to live there than in Cobalt. In fact, some of the men who have worked in the north regard it as a summer resort in comparison."

"Could you employ returned soldiers in the work?"

"That is just what I have been trying to arrange for, but I have not been able to make much headway. A one-legged man is as good as a man with two legs for my purpose, so long as he has his head left."

"Are there other minerals besides gold in your district?"

"Yes, there are large deposits of iron ore in the district, and these are only waiting for power to work them. The conservation dams would not only benefit Cordova, but they would be of immense service to the country and vilalges to the north and south. There is no competition in mining; everybody profits by its increase. The holding up of the water in Deer River would serve to keep the water at high point in the Trent Valley Canal. I would be willing to put in the dam myself. But I would want some security of tenure for the future. The Hydro Commission has control of all streams, and they should either take hold of them or get out."

"What would it cost to build these dams on Deer River?"

"About seventy-five thousand dollars."

"Do you think that would be a good investment?"

"If the Government will develop the water powers in the small streams of the country, industries will grow up like mushrooms," concluded the man of mines.

Mr. Kirkegaard stated that the whole of his remarks regarding the Deer River and district apply with equal force to the Moira River, Hastings county. This district is perhaps still more interesting as a field for mining, not only in gold, but in minerals which are in great demand in distant parts of the Empire.

A century's supply of peat near Moscow has been acquired by a Russian company that will erect an electric plant and convert it into heat and light.

HEALTHIEST ONE IN THE FAMILY

No Sign Of Dropsy And Kidney Trouble Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

HATTIE WARREN

Port Robinson, Ont., July 8th, 1915.

"We have used "Fruit-a-tives" in our house for over three years and have always found them a good medicine. Our little girl, Hattie, was troubled with Kidney Disease. The Doctor said she was threatened with Dropsy. Her limbs and body were all swollen and we began to think she could not live. Finally, we decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". She began to show improvement after we had given her a few tablets. In a short time, the swelling had all gone down and her flesh began to look more natural. Now she is the healthiest one in the family and has no signs of the old ailment. We can not say too much for "Fruit-a-tives" and would never be without them".

LONDON, May 26.—An exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen reports that Christiania workmen laid down their tools yesterday and marched to the Parliament building where they presented a resolution demanding the prohibition of exportation of pronecessary to furnish food and raw visions and the seizure of all ships material for the country.

They also demanded that no German ships be permitted to enter Norwegian ports on the ground that they carried food from the country.

AWFUL WASTE OF WHISKEY

THIS LIQUOR STILL GOOD FOR MEDICINAL PURPOSES.

Because the sale of liquor as a beverage, otherwise than its purchase for private consumption, is now contrary to law that does not justify its wanton waste when confiscated by the authorities. Peterborough public and Inspector Stewart, in this connection, have been wide-awake to the value of liquor in its place, and are handing over to the hospitals all whiskey, etc., unlawfully imported by men like Switzer, willing to risk a $500 fine.

Kingston's chief of police, however, has been feeding the gutters with confiscated liquor, and this is an awful waste when Kingston hospitals have to pay out money to purchase liquor. Mayor Hughes on the 17th wrote Vice-Chairman W. S. Dingman, of the Ontario License Commission Board asking that whiskey seized here be divided among the two local hospitals and the Home for the Aged. This request has been granted and Kingston's gutters will not longer be inebriated by an exuberance of Chief Baillie's treating.

HOLSTEINS AT $270 EACH

Four Sell at Top Price By Auction At Kitchener

Kitchener, May 24.—A sale held by Mr. A. C. Hallman, of Waterloo county, thirty-nine Holsteins realized $6,640, a little over $170 per head. The range was from $65 to $270, four animals selling at the latter figure. Mr. R. M. Holtby, of Ontario county, bought two heifers, calved in November, daughters of Sir Korndyke, at $105 and $125, respectively.

LIEUT. TIERNEY IS LAID AT REST BY COMRADES

MARKED RESPECT FOR A POPULAR OFFICER OF OLD 2ND BATTALION.

The funeral of the late Lieut. Michael Tierney, who died in the Hotel Dieu on Monday took place on Wednesday morning from the Hotel Dieu to St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, where a soleman requiem mass was sung for the repose of his soul. The funeral was one of military nature, and was largely attended. The body was borne on a gun carriage furnished by the R. C. H. A., and a firing party of nineteen men from the Special Service Company followed the carriage. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. McNeill, after which the cortege formed to St. Mary's Cemetery. The pallbearers were: Col. Ackerman, Major Goodwin, Major Birdsall, Captain McNee, Capt. Graham, Capt. W. Swaine, and Lieut. Newlands.

Lieut. Tierney was one of the most efficient officers of the 2nd Battalion, and was the first officer to be wounded in France who died at Kingston. He was always a military man, being a drummer in the Dublin Fusiliers, the regiment to which Col. Perreau, commandant of the Royal Military College, belonged at the time. Lieut. Tierney was drummer. The dead lieutenant was at all times a gentleman and was well loved by all his fellow officers and men of the battalion.

G. L. MYLAND PRESIDENT.

Educational Association Make Sweeping Demands on Government.

Mr. George L. Myland, of the local Typographical Union, was elected president of the Ontario Educational Association, which held its annual meeting at London on Thursday. The session next year will be held at Niagara Falls.

The association on Thursday adopted resolutions calling forf tfhe appointment of a food controller, the nationalization of cold storage plants and railways, a tax on war profits, and the reorgnaization of the pension commission. Conscription was not discussed.

It was decided to hold a convention of representative men at some central point in the near future to organize an independent politcal party for Ontario.

CANADA'S SEMI-CENTENNIAL

Service in London To Be Attended By Kng and Queen

OTTAWA, May 26.—A memorandum from the Minister of Militia last night says: "There will be held in Westminster Abbey, London, on July 2nd, a solemn service in commemoration of the semi-centennial of the Dominion, and also in memory of the Canadians who have fallen in the war.

"The King and Queen have graciously promised to be present and a good many Canadian troops in England will be present on that occasion.

.. SINN FEINERS STAY OUT

Decline To Attend Conference Unless They Can Dictate Its Decision

DUBLIN, May 26.—The Sinn Fein conference unanimously resolved to decline to participate in any conference called by the English Government ostensibly to settle the Irish question until the following conditions are fulfilled:—

First—That the terms referring the question to the conference leave it free to decree the complete independence of Ireland.

Second—That the English Government publicly pledge itself to the United States and the powers of Europe to ratify the decision of a majority of the conference.

Third—That the convention consist of persons freely elected by the adult suffrage of Ireland.

Fourth—That prisoner of war treatment is accorded the Irish prisoners arrested during the recent revolution.

KING GEORGE SETS EXAMPLE

BUSY IN HIS GARDEN DIGGING HIS OWN POTATO PATCH.

There are yet many lots in the city and outlying districts not under cultivation, despite the warning that a world-famine in 1918 is a long way removed from being improbable. Of course growing food products entails labor and initial expense, but is at all events not so hazardous as fighting in the trenchs, where so many of our brave boys are even paying the supreme sacrifice. His Majesty King George has enjoined all his subjects to do their bit, if only in the garden. And he sets a worthy example himself, for he can be seen most afternoons in Windsor Park cultivating a potato patch which he started himself when the general allotment scheme was initiated. Princess Mary is also the owner of an allotment adjoining her father's and one of the young princes puts in a good deal of time on a small patch of vegetables.

Perfect Health Due to the Blood

No Girl or Woman Need be Constantly Ailing and Unhappy

Nature intended every girl and every woman to be happy, attractive, active and healthy. Yet too many of them find their lives saddened by suffering—nearly always because their blood is to blame. All these unhappy girls and women with colorless cheeks, dull skins and sunken lusterless eyes, are in this condition because they have not enough blood in their veins to keep them well and in the charm of health. They suffer from depresing weariness and periodical headaches. Dark lines form under their eyes, their heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion, and they are often attacked with fainting spells. These are only a few of the miseries of bloodlessness. Nothing can secure girls and women from the inevitable decline that follows anaemia except a generous supply of new, rich, red blood, and nothing has ever proved so successful in creating red, good blood as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Thousands and thousands of girls and women owe their good health and charming complexion to the use of this medicine. Here is one example of its power and cure. Miss Dorina Bastien, St. Jerome, Que., says: For over a year my health was gradually failing, my blood seemed almost to have turned to water, my cheeks were pale, my lips bloodless, and the slightest exertion left me breathless. I suffered frequently from severe headaches, my appetite failed, and my friends feared I was going into consumption. I had been doctoring but did not derive any benefit, and finally I had to give up my work and return home. It was at this stage that a friend brought me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. By the time the box was used I thought they were helping me, and decided to continue using the pills. I took a half dozen boxes more, when my strength had completely returned, my appetite was restored, my color returned, headaches had disappeared and I was feeling better than I had done for years. I would urge every week and ailing girl to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW MEMBER RECEIVED

Thursday Was Field Day With Knights of Columbus.

Thursday was a great day for the local members of the Knights of Columbus, it being one of the days set for a general provincial initiation. The local team went to Brantford, where they put through a large number of new members.

At the local headquarters the ceremonies were in charge of the team from Montreal, and over seventy-five candidates from this district were put through their final degrees. A large attendance from Campbellford, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay and other places was present.

The visiting members were entertained to a banquet by the local lodge in the evening.

AS an advertisement of the opening of our new Ottawa store we will give these Prizes to the persons sending in the Neatest Correct Solutions of the FIFTEEN PROBLEM. There is positively no "Lot Casting," "Drawing," or "Chance" connected with the distribution of these prizes—it is a contest of skill. The contestant sending in the Neatest Correct Solution will be awarded the first prize; the contestant sending the "second best" Neatest Correct Solution will be awarded the Second Prize—and so on until the entire HUNDRED PRIZES are distributed. In case of a tie, each contestant will receive equal rewards.

Why we do this

Instead of spending Thousands of Dollars in expensive advertisements, high-priced solicitors who annoy you frequently, also many other methods which all merely add to the price of the piano and which the purchaser pays in the end, we believe in giving the cost of all this expense direct to the customer.

The Percival Piano Co. is a subsidiary concern of the old and well-known Percival Plow and Stove Co., of Merrickville, of 70 years' standing. Ask any Bank who we are.

THE WORK OF THE RED CROSS

The care of the Peterborough men who are prisoners of war has always been a matter of grave concern to the local society, which is unanimous in its desire, that so far as lies in its power, those who have fought for us and who are now prisoners in an unfriendly and far off land shall not want for anything that will help to make their exile more bearable than it would otherwise be.

Every month the treasurer forwards the sum of five hundred dollars to Mrs. Rivers Bulkeley in London, England, to pay for the parcels of food and bread sent to our own boys. In every parcel sent is a card intimating that the parcel is from the Peterborough Red Cross Society, so in addition to the required food the cheering assurance is carried to the receiver that his home city remembers him in his enforced exile from friends and home.

Do the Boys Get the Parcels?

Yes, they do. Acknowledgments are reaching us constantly. Around Christmas time there was considerable delay and many non-arrivals. We sympathized most warmly and to the fullest extent with the anxiety of friends, but it is only fair and just to the society to say that the dislocation and delay was not its fault, it can only send the parcels regularly; the rest of the transaction is controlled by the Germans.

In December the Germans closed all railways for three weeks, and no parcels were delivered to prisoners, but the reason for this, and for non delivery in other weeks is not known. However, the boys are now getting them again and the temporary disarrangement seems over. The society will continue to guarantee their regular and systematic despatch by British mail boats and not by uncertain neutral shipping and trust that the Germans will continue to deliver them. Acknowledgements have been received recently from:

Gunner LeBar, Corp. I. L. Davis, Corp. A. Dickson, Ptes. E. Orford, C. Fraser Davison, Arnold Parrington, Alex. Benzie, A. Pritchard, F. Pearce, B. Davidson, H. S. Rodgers, E. Stanley, A. David, T. Casey, E. Martin, H. Godfrey, Geo. Hutchison, E. Crofts, A. Bartley, C. M. Drummond, I. G. Graham, H. Devins, H. Evans, H. Lawrence.

C. M. Drummond sends his acknowledgement on a card in which he is photographed along with thirty-three other prisoners. His friends will be glad to know he is looking well and fit. All the boys say the parcels arrive in good condition.

Pte. A. Benzie sends warm thanks for the parcels which arrive in good condition. He wishes us to thank the Peterborough Soldiers' Wives and Mothers Club for a Christmas parcel sent by them. He complains of the transitory delay then being experienced, but now happily overcome:

CHANGE OF CAMP.

We have been notified by the Canadian Red Cross Prisoners of War Dept. that Lieut. Chas. V. Feesenden and Lieut. Massey Cooke have been moved to Crefieed, West Germany, and Lieut. H. G. Rogers to Clansthal, Hanover, Germany.

NUMBER OF PARCELS.

The boys are now receiving three parcels every two weeks, six a month, this being the maximum allowance permitted under the new regulations. In addition to the parcels of food thirteen pounds of bread is sent every two weeks to each prisoner.

COST OF PARCELS.

Parcels and bread now cost twelve dollars per prisoner each month.

Directly on receipt of information that a man is taken prisoner, a parcel of clothing and other needful things is despatched to him. The prisoners are sent clothing when required, and warmer underclothing, sweater coats, topcoats, etc., are sent before cold weather sets in.

NUMBER OF PRISONERS.

There are forty-one Peterborough boys prisoners.

Formerly some of the prisoners assigned 10 10 or 12 shillings monthly to the Canadian Red Cross in part payment of their parcels, but this arrangement has been cancelled, and nothing is taken from the prisoners. This department of the society's work now depends entirely and altogether on the voluntary giving of the people of Canada to enable them to carry on this absolutely needful branch of its work. This they feel they can continue to do with confidence, feeling certain that the necessary money will be forthcoming.

SUBSCRIBERS TO PRISONERS FUND.

We have some faithful subscribers who contribute month by month to this branch of our work, but we would gladly welcome others, every little helps, and though we are glad to send our $500 to pay for our own boys, it is a large amount out of our monthly income. Supplies of all kinds are needed more badly than ever, the casualty lists are proof of that, as some would be glad of more gifts to our Prisoners' Fund, to relieve our monthly income in order to enable us to purchase bigger supplies. Will those who can respond do so, your money could not be donated to a worthier cause.

SERGEANT EDWARDS' VISIT.

Sergt. Edwards is one of the few remaining members of the Princess Pats Battalion. He was taken prisoner, and failed in his first attempt to escape, but succeeded the second time. We are endeavouring to secure Sergt. Edwards for an evening to tell us of his eighteen months' experience as a prisoner in a German camp. We hope soon to be able to announce the date. Sergt. Edwards will answer any questions as to Red Cross parcels, camp conditions, treatments, etc.

WAGE INCREASE FOR C.P.R. MEN

EMPLOYES WILL BE RAISED FROM 18 TO 25 PER CENT.

It is announced that the C. P. R. engineers, conductors, baggagemen, trainmen, firemen, and yardmen in the passenger and freight service, have been granted an increase of wages averaging from 18 to 25 per cent.

The increase, when it comes into force, will affect about 2,000 men in the Ontario district. The engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, and baggagemen are paid on a basis of 100-mile runs, while the yardmen are paid by the hour on a basis of a ten-hour day. It is stated that the conductors, brakemen and baggagemen, firemen, and yardmen will get 25 per cent increase. For instance a passenger engineer now getting $4.29 for a 100-mile run, will be paid $4.52. This new scale brings the C. P. R. men above the rate of the Grand Trunk, who received an increase last September, which put them on the same basis as the C. P. R. present scale.

C.P.R. engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, and baggagemen receive the following rate of pay on a 100-mile basis:

Conductors, passenger service, $2.90; freight service, $4.00; way freight, $4.50.

Engineers, passenger service, $4.18 to $4.29; freight service, $4.79 to $5.11.

Firemen, passenger, $2.60; freight. $2.86.

Baggagemen, $1.65; passenger service, $1.60; freight servile, $2.67; way freight, $3.00.

Woman Who Was Thought Dead But Was Alive

PORT PERRY CORONER RESPONDS, TO VIEW A LIVING SUBJECT.

A great excitement was caused at Manchester station a few days ago when a woman, suddenly disappeared after getting off the Toronto train. Some days later she was discovered by some children lying under the pine trees to the north west of the station. Her face was covered, and the farmers deemed it wise not to touch her, or remove the coat from her face. Coroner Mellow of Port Perry rushed to the scene, and found the woman to be quite alive. She was taken to Port Perry and subsequently sent to Toronto. She said her name was O'Leary, and that she was in search of work. The unforturate woman had lain there for two dys; her clothes were soaked, and stuck to the ground, and she was exhausted from hunger.

GOSPEL HALL.

Mr. Geo. Nun of Hamilton will speak at Gospel Hall on Sunday night. He has travelled and preached for over twenty years paying all his own expenses and is one of the most forcible speakers of the present time. He will hold only one meeting here, Sunday night at seven o'clock.

The yardmen who work on a ten-hour basis get at present the following scale: Day work, helper, 35 cents; foreman, 38 cents; night work, helper, 37 cents; foreman, 40 cents.

Artificial Coloring of Sugar Prohibited by the Government

FOR many years the Canadian Public has been eating Artificially Colored Sugars. Government reports show that some refineries have used Ultramarine Blue to make their granulated sugar look better than it actually is. Others made use of Aniline and Vegetable Dyes to give a brilliant appearance to their soft or yellow sugars.

The use of dyes or coloring matter of any kind is unnecessary in refining Cane Sugar. This is emphasized in a notification sent to all refiners by the Dominion Government prohibiting the coloring of sugar, and in cases where it is found, prosecution proceedings will be entered under the Adulteration of Foods Act.

We Wish the Public to Know that we Have Never Used Coloring Matter in Lantic Pure Cane Sugar and Never Will Lantic Pure Cane Sugar was first put on the market about two years ago. Since that time over 200,000,000 lbs. have been consumed by the Canadian public, and we are now turning out 750,000 lbs. of Pure Cane Sugar each day.

The reason for this enormous business is not hard to explain. It means that the discriminating consumer has learned by actual use that Lantic Pure Cane Sugar is superior to all others.

Having erected the most modern sugar refinery in the world, costing over $4,000,000, we steadfastly adhered to our original policy of making only absolutely Pure Cane Sugars of highest quality, in which

NO BEETS ARE USED
NO ULTRAMARINE BLUE IS USED
NO ANILINE DYES ARE USED
NO VEGETABLE DYES ARE USED

During the last two years we were told that we could increase our business in certain sections of Canada, if we would color our yellow soft sugars, as the public were accustomed to the more brilliant color. We refused and are glad we did so. The recent action of the Government has since vindicated our judgment.

Look for the Red Ball Trade-mark

To be absolutely certain of getting Lantic Pure Cane Sugar, see that the Red Ball Trade-mark is on every bag or carton. It is our guaranty to you of Canada's Purest Sugar.

Your grocer has Lantic Sugar in stock or will get it for you if you insist.

LAUNDRY PRICES GO UP.

Chinamen Charge More For Collars And Shirts.

At a meeting of Chinese laundrymen in Toronto it was decided to increase the prices of laundry, the new scale to go into effect immediately. For instance, collars, which were formerly cleaned at two cents each, will now be charged at the rate of two for five cents. Shirts, for which ten cents were formerly charged, will now be twelve cents, while a small increase is being made on all other kinds of laundry.

The laundry prices in Peterborough remain at the old figure but an increase is not improbable here.

INCREASE FOR POLICE.

London Constables Will Now Draw $90 a Month.

The police commission at a session held to consider the grievances of the men, who for some time have been deserting the force in alarming numbers, granted an all-round increase of 25 cents a day to the sta".

Thus first-class constables of the rank and file will hereafter draw approximately $90 a month, but they will work every day in the month for it. The men expressed their gratification at the action of the commission, and it is believed that grievances which have for some time caused a restless spirit in the department will disappear.

SPECIAL SERMONS AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

The services at the George Street Methodist Church tomorrow will be of a very interesting character. In the morning Rev. Mr. Peever's subject will be "A model congregation in worship" or "The Challenge of the Pew to the Pulpit." At the evening service Mr. Peever will speak on the subject "The Empire, Canada and Conscription" and the congregation will sing for its closing hymn the American National Anthem.

WHEAT TUMBLES NEAR OMEMEE

The G. T. R. grain train from Midland met with a mishap at Omemee this morning, when seven cars of wheat left the track and went over on their side. Fortunately the accident occurred between switches, so that there was no interruption to traffic.

The Lindsay auxiliary went to the scene of the accident.

In India the widow formerly burned herself for her husband. The American widow takes another husband and roasts him.

THE TRANSCONTINENTAL.

The interested railways — Grand Trunk, Temiskaming & Northern Ontario, and the Canadian Government Railways—forming the line between Toronto and Winnipeg, over which "The National" runs, have issued a very comprehensive and interesting booklet with the title "Illustrated Descriptive Notes." The text describes the principal features en ronute between the two cities mentioned, is profusely illustrated and contains a fund of information quite new to the travellers. A copy may be had for the asking. Apply to C. E. Horning, Union Station, Toronto.

GET READY FOR AFTERWAR WORK

SOLDIERS ADVISED TO GO TO WORK ON FARMS.

LONDON, May 26.—With a view to overcoming difficulties arising on demobilization instructions have been issued to Canadian Forces overseas to obtain information from every officer and man at present serving, to be returned on a card containing questions relating to personal circumstances. Three questions relate to the scheme of agricultural settlement. The men are asked: Do you desire to take advantage of a scheme to assist settlement after the war

Which province do you prefer for settlement in

Would you work at prevailing wages on a farm to gain experience provided your dependants were meanwhile given the same support as they now receive?

The men are specially advised by Headquarters to carefully consider these questions, and be prepared for a final answer at an early date.

Sad Drowning at Fenelon Falls Yesterday A.M.

JOHN WELCH OF LINDSAY FALLS FROM G.T.R. BRIDGE.

A sad drowning accident occurred yesterdal morning at Fenelon Falls at about 10.30 o'clock, when John Welsh, of Lindsay, a painter, employed by the G.T.R., lost his life.

The unfortunate man, with another workman, was engaged in painting the G.T.R. bridge. They were working over the water on a plank, when one of the ropes attached to the top of the bridge became loose, allowing the plank to tilt and precipitating Mr. Welsh into the water. His companion was unable to render any assistance, and Welsh's body soon disappeared from view.

The news of the drowning spread like wildfire through the village, and steps were immediately taken with a view to recovering the body, which was found a short distance from the bridge about one o'clock.

The news of the sad fatality was received in Lindsay with keen regret by Mr. Welsh's friends, and was a bad blow to his relatives, and especially his widowed mother and also his wife, who is left with three small children. Mrs. Welsh was a Miss Guerin, of Peterboro. The deceased is also survived by two brothers, Andrew, of Toronto; and Stafford, of Lindsay.

Naturally a man would rather part his hair than part with it.

A NEW COTTAGE.

The steamer "Stoney Lake" left yesterday for Stoney Lake carrying a large cargo of building supplies for Mr. G. Walter Green's new cottage at the island formerly owned by the late William Stubbs.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT.

The Packing Committee of the Canadian Kitchener League are preparing for another shipment to the trenches, on Tuesday, May 29th, and they ask all those with socks on hand to please turn them in before this date.

ELLIOT'S

Studebaker

Established 1852

AN INVESTMENT

When you purchase a Series 18 Studebaker FOUR or SIX you buy a car made in Canada by a permanent Canadian institution. There's a uniform price range that is the same to every purchaser. And every Studebaker owner is assured of always being able to obtain the necessary parts and replacements at lowest possible cost.

People who buy cars as an investment buy cars with a name back of them—like the name Studebaker. They buy them with a clear view of the ultimate return.

Almost any car runs good and looks good, and is good, in its fresh new paint and shining metal work when it is new; but consider it six months from now—a year from now, or two years from now—on this basis the Canada-built Studebaker is a sounder investment than any other car.

But come in and see the new Series 18 Studebaker cars—let us show you just why Studebaker leads the world in the production of fine cars at a medium price.

MARKET PRICES

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

The market this morning was not a very large one and as a result prices were very much stronger than last week.

Eggs which last week sold at 40 cents found a ready sale at 42 and 43. Butter was unchanged at 43 to 45c and there was a liberal supply despite the fact that most of the farmers are sending their milk to the factories. Fowl was in demand and sold at all kinds of prices. A good hen would fetch anywhere from $1.00 to $1.50. A few turkeys were disposed of at 25c per lb.

The outside market was very much in evidence owing to the great number of small pigs on sale.

Potatoes were also offered at $4.00 to $4.50 per bag and their was a plentiful supply of greens of all kinds.

Hogs are on the downward path and are quoted at $16.00 for next week's delivery. The packers are well filled with supplies and shipments are being delayed owing to the scarcity of steamer service.

The Markets at a Glance

Flour was on the down trend during the week, a decline of 90c per barrel having been recorded, which makes a total decline of $2 from the high quotations recently reached. There is a feeling that the market is taking on a more settled condition. With the possibility of the appointment of a food controller for Canada there is a strong probability that the upward tend in prices may be checked to a certain extent in other lines. Sugar declined 15c per hundred during the week on the part of our refiners. Encouraging reports continue to come forward from Cuba and the hope is beginning to grow that production might be larger than was at one time anticipated.

One importer of beans stated that some three thousand tons of Rangoon beans had been placed on board ship at Burmah on his account and that there was every possibility that this shipment would be received. Should this ship arrive the bean situation will be helped materially. The arrival at Boston during the latter part of last week of a steamer direct from from Ceylon, carrying some tea as part of her cargo will give a little better supply for the Canadian market. It was rumored at one time that this ship had been sunk.

Canned goods are in firm market, advances having been recorded in some centres. Prunes and dates are also in firm position with advances made in these lines during the week. Other lines in which advances have occurred include cream of tartar, cornstarches, meats, butter, eggs, soaps, washboards, lantern globes, jellies, canned meats, cocoanut. Business continued good during the week.

SOME FINE CATTLE

Mr. Monte Wilson brought to Peterboro yesterday 22 head of cattle from the farm of Mr. Thomas Wood, of Hope Township. The herd are mostly steers and are of Durham and Polled Angus breed. The bunch were sold to Mr. James Jopling, and will be dressed for their local market. All of the beeves are well finished, and bespeak exceptional feeding on the part of Mr. Wood.

RETURNED SOLDIERS ARE READY TO TAKE UP FARMS

Census Among Canadians Now Overseas Shows Large Number Are Agriculturally Inclined.

While Private Citizen Smith and Private Citizen Brown are discussing and wondering "whether the returned soldier will go in for farming." Private Soldier Smith and Private Soldier Brown are—doing it.

Not till the able-bodied men return can we tell how many soldiers are likely to take up land and farm it. The chances are that the number will be large, if the men are convinced that the scheme for helping them will be so developed and worked as to offer a clear hope of success.

A census is now being taken among the Canadian soldiers overseas, and on this it should be possible to base an estimate of the number agriculturally inclined. The card issued for the purpose by the National Service Commission includes spaces to be filled up with each man's name, age, unit and rank, regimental number, P. O. address before enlistment, and Province. Each soldier is then asked to answer the following questions:

"Which are you, married, single or widower?"

"Name and address of last employer before you enlisted?"

"How many dependents have you? State relationship, sex and age of each."

"What were you working at?"

"Have you a trade or profession? If so, what "

"Is your old position open for you on your return to Canada in fit condition?"

"Do you wish to take your discharge in Great Britain?"

"Do you propose to make your home in Canada after the war?"

"Do you wish to take up farming as an occupation?"

"Have you ever worked on a farm? If so, how long?"

"How much money do you expect to have at your disposal on your return to Canada?"

"Do you desire to take advantage of any available scheme of assisted agricultural settlement?"

"If so, what Province do you prefer to settle in?"

"And would you, if necessary to gain experience, work for prevailing wages on a farm after your return, providing your dependents were in the meanwhile given the same support as they now receive?"

Meanwhile the men already back among us are those who have been invalided home. Men recovering from an illness, or disabled seriously enough to prevent their return to the firing line, do not at first feel like taking up the strenuous life of a farm.

Nevertheless, the vanguard of the military farming force is already on the spot. Several months ago four returned soldiers in Alberta enrolled themselves as students in one of the provincial agricultural schools at Vermilion. Today the records of the Military Hospitals Commission show that seventy-five men have had their applications granted for agricultural training, besides several passed by the Disabled Soldiers' Training Boards and awaiting the Commission's approval. Of these seventy-five, as many as thirty-seven are in Alberta, twenty-two in Saskatchewan, fourteen in Manitoba, and the other two in British Columbia. A considerable proportion are specialising in farm mechanics.

TWO FLAGS THAT HAVE BUT ONE SINGLE PURPOSE NOW

Union Jack and Stars and Stripes Fly Together on Stage of Grand Opera House While Audience Cheer.

A capacity house again greeted the beautiful opera "A Greek Slave" on its final presentation last night, when an enthusiastic audience gave the performers ovation after ovation. Bouquets of flowers were presented, and Mr. Devey allowed encores to several numbers, but had the audience been allowed full play the performance would have run well over midnight. The way last night's audience picked up the run of the play was remarkable, and the most tense interest could be felt when during the famous "Invocation" scene, a short pause before Eros began to sing, revealed the most intense silence.

Needless to say, the concerto which followed was splendidly rendered, and the house fairly rang with such genuine applause as is seldom called forth by amateurs. Mr. and Mrs. Devey have been overwhelmed with congratulations on the successful production of such a beautiful play. During the singing of "God Save the King" the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were borne along the front of the stage amid great cheering.

After the curtain fell, cheers were given for Mr. and Mrs. Devey by the company, who have thoroughly enjoyed such a grand culmination to the steady preparation which has been very strenuous during the last few weeks.

NO RACES AFTER THIS SEASON

HORSEMEN AGREE THAT SPORT WILL BE GIVEN UP UNTIL WAR ENDS.

OTTAWA, Ont, May 26.—The adoption of a bill to stop racing in Canada during the duration of the war may not be necessary, if a proposal made by a number of representative racing men who waited upon Sir Robert Borden and Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, is accepted by the Government. The racing men offered to put a complete stop to racing after the fall meets are held this year, and told the Government that if this were agreed to it would not be necessary to introduce legislation, for they were willing to promise that no track fixtures would be arranged for next summer or until after the close of the war.

Consideration of the proposal was promised by the Gopernment, and it is generally believed that the compromise suggested will be accepted.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

JOHNSTON—FIFE.

A quiet but pretty wedding was performed at the home of Mr. Isaac Fife on Stewart street, when Rev. R. G. Peever united in marriage, Mr. James D. Johnston, son of William James Johnston, and Miss Lillian May Fife. The father gave the bride away. The happy couple left for Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt, of Toronto, Master Rankin, and Mrs. J. W. Beatty, of Toronto, motored to Peterboro and spent the holiday here.

Mrs. E. C. McLeod and son, of Jamaica, B.W.I., are in the city and are stopping at the Empress.

Mr. J. M. Goulnlock, Miss E. M. Goulnlock, Mrs C. Founta'n and Miss B. Grayson motored to the city to-day, and after lunching at the Empress, proceeded to the Back Lakes.

Mr. A. H. Stratton has received word that his son, Lieut. Wilfrid Stratton, with the Royal Flying Corps, is in No. 2 Stationary Hospital, France, suffering from an attack of para-typhoid fever. He is doing well.

Miss Evelyn McKinnonand, Miss Florence Westall are visiting friends in Lindsay.

Mrs. T. B. McGrath is visiting friends in Lindsay.

Mr. T. R. Bell is spending the week-end with his parents in Lindsay.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. L. H. Rowand of Toronto will arrive in the city today.

On account of the many requests for a repetition of the Y. W. C. A. gymnasimu exhibition, the same program will be given on Monday evening, May 28th. A limited number of tickets are on sale at 15c.

Mrs. W. J. Miller, of Peterboro is in Lindsay visiting at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. W. J. Ferguson.

Dr. J. H. Eastwood has received a letter from his son, Lieut. William Eastwood, a member of the Royal Flying Corps. He was reently in an accident in which his airship was burned and the observer killed, but escaped without serious injury. At the time of writing he was on leave in England.

Misses Gladys and Irene Gollop of Stewart street are spending the week-end with friends in Toronto and Brampton.

Kenneth Crane is spending the holiday in town and leaves on Monday for Toronto University to take a preparatory course before going into the Canadian Flying Corp.

Miss Kathleen White, of St. Catharines, is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. E. White, 474 Bolivar street.

Mrs. Richard King, Charlottt St., is confined to her room with an attack of appendecitis.

Lieut.-Col. Joseph Mills is in the city, and will spend the week end at his home here.

Mr. H. M. East and party, of Toronto are in the city on their way to Clear Lake where they will spend the summer months.

Mr. F. E Harris, of Gore's Landing, was in the city to-day.

OBITUARY

CLARA CAMPBELL

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital, Friday night at twelve o'clock of Miss Clara Campbell, daughter of Mrs. Alexander Campbell, of 563 George Street Miss Campbell was a member of St Paul's Church and was present at three services last Sabbath, she bting a member of the Bible class, of which the pastor is teacher

She underwent a serious operation on Wednesday, and though it seemed to be quite successful, heart failure developed yesterday, and she passed quietly away at midnight on Friday. She leaves to mourn her loss her widowed mother, with whom she lived, her sister, Mrs. W. J. Mein, East City; and two sisters, who reside in Edmonton, Mrs. J. Miller and Mrs. A. Shearer; and a brother, Mr. R. H. Campbell, of Keene. A brief service will be held on Sunday night at 8.30 o'clock for the immediate friends at her home. Then the funeral will take place at Keene on Monday at 12 o'clock. No service will be held at the house on Monday, but a service will be held in the church at Keene before burial. The request is made to omit flowers.

Those Old Favorites Our Mothers Sang

Unique Concert at Murray St. Baptist Church Tuesday Evening.

The Murray Street Baptist Church choir will give their first concert on Tuesday evening next in the church, and a feature of the entertainment will be the singing of a number of selections that were popular long ago, the songs our mothers sang. A bright and interesting program has been in rehearsal for weeks back, and as the sale of tickets has been brisk, a record crowd is expected. Those who have had the privilege of hearing this choir at the regular Sunday services need no assurance that the concert Tuesday night will be something out of the ordinary. The old favorite hymns that have been sung on different occasions were always popular with the congregation.

The Murray Street choir includes a large number of the finest solo voices in the city and is being assisted by Mrs. L. J. Pettit, the well-known elocutionist, and eighteen young ladies who will give a drill exhibition under the direction of Miss Carrie Littlefield, physical director of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Ida Sanderson will act as pianist and accompanist.

One feature of the program will be the initial appearance of the newly-organized Olympic Quartette, comprising Messrs. Asa Huycke, manager and second bass; Edward Jones, first tenor; Harold Jones, second tenor, and Thomas Ward, first bass. The choral numbers include Gounod's descriptive "Babylon's Wave," "Unfold Ye Portals," the mighty chorus from "The Redemption," the sprightly old English madrigal, "You Stole My Love," and a fine medley of old favorite songs.

Another feature will be an anthem of Mr. Asa Huycke's own composition. Mr. Huycke has chosen the hymn "There Is a Land of Pure Delight," and has put a splendid musical setting to the fine old selection. He will be remembered as the composer of the March Irresistible, Memory's Flowers, and others. All in all the program is one of the most attractive ever offered to the music-lovers of Peterborough.

FINAL WARNING GIVEN.

Tax Collector Green has issued the final warning to the delinquent poll tax payers. He will remain in hi office until 9 o'clock this evening for the benefit of those who cannot get up town during the day. Those who fail to pay up tonight will be summoned to appear before the Police Magistrate, and the costs in the cases are very heavy. If you have not paid, get hold of your $5 and see Mr. Green

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Samuel McKinlay, beloved husband of Elizabeth McKinlay, who departed this life on Friday, May 26th, 1916, at 310 Margaret Avenue:

Day by day we saw him fade
And gently sink away,
Yet in our hearts we prayed
That he might longer stay.

Affliction sore he with patience bore,
Physicians were in vain;
Till God above, in His great love
Released him from his pain.

The cup is bitter, the sting severe,
To part from him we love so dear;
The trial is hard, we'll not complain,
But hope in Christ to meet again.

Inserted by his wife, 493 Aylmer St

Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS

from other lines of work in Peterborough are far above the average. This is true of the physical work which the local Y.M.C.A. demonstrated by standing second in Canada in the annual Y.M.C.A. Hexathlon events. The local Y.M.C.A. was ninth on the continent in this Hexathlon contest; 108 boys competing against more than 900 boys from 82 leading cities of America. Fifty boys secured certificates for Bible study examinations this past year, which is also a most remarkable result.

Aside from all other receipts and not including an outstanding deficit the Association will want $5,000 to cover the current expenses to December 31st.

The Association is not self supporting and cannot be made so fully without placing the membership fee collected from the young men who are benefitted by the Association at such a large figure as to exclude those who need the influence of the work most. At the present time the membership fees cover about one-third of the expenses. The revenues from dormitories, etc., together with the memberships cover about fifty per cent of the expenses. Indeed in normal times it is thought that the revenues from these sources can be made to cover 75 per cent of the expenses of the work. During the past two years the membership receipts have been very much below normal in view of the fact that it has been the policy of the local association to grant free privileges to all enlisted men. Therefore, the association has granted free privileges to over 1600 soldiers who have enlisted in Peterborough including the 285 members of the association at the front from whom membership fees have been waived.

War Deficit of $5000.

The association has a war deficit of $5,000 that it would like to include with the budget for the year. The conference of business men to be held on Tuesday evening will determine the advisability of trying to raise $10,000 for the association this year to cover the regular budget and the war deficit mentioned. The expression war deficit is used advisedly as the association was cleared of the debt by a special canvass in 1912. The present deficit dates from 1914 as the canvass for subscriptions scheduled for the fall of that year was made possible due to the opening of the war, necessitating the association carrying forward $3300 of its budget uncovered. Nearly two thousand dollars has been added to this amount during the past two years by the shrinkages of memberships due to the free privileges granted soldiers as heretofore mentioned, together with the increase of expenses. Friends of the association will understand that it would have been very unwise move on the part of the local association to curtail its helpful programme of work during the years of the war when opportunities for service were greater than ever before; so we trust that they will give their hearty support to the association as it seeks to cover its needs during the next two weeks.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT MARK STREET CHURCH.

The services at the Mark Street Methodist Church tomorrow will be of special interest. In the morning the Pastor will speak on the subject "The Model Churchman." A Reception service for those uniting with the church will be held. In the evening the service will be of a patriotic character in memory of Ptes. Chester R. Craft, J. Howard Rowe and Jno. G. Miler, members of the Mark Street Honor Roll who have recently paid the supreme price on the field of battle. At this service the pastor will be assisted by Lieut.-Col. Johnston and His Honor Judge Huycke.

RUSS PEASANTS STILL FOR WAR

FIERCE BATTLE IN PROGRESS BETWEEN FRENCH AND HUNS

French Steadily Winning and May Force Germans to Retire to Meuse.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, May 28.—News Agency despatch says that with the French armies steadily through one entire week a battle has been raging around Craonne which may ultimately force Germany's retirement to the Meuse. French communiques have not mentioned the fighting except incidentally but it has continued incessantly, bitterly and victoriously for the French. Already French troops have descended from the Laon Plateau into the Valley of Miette. Today they were steadily driving a two edged and fatal wedge into the German lines.

Once this wedge is sufficiently plunged into the enemy's front the French can turn either north or south in both directions simultaneous. A successful movement in either direction will be sufficient to force the Germans to retirement to the Meuse line to save the Hindenburg front northward through St. Quentin, Cambrai and Douai. Already the battle has advanced sufficiently to insure this result if it continues favorable to the French but several weeks continuous operations are likely before the decisive moment in this stroke is reached.

That the Germans appreciate the exact degree of menace was indicated today in the number and fierceness of the enemy counter attacks launched against the French.

BRITISH TAKE HUN PRISONERS

LONDON, May 28.—Hostile raiding parties were repulsed last night northwest of Cherisy and south of Lens, says today's official report. We inflicted a number of casualties on the enemy by rifle and machine gun fire and secured prisoners. Successful raids were made by us north of Armentieres and in the neighborhood of Wytschaete. Our troops reached the German support line and captured between twenty and thirty prisoners.

TRENCHES FILLED WITH DEAD.

PARIS, May 28.—The war office announces the Germans delivered three attacks last night and this morning in Champagne in the regions of Casque, the Teuton and Mont Blond. All were repulsed. The Germans are heavily bombarding French positions in the regions of Dead Man's Hill and Hill 304 on the Verdun front. French detachments penetrated to the second German line near Uffholtz in Alsace and found many dead in trenches. Prisoners were brought back.

AUSTRIA CLAIMS VICTORY.

LONDON, May 28.—An Austrian war office statement issued Sunday claims the repulse of all Italian attacks after most furious fighting and the capture of thirteen thousand unwounded Italians.

On Russian Front.

PETROGRAD, May 28.—On the Russo-Galician and Roumanian fronts rifle firing occurred, says today's official statement.

On the Caucasian front two Turkish attempts against the heights south of Banehpn near the Persian frontier were repulsed by our fire.

Twelve bombs were thrown from enemy airplanes on our airdrome northwest of Luninsta.

Berlin's Claims.

BERLIN, May 28.—German troops yesterday captured a line of French trenches on the Poehlberg and the Keilberg, south of Moronvilliers, in Champagne the region, together with more than 250 prisoners, army head quarters announced today.

HUNS SHOW NO MERCY.

LONDON, May 28. — The intention of the German Government to sink all Entente hospital ships in the entire "barred zone" with the exception of certain ships from Saloniki to Gibraltar, is semi-officially announced in Berlin, according to a Reuter despatch from Amsterdam. The German announcement was made in referace to British denials of the German allegations that the British misused hospital ships It cited several instances which, it was asserted, proved the correctness of the German accusation The semi-official announcement reads in part:

"The German Government will in future prevent all traffic by hospital ships in the entire barred zone and in the Mediterranean, including the road left open for Greece, and will regard hospital ships appearing therein as war vessels and attack them immediately."

HOPE FOR RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, May 28. — There is a healthier tone in Petrograd. Much good has been done by the visit of two hundred sailors and workmen from the Black Sea fleet arsenals. Their intensely patrotic addresses and boldness in eschewing the red flag and displaying the naval ensign at their meetings have impressed the public enormously. If these demonstrations could be multiplied all over Russia a great change would come over the country. The Black Sea delegates announced their departure for the front. They are going to accompany War Minister Kerensky. They have sworn to march at the head of regiments against the foe. Batkin, an ex-mutineer, who figures as leader of the delegation has become next to Kerensky the most popular figure in Russia.

A congress of officers discussed the relations between the Government and the Committee of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. The majority of the speakers expressed the opinion that the committee henceforth should avoid interference with the legislative and administrative functions of the government, inasmuch as they are well represented in the ministry.

NO BIG ENGAGEMENTS.

LONDON, May 28. — On the two main battle fronts, Arras and the Aisne, the past twenty-four hours have seen more fighting than for some time in the same period, for there has been no engagement of magnitude. The series of local attacks, bombardments, trench raids and very considerable air activity seem to have been in preparation for heavier fighting, probably on the British front.

ITALIANS TAKE VILLAGE

ROME, May 28 — The Italians have now crossed the Timavo River, and occupied the village of San Giovanni, north-west of Duino, near the Gulf of Triest, the War Office announces. They have captured nine six inch guns.

EARLY OPENING OF CANAL PROMISED.

Mayor Duffus, when in Ottawa the other day, had an interview with Premier Borden and expressed to him the views of the citizens of Peterborough regarding the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. The necessity for the immediate opening of the lower section by the building of the new bridge at Campbellford was pointed out, and when the Prime Minister found that this was the only obstacle in the way to opening navigation to Lake Ontario he promised to have his colleagues consider the matter at an early date. Mayor Duffus was very much pleased with the result of his conversation, and feels assured that the bridge will be proceeded with at once.

AN INVENTION THAT MEANS END OF SUBMARINES

An American Genius Claims to Have Solved Problem at Last.

DEVICE A VERY SIMPLE ONE

Already the Allies Have the Measure on Life of U-Boats.

LONDON, May 28.—The Westminster Gazette publishes a message from a correspondent who says the submarine menace is being mastered by a simple method, which he indicates is the invention of an American.

"It is giving away no secret," the correspondent writes, "to say that the method, which is reputed to be infallible, requires only a little time to come into full effect and wear the German submarines out. It is a model of simplicity. The press has been liberal in its announcement of Marconi's device, but, while extending encouragement to Marconi, it must not be overlooked that the genius who perfected one of the most monumental advances in maritime navigation has devoted his unremitting consideration to the menace, and this resourceful American, too, has worked toward the device along independent lines."

Asserting that the British have better submarines than the Germans, the message continues:

"Only a little time is needed for our pre-eminent inventive brains to outstrip the pirate professors, and by a method which is simplicity itself we already have the life of the U-boat campaign measured."

BRITISH LABOR STILL FOR WAR

THOUSANDS GATHER IN LONDON IN DEMONSTRATION SUNDAY.

LONDON, May 27.—An impressive demonstration by many thousands of workmen, organized by the British Workers' League, was held in Hyde Park Sunday to express fraternal greetings to the peoples of the allied countries and the determination of the workers to continue the war to a victorious conclusion.

These sentiments were voiced in stirring speeches from twelve platforms. David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, in a letter which was read from all the platforms, expressed hearty appreciation for an address which the Workers' League had presented to the Ambassadors of Great Britain's allies. In his letter Mr. Lloyd George said:—

"A lasting peace will come when all the peoples of Europe are free to determine their own fate for themselves."

Auto Runs off Ferry Three Are Drowned

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, May 28.—An automobile containing Essie Irwin, aged twenty-one, Mrs. Thomas Walker, thirty-five, and her son William, aged nine, ran off a ferry boat at Poplar Point and all three were drowned.

LIVES ARE LOST IN WIND STORM

TOWN IN ILLINOIS WRECKED BY A TORNADO ON SATURDAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

CHICAGO, May 28.—A Tornado late Saturday wrecked a large part of Mattoon, Ills., rendering two thousand homeless, with a loss of fifty to seventy lives.

Since Friday tornadoes have caused the loss of over one hundred lives in the Middle West, several hundred have been injured, and damage to property and crops was large.

RUSS. PEASANTS ARE OPPOSED TO TALK OF PEACE

The New Republic Must Remain True to Its Allies.

ARE FIGHTING FOR IDEALS

A Separate Peace Would Bring Shame and Dishonor to Russia.

LONDON, MAY 28.—A despatch to the Chronicle from Petrograd on Saturday says all the Russian Council of Peasant Deputies are attracting universal attention and gaining increasing influence here We see not a gathering of professional politicians, but of those grey heroes who labor with the sweat of the brow and who really represent this vast and until now silent Empire The first days of the peasant congress have shown the Russian peasant imbued with a strong sense of honor, generosity and patriotism, yet utterly devoid of all trace of Chauvinism The Russian peasant is fighting henceforward for an ideal, and he looks to the west for sympathy with his ideal with a longing far stronger even than that with which Russian democracy looked to the west for deliverence from ancient tyranny, and looked in vain. The majority urge the war should be continued, holding that Russia must support the allies, just as the allies supported her.

Separate Peace Impossible

The feeling of the majority of the Peasant Council is expressed by the peasant Bunakoff in a speech on Thursday. He said: "A separate peace is utterly impossible. A separate peace would mean death not only of our revolution, but of revolution in the whole world. A separate peace would bring shame and dishonor to Russia, and would be treachery to the allies. One thing remains—to advance. Sitting in the trenches in one place is a separate peace, more shameful still than separate peace. A separate peace demoralizes the army and ruins the people.

HUN DEFENCES CRUMBLE UNDER STEADY FIRE FROM GUNS OF CANADIAN TROOPS

Kaiser Again Attempts to Revive Drooping Spirits of Officers and Men.

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Headquarters in France: "Rumor has it that the Kaiser recently visited Douai and addressing a gathering of officers and troops holding the Scarpe Lens line announced that the British offensive in the region of the Scarpe was at an end. The Kaiser is a good talker but had his officers taken him out to Avoin, Mericourt and Acheville and other points east of Vimy where the German defences are crumbling under the steady fire of the Canadian guns he might not have been so dogmatic.

Our aviators report that the industrious Germans are far from confident of their ability to hold the Mericourt-Oppy line. New systems are being laid out behind it on which it is believed British prisoners are being employed. Three Canadian prisoners, the first in a considerable time, were obtained in an extensive enemy raid opposite Aheville early this morning. The Germans raided after a heavy barrage. About two o'clock some two hundred came over and attacked a wiring party. Our casualties were very light while the enemy left a number of dead in front of our lines and some prisoners of the Fifth Prussian Foot Guards.

Hun Get Shells.

In the artillery operations which are now in progress some odd features have developed. The enemy has developed a fondness for the use of gas shells probably because chemicals are more plentiful than metal in the Fatherland. When gas shells are sent over our forward batteries which still have an ample store of shells left behind by Germans in their flight from Vimy Ridge send back a few hundred rounds of these shells. They may not be so effective as our own but the result is usually that the use of gas shells ends for a time.

The theory of our officers is that the German artillerists do not want men higher up to know they have abandoned so much ammunition. Their gas has a different smell from British shells and a prolonged bombardment of the German lines with German gas shells would be a sad give away.

Canadians At Rest.

The Canadian infantry is greatly enjoying their breathing spells. The weather during the day is warm and sports take place everywhere in the back areas intermingling with drills and an occasional spell of work in the gardens of the villagers.

Improvement in submarine conditions greatly heartens the men who by means of the London papers are able to closely follow the situation.

ONE MORE RECRUIT FOR THE 74th

William Henry Coombes was not satisfied with doing his bit as a worker in a local munitions factory, but has joined the 74th Battery which is being organized here. Lieut. MacLaren is in charge of the unit, with headquarters at the Armories, in the absence of Major Crocker, who is arranging for the removal of the battery to the summer camp at Petawawa.

The expected rush of young men to the colors in view of the impending draft has not materialized, although such a movement has been noted in other recruiting centres in Ontario. There seems to be an impression that the Government is not in earnest in this matter and that the draft will never be put in force. Any man who believes anything of the kind is laboring under the delusion of his life. Conscription will be put in force, and that before the lapse of many days. There is still a chance to get into the service as a volmany days.. There is still a chance to get into the service as a -wk unteer and to select the most desirable branch of the service. The artillery division is always popular, and every young man should feel proud of a chance to identify himself with the 74th Battery.

PTE. CHARLES GEOFFRIES REPORTED AS WOUNDED

Was One of the First Volunteers to Enlist for Overseas From This City.

Mr. George Geoffries of Indian River has received word from his brother, Pte. Charles Geoffries, who was wounded in the fighting in France early in May. Pte. Geoffries was one of the first men to go overseas from Peterborough, having enlisted with the old 2nd Battalion under the late Major George Bennett The wounds are in the shoulder, arm and thigh. He was doing nicely according to the letter.

PTE. RALPH SELBY

The village of Bobcaygeon was shocked when the report reached there that Pte Ralph Selby, son of James Selby, had been killed in action in France, and that Pte. Alfred Nichols, his chum in the trenches, had been wounded. Pte. Selby enlisted in December, 1915, with the 109th, receiving his preliminary training there, and going overseas with the battalion in July, 1916 He was of a bright, cheerful disposition and one well liked by all. Mr and Mrs. Selby have the sympathy of the whole community He was about 20 years of age.

CORP. FRED MORAN

Mr. John Moran, late of Dublin street, this city, and who removed to Toronto last year, passed through Peterborough on Saturday afternoon and left with a Review representative the sad intelligence that his youngest brother, Frederick, had been killed in action in the fighting in France on May 6th. Corporal Moran enlisted with the 43rd Cameronian Highlanders of Winnipeg and was promoted to Corporal's rank while on active service in Flanders. He came through the first battle of Vimy Ridge safely. Deceased made his home in Toronto for many years and was widely known as a member of the famous Tecumseh lacrosse team of which he was one of the star members.

LIEUT. WILFRED W. STRATTON
Son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, of the Royal Flying Corps and who is now in a hospital in France suffering from typhoid fever.

LIEUT. REYNOLDS SMITH.

The Boy Scouts movement in Canada has lost one of its most valued officers, in the passing of Lieut. Reginald G. Smith, organizing secretary of the Canarian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association whose death at the front is reported by the militia authorities.

Word of his having been wounded and missing was contained in the casualty reports of the week of May 14th, but the definite announcement of his death soon followed, without any particulars. He had been wounded several times. He was slightly early last fall. Still later in the he was more seriously wounded in the arm and leg and was under treatment for several weeks in one of the Bristol hospitals in England.

Lieut. Smith left Canada with an Ottawa battalion, but on reaching England he was transferred to a British Columbia unit. He received

MILITARY LAW FOR MONTREAL

RUMOR TO THAT EFFECT IS DENIED BY GENERAL WILSON.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MONTREAL, May 28.—Le Canada, says General Wilson was given instructions to place Montreal District under martial law should he deem it necessary. Gen. Wilson, however, says he has received no such instructions.

PREMIER PLANS NEW CABINET

ANNOUNCEMENT OF CHANGES IS TO BE MADE THIS WEEK.

OTTAWA, May 28. — Some of the riddles which have been perplexing those who frequent the corridors of Parliament of late will likely be solved this week. There are those who say that within that period, or at any rate shortly afterward, the Prime Minister will have an announcement to make about his plans for Cabinet reconstruction. There now seems to be little doubt that after three years of experience and achievement in war-time administration, Sir Robert Borden has taken up the task of reorganizing the ministry so that it may with renewed vigor take up the problems that are ahead While the Premier has had this important subject under consideration he has kept his own counsels absolutely, and probably not even one of his colleagues could state his plans. There is, however, in no sense of the word a political crisis When Sir Robert is ready to make his announcement he will do so and his decision will be accepted. It is said in some quarters that he will ask the resignations of his colleagues and then proceed to organize along the lines he has concluded to be best. Whether he will go outside the party representation in the House or ouside the party itself for the new men who are to be brought to the council board cannot be stated.

Some say that the Prime Minister will inform the House of Commons as to his plans for Cabinet reconstruction before he introduces and explains his compulsory service bill. That, however, is uncertain The military service bill will not likely be before the House until the latter part of the week.

Italy Has 3,500,000 Men Under Arms

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Vittorio Falsori, attache of the Italian War Mission, in an address to the National Press Club, said the Kingdom would have been traitor to civilization if it had not joined the allies.

"Some people say Italy is not fighting in this war. Her total men under arms is 3,500,000. Her killed, totally disabled and prisoners already reach 200,000 and she is prepared to meet four times that loss if necessary.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 28, 1917

THE MASSES FOR CONSCRIPTION.

BEYOND ALL DOUBT the majority of the provinces and the majority of the voters in those provinces are in favor of the selective draft, compulsion or conscription, or by whatever name the system may be known. Every man who has a son, a brother or any relative at the front, in the training camp, in the hospital or in the military cemetery, would support a proposition that would force the slacker to do his duty. The soldiers themselves who carry the burden would declare for the draft to a man if the opportunity were given them. The recruiting officers are weary of the task which for months has been all but without results. The man beyond military age or otherwise incapable of entering the service himself would, in a spirit of justice alone, support a measure for the equalization of the supreme duty of the day.

In Peterborough city and county there are enough friends of the soldiers to carry conscription by a large majority, even if the rest of the community was either indifferent or antagonistic. Peterborough has taken the lead in the matter of recruiting, and the military record of this community is enviable both with regard to the numbers and the morale of the units sent overseas. Peterborough's Patriotic League, composed of the best citizens, were among the first organizations of the kind to come out squarely in favor of conscription, and this was done, too, without any suspicion of political wire-pulling.

But the people of this or any other community will not stand for conscription in which any class favoritism is shown, and no earthly power can save a government that attempts anything of the kind. There must be no discrimination. The burden must be fairly distributed if the great objection to the voluntary system is to be overcome. The same system of compulsion that is devised for the private must be applied to the officer. The private, when he is taken over the ocean to the edge of the war zone, has no alternative but to go forward. No choice is given him between a tour of duty in the trenches and a return trip to Canada. There are several thousand officers at present unattached both in England and in this country. We are told that they will be utilized just as soon as their services are required. Men are needed now as they never have been since the beginning of the war. For the honor of the service let it be said that every day Canadian officers are reverting in rank in order to get to the front. This reversion does not reduce their qualifications. When their services are required in a higher capacity they will still be available, and they will make all the better officers because of their actual experience at the front. The officer who is willing to remain in idleness while awaiting his opportunity is likely to receive scant consideration from the people; any government that upholds such a system need look for no more.

Some of our contemporaries profess to fear that the selective draft may be converted into a political weapon. That danger is slight when compared to the risk of the development of class favoritism. No eligible man can be expected to submit quietly to the draft unless compulsion is applied to every rank in the service and every class in the community.

THE GRAFTER'S DAY IS OVER.

THE POLITICAL GRAFTER has had his day. There was a time when he flourished, when he seemed to be an essential part of the various political parties. But that day is gone. The party that carries a grafter is courting shipwreck. The man of loose political morals is now classed with the man who has a reputation for pulling off high-handed transactions in private business.

The grafter these days is friendless. He finds none among his immediate colleagues or in his following to take his part, no newspaper of standing will apologize for or defend him or attempt to color his misdeeds with misrepresentation. The old order of things has been changed. The standard which the people have set up for public men is higer, and the demand is general for probity in governmental management just as in business life.

Within the past two years three provincial governments whose misdeeds smelled rank to heaven have been wiped out. Their downfall was disgraceful to the country by reason of the occasion for it, and humiliating to every man whose vote had supported those governments in the past. In two other provinces the men in power see the handwriting on the wall. The fate of the others is to be theirs and for the same reason. No longer will the people stand for the dishonest politician. They may forgive errors of judgment and condone other faults, but downright dishonesty never.

The grafter is as much an evil, as much of a marked man in a Federal as well as in a Provincial place of power. No government has a right to foist any creature of the kind upon the public or to expect the people to support the party that is cursed with such a burden. It makes no differenece whether the graft is for personal or party profit. So long as a man plays fast and loose with public funds, few stop to consider the object.

The grafter must go. The Jonah must be jettisoned and left to the tender mercies of the whale. Otherwise there is the rock ahead and shipwreck is inevitable. The lesson taught by the voters in three provinces should not be lost. They carried their grafters in places of power, and what the people did to them is now history.

AN ELECTION INEVITABLE.

ALL THE SIGNS POINT to an early general election in Canada, and no one need be surprised if Parliament is dissolved and the country plunged into the throes of a political campaign within a few weeks. The question of an election or no election rests with the Liberals. If the work of winning the war is interrupted, it is that party upon whom the responsibility will rest.

The Liberals everywhere are holding conventions and nominating candidates for Parliament. At all of these gatherings the voice of the majority is for an early appeal to the people, and beyond a doubt the party leaders are not working in the dark, but are acting according to instructions sent out from headquarters.

The country is being flooded by the Opposition with pernicious campaign literature, which deals extensively with the Administration's conduct of the war, which warps out of shape every official act, which misconstrues every motive that inspired the Government in adopting any course, and which distorts every fact with a painful disregard for veracity. That lurid publication sent out bearing the seal of approval of Sir Wilfrid himself, The Liberal Monthly, is more outspoken than ever, and through every malicious article it contains runs the same contention—the Borden Government is entitled to no new lease of power.

The most important question that has arisen in connection with the war is the selective draft that has been proposed by Sir Robert Borden. There is not a shadow of doubt that this issue will be opposed by the Liberals in Parliament. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has time and again declared that conscription was not necessary. His compatriots are of the same opinion, as ther lotous demonstrations in Quebec testify. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in favor of the principle of adjusting the man power of the country so as to keep Canada's army up to full strength and to supply the gaps made daily by the casualties of war, he would have declared as much when Sir Robert Borden first made his announcement in the House. That he is opposed to it is apparent, but whether his opposition will be based on technical objections alone remains to be seen. The Liberal party have never been outspoken on this issue, but, true to their record, have been opportunists since the war broke out, watching jealously for their own interests rather than concerning themselves with the welfare of the nation.

If there is a conflict in Parliament over the selective draft, and if the Liberals withhold their consent to another extension, then the dissolution of the House and an election are inevitable. It will be an election charterized with a degree of bitterness that no previous contest has ever witnessed, a racial struggle which will always remain in the nation's annals as a reproach to the political party that brought it about.

THE CHANGING TIMES.

A FEW MONTHS AGO a picture of President Wilson was thrown on the screen in a local theatre and the audience hissed. The other night on the same stage the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were waved together, and the crowd made the building ring with their applause.

In George Street Church last night the National Anthem of the United States was sung by the choir, an ode one in spirit and one in tune with our own Empire's hymn. The war may be making enemies of some, but it is certainly drawing the neighboring nations closer together in the bonds of a new brotherhood.

THE SOLDIERS COULD NOT VOTE.

EX-PREMIER ASQUITH is opposed to the holding of an election while the war lasts. The reasons which he gives apply with equal force to the same matter as regards Canada, and may be briefly summarized as follows:

> "Voters fighting in various theatres of war would not be able to record their votes. An election under these conditions would not be an election at all. It would be a farce and a sham, and nobody would regard the House so chosen as possessing in any real sense the moral authority either for legislation or criticism of administration. To take a course which would necessitate the holding of an election under such circumstances would be to fly in the face of common law, common fairness and common sense."

If there is an election in Canada this summer it will be forced on the country by the Liberals. That party would disfranchise the men who are in the battle line. The slacker and the alien newly naturalized could cast their ballots, but the soldiers could not. When Premier Borden was at the front, he realized the impossibility of taking a fair record of the men in the trenches. The men most concerned in the issues before the people would be deprived of the power to express their opinion.

If the Opposition insist on a plebiscite on conscription, the same conditions will prevail. The men now under arms should certainly be given a voice in a matter which so closely concerns them. No fair opinion can be secured from the people of Canada while several hundred thousand of the best of the voters are out of the country.

A GOLF EXPERT ON DRIVING

(By "Chick" Evans.)

Of all the shots in the golfer's bag, the most thrillingly satisfying one, both to players and onlookers, is the drive. This shot perfectly hit gives a delightful feeling off the club, and the rhythmic movement of the player, followed by the long, arrowy flight of the ball through the blue, is a spectacular sight much appreciated by galleries. It has the dramatic advantage of being the first shot to every hole, and when perfectly executed it starts the player off with confidence and has a tendency to take the heart out of his opponent. On the other hand, however, if the second player can follow a good drive with a better one he will have an immense psychological advantage.

Standing on the tee, I take a niblick, the heaviest club in my bag, and swing it once or twice, the object being to make the driver seem light. Then I lay it aside and take a couple of swings with my driver. As I address my ball my chief thought is that my wrists must be supple enough to make the clubhead swing like a ball on the end of a string, for in that way is the clubhead made to do its share of work.

At first I stand with my feet close together, holding the club loosely in my hand. In that position I place my clubhead with its sole flat (neither toe or heel off the ground), back of the ball, the imaginary direction line leading from a point back of the ball through the clubhead to the hole.

My stance is approximately square—that is, my left toe is only an inch or so behind the straight line drawn from toe to toe in the square stance. The ball is played off the left heel or between that and a line midway between the feet. I first take a provisional stance, however, and extend my arm full length, but easily, being particularly careful to avoid stiffness. Then fololws a preparatory waggle for relaxation, and an adjustment of my feet for comfort. These preparatory movements are made entirely for comfort and relaxation.

Just before starting the stroke I press forward on the club until the hands are a little in advance of the clubhead, then the hands are brought back to or beyond their original position and from that point the backward swing begins. In this backward swing the clubhead describes an arc, the hands leading until the turning point of the clubhead, when for the tiniest fragment of space hands and club are on the same line, a relative position not repeated until the ball is hit. The beginning of the twist at the waist is coincident with the turning point of the club.

The swing which I have just described is straight on the ground for a little distance and passes inside the imaginary line of direction to the hole. I try to make the ascending and descending tre the same, and in order to make this idea objective I try to imagine that I see the ascending arc and describe it exactly with the club in going down. Whether I really accomplish this object I do not know, only photographic analysis could prove it. I believe that bringing back the club inside or outside the ascending arc results in a bad slice or hook. My practice is to attempt to make both arcs the same and except the immediate start and immediate finish inside the direction line.

I can only describe the blow itself as a rhythmic snap. Do not try to hit the ball too hard, but to try to send your strength through the clubhead into the ball. This is a distinction with a difference easily recognized when a long, straight ball is sent straight and far. The hands must wait for the clubhead, and if the blow is right you will feel your right side, especially the shoulder, push behind the shot and pull up a little. Do not pull up too soon.

The right knee is braced as you go back and the left knee bent. In the follow-through these positions are reversed, the right knee being bent, and the left knee braced, with the left upper arm close to the body, the right hand knuckles pointing upward. It can readily be seen that the swing is divided into two equal parts.

A MODERN INN FOR CAMP BORDEN

This summer "On to Borden" will be a favorite cry with Torontonians seeking relaxation in away-from-home tea, and even dinners, at restful resorts amid sufficiently seductive surroundings. Borden, Canada's national aviation training camp, promises to become alluringly attractive to enthusiasts alike, of both sexes; and young and old, civilian and military its ninety miles of scenic highway from Toronto will shortly become a popular recreative route. With the passing of the old stage coach, and the general acceptance of steam travel, all the joy and exhilaration of open-air journeying along rustic highways, with refreshing stops at comfortable and picturesque road-side inns, were absorbed by the wearying, if luxurious, confinement of railroad innovation. But history invariably repeats itself, and ye olde time joys of open-air highway and byway excursions are these days resuscitated by means of rubber tires and gasoline, which often steam and iron rail speed, accompanied by much of the invigorating pleasure of primitive conveyance.

That the Borden highway will be extensively travelled goes without saying, that its inception will mother similar social and hostelry conveniences to those so popular in Manhatton and in England, is already in evidence—at Borden camp itself and on the road thereto. And for the comfort and transient pleasure of all who can afford the luxury of speedy modern autos, or those for whom the nerve-racking throbs of motor-cycles have no terrors, a half-way house, or soldiers' inn is to be very shortly established on this million dollar highway to the home of Canadian aviation. The originators are two estimable young society matrons, whose husbands are at the front, and whose patriotism is of a generous nature. This inn is to be conducted on lines similar to those of a high-class Regent street (London) tea room, where exclusion and refinement are the chief catering features. It will afford an attractive stopping-off place for soldiers, aviators, or pleasure seekers, as well as a charmnig objective spot at which to break a rubber tire joy ride with tea, and perhaps dinner, served in fashionably approved style.

And mine hostesses-to-be are well known in Peterborough society.

Editor Review: The Globe, in its leading editorial today says:

> "Sir Robert Borden cannot lead a united country. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the only man who can unite the country."

If this is not a straight bid for a general election on the old political lines, what is it? So time exposes Grit hypocrisy and shows how The Globe is trying to take advantage of a bloody war.

TRADE WITH RUSSIA.

Facts and Figures in Regard to That Wonderful Country.

Mr. J. D. Allan, ex-President of Toronto Board of Trade, who has visited Russia annually for twenty years, addressed the Empire Club of Toronto recently on Commercial Russia. He condensed into his address a large number of interesting facts and figures relating to that country of wonderful resources which occupies one-thirteenth of a surface of the globe, being 7,000 miles across in one direction and 3,500 in the other. Over eighty per cent. of the population of Russia is engaged in agriculture, the most of them peasants of a very high order of intelligence, although 47,000,000 of them were serfs or slaves in 1861. Emperor Alexander II., who freed the serfs, was a man of noble principles and high ideals, who would have worked out a magnificent future for Russia that would have been [illegible] before now if he had not been slain by a Nihilist bomb.

The climate is various, according to latitude, but the summer climate of southern Siberia is similar to that of Washington, and rather warmer than that of Toronto. Russia's methods in agriculture, cold-storage, the slaughter of animals, etc., are very advanced, and in many respects far ahead of those of Canada. The exports of dead poultry and eggs now are $50,000,000 yearly. The finest creamery butter sold in London to-day is made on the plains of Siberia. One thing Ontario and the Dominion of Canada must do is to spend more money on agriculture in order to compete with Russia, as we have been very much behind in these matters. The total agricultural exports from Russia in 1912 amounted to over $700,000. In 1912 there were 3,700 agricultural partnerships for co-operative sale of produce. In 1910 there were 32,000 students in agricultural courses and 296,000 attending lectures. The total crop of raw cotton amounts to 159,000 tons; and 55 per cent. of the cotton manufactured and used in Russia is grown there. In 1910 the factories used wool valued at $100,000,000, every fibre of which was grown in Russia. In silk that country ranks sixth in the world; in linen yarn it is second in the world, and some towels the speaker bought in 1892 were still in use. The forestry policy of Russia puts Canada to shame; they have 1,700,000,000 acres of forest all under one jurisdiction, and when timber is removed from the ground the lumberman must plant again, tree for tree, everything he has cut down. This is in barbarous Russia; are we as civilised in Canada?

War Relics Coming.

Two trench mortars and two machine guns, captured by the 20th and 21st Battalions, are being despatched to Toronto, and will be used for the purpose of stimulating recruiting in the province of Ontario.

This information was conveyed in the following letter, received by Sir John Hendrie, from Brig.-General Rennie, of the 4th Brigade:

My dear Sir John: In connection with the successful minor operations on January 17, the 20th Battalion captured one trench mortar and the 21st Battalion two machine guns and one trench mortar. These battalions formed part of the 4th Brigade, which I have the honor to command. The trophies have been delivered to the Canadian Ordnance with the request that they be forwarded to you, and might I suggest that they form the nucleus of a provincial collection. In the meantime a request has been made for prompt delivery, in the hope that, as objects of interest, they will be of some assistance in stimulating recruiting in the Province of Ontario, from which the 4th Brigade was drawn.—Yours very truly, R. Rennie.

Admiral Sims in London.

The American rear-admiral now in England on a war mission is Rear-Admiral W. S. Sims, who was born in Canada. Admiral Sims was born at Port Hope, but his parents moved across the line when he was a child. He had a long career in the American navy, and was made head of the Naval War College in January of this year. Admiral Sims came into the limelight on Dec. 4, 1910, when he made a pro-British speech in London at a banquet given by the Lord Mayor to the officers and men of the visiting American fleet. He said then he believed that "if the time ever came when the British Empire was menaced by an external enemy, they might count on every man, every drop of blood, every ship, and every dollar of their kindred across the sea." There was a lot of discussion in the newspapers over this, and the then President Taft administered a public reprimand to the admiral.

What Two Commas Did.

A story that deals with the niceties of punctuation is quoted of two well-known actresses. Mrs. Fiske and Margaret Anglin, the famous Canadian woman recently occupied successively the same dressing-room in a Chicago theatre. To her predecessor Mrs. Fiske made this graceful but laconic acknowledgment in a note: "Mrs. Fiske says Miss Anglin is the greatest actress in the world." Miss Anglin, not to be outdone in compliment, returned the note with the addition of the commas shown: "Mrs. Fiske, says Miss Anglin, is the greatest actress in the world."

Icelanders as Emigrants.

It is claimed for the Icelandic settlers that they have played no small part in the progress and prosperity of the Province of Manitoba, and it is asserted that the story of the foreign population of Winnipeg must necessarily begin with the Icelander. He has set the pace for all the incoming races. He is the illustration par excellence of how a people of ambition and industry can master difficulties, triumph over prejudice, and attain their desired place in the commercial, the political, the intellectual, and social life of a bustling and growing city in a strange land. Outside the city, it is not unusual to find Icelanders with farms of one thousand acres.

REDUCE CAR SHORTAGE BY FILLING CARS

The object in issuing these bulletins is not to start a controversy with the public and not to shift responsibility to the public, but to secure the co-operation of the public.

Bulletin No. 1 contained the following information, from 1907 to 1915:

The Freight carried on Canadian Railways increased.. 51%
The number of Freight Cars increased.................. 91%
The total car capacity increased 131%
The average capacity of cars increased .... 5.8 Tons
The average weight of contents increased .... 3.0 Tons

The present heavy volume of traffic will no doubt continue so long as the war lasts.

Additional cars and locomotives are needed but they cannot be secured in large numbers for many months.

There is also a serious shortage of labor and in some places of yard trackage.

The only way to improve the conditions therefore is to secure greater efficiency in the present equipment, terminal trackage, and man power

The railways alone cannot develop the maximum efficiency; the railways and the public co-operating can.

Consignees can help by ordering full car loads instead of minima authorized in the tariffs and classifications, and consignees can help by loading cars to their full authorized cubical or carrying capacity.

Total weight of cars	503 tons	448 tons
Total weight of contents	344 tons	359 tons
Total weight of train	847 tons	847 tons

Had the average load per car in 1915 been 23.4 tons instead of 18.4 the same traffic would have been handled with:

29,906,535 [illegible] tons of dead car tare hauled one mile.

13.3 per cent increase in man power employed in train and [illegible]

Sleepy Time Story About the Days of Fairies.

WHAT A MONARCH LEARNED.

Wisdom of an Old Saying Clearly Proved—Folly of Putting Off Until Tomorrow What Can Be Done Today, Strange Experience of a King.

Well, children, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am reminded of a story that you like to hear. It is about

A QUEER GOBLIN.

Once upon a time in the good old days when fairies were found in every buttercup and the little birds and the wild creatures of the woods were the friends of the good and true, there lived in England a wise and great king, who was said himself to be kin of the fairies.

It was known that a wise enchanter was his friend and often gave him advice about his kingdom.

And, though this king was so wise that his name is still known in England as that of the most wonderful king who ever ruled the Britons, he sometimes made mistakes. His name, I may as well tell you, was Arthur.

Arthur was the strongest man and the most skillful fighter in the country. Some persons said there was no one in the world like him.

But one day the great Merlin, who was his adviser, or prime minister, thought he would teach King Arthur a lesson. So by means of the magic in which he was skilled Merlin made a queer creature, all heads and arms,' appear before King Arthur and dare him to a wrestling match.

Arthur smiled when he saw the figure. Perhaps his friend Merlin was in the habit of playing tricks like this on the king, for his majesty did not seem to be in the least surprised and frightened by a sight odd enough to scare persons unused to such visitors out of a year's growth.

"Oh, yes; I'll wrestle with you some time," the king said. "But not today. I'm very busy, you see."

The next day the figure came again, but Arthur had another reason for putting it off. Arthur thought then, but he wasn't sure, that the figure looked a little larger than on the day before.

The next day it came back and the next and the next. Always the king had some excuse why he had not time to wrestle with the goblin, and each day it grew bigger and bigger until at last it became of such an alarmingly large size that the king felt that it would not be safe to put off the match a minute longer.

So Arthur rose, and the goblin and the king wrestled long and furiously. At first it looked as though the goblin might win, but Arthur would not give up. At last he had the goblin down and ready to say it was beaten.

As the goblin rose to its feet it said:

"Never put off a task till tomorrow that can be done as well today."

Then the goblin vanished and was never seen more.

Stung—A Game.

This game requires for equipment one newspaper of any date and a switch. The players choose sides and hold hands in a ring around the newspaper, the members of the different teams alternating so that each player is between two opponents. The switch is placed on the newspaper. The game is to make an opponent step on the paper. When all of one team have stepped upon it the winners become rattlers and sting the victims. The stinging is done with the switch—not too hard, of course.

A Spring Parade.

A procession of juvenile riders may not be quite so impressive as a military parade or a display of fashion on the boulevard, but it is fully as interesting and has a charm the others do not possess. These bold riders were discovered by an enterprising camera man who was looking for novel and unusual sights.

PRINCESS' THANKS

Sister of King Albert Expresses Gratitude to Americans.

FOR AN OFFICERS' HOSPITAL.

This Institution, Made Possible by the Generosity of Philadelphians, Is Used For Those the King of the Belgians Wishes to Favor Especially.

A big stars and stripes, which, according to letters from Cannes, has created considerable excitement among the inhabitants of that city, floats over the Villa Anastasia, the central building of the hospital and home for Belgian officers at Cannes, in southern France. This hospital, which is entirely supported by contributions from residents of Philadelphia, has been in operation since last June. It is under the direct supervision of the Duchess of Vendome.

THE DUCHESS OF VENDOME.

This is said to be the only American flag flying on French soil south of Paris. The duchess' letter of thanks, which is in English, reads as follows:

Dear Mrs. Henry—Let me send you the best thanks for the generous way in which the Belgian relief committee is working for our cause. The Philadelphia Home For Belgian Officers at Villa Anastasia, Cannes, is a real success—it is impossible to find anything more perfect in comfort, organization, spirit. It is a dear building in a garden of roses, quite exposed to the warmest sun and sheltered from the wind—quite near my foundation for Belgian soldiers, where lives Commandant Barriat, a brave officer who made the campaign for a year and a half and, being cruelly wounded at the battle of the Yser, was decorated on the battlefield by my brother, King Albert, who named him commander of the two Belgian establishments of Cannes—Anastasia, your home for officers; St. Jean, my foundation for soldiers.

All the officers are very happy, and I assure you they have the deepest gratitude for their American benefactors who give them such a delicious home for their convalescence after all their sufferings and privations. It will never be known to what extent Belgians have suffered and suffer still!

King Albert wishes me to convey to you and to all your generous members of the Belgian relief committee of the emergency aid of Philadelphia his best thanks and his warmest gratitude.

Believe me always yours sincerely,
HENRIETTE,
Duchess of Vendome, Princess of Belgium.

ARTEMUS WARD ON WOMAN.

Old Sketch of Famous Humorist Applicable to Present Time.

I PITCHED my tent in a small town in Injianny one day last season, & while I was standin' at the dore takin' money a depytashun of ladies came up & sed they vos members of the Bunkumville Female & Reformin' & Wimin's Rite assosiashun, and they axed me if they cood go in without payin'.

"Not exactly," sez I, "but you can pay without goin' in."

"Dew you know who we air?" said one of the wimin, a tall and feroshus lookin' critter, with a blew kotton umbreller under her arm—"do you know who we air, sir?"

"My impreshun is," sed I, "from a kersery view, that you air females."

"We air, sur," said the feroshus woman "We belong to a society which beleeves wimin has rites, which beleeves in razin' her to her proper speer, which beleeves she is endowed with as much intelleck as man is, which beleeves she is trampled on and aboozed & who will resist hen4th & forever the incroachments of proud & domineerin' men."

Durin' her discourse the exsentric female grabed me by the coat kollor & was swingin' her umbreller wildly over my hed.

"I hope, marm," sez I, startin' back, "that your intentions is honorable. I'm a lone man here in a strange place. Besides, I've a wife to hum."

"Yes," cried the female, "& she's a slave! Doth she never dream of freedom? Doth she never think of throwin' off the yoke of tyrinny and thinkin' & votin' for herself? Doth she never think of these here things?"

"Not bein' a natural born fool," sed I, by this time a little riled, "I kin safely say that she dothunt."

"Oh, whot, whot!" screamed the female, swingin' her umbreller in the air. "Oh, what is the price that woman pays for her expeerience!"

"I don't know," sez I. "The price of my show is 15 cents per individooal."

"& can't our society go in free?" asked the female.

"Not if I know it," sed I.

"Crooil, crooil man!" she cried & burst into tears.

"Won't you let my darter in?" sed anuther of the exsentric wimin, takin' me affeckshunitely by the hand. "Oh, please let my darter in. Shee's a sweet, gushin' child of natur'."

"Let her gush!" roared I, as mad as I cood stick at their tarnal nonsense—"let her gush!" whereupon they all sprung back, with the simultaneous observashun that I was a beest.

"My female friends," sed I, "be4 you leeve I've a few remarks to remark. Wa them well. The female womain is one of the greatest institooshuns of which this land can boste. It's onpossible to get along without her. Had there been no female wimin in the world I should scarcely be here with my unparaleld show on this very ocashun. She is good in sickness, good in wellness, good all the time. O woman, woman," I cried, my feelin's worked up to a high poetick pitch, "you air an angle when you behave yourself, but when you take off your proper appairel & (mettyforically speakin') get into pantyloons, when you desert your firesides &, with your heds full of wimin's rite noshuns, go round like roarin' lions seekin' whom you may devour somebody—in short, when you undertake to play the man you play the devell and air an emfatic noosance. My female friends," I continnered as they were indignantly departin', "wa well what A. Ward has sed."

Then He Woke Up.

"That man Howler has a prodigious imagination."

"Not little Howler."

"Yep. He told me he ate a cheese sandwich the other night and then dreamed that Saturn and Jupiter offered him either Mars or Venus."

"Which did he choose?"

HOME CARPENTRY

It Is Expensive to Call In Experts Every Time.

WHY NOT DO IT YOURSELF?

How One Bride Set to Work to Beautify Her Own Home Without the Aid of Carpenters, Paperhangers, Painters and Electricians.

Making the home beautiful is a very expensive proposition if the process requires the services of outsiders for every improvement installed. For instance, carpenters command a wage of $4 a day or more. Often it seems necessary to call one in to put up a shelf in the bathroom, to repair a bookcase or hang a heavy mirror, while the services of an electrician seem indispensable when an electric bell gets out of order. The housewife who is economical tries her own hand at these odd jobs and frequently finds that she can do the work very well herself, thus saving much money.

All women who have the running of a household in their hands should be taught something about the practical furnishing of it. Is there any reason why a house should not be papered and its floor polished and its pictures framed by its mistress?

One bride had to furnish her home very economically. She decided to calcimine the little house she took in the country and to do the work herself. Living in a district where houses were scarce, the landlord refused to paper, although he consented to give the house a coat of paint. The new little housewife set to work and made a very creditable job of the calcimining. She started on the kitchen, and when she came to the best room she had achieved an almost professional skill.

Next she set to work to paint the floors—a rather tiresome task, which demanded great patience. But the result was charming. The living room was stained dull green and with Persian rugs strewn about looked very pretty and was kept clean with comforting ease. The pictures consisted of cuttings from art magazines, old prints and water color sketches which the bride framed in passe-partout very inexpensively and artistically. She herself had made the framework of the home, so to speak, and when she came to purchase the furniture she found that she was able to buy really good things with the money she had saved on the decoration of the house.

With a knowledge of simple carpentering a woman can make all sorts of really useful things for a home—not the mean, silly little odds and ends masquerading as ornaments, but small articles that are needed. A tiny bedside bookshelf, a box for slippers, a low seat for the fireside covered with cretonne, a small table for afternoon tea—these are things that are not at all beyond the skill of a woman who has had a few lessons in carpentry.

It ought to be remembered that the domestic spirit does not necessarily lie in the making of cushion covers and doilies and table centers. Many women have a very keen love of home and all that it means, but cannot make those things. Their ingenuity frequently lies in a mechanical direction.

WOMAN SO WEAK COULD NOT SLEEP

Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

North Oxford, Mass.—"I had lost three children and I was all run down and so weak I could not sleep at night. My eyesight would leave me and everything I ate upset my stomach. I was very nervous and if I would start to sweep I would have to stop and lie down before I could finish. I was looking over the paper one day and read of a woman who felt as I did and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I took it too. Now I am proud to tell you I am feeling fine and have given birth to a boy baby. He is my 'Pinkham' baby. I keep a bottle of Compound in my house always."—Mrs. PETER MARCO, Box 54, North Oxford, Mass.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, weakness, and nervousness are symptoms which indicate a lowered vitality of the female organism, and the tonic, strengthening properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs, contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, are just what is needed by every woman who is in Mrs. Marco's condition.

Half a dozen strong come the news-girls with their loads of twenty-two different newspapers in six different languages.

They are not very clean little girls, but I regard them with tolerance as they press up to sell me a Balkan News. They never by any chance mistake one's nationality. I suppose the English character is noticeable in Salonica. Moreover, the Englishman is a fool about money. I know, because I am a fool about money; yet I am not such a fool as some. The French, Italian, Russian officer, counts his change with meticulous care and gives a very small tip. The Britisher, officer or man, grasps the coins, looks at them without really knowing whether he is being cheated or not, bestows munificent largesse, and strides out, leaving the Greek waiter full of contempt for the burly fool who parts from his money so easily.

This is by the way. We are learning so many things in this war, that quite possibly the Englishman abroad may learn to keep his money in his pocket. Personally, I have not much to spend, and each drachma must produce its utmost value. But I can gratify my native craving to be thought a philanthropist when I buy a paper. I give all those dirty little girls a penny each.

Do not misunderstand me. I do not say they are ugly little girls. Their noses do not run in the embarrassing way common among the street-children of a northern clime. They are all different. One is dark, with long thick brows over black eyes, her hair in a thick plait. Another is blond and has a red nose. Another is quite tall and will probably become a dancer, she has such neat little legs and feet. Her stockings, by the way, are not a pair. Another has a pair but no garters, and looks very untidy. Yet another has garters but no stockings, and her legs are very dirty. A very tiny little person has only one forlorn copy of a Greek paper, and she is thrust away by her more muscular rivals. I give her a penny, too. I am popular. When all are recompensed they slide away, looking back wistfully for a moment. I dare say they are wondering if I am a millionaire in disguise. Then the whirling vortex of Venizelos Steps sucks them in again; they spy another sailor coming ashore, and they collect and fling themselves upon him, a compact, yelling Macedonian phalanx of youthful amazons. —William McFee, in The Atlantic.

WINNIPEG MAN CURED

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved Him Nervous Breakdown.

Mr. G. C. Inman, 230 Harcourt St., Sturgeon Creek, Winnipeg, for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada, says: "I was terribly rundown and weak. I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat. My nerves were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. Everything pointed to a nervous breakdown. Then I got Dr. Cassell's Tablets. The first result was that I could sleep, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back."

Mr. Inman is now in England, managing the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 M'Caul Street, Toronto.

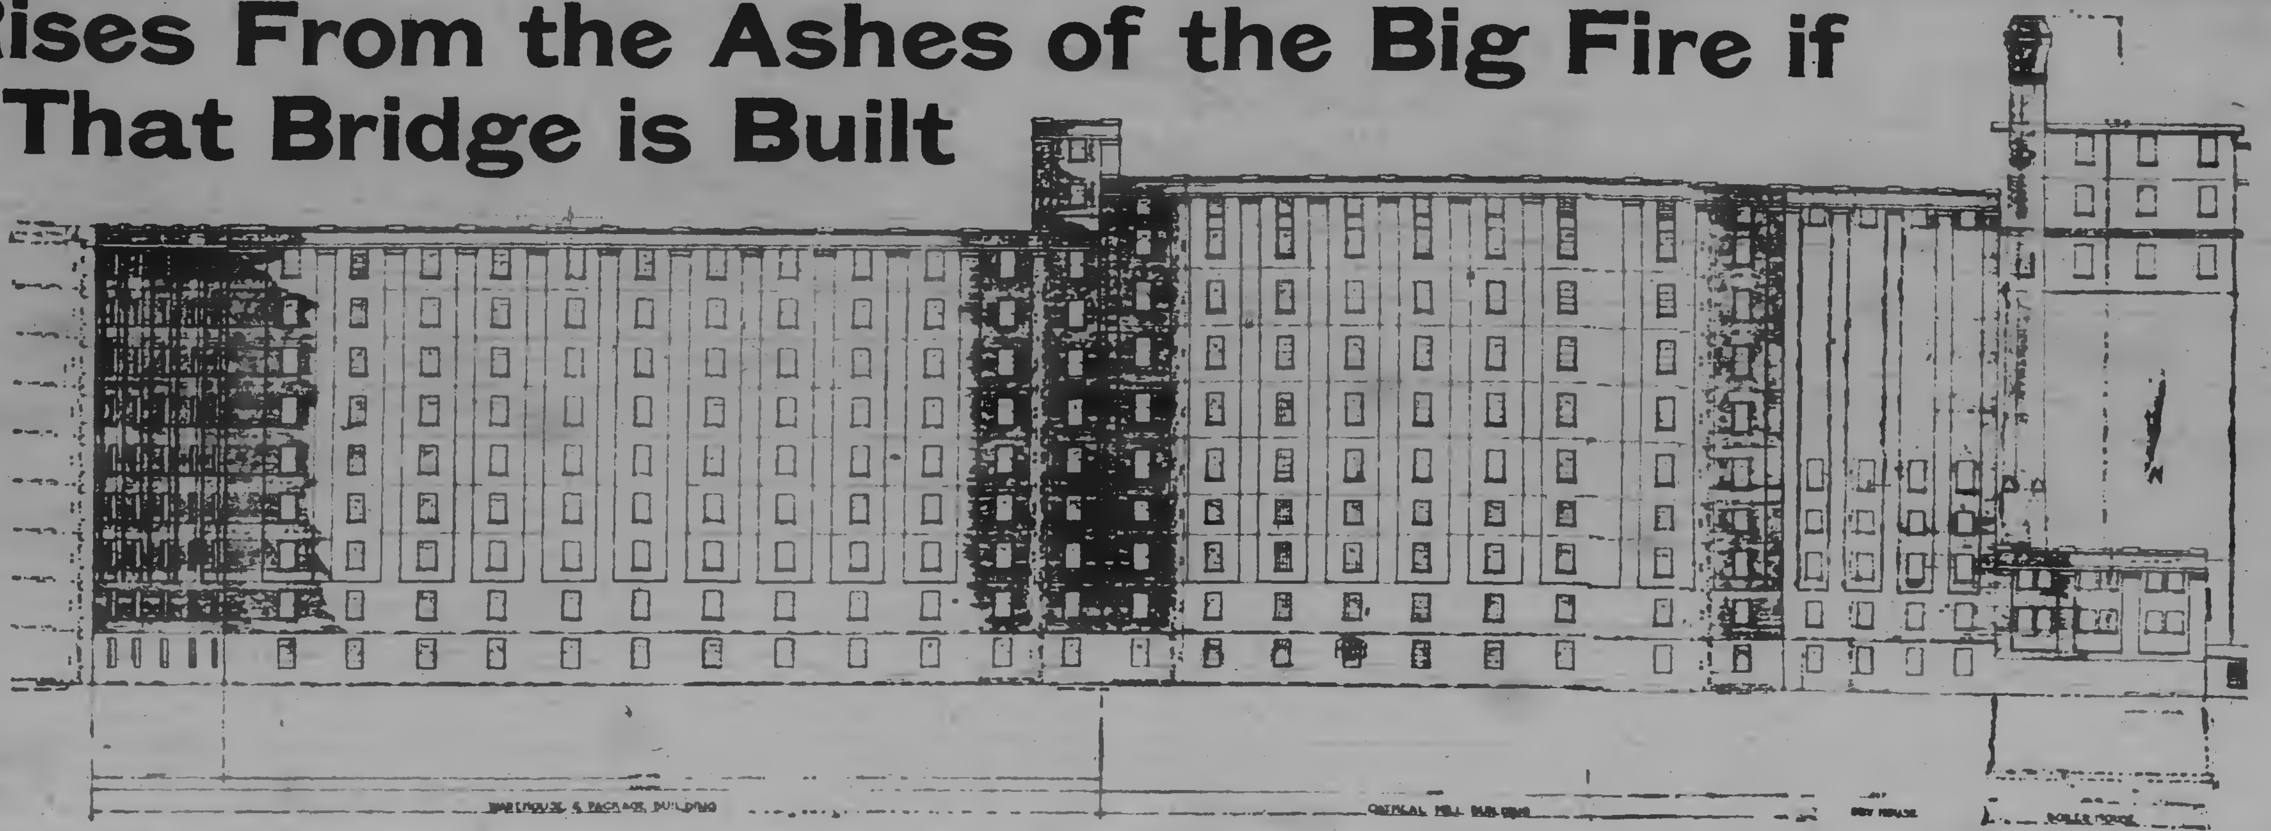
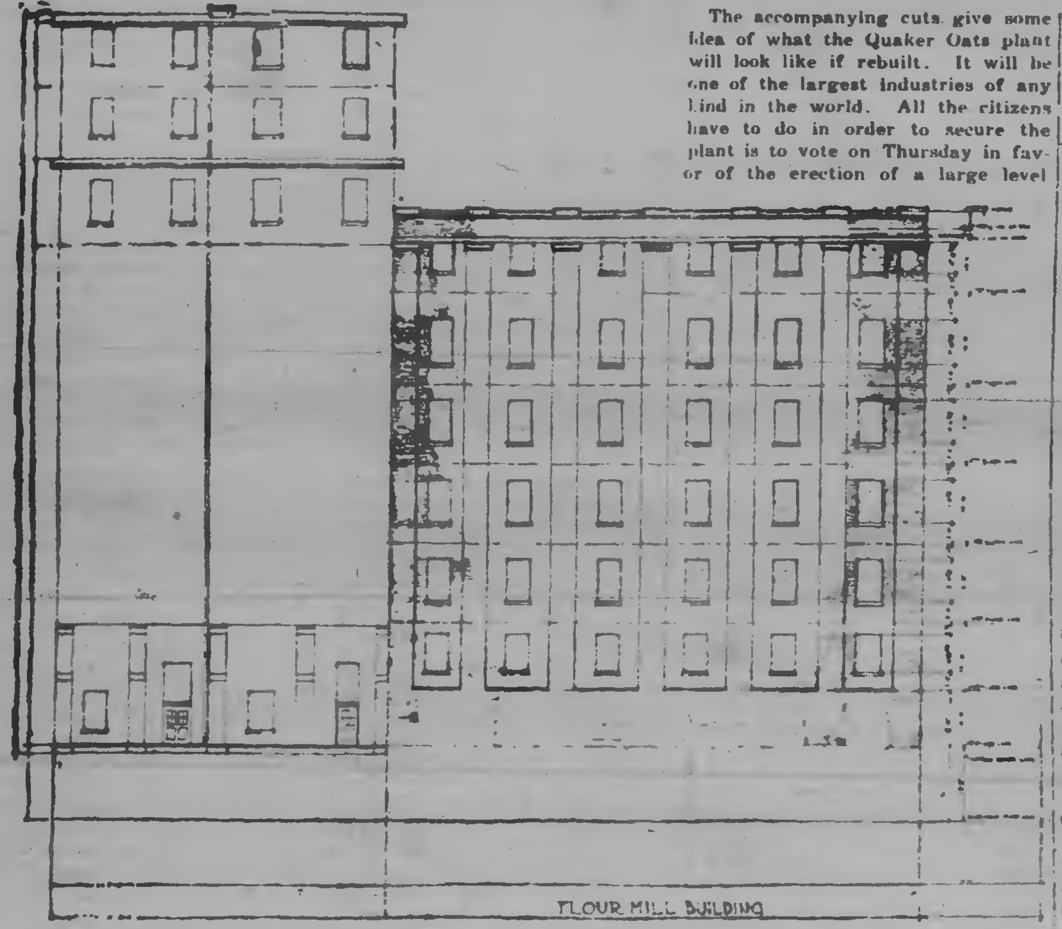
What the Quaker Oats Plant Will Look Like When it Rises From the Ashes of the Big Fire if That Bridge is Built



The accompanying cuts give some idea of what the Quaker Oats plant will look like if rebuilt. It will be one of the largest industries of any kind in the world. All the citizens have to do in order to secure the plant is to vote on Thursday in favor of the erection of a large level bridge. This mammoth plant will be erected in some city. There are scores of municipalities looking for it, ready too, to offer the company greater inducements in the way of valuable concessions than those that are asked of Peterborough.

The rebuilt plant will be on a vastly greater scale than the one that was destroyed by fire a few months ago. Not only will it be higher but it will cover more ground. The cuts are too large to present a continuous picture of both rows of building but the reader can easily form an idea of what the new plant will look like. The buildings represented in the two top lines of cuts will be erected in one solid structure along the river bank. The other two rows will be one building on the western side of the others. The whole will represent an industry sufficient to supports in comfort the population of a town larger than the whole of Ashburnham.

A vote in favor of the high level bridge next Thursday will mean a vote for the rebuilding of this plant in Peterborough. It is hard to believe that there is any ratepayer who will pass up such an opportunity or commit civic suicide by voting against such an addition to local industries. It is all a question of how large the majority will be. The bigger the vote the more influence will it exert when the Government is asked to do its part by speeding up the opening of the Trent Canal.



HOW TRUSTS CORNERED NATION'S ONION SUPPLY

Eighty-Seven Firms Indicted in United States for Forming Combines in Restrait of Trade.

While Canadians are wasting time talking of the food situation, and the queston of hoarding, the American authorites are taking definite and drastic action. A despatch states that eighty-seven corporations and individualss were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury for conspirng to monopolize interstate commerce in onions.

The indictments, which were returned as a result of a nationwide inquiry into the cost of food conducted last winter by United States Attorney George W. Anderson of this city, allege that the defendants divided up the territory of the country between them for the purpose of eliminatng competition, that maximum prices were fixed for the purchase of onions, and that the supply was hoarded in order to increase prices.

Mr. Anderson estimated that the annual crop of onions amounted to 200,000,000 pounds, three-fourths of which he said was alleged to have been controlled by the defendants. In outlining the case Mr Anderson said:

Crop Bought and Hoarded

"The gist of the charge is that the defendants have maintained a national onion association, composed of large onion dealers, who buy up the bulk of the onions of the Northern States during the summer and early fall, storing them in warehouses owned or controlled by the various members and putting them upon the market from September to April. The Government charges that this association has had a dominating and illegal control of the onion trade for the past three years.

Enormous Profits Received

"For the 1916 crop the producers probably received less than two cents a pound. In mid-winter many of these onions were sold to retailers and through them to customers at 10 to 15 cents a pound. It is claimed by the Government that this tremendous margin between the prices accruing to the producer and the price paid by the consumer was largely due to the illegal control of the trade exercised by this association."

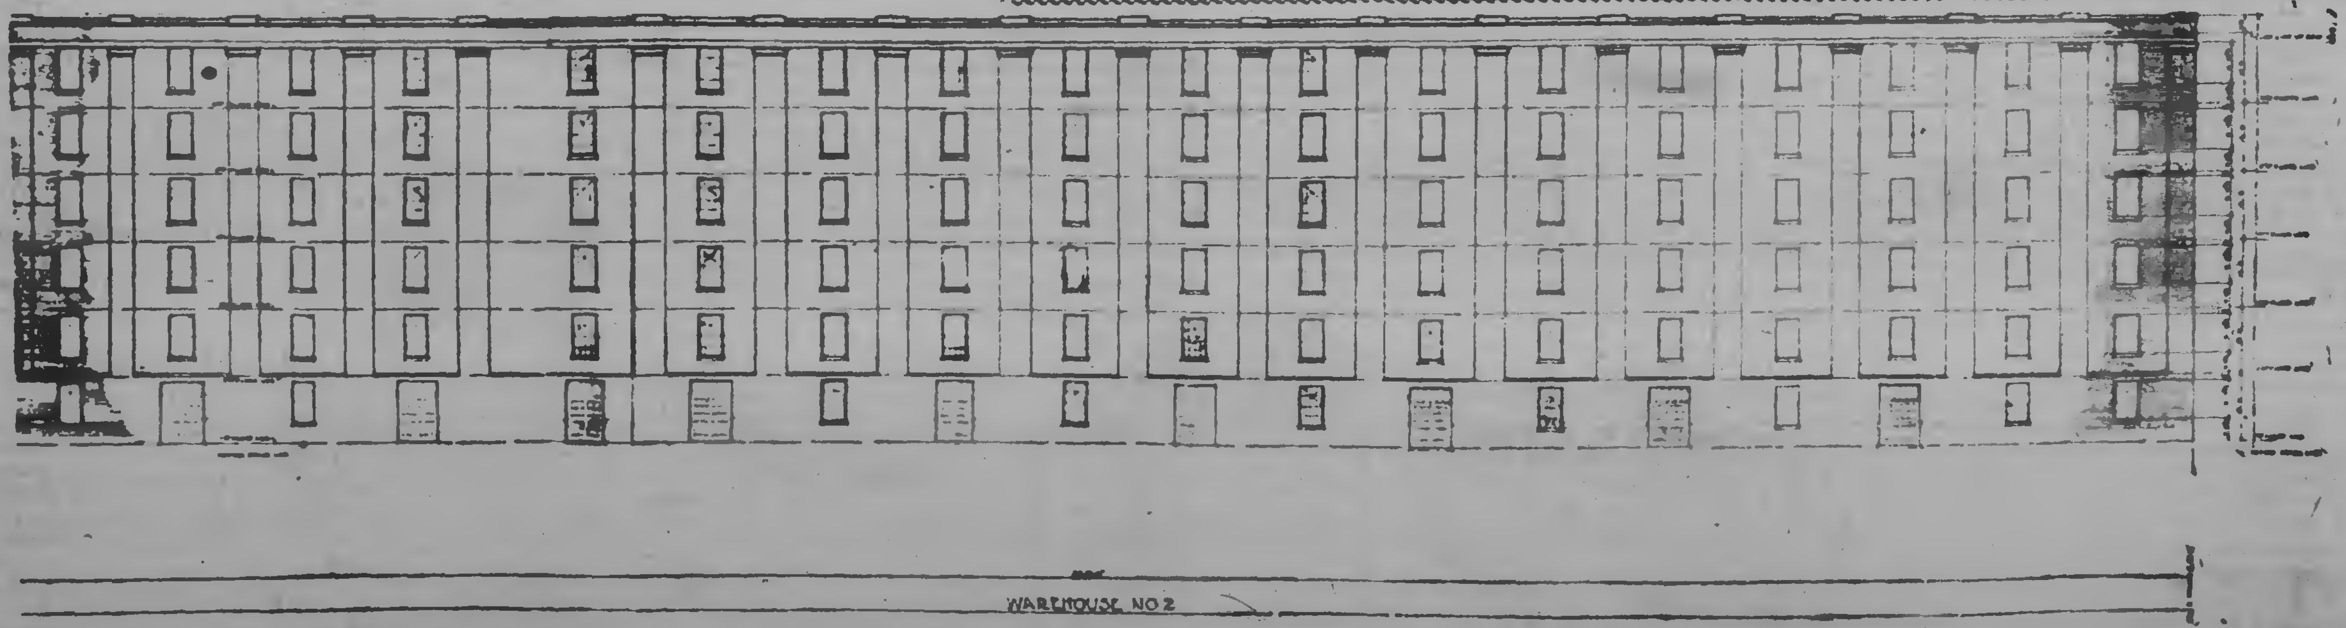
UNITY LEAGUE FORMED.

"Win-the-War" Organization Is To Be Permanent.

MONTREAL, May 28.—The "Win the War" Convention decided at its final session last week to make the organization permanent, the new name to be the Win the War and Canadian Unity League. The chief objects of the league are: First, the successful prosecution of the war, and, second, the promotion of Canadian unity.

Mr. Horace Gagne, Montreal, is president, and Mr. Frank Wise, Toronto, secretary. One vice-president from each province is to be appointed, to be chosen by provincial organizations yet to be formed.

Resolutions passed by the convention are to be presented to Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.



A PAGE AD IN A CATALOGUE BROUGHT IN BIG RETURNS

Why Mail Order Houses Drain This City While Goods Grow Musty in Local Stores.

In the mail department of a big store, not so many miles from Peterborough, can be seen a number of clerks busily engaged gathering statistics and tabulating each and every sale under its known source of origin. Out of curiosity and an inclination for asking questions, a Peterborough citizen recently gleaned the following information from one of the clerks:

This particular firm issued 700,000 catalogues last fall, and from these catalogues, during the season from August 9th to December 15th last, the shoe department alone had made sales to the amount of $104,365.90, and all by mail as a direct result of a one page advertisement in this fall catalogue for which this department was charged up with $500. These facts were interesting and our gleaner of information tried hard to learn just how many catalogues were issued in Peterborough district and with what result, but the purveyor of statistics very politely invited him out for dinner and assuming the offensive he directed the conversation toward the good old days when Germany was making sausages and professions of universal good will.

But our informant still holds the opinion that there would be food for thought regarding the possibilities of advertising in Peterborough had further statistics only been available.

If these big departmental stores can make such a big success of only one small department advertised on a single page of a catalogue, what possibilities must there be for the local merchant in a daily paper which is constantly before the public as a result of its ever changing items of interest to the consumer. There is no doubt whatever that the average retailer can sell more goods to more people than he is now doing. This means that the average merchant is making a good deal less money than he can make right where he is now.

Go, for example, into most any store in the city and you'll find literally hundreds of things that the public needs or wants, but isn't buying very rapidly or generally for the reason that desire for these lines have not been born or stimulated as it should be through the medium of advertising. They usually see it first in a catalogue from the mail-order-house which is usually well served by your silence. You leave the field open to them uncontested and still we hear not a few of the home loving merchants saying some very bitter things about the mail order houses and inroads they make upon home trade, but we hear no complaints from the mail order houses which continue to advertise, compile statistics and issue catalogues in this and many other districts from which they derive very satisfactory results. Review advertising and the use of printed matter sent to the home addresses of your customers and desired customers through the mails.

Two musical tones, sent by the usual key, but received by telephone, are being tried in England to supplant the dot and dash of telegraphy.

THEIR MILITARY RECORD WAS WITHOUT A BLEMISH

Memorial Services in Mark Street Church for Privates Craft, Rowe and Miller--Tributes from Col. Johnston and Judge Huycke.

The memorial services held at the Mark Street Methodist Church last niht in honor of Privates Chester Craft, Howard Rowe, and John G. Miller, were very impressive, and were attended by a large number of the friends and relatives of the heroes, all anxious to pay their last respects to the departed.

The pastor, Rev. F. A. Whattam, had been able to secure Lt.-Col. Johnston and his Honor Judge Huycke to assist in the services, and the kind words that fell from their lips brought not a little comfort to the immediate relatives of those to whom the services were dedicated.

Col. Johnston's Tribute

Lt.-Col. Johnston briefly related the story of the men from the time of their enlistment. He did not feel that he was capable to give the men all the credit that was due to them. They had endured great hardships without a murmur, and were at all times ready to respond to the call of duty even in the face of great danger. They had paid the supreme price and were entitled to all the honor that it was possible for the country to give them. The conduct of the men of the 93rd had been splendid in Canada, it had been better in England and still better in France. To the parents of the soldiers not a little credit was given for their excellent conduct. It showed a very careful training in childhood, and he pointed with pride to the fact that the records of Privates Craft, Miller, and Rowe showed a clean sheet in the regimental crime book, and he felt sure that their record in the Great Book would be just as clean.

Col. Johnston took exceptional pride in the fact that the 93rd Battalion was marked for its exceptional discipline, and he felt guilty that he was not able to be with his men, and felt that the powers had committed a wrong in not letting him go to the front with them. As commanding officer of the battalion, Col. Johnston had attended the burial of a few of his men while he was in France, and he assured the relatives of the departed soldiers that when "The Last Call" was sounded there was hardly a dry eye to be found among the boys so great was the real feeling of comradeship.

JUDGE HUYCKE

Judge Huycke deemed it a great honor to be able to be present to do honor to the three splendid boys who had gone from ther midst. It was with great difficulty that he was able to address them, as his heart was very full. He was glad to hear the kind words of Lt.-Col. Johnston as to the conduct of the men of the battalion that Peterboro was so proud of. Some of their boys had gone with other units, and he felt sure that the same good word could be accorded them. Mark Street Church was well represented at the front, and it seemed that they had suffered unduly in the recent battles. Referring to Privates Craft, Rowe, and Miller the speaker was proud of them. They were better known to Mr. Whattam and Col. Johnston than to him. He extended to their relatives his deepest sympathy. While our hearts are bowed with grief, we all must feel that the boys held that enviable record that they had given their lives for their friends. Judge Huycke pointed out that in the old university towns of England, Oxford and Cambridge, there was not a man of military age and physically fit left, and read the kind words of Mrs. Humphries Ward, which referred to the men who had died from Oxford town.

We are all proud of the part that Peterboro, Ashburnham and soldiers from this district have played in the great war. The judge wanted to think that the boys had not died in vain. The success of our boys was the highest in the world to-day. They had died bravely, fighting for their country, for the liberty of humanity. The young men are giving their lives for their fathers, to pay for the mistakes of the older people.

The splendid work of the soldiers of the other colonies was also dealt with. They had taken their part in the great struggle, but to the Canadians had fallen a great glory. We are all proud of the Canadians who are fighting, and Judge Huycke took advantage of the occasion to condemn the men who have not yet offered their services to the empire. The Canadians had always been able to step into the breach at the right moment and turn defeat into victory. They had done their work well. A short review of the war from the time of the second battle of Ypres till the recent fighting at Vimy was given. He felt sure that the prayers of the country on Easter had been answered by the victory of Easter Monday, when the Canadians had captured the ridge comanded the conquered fields of France, and which had been held by the Germans since the early stages of the war. Dark Monday would now be a thing of the past. The chums of Chester Craft, John Miller and Howard Rowe are now looking over the fertile fields of France to the east of the ridge. The Great White Comrade was leading the boys to a certain victory. God is with the boys. It is His war. If the Germans win this fight, then we might well think that there is no God in heaven, and the work of the boys whom we mourn to-night has been in vain. Freedom was bound to win, and the great principles that Great Britain and her allies stand for will prevail. Honor, truth and justice were sure to win.

In closing the service the Pastor referred to the comfort that the messages must have given to the afflicted homes, and asked that God would add to the comforting words of Judge Huycke and Col. Johnston.

A HABITATION OF JUSTICE AND MOUNTAIN OF HOLINESS

Rev. R. G. Peever Adapts Passage From Jeremiah to Describe British Empire--Strong Sermon on Conscription.

One year ago last January Rev. R. G. Peever preached a sermon on conscription in which he urged it as something demanded by the situation, which confronted the Empire. He was, it may be, somewhat in advance of public sentiment at the time but that consideration did not influence him. He believed then that conscription was coming and the events of the past few weeks have shown that he was right.

The popular pastor of George Street Church preached another powerful and thoughtful discourse on conscription last night adapting the phrase in Jeremiah 31:23: "The Lord bless thee O habitation of Justice and mountain of holiness," to describe the British Empire. In addition he took as part of his text the passage from Matthew: "Render unto Caeser the things that are Caeser's and unto God the things that are God's."

The speaker spoke of what the world owes to the British Empire, the cradle of liberty and civilization and of the misfortunes that will come to humanity if that Empire goes down and Prussianism triumphs. There was nothing in the discourse to engender social strife or jealousy even though he spoke of the fact that since the selective draft was announced young men in Ontario have been crowding to the recruiting stations, while in another province they have been holding riotous demonstrtions against the Government's announced program.

Touching tribute was paid to the men in khaki, to those in hospital and in their last resting place in France. On the veldt of South Africa there is in a military cemetery at Paaderberg where so many Canadian boys fell, a monument bearing this inscription, "Tell England, ye who pass this way, that we who died for her, lie here content." Such a monument could be erected in the military cemeteries in France and would tell the same story of sacrifice made without a murmur.

Mr. Peever believes not only in conscription of men but conscription of wealth as well and that the government should take over the control of all food supplies in order to prevent either waste or excessive profits. He was specially emphatic in demanding that not one bushel of grain be used for the manufacture of liquor.

The musical service was of a patriotic nature throughout. The two selections from the hymnal were "God bless our native land," and the prayer for those in peril on the sea. The third selection rendered by the choir was the American National Anthem.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

The North Monaghan Council met at the Town Hall on May 25th at 2 p.m. as a Court of Revision and to transact general business. All the members were present. Reeve Rye presided for the council meeting and Councillor Robt. Dobbin as chairman of the Court of Revision.

John Welsh Was Buried This A.M. From His Home

DECEASED COULDN'T SWIM AND DROWNED BEFORE HELP ARRIVED.

In referring to the drowning of John Welsh at Fenelon Falls on Friday, the Gazette says:

Mr. W. S. Sloan, of Millbrook, and Welsh were working on a plank hung on ropes under the swing part of the bridge, when the rope holding up one end of the plank slipped in the pully through which it passed and both men were thrown into the water, which is about eight feet deep at that point. Walsh, who was unable to swim failed to reach the timbers along the channel and sank. Sloan was a swimmer and reached safety in a short time.

The funeral took place this morning at 8.30 o'clock from his late residence in Lindsay, to St Mary's Church, and thence to the Catholic cemetery.

KNOW SCOUTS AT FIRST SIGHT

"Why is it that you can so easily pick out a Scout?" asks a Boy Scout Padre on service at a casualty clearing station in France, in writing to the Headquarters Gazette. "On going into a ward," he says, "I often stopped by a bed and asked, "are you a Scout?" I was usually correct, and it saved a lot of worry because we knew at once that we were pals.

"It has been a common thing to find three Scout-masters in a ward at one time. I found an old Scout among the orderlies, and he proved a most helpful person. When I was especially pressed with work this Scout used to do a lot of writing for me and very often my Bible class notes for the members were written out almost entirely by him."

CAPT. MANNING HERE.

Is Raising Recruits For Forestry Draft.

Capt. E. B. Manning of the Forestry Draft will open up recruiting quarters at 136 Simcoe street (the old recruiting rooms) tomorrow where he will enlist men for the Forestry Battalion. This will be the last voluntary opportunity that the young men will have of choosing what branch of the service they should join.

Capt. Manning expects to have his draft of 250 men completed and overseas by July first. He will recruit in Victoria, Haliburton and Peterborough. The Manning family are well represented in the service, Capt. Manning being the fifth. For several months he was A.D.C. to Lt.-Col Williams, Chief Recruiting Officer for Canada.

SUNDAY STORY OF WAR

The official statements issued Sunday announce slight advance north and north-west of Fontaine les Croisilles with successful raids northwest of Wytschaete and northwest of St. Quentin and the repulse of a German attack east of Loos. Five German airplanes were destroyed and five others driven down. Five British machines are missing.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the French destroyed ten German airplanes and drove down seventeen others.

An artillery duel on the Champagne and Aisne fronts were greatly intensified. Several German attacks on these fronts were repulsed.

WANT RECRUITS FOR FARM WORK

ROUND-UP OF BOYS IN THIS DISTRICT IS SET FOR SATURDAY.

Mr. H. William Kingerley of Toronto, one of the five Y. M. C. A. men appointed to aid the Organization of Resources Committee, is in the city and is working with Mr. Galley, boys' secretary of the local branch, to develop the work here. It is planned to round up all the boys in this vicinity who are willing to help in the production work by taking jobs on the farms. The round-up or camp-fire will be held next Saturday either at the Nicholls Oval or at Crawford's Grove, the meeting place to be definitely announced later. Every boy who volunteers for the work will be presented with a handsome badge inscribed with the words "Farm Service Corps, 1917." These badges will be presented by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A.

Conserving food and increasing production is not the only object in view. The aim is to develop the rising generation physically and morally so that the future will have a better and a hardier stamp of manhood than ever.

Personal Organ of Sir Wilfrid Discusses Conscription.

MONTREAL, May 28. — Le Canada, the chief Liberal newspaper of French Canada, and the journal sometimes called Sir Wilfrid Laurier's personal organ, says:

"(1) There is no reason for imposing conscription save to fulfil hastily the illusory promise made by Mr. Borden off his own bat.

"(2) The gravest economic reasons are in favor of maintaining the voluntary system.

"(3) Neither the Government nor Parliament has any mandate to decide this question.

ON A JOY RIDE

Party In Autos Had Cargo Of Red Liquor

KINGSTON, May 28. — Mayor Hughes, accompanied by Inspector McCammon, played the part of the Good Samaritan to-day when they loaded themselves with three gallons of good, downright whiskey, and started out on a little auto ride. Don't think it was a joy party of the raw variety, though. For the mayor and the inspector delivered one gallon of whiskey to the General Hospital, Hotel Dieu and Home for the Aged. Whiskey is some of the stuff seized by the police and is distributed on consent of the Ontario License Commission, a move for which Mayor Hughes was responsible.

OPPOSE CONSCRIPTION.

Liberal and Conservative Members of Parliament Declare Themselves

MONTREAL, May 28. — At an anti-conscription meeting in the Lachine town hall the Federal Conservative member, Mr. J. D. Descarries, declared he would fight against conscription to the end, if it was the last act of his political career. J. C. A. Ashby, Liberal member in the Local Legislature, also declared himself to be deinitely in the fight against conscription.

The hall was crowded to the doors and the sentiment was overwhelmingly against any form of conscription.

CUTS OFF WIFE'S NOSE.

Winnipeg Husband Believed Her Love Waning.

WINNIPEG, May 28.—Suspecting that his wife no longer loved him, Mike Dulkinski, of Husavik, Man., in a fit of jealousy hacked off her nose with a penknife. He was arrested.

Dulkinski, according to the police, has been in jail several times for assaulting his wife. The motive for his present crime is thought to have been jealousy. The act, the police say, was deliberate. He had often threatened to disfigure his wife and when he came home for the first time in many months he carried out his threat by hacking off her nose.

Dulkinski was captured near Komarno, west of Winnipeg beach. His wife was removed to the General Hospital, where her condition is reported as not serious.

What Do These Words Mean to You!
They mean greater safety in the Home. Surely something that interests you keenly!
Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation, "No fire left when blown out," on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The splints or sticks of all matches contained in these boxes have been impregnated or soaked in a chemical solution which renders them dead wood once they have been lighted and blown out, and the danger of FIRE from glowing matches is hereby reduced to the greatest minimum.

CITY'S TWO CALENDARS

Moslems and Christians at Khartum and Omdurman

Khartum offers the contrast of two religions—that of the mosque and of the cathedral, of the Crescent and of the Cross, the standards of the prophet of Mecca and of Jesus Christ. The city has two calendars, dating one from 622 A.D., and one from the birth of our Saviour. Outside Khartum, in the vast Sudan, Islam still seems to be chiefly a veneer, and the negro blood carries with it a characteristic jovial friendship and responsiveness to kindness; but in Khartum and Omdurman Islam is stiffening and deepening its grip on the people.

Gordon College and the primary schools connected with it in the Sudan, although they are Mohammedan schools and observe Mohammedan holidays and teach the Koran and Moslem ethics, have nevertheless been a great stimulus to education. The children are eager to learn, and statistics which have been gathered show a great increase in the imports of paper and printed matter. In 1914, for example, the total value of books, mostly Moslem, imported into the Sudan was £6,062. The following year this had risen to £7,714. Only a very small proportion of this consists of Bibles for the British and Foreign Bible Society or school books for the mission schools. Nine-tenths of it is Moslem literature.

HOME OF RATTAN CANES

How Chinese Merchants of Singapore Conduct Big Trade

One of the most important exports of Singapore is rattan, although it does not make a large showing as to value, being a comparatively cheap article compared with its bulk. Singapore is probably the leading export market for rattans in the world, although practically none of the raw product is produced in the Straits Settlements and very little in the Federated Malay States, most of it being collected from the islands of Sumatra, Borneo, the Celebes, and smaller islands. Ordinarily cut from the jungle by natives under the direction of Chinese merchants doing business in the interior, it is bought up by large dealers in the principal towns and eventually sol to Singapore buyers in bundles as it originally comes from the jungle. The buyers in Singapore take the rattan in this form and put it through a process of selection and cleaning, after which it is bundled together according to grade and shipped direct to various parts of the world.

"Letting the Cat Out"

In the good old days of country fairs in England it was not unknown for a farmer to sell small pigs by sample, the actual pig being tied up in a bag for delivery. Nor was it unknown for some crafty farmer to substitute a cat for the supposed pig. However, if the purchaser were wary, he might open the bag to examine the wares and so let the cat out of the bag. Hence to-day we say of an untimely disclosure that it lets the cat out of the bag.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

Now pitchers must not use the "bean ball" thereby taking one more joy out of the twirler's life.

No longer will the pitcher menace the inoffensive batter by threatening to "knock his block off."

There is one man who is particularly anxious to see the Cubs win the pennant. That man is Jim Gaffney. It was he who recommended Fred Mitchell to President Weegghman, and naturally he wants to see his protege succeed.

The Yankees seem to be having a lot of hard luck, and one wonders if the Old Hoodoo is hovering over Bill Donovan's outfit. That gentleman as usual, has plenty of capable substitutes, and, by Heck, he needs 'em.

When Connie Mack expreses an opinion on baseball you can usually bet your botom dollar he's right. Therefore, it is interesting to note that he considers Meyer, the Athlete's star backstop, a better catcher than Wally Schang. Meyer has got to go some to live up to that reputation!

Grouchy Gus says: Making runs on errors is like finding a dollar bill under the bed when you're looking for a lost collar button.

OMAR, JUNIOR.

If you could ever fix that old umpire
And with him for victory conspire,
You'd kill the game for thousands of the fans
To fill, perhaps, one other fan's desire.

Colonel Ebbetts is certainly an optimist. He refuses to be downcast over the weak showing of his team, and is certain that before very long Robbie will have his men in the thick of the fight, and on top, too.

Herbert Hunter is still waiting for his chance to show what he can do. For the present the former Giant is warming the Cubs' bench, and he has taken a vow that if he ever gets into the game he'll make things hum.

Is the fight game profitable? Heavens, yes! Just look at Mike Gibbons. That genial gentleman says he has $170,000, all earned by the sweat of his brow and by working his fists. It may not be generally known but Mike is a glass manufacturer, a real estate owner, and a farmer more or less, and owns a lot of other things besides two active fists. He has two automobiles, and last year he made $36,000 in the ring. So for the present Mike isn't worrying about the wolf being in front of the door. He can just shoo him away by pointing to his fat bank account.

Baseball magnates are considerably worried over the outlook, from a financial standpoint, for this season. Meetings have taken place in New York and elsewhere, and the situation has been thoroughly discussed, without, however, any definite moves having been made. For the present no drastic measure are contemplated, but perhaps, if conditions do not improve, the owners will have to do something to meet the situation. This by no means indicates that the game is languishing or that the fans have lost interest. But war is war, and the baseball business is going to feel the effects of it, just the same as every other undertaking in the country.

Optimistic Oscar says: "When the home team wins, everybody is everybody else's brother, and you don't stop to find out whether the man you embrace is German, French, English or Irish."

And now Pennsylvania has a new boxing law, too. The bill recently passed provides for a boxing commission of three members, and a secretary, all under salary. It is generally believed that boxing has been doing pretty well, thank you, without any commission. The bouts have been limited to six rounds. It is not unlikely that under the new conditions, if the bill becomes a law, that boxing will receive a great booming in Pennsylvania. If that is the case New York fight fans will be able to get some real sport if they care to spend car fare, since the game has practically been knocked out in New York.

"TY" COBB ENLISTS

Georgian Enrolls His Name as Ready For Service

DETROIT, May 25. — Tyrus R. Cobb, of the Tigers, strolled into the city hall here at noon to-day on his way to the ball park, and formally enrolled himself as an eligible for war under the new selective draft law which is now operative. The Georgian dislikes publicity of a personal sort, and when he gave his name to the clerk, and at once found himself the centre of attraction, he hurried through the formalities and left the building as fast as he could

"Sure, I'll go any time they want me," said Ty, in response to a query, and added, "and so will every man on the Detroit team." The famous fielder expects to join the artillery branch of the army, going preferably with a Georgia corps, if it can be arranged. Cobb on his enrollment card gave his age as 30. Seventeen other members of the Detroit team have also enrolled.

A LONG TIME AGO.

I remember, I remember ('twas many years ago)
The Kansas farmers harvested enough of wheat to sow.

I remember, I remember, a team that lost a game,
And didn't say the weather or the umpire was to blame.

I remember, I remember, a man who took up golf,
And who was not converted, but who

RUNES WINNER OF TORONTO CUP

TORONTO, May 28. — The Toronto Cup, the second richest stake offered by the Ontario Jockey Club at the Spring meeting, was featured on the closing day's program at the Woodbine on Saturday afternoon. It brought out a smart field, and furnished a splendid contest, in which Runes beat Rancher out three parts of a length. There were thirteen starters, and almost every one of the lot found some sort of support. Runes, which ran in the colors of Mr. Henry Watterson, who races under the name of the Marisol stable, showed a splendid performance. He was a forward contender from the start, and when called on finished with good courage. Runes won the same stake last year. In Saturday's effort he established a new track re- when he ran the mile and furlong in 1.51 3-5. The former record was 1.52, held jointly by Tongorder and Minnie Adams.

Jas. M. Ross, Liberal, was nominated in East Middlesex, and W. D. Gregory by Halton Liberals.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Those at Nicholls Oval Are Now in Readiness for the Season.

The tennis courts of the George Street Methodist Church Tennis Club at Nicholls Oval are now in good shape to accommodate players. Mr. Kitney, the park foreman, has rolled the grounds several times, and they are marked out for use by the members any evening from now on.

The election of officers for this club will be held in the basement of the George Street Church Wednesday evening of this week at 7:30. All those interested in tennis at the Oval are requested to be on hand. A special invitation is extended to students of the Collegiate and the Normal School.

Walt Mason's Melodies

'Twas in the state of Wis., a senator got his. He sprung a line of talk that gave the state a shock—disloyal foolish stuff, of which we've had enough, his fellow statesmen rose and seized him by the nose and fired him from his place, all loaded with disgrace. His little course is run, his statesmanship is done; in outer darkness now he claps his clammy brow, and doubtless wishes that he hadn't used his hat through which to speak a piece; his woe will never cease. And other folks whose laws wag heedlessly should pause. The man whose active tongue on roller bearings hung upon the zephyrs flings unpatriotic things, may find himself some morn disdained, a thing of scorn. Perhaps he means no wrong by his opinions strong, but men are under strain and foolish talk and vain may stir their souls to ire to doings fierce and dire. And then the gabsmith sees that talk is a disease. While riding on a rail he lifts his bitter wail and wishes he had canned the words at his command.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

CLARKE—BENTON.

A very pretty wedding took place this morning at the residence of Mrs. John Morrow, 160½ Simcoe street, when the Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., united in marriage Miss Nellie Gertrude Benton of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mr. Robert Clifford Clarke of Belleville. The couple were unattended and after the ceremony sat down with a few friends to a wedding breakfast after which they started on a honeymoon trip which will take in Belleville, Toronto and other points. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside in Peterborough and will be at 160½ Simcoe street when they return.

JOHNSTON—FIFE

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride, 631 Stewart Street, on Wednesday evening, May 23rd, when Lilian May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. Fife, was united in marriage to Jas. Douglas, son of ex-Alderman and Mrs. Florence Johnston Rev. R. G. Peever officiating. Miss Florence Johnston sister of the groom played the wedding music. The bride wore her travelling suit of blue with grey trimmings. After luncheon the young couple left on the 9.00 p.m. train for a short trip and on their return will reside at 645 Aylmer Street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, who have been spending the winter in California, have returned to the city and are stopping at the Empress while their home on Monaghan Road is being reopened.

Miss Kathleen O'Brien, who has been visiting Mrs. John Crane, Weller street, left for her home in Stratford today.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. G. Denne and Mrs. Widdifield are at Stoney Lake where they have opened their summer home for the season.

Mr. H. J. Richards of the Dominion Bank staff, Toronto, is spending a few days in the city.

Mr. L. Pettigrew of Lindsay was in the city today.

Miss Maud Perry of Toledo, Ohio, is spending a holiday with relatives in the city.

Mr. A. W. Allen of Lindsay was a visitor to the city today.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bradley of Chicago are guests at the Empress.

Mr. A. J. Riches of Lindsay is in the city.

Mr. R. D. Fleming, who for some time has been accountant for the Dickson Co., has resigned to accept a position with the De Laval Co.

Among a number of Canadians to be decorated by the Italian Government for gallantry appears the name of Capt. (Dr.) Howard Hampton Burnham of Toronto, who went overseas with the first contingent. Capt. Burnham has been presented with a silver medal for military valor. He is a son of Dr. Herbert Burnham of Toronto and a nephew of Mrs. (Dr.) Boucher and Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., of this city.

FRIED FISH WITH TOMATO SAUCE.

Bone and skin the flesh, cut it into even slices, or if a flounder or any flat fish is used, begin at the tail, and keeping the knife close to the bone separate each side of the fish neatly from it, then cut each side in two, lengthwise, leaving the fish in four long pieces. Remove the skin carefully. After having sprinkled pepper and salt over them roll each piece first in sifted cracker and bread crumbs, then in one-half cup of milk mixed with an egg, and then in crumbs again. They are better fried in a suatee pan in a little hot water; yet they may be sauted in a little hot lard with some neat slices of pork, or fried in boiling lard.

INSTEAD OF TEA.

A good substitute for tea is mock coffee, or bran coffee. It is made with four cups bran, one cup molasses and about one tablespoon butter; mix in a pan and roast in oven, stirring often until quite brown. Use one tablespoon to a cup of hot water for each person.

"THOU ART THE MAN!"

Rev. Canon McNab at St. John's Yesterday.

Rev. Canon McNab of St Alban's Cathedral, Toronto, officiated at both services in St. John's Church yesterday. His evening sermon was acceptably refreshing, and dealt with the present day need for special preaching by men who will speak directly to the point. It is strange he asserted how the consciences of the average congregation are lulled in a sleep of personal security, calling for an earthquake to arouse the sleepers to a sense of their own deficiences. And preachers should talk right to the conscience of their hearers, and not cater to their emotional sensibilities or artistic preferences. The church needs men who honestly believe they are sent by God as his preachers, then congregations will accept their preaching as messages from God The reverend gentleman contended that God's message, whether of denunciation or pardon, delivered outspokenly and in God's name, will never drive people away from church. In all probability the cause of many people not attending divine worship is a self-blindness which deludes them into conceiving that they have no need to be disturbed or anxious for their own spiritual conditions. We are all prone to dislike discussing, or reference to, our own faults, while cheerfully willing to discuss the faults of others; and we need direct preachers to tell us, as Nathan told King David, "Thou art the man" Like Queen Bess of old, we dont like to see the wrinkles in our own portrait.

TRIBUTE FROM SUPERIOR.

Lieut. MacLeod Writes Family of Late Lce.-Corp. McGregor.

The following letter has been received by the relatives of the late Lance Corporal J. McGregor, who died of wounds received in the battle of Vimy Ridge:

In the Field,
5th C.M.R., Canadians,
France, April 26, 1917.

W. J. McGregor,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—No doubt before now you have received official notice of the death of your brother, Lance-Corporal J. McGregor, who died of wounds received in action on the 11th inst. I was very much surprised when I heard of his death, as I did not think at the time that his wounds were at all serious.

I always regarded him as one of my most promising N.C.O.'s, and although I had only known him for a short time, he proved himself to be a most trustworthy and loyal N.C.O.

While I fully appreciate the fact that nothing can compensate for the loss of such a promising young life, I feel there must be some comfort in the fact that he gave his life for such a noble cause.

Please accept for yourself and any other members of your family my sincere sympathy in your hour of sorrow.

Yours very sincerely,
M. MACLEOD,
Lt., 5th C.M.R. Batt.

OBITUARY

MRS. P. O'NEILL.

The death of Mrs. P. O'Neill occurred this morning at 4 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F Lavigne, Simcoe, where she has made her home for the last three years Born in Ireland 83 years ago, when 15 years old with her parents she came to Peterborough and lived here for 65 years, being one of our oldest residents. She leaves to mourn her loss 2 sons and one daughter, namely, John Duignan of this city, Peter Duignan of St. Louis, Missouri, and Mrs. F. Lavigne of Simcoe.

The remains of the late Mrs. O'Neill will arrive by C.P.R. Tuesday morning and the funeral will take place Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the residence of her son, John Duignan, 184 Dalhousie street, to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

DR. W. W. MILBURN.

The death occurred at Macleod, Alta., May 26th, of Dr. Wes. Milburn, death being due to typhoid fever. He is the second son of Mrs. R. T. Milburn, 197 Brock street, who along with his wife and two small children are left to mourn his loss. He leaves besides two brothers Smith and Fred, of Peterborough.

SIR WILFRID IS STILL WAITING

NOTHING KNOWN OF STAND HE IS LIKELY TO TAKE ON DRAFT ISSUE.

OTTAWA, May 28.—Sir Wilfrid's attitude on conscription still remains unknown. His French-Canadian followers from Quebec have been urging him to adopt the course of calling for a referendum on the question. His Ontario and Western supporters still desire him to endorse the Prime Minister's proposals. He seems to have been busy learning the views of others, but has been very reticent as to his own. French-Canadian Conservatives, it is said, are in the main convinced of the necessity for measures to maintain the strength of the Canadian army at the front. Some have received threatening anonymous letters which have been treated with contempt or taken more seriously, according to the temperament of the recipients.

10,000,000 U.S. Men Liable to Service

WASHINGTON, May 28.—By a Census Bureau estimate classifying more than ten million men within the military draft age limit, the number of single men is placed at 5,372,400, and the number of married men 4,545,900.

The estimate was prepared on a basis of a normal increase in population since the 1910 census and on the assumption that the ratio between married and single men is the same as at that time.

MARRIAGE

CLARKE—BENTON—On May 28th by Rev. R. G. Peever, Nellie Gertrude Benton, of Peterborough, to R. Cliff Clarke, of Belleville.

OLD AND YOUNG MAKE SPEECHES

PROTESTANT BENEVOLENT ASS'N HOLD ROUSING MEETING.

On Friday evening last the Protestant Benevolent Federation held their monthly meeting in Victoria Hall, which was a most enthusiastic and largely attended gathering.

It was the best meeting in a long time, and if the spirit shown at this gathering is any criterian there will be a capacity attendance at the next meeting on the last Friday in June.

The refreshment committee deserves great credit for the very excellent manner in which that very important feature of all the federation meetings was handled.

Many of the old and younger members made short, sensible, and witty speeches which brought rounds of applause. After the regular business and while all were enjoying the refreshments Mr Percy Naish sang a couple of most appropriate solos, which were heartily applauded, and Master Hughson Johnstone, an eight-year-old elocutionist rendered a touching piece showing the most inhuman treatment by Germans of our Canadian prisoners, and in responding to an encore brought down the house with a very humorous piece using names of prominent local men.

The meeting came to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Cars have been designed for an electric railroad in Ireland to be run by gasoline-electric generators which they carry or by the overhead trolley system.

BRAZIL IS READY TO ENTER WAR

BRITISH WIN ALL ATTACKS; GERMAN RAIDS REPULSED

Today's News From Battle Front Still Cheering---French Capture Post in Verdun Region---Gen. Haig Prepares for New Drive.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 29.—Hostile raiding parties were driven off during the night southwest of Lens and west of Messines, says today's official statement. We made successful raids north of Ploegsteert wood. The enemy's artillery was active last night and on both banks of the Scarpe in the neighborhood of Bullecourt river.

FRENCH CAPTURE POST.

PARIS, May 29.—The official announcement says: The French have captured a German post north of Vacherauville in the Verdun region. Two German attacks in the region of Hurtebise on the Champagne front, proceded by a violent bombardment, were repulsed.

PREPARING FOR NEW DRIVE.

ZURICH, May 29.—An official telegram from Budapest says Emperor Charles has appointed Count Julius Andrassy premier of Hungary to succeed Count Tisza who resigned last Wednesday. Count Andrassy is a former premier and prominent opponent of Tisza.

NO DANGER OF FAMINE.

LONDON, May 29.—Pessimism regarding the food outlook for the allies was relieved somewhat by the announcement that the Austrian wheat crop will meet the home demand and permit the export of 6,000,000 tons.

News of the bad crop outlook in the United States was followed recently by the admission of the food authorities here that the British crop, despite efforts to increase it, would be less than last year's, which was less than that of 1915. This is the result partly of lack of labor, partly of the hard winter and of the late, cold spring.

Britain opens the week realizing that a food crisis is approaching and admonished by the highest authority to eat less and not to grumble if forced to pay more. Last week witnessed an all-round increase in prices, and the present week will see further general advances.

Sheep brought as high as $38 each last week, four times as high as in normal times, and the price is still rising. Potatoes reached $7 a bushel, but such a quantity as a bushel cannot be obtained, and the price is much higher by the pound. Public indignation against food speculators is rising to a high pitch.

HEALTH ASSOCIATION FAVORS CELEBRATION

The Peterborough Health Association has by a unanimous vote endorsed the project of the Greater Peterborough Association to hold a sports day on July 1st in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of Confederation. The program of sports which is being arranged for will make the celebration the greatest that Peterboro has seen in many a day.

The prizes will be attractive enough to draw a large number of competitors from the surrounding country.

BRIDGE BYLAW SURE TO CARRY ON THURSDAY

MERCHANTS ORGANIZE TO GET OUT THE LARGEST VOTE POSSIBLE.

The meeting of the citizens of the Centre Ward who desire the success of the Overhead Bridge Bylaw on Thursday was held in the offices of the Peterboro Patriotic Fund, and was well attended.

Scrutineers were appointed for each polling division and a great many of the business men promised to have their autos on hand to get out the vote. The merchants present were quite confident that the bylaw would carry by a very strong majority, and that the legislature would feel justified in acceeding to the city's request for a longer term debenture as well as to give concessions to facilitate the new Quaker Oats plant.

FRENCH FREIGHTER LOST

NEW YORK, May 29. — The French freighter Meuse was torpedoed and sunk last Thursday while on voyage to Harve.

AUTO OWNERS WILL HELP TO BRING OUT THE VOTERS

Car Owners Volunteer to Carry Ratepayers to Polls Thursday to Support Bridge Bylaw.

The bridges bylaw will carry easily if the Peterboro Automobile Club have anything to do with it. Last evening a meeting of all auto owners who would lend their cars cars for the purpose of bringing out the favorable vote on Thursday was held and it was a great satisfaction to the city officials to find that so great an interest was being taken by the citizens to carry the bylaw with as large a majority as possible.

Every polling sub-division will be manned with half a dozen or more cars and when the vote is about in at each division all the cars will report at the central headquarters to get further instructions.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., the president of the club, presided and there were present Messrs. W. A. Campbell, F. H. Linton, D. Davidson, R. Turner, A. A. Fowler, F. J. MacPherson, R. Denne, E W Borbidge, G. O Cameran, H. Waram, H. Johnstone, J. Hamilton, C. E. Canfield, M Maher, R. R. Hall, Dr. Harvey, Mayor Duffus, and Aldermen Stratton and Taylor.

After a considerable discussion as to the best way to arrange for the cars for the different polling divisions it was decided to have Messrs. Canfield and Turner get a list of all the club members who would lend their cars and they will then send the list to City Clerk Armstrong. It was pointed out that there were a large number of auto owners who were not members of the club, and any of these will be asked to notify Mr. Armstrong direct.

The cars will be assigned to the different divisions from headquarters. From the reports received from East City and the Centre Ward, the committee at these places have been promised more than enough autos to take care of the vote in these wards

Mayor Duffus was quite confident last night that the bylaw would carry by a very substantial majority, but wants to have it made as great as possible so that the Legislature will have no trouble in concluding that the citizens of Peterboro are anxious for the bridges, but that they also want their representatives to extend the term of the debentures over a longer period than the Municipal Act actually allows

If this can be accomplished it will be a concesion to the city.

CONTROLLER OF FOODSTUFFS IN UNITED STATES

Bill Passes American Congress By a Large Majority.

MISS RANKIN SPEAKS.

Moves Amendment Which Provides for Employment of Women.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—A bill authorizing an exhaustive food census—the first of two Administration measures that will provide absolute dictatorship—passed the House and gave Miss Jeannette Rankin, Representative from Montana, her first chance to make a speech.

The measure, known as the Levern bill, was passed after a bitter fight by many Republicans and a few Democrats opposed to any sort of food regulation, particularly regulation of farm products. A motion to recommend the bill to the Committee on Agriculture was the last feature of the opposition. It was defeated by 220 to 81. An effort to force a roll call on the passage of the bill was unsuccessful.

In the bill are carried appropriations for $17,700,000 for the food survey and for increasing production, conserving supply and preventing waste of food. In it also is incorprated an amendment by Miss Rankin, n which she spoke, providing that women, as far as is practicable, shall be employen to obtain information rerequired under the census.

"After This Manner Pray Ye"

The regular monthly union prayer service arranged by the Ministerial Associaton for all the Christian people of Peterborough will be held in Murray Street Baptist Church on Wednesday evening, May 30th, at 8 o'clock. Every person will be welcomed at the service. Patriotism and religion both call us to worship; common needs and dangers and sorrow constrain to unity. It is hoped that there will be a large gathering, representative of every walk and need of the city life at the meeting Wednesday night.

MORE PETERBORO HEROES GIVE LIFE FOR EMPIRE

Five Deaths Are Reported in Today's Official List of Casualties.

Peterborough again appears in the list of casualties as having lost a few more of her soldiers. And in some cases the information is only a confirmation of news already sent out.

PTE. FALLOWFIELD MISSING.

Pte. H. W. Fallowfield of Peterborough is reported in the list issued late yesterday afternoon.

PTE. L. MURTAGH KILLED.

Pte. L. Murtagh of Peterborough is reported killed in action, according to the list issued yesterday.

PTE. BUCKINGHAM.

Pte. J. Buckingham, who formerly lived at 114 Robinson street, is reported killed in action. He was a member of the 93rd and was employed by the Auburn Woolen Co. before enlisting. His relatives are in England.

PTE. HARRY ORR KILLED.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Orr of Millbrook have received an official message from Ottawa stating that their son, Pte. Harry Orr, formerly of the 93rd Battalion (Peterborough), has been killed in action. Pte. Orr had a host of friends who will be grieved to learn of his death. He enlisted with the band of the 93rd and is the first former member of the band to figure in the casualty lists. Pte. Orr transferred from the band to the signalling section of the 93rd, and went overseas as a signaller. He was very popular in the battalion and a favorite with all ranks.

CAPT. POOLE KILLED.

Word was received here today confirming the report of the death of Capt. B. R. Poole of Regina, Sask, and formerly of Peterborough He was a son of Surgeon Major Poole, who served in the Indian army. Mrs. Poole is now in England. She is a sister of Mrs. Samuel Clegg and Mrs (Capt.) White of this city.

LIEUT. ANDREWS ILL.

Word was received here to-day that Lieut "Sunny" Andrews formerly of Peterboro was in one of the base hospitals in France suffering from a bad attack of tonsolitis One of his brother officers, in writing home, sent the information.

NO CAUSE TO WORRY

Mrs. T. W Robinson, Weller St., received letters last week from her son, Private Walter M Robinson, who was wounded recently. He writes that he is in the Edmonton Military Hospital, London, and doing nicely—no cause to worry.

CONSCRIPTION IS OPPOSED IN MANY CITIES

City Council in Quebec Adopts Strong Resolution Against It.

ANTIS IN HULL ON PARADE

Toronto Council of a Different Mind and Supports Plan.

OTTAWA, May 29.—While the Labor leaders now in Ottawa are content to remain in an attitude of "watchful waiting" in the interests of the organized workers throughout the Dominion, on whose behalf they recorded a strong protest against the selective conscription measure, there is plenty of activity, for scores of messages are coming in from unions in all parts of the country endorsing the stand taken by the Executive Council of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and containing local resolutions of strong protest against the compulsory service bill.

ALDERMEN OPPOSE.

QUEBEC, May 29.—Only two members of the Quebec City Council, Aldermen Frank Dinan and George Gibson, voted against the anti-conscription resolution, which was passed on a division of nineteen to two.

The Council chamber was all too small to contain the large crowd, which remained quiet throughout the meeting, except for one individual, who shouted: "What about Home Rule?" as Alderman Dinan voted against the resolution.

"We'll fight for that," retorted the Irish Alderman, as he resumed his seat.

When the resolution was declared adopted by Mayor Lavigueur a crowd of a few thousand cheered, rose and sang "O Canada" and "God Save the King."

DEMONSTRATION AT HULL.

OTTAWA, May 29.—Four thousand persons took part in a demonstration against conscription in Hull and paraded the various streets of the city, carrying banners, and shouting. The paraders were about to come over to Ottawa, when Mayor Archambault of Hull, and Mr. E. B. Devlin, M.P. for Wright county, urged them to remain in their own city and Province, and not go looking for trouble.

ANTI-CONSCRIPTION PETITION.

MONTREAL, May 9. — Mayor Martin, at a meeting of the city council, submitted a petition, said to have been signed by about 8,000 people, opposing conscription. It was ordered filed, and that was as far as it got.

AUSTRIANS DRIVEN BACK BY ITALIANS

Have Lost 23,681 in Prisoners Since May 14---Russian Sailors Land, Capture Turkish Post and Destroy Stores.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, May 29.—The Italians in the Plava sector yesterdap drove the Austrians to the end of the valley east of Globna, says the official statement issued today. Since May fourteenth Austrian prisoners taken on the Julian front number 23,681. The Italians also captured thirty-six guns included thirteen of the heaviest calibre.

TURKS LOSE TO RUSSIANS.

PETROGRAD, May 29.—Russian sailors of the Russian Black Sea fleet yesterday made a landing at Chivi to the east of Samsun on the Anatolian coast and destroyed a Turkish post there and burned a store of grain and two large sail boats. Two other vessels were taken to Trebizond. There were the usual fusilades yesterday on the German front.

EXPECT ATTACK

BERLIN, May 29.—To-day's official report says an attack by Russians and Rumanians is expected.

CRISIS IN RUSSIA

PETOGRAD, May 29.—The industrial crisis in Russia is so acute that, according to a recent utterance of a minister of finance, M. Shingaroff, only a miracle can save the country from economic ruin The demands of the workmen were so enormous he declared, that it seemed impossible to keep the industrial wheels going for any great length of time.

The Socialist ministers at a recent ministerial council said that the only possibility they saw of settling the difficulty was to bring the war to a close.

Neither the coalition cabinet nor the newly appointed commission to regulate the differences between capital and labor has yet found a way to settle the industrial crisis. The commission is composed of the ministers of finance trade and industry and labor, but since there is a wide divergence of views between the minister of finance and the new Socialistic minister of labor, it seems probable that this commission will be confronted with the same difficulties that attended previous efforts at reconciliation.

RESIDENTS TO PETITION FOR BETTER CAR SERVICE

Patrons of Street Cars Object to Double Transfer System Now in Vogue.

The residents in the northwest section of the city have at last risen in organized protest against the street car service that they have complained of for years. A petition is being circulated and largely signed by the victims of one of the most exasperating systems of public transport that were ever devised. This petition will be sent to Mayor Duffus and members of the City Council as it is held that they are the proper parties to take up the question with the present management of the road the Hydro-Electric Commission. The petition is as follows:

To Mayor Jos. J. Duffus and Members of the City Council.

Gentlemen,—We, the undersigned resident ratepayers in the northwestern section of the city, petition your honorable body to take such steps as you may deem necessary to secure a better street car service for citizens in the vicinity mentioned.

Under the present arrangement, we cannot reach the down town business section of the city by car line without transferring twice, once at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets, and again at George street.

We recognize the fact that the control of the road is now in the hands of the Hydro-Commission, but we believe that the aldermen and the Mayor are the proper parties to take this matter up.

We respectfully petiton for a continuous service from our section to the business centre and for such other improvements as may be deemed advisable.

And your petitioners will ever pray.

The grievance of the petitioners is certainly well founded. A resident of, say Weller stret, starts for down town and boards a car at Park street. When he reaches Charlotte street he has to transfer to another. If he arrives at the right moment he can continue his journey cityward but very often he is obliged either to wait on the street corner or to take a free ride out to the end of Charlotte street and return. When he reaches George street he is compelled to change cars again.

It is in rainy weather that the defects in the system are most keenly realized, but at no time is it satisfactory. The arrangements of a few years ago were more tolerable when the residents now protesting were able to get a car from their homes as far as George and Hunter street without a change.

The street car service is one that will claim the attention of the Greater Peterborough Association. The system is now in the hands of the Hydro Commission and the city has its choice of taking it over at once and making all needed improvements at civic expense or of allowing the Commission to make these changes and to pay for them later. The majority seem to be in favor of adopting the latter course as the Commission can extend the line with less outlay and all of such expenditure will be charged up to the city at cost when the road is finally taken over by the municipality.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 29, 1917

THE LIBERALS AND CONSCRIPTION.

CAN ANY NEWSPAPER READER define the attitude of the Liberal party on the conscription issue from information gleaned from the columns of the party press? Our local contemporary has never definitely stated its position, but, true to its policy of safety first, is content to remain astride the fence and so be in a position to drop a word occasionally to the crowd on either side. All that is made clear is that the Opposition is in favor of an early election.

The Globe is just as evasive on the leading issue of the day as the local champion of the party in the minority. Its sonorous periods and skyscraping words tell us nothing as to whether the Opposition would enforce conscription or not in the event of their return to power.

The Globe says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the only man who can unite the country. Then the mission of the Liberal leader is to undo the work that he has done. During the past five years the Opposition has offset all efforts of the Government to stamp out racial and other differences in Canada. In the Parliamentary session of a year ago it will not be forgotten haw the Liberals, egged on by Sir Wilfrid, sought to sow discord between the two older provinces by forcing the school system of the one upon the other.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier could easily have encouraged recruiting among his compatriots, but he chose to remain inactive. He played politics while the Empire burned. If there is opposition in that province now to the selective draft, it is not hard to fix the responsibility. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has always told his compatriots that conscription was not necessary. That was his teaching when a bye-election was in progress in his province, and his opinions have never changed.

If there is to be a new cabinet formed at Ottawa, a truly representative body of men can be selected without admitting into the council any taint of Laurierism. A national cabinet need not necessarily include any of the mob that has been howling for months at the portals of office offering to barter co-operation in the conduct of the war for a consideration—a place in power. Assistance that is purchaseable is seldom to be desired. Such members of a cabinet would be under suspicion from the beginning.

THE OLD MARKET BASKET.

IT IS GENERALLY ADMITTED that the delivery system that the merchants are obliged to maintain is one factor that adds to the present high cost of living. That is not the only objection to the system. It keeps at work a number of able-bodied men who could be employed to better purpose either in the production campaign or in the military service. In some of the towns of Ontario the merchants have agreed to drop the delivery of parcels during the months of July and August, so as to give those employed in that branch an opportunity to go to the country and assist the farmers. It is altogether likely that this will meet with approval among the customers, who in the general interest will be willing to put up with a temporary and trifling inconvenience.

What has become of the woman who carried a basket with her to market and herself took her purchases home? The women of the nation constitute the majority of the patrons of the stores. They are responsible for the expensive delivery system. Women these days are making all sorts of sacrifices to help win the war. They could go a step further and relieve the scarcity of labor to some extent if they had recourse to the market baskets their mothers were not ashamed to carry. Let someone set the fashion, and all the rest will follow, just as they are quick to adopt some new style in millinery.

Carrying a purchase home from a store is no more unfeminine than a woman working in a position that it was thought before the war none but a man could fill. The object would be the same and equally worthy—the release of some man for a more essential duty.

MINISTERS AND THE WAR.

THE MINISTERS in several Toronto churches Sunday devoted considerable attention to the work of winning the war. One preacher took the stand that if Quebec fails to respond to the call for recruits, that province's representation in the Dominion Parliament should be reduced to an extent in proportion to the number of recruits allotted and not provided.

Why suggest impossibilities? The B. N. A. Act provides that Quebec shall always have sixty-five members in the Federal House, whether the population increases or falls off, and this arrangement is made the basis of representation for the rest of the Dominion. As the population of Quebec grows, the representation in the other provinces automatically decreases.

This looks like an unfair arrangement, but it is one which is likely to continue indefinitely. Legal experts tell us that the Act in question cannot be amended without the consent of all the parties to it, and Quebec is not likely to agree to anything that would tend to lower her prestige.

Parliament's right to disfranchise any individual or class for just cause, such as a treasonable disregard of a national edict is unquestioned, but Quebec's representation is a constitutional fixture.

Another clergyman declared that what the country needs is leadership and that party politics have failed. No exception can be taken to the latter contention. Canada's trouble today is not so much a lack of efficient leadership as a surplus of partisanship. It is partisanship that has placed every conceivable obstacle in the way of the nation's leaders ever since the war broke out. It was partisanship that caused the collapse of the voluntary system, this constant dinning into the ears of the young men of the country that if they enlisted they would be ill-fed, ill-clad, and neglected in the hospitals if they fell ill or were wounded in the service. It is partisanship that causes the Liberal party today to wabble helplessly on the conscription question lest by taking one side or the other they antagonize this or that province or faction. It is partisanship that calls for an election on the slim chance of a snap verdict at a time when all conditions are out of joint by reason of the tragedy now being enacted in Europe.

Protect the leaders of the nation from the handicap of an unscrupulous and partisan Opposition, and the good work can be carried to a successful issue.

OUR INVINCIBLE NAVY.

THURSDAY NEXT will be the anniversary of the battle of Jutland, an engagement that will always be regarded as one of the most important in naval annals, although compared to others in history the losses on either side were comparatively small and the issue between the contending powers was not finally disposed of. It was convincing proof, however, that the German navy was in no sense a match for the British, and that the Empire's domination of the seas was still supreme.

The people of this city will never forget the depression in hopes caused by the first receipt of the news. For the first day or two tht Admiralty withheld details, and at first the fear was justified that the navy had met with a serious reverse. Later information gave cause for general rejoicing.

A part of the German fleet left the security of the Kiel Canal, and, venturing into the open seas, engaged in conflict with the British warships. The losses on both sides were heavy, but the enemy was finally forced to retire, leaving eighteen of their craft at the bottom of the sea. Three British dreadnoughts were lost, the Queen Mary, the Invincible and the Indefatigable.

There has been no engagement of importance since the Jutland battle. The Germans still avoid a fair fight and their ventures into the open by isolated craft have always resulted in inglorious flight at sight of the British. The navy of the Empire has all these months of war really held the key to the situation. Robbed of its supremacy, all the triumphs of the Allies would go for nothing. England would long since have been reduced to subjection by the slow and grinding process of starvation alone, the Huns would have been in Canada, and probably on the soil of the United States, still bent on conquest.

What the Germans have attempted to do with their submarines—efforts that are now more than ever likely to fail—would have been easily accomplished with a navy that could rule the highways of the ocean.

The German navy at large could shell Canadian cities with impunity. It could stand off the American coast beyond range of the most powerful guns stationed in the fortresses along the eastern seaboard of the United States, and destroy every city from New York to the coast defences in Florida. The triumph of Prussianism would be complete if the German navy was as relatively powerful as the land forces.

Soldiers in Hospital.

(Exchange.)

Writing to the London Post, an attendant in a war hospital in England says: "The German in hospital is bad-tempered and fearful, perhaps because he is in a country strange to his ideas; The Frenchman is brave, adorably grateful, but apt to be pathetic; the Tommy is incurably frivolous, and from first to last looks upon being wounded as rather a joke."

Expecting Indemnities.

(New York Tribune.)

Everyone in Germany knows that if at the end of the war Germany does not gain great indemnities, the German empire is bankrupt, and the German recovery will be long, slow and difficult. Every German will have to share in this burden, and every German is vitally interested in escaping this burden if it is possible. Today the great majority of the German people believe that the Russian collapse has saved the German empire as a change of czars saved the Prussian kingdom. While they believe that there is no good in blinking the fact that the war must go on.

CHANGES MADE BY WAR

"Times have changed," commented the man with the early straw hat.

"You know it," responded the brakeman as he rose to go to the door and call the next station. "Time was when there were so many newspapers chokin' the aisles that a real economical fellow didn't have to buy a paper. He could just wait till some other fellow finished his sheet and threw it on the floor. But economical fellows have to buy their own papers now, because everybody takes newspapers home and saves 'em up so as to get that cent a pound or whatever it is."

"The cent is not much, but it's the principle of the thing that counts," said the traveler with the early straw hat.

"To be called a tightwad is to be complimented nowadadys," suggested the man who had become interested in the conversation in spite of himself. "Only they don't call a man a tightwad now. He is 'an economist' and every one takes off his hat to him."

"The ladies in the neighborhood don't gossip about each other the way they used to," declared the man with the long-suffering eyes, as he leaned forward and spoke to the crowd in a confidential tone. "In old times, away back yonder before the war, they used to talk about how mean their husbands were for not gettin' them fancy this and hifalutin' that, but now—"

"And it used to be," said the man with the early straw hat, "that the woman who could think up the most ways of spending money and the hubby who would stand for the most extravagance were the biggest toads in the puddle. But now the woman who can get the most potato skins, prune pits, butter boxes, nutshells and such as that eaten, and wear the most madeover clothes, is the hero.

"Why, a batch of potato skins in a lady's garbage can these days excites more unfavorable mutterings, condemnation and vicious criticism than—

"All that is very good," said a drummer who had not previously spoken. "Let's save the potato skins and the old papers and everything else, but, for heaven's sake, let's discriminate between economy and hoarding. To hoard food is a crime and to hoard money is another, and a senseless tightening of pursestrings is one of the menaces of the time."

"That's no joke," said the brakeman.

A HOME OR A SHOW PLACE ?

What is the primary use of a house—to impress one's friends with, or to establish a home in?

Molly, the Little Stenographer Lady, had been to call on a new acquaintance who is reputed to have a very beautiful house. Yet Molly was not enthusiastic.

"Yes, it was beautifully furnished," she admitted, "but there was something wrong with it. It seemed to me as if it was all for show instead of for use."

That's a good phrase, isn't it?

It pricks the bubble of that empty unalluring perfection of some houses.

I love to see things harmoniously chosen, clean, and in reasonably good order, but I hate to see comfort and homelikeness and utility completely subordinated to appearance.

Pincushions As Ornaments.

For instance, it seems perfectly absurd to me to see an elaborate pincushion with not a pin in it, and in front of it, like the sacrifice before an altar, a pin tray holding the pins. I always feel a wild desire to plant several pins in the unmarred surface of the sacred pincushion. Of course it's all right to put your pins in a pin tray, but why have a pincushion?

A lawyer friend told me that while waiting in the library of a newly wealthy client he noticed on the book shelves a book he had long wanted to consult, and started to do so. To his utter astonishment he found that there were no books at all, only pasteboard backs.

Evidently They Were Only For Show.

Another friend capped this story with a better. A wealthy customer of a book firm had ordered some costly and beautiful books which were to be put in a certain space in a built-in bookcase. Unfortunately the architect got the shelves too shallow and the customer forthwith ordered the books chopped off to fit!

Of course, these are exaggerated examples of the "for show and not for use" spirit, but I think one finds it in less degree in many homes.

Affected House and People.

Houses that are obviously gotten up with the idea of impressing visitors impress me the same way an affected person does.

I like natural people and natural houses best—pleasant, friendly, even a wee bit shabby, homes where the pincushions are meant to put pins in and the books are to read and the chairs are hospitable and the lights are well placed, and the red tape of order and immaculateness is not permitted to interfere with the great business of living and being happy.

A house-hunter saw an advertisement in the papers describing a charming house "within a stone's-throw of the staton."

He made an appointment, and in due course was escorted to the house in question, two miles away. When they reached the threshold, he turned to the agent suavely. "Would you mind introducing me," he whispered, "to the person who threw that stone?"

The bombing sergeant was accused of cowardice, but he was acquitted without a slur when he had told his story. Here it is:

"I am the bombing instructor, sir, and have always taught my men to count one, two, three, before throwing their bombs. During this particular engagement I pressed a young fellow into my service, handed him a bomb and told him to count three after pulling the pin. He drew it and started to count, 'Wu-wu-wu,— and I ran, sir."

German-American Will Work For a Republic.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Germans here have formed an organization called the Friends of the German Republic, whose object is the dethronement of Emperor William and the establishment of a German republic.

The appeal issued to all Germans and written in English and German says in part:

"Events and developments in Germany are clearly pointing to a near upheaval similar to that which was witnessed in Russia some months ago. Travelers recently arrived from Germany report rapid spreading of the republican movement.

"Things evidently are getting very uncomfortable for the German autocracy, though to the outside world it attempts to show a bold and unconcerned front. The Russian leaven is working in Germany."

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: I wonder why the market basket is not more popular in this country. Can it be that the price is beyond the average housekeeper's purse. I'm inclined to think it's for the want of a little boosting or someone to set the fashion.

The saving in paper would be tremendous. Very few articles would need to be wrapped, and it certainly is the dantier way of carrying home one's purchases than in an armful of paper packages of all sizes and shapes.

In England all households boast of at least one basket and often three or four. There is the small fancy one to take when milady goes to the bakery for a few cakes or a loaf of bread; then the large plain one to carry to the green grocery, and so on.

Here is a chance for some popular women to do their "bit" by starting this fashion, which would mean a great saving of paper. Some well known person has to start these things, it seems, then the masses will follow suit, the same as in dress.

Walt Mason's Melodies

It may be we won't use the gun to shoot the sawdust from the Hun. It maybe that there will be peace, that all the rioting will cease before we get ourselves in shape to festoon Germany with crepe. For this uncounted people hope, though unsupported by the dope, which indicates a long, long war ere Kaiser Bill's accounted for. And though we may not seek the field, all loaded down with sword and shield, we have a mighty task to do—to send the allies things to chew. They look to us for corn and wheat, for hams and jams and bread and meat. 'Tis ours to load our ships with grain and send them o'er the raging main, and every time we send a boat we get another German goat. So let us get back to the land and raise string beans to beat the band. And every time we raise a hill we take a fall from Kaiser Bill. The towns are full of idle gents who cannot fight worth 20 cents, who shake and sweat at war's alarms—they should be drafted for the farms. The loafer who sidesteps the foe must do his bit with plow or hoe.

Water Not High at Stoney Lake This Season

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE REPORTS PROGRESS AT POPULAR RESORT.

Police Magistrate Dumble returned this morning from a trip to his cottage at Stoney Lake and reports that the foliage is coming out very beautifully although a little backward. The water is not as high as in former years at this time and all the cottages seem to be in good shape.

Mr. Fisher of Toronto is building a new summer home at Kawartha Park, as is Mr. G. Walter Green.

Many of the owners of cottages are already at work on their gardens. Mr. Walter of Montreal is laying out his garden very beautifully and Mr. Sutherland of Toronto is laying out a garden with a view to carrying off a number of prizes at the next local agricultural exhibition.

The steamboat companies have put into operation a new regulation this year which Mr. Dumble thinks will work to the advantage of the cottagers. Where the owner or occupant of a cottage prefers to have the boat call at his own wharf in place of the public landing, the boat will do so adding $1.00 to the regular cost of a book of tickets. They will only call for book holders. This will be a great convenience to the people who have lots of freight to unload.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TETANUS.

TETANUS IS NOT a very common disease, but it is such a serious one and is so readily prevented by proper measures that some information about it will be of interest. It is generally known as lockjaw, because one of the early symptoms of the disease is a stiffness of the jaws. It is caused by a micro-organism called the tetanus bacillus, the natural home of which is in horse-manure or in well-manured soil or about farmyards.

One reads in the papers that this affection is frequently found among our soldiers in Flanders, who have been wounded. The reason for this is that the soil of Flanders is very thoroughly manured, and the mud and dust is liable to carry the infection to wounds and abrasions sustained by the men. Most germs are easily killed by free exposure to air and sunlight. The tetanus bacillus is readily destroyed in the same way, but few if any forms of life have greater resistance than the tetanus spore, which will resist streaming steam or boiling water for nearly an hour. That is why the disease remains indefinitely in the soil. Consequently great precautions are taken to prevent the soldier's wounds becoming infected, and if this occurs to forestall the infection. The first may in most cases be accomplished by painting the wound with iodine and applying the first-aid dressing carried by every man. But if the wound becomes infected, and indeed as a routine precaution, in case of all wounds at the front, a dose of Tetanus Antitoxin is given. This is a specific and trustworthy preventive if administered before the symptoms of tetanus show themselves. But tetanus antitoxin is also useful in the treatment of the disease by combining with and neutralizing the free toxin.

Like other infections tetanus has a period of incubation, which means the time it takes from when the wound is received until the disease shows itself. In tetanus this period is from six to fourteen days. If the dose of toxin received is large and the disease severe the time will be short. A six-day incubation is generally fatal. Commonly the disease comes on with a stiffness of the jaws at about nine or ten days after the wound, whether it be from a rusty nail, a bullet, or other object.

A rather remarkable case showing the efficiency of this treatment is shown in the case of Eddit di Palmo, an Italian boy residing in London, Ont. Running about barefooted last August this little lad drove a nail into his foot just back of the toes. Nine days later the lad could not swallow. His jaws were set. The parents were poor, but their love was just as strong for their boy as that of people in better circumstances. They appealed to a physician, who applied to the Medical Officer of Health, and he wired to the Provincial Board of Health for a supply of free Tetanus Antitoxin. Twenty-two thousand five hundred units were at once given, some into the muscles, some into the veins, and some into the spinal canal. This was repeated daily, and the boy recovered. The M. O. H. says: "Nothing saved him but the prompt and fearless action on the part of the attending physician, who thrust 93,000 units of antitoxin between the boy and death."

Had the parents known that a rusty, dirty nail may carry the germs of Tetanus and that 1,500 units of the antitoxin given at the time of the accident followed by a similar dose a week later would have prevented all the trouble, they doubtless would have attended to it. Now they say "Safety First."

While it is of the highest importance to use preventive doses of tetanus antitoxin, it is quite important that the wound should be thoroughly cleansed. Punctured or lacerated wounds should be thoroughly opened and every particle of foreign matter removed. Wounds containing garden earth, street dust, manure, or other material liable to contain the spores of tetanus should receive special consideration. They should be disinfected by the use of pure carbolic acid, which is painless and whose action may be checked by the application of alcohol.

Tetanus and other wound infections may be avoided in those exposed to accidents by cleanliness of body and clothing. A bath before a battle is said to have been required in the Japanese army and navy. Most wounds heal without any danger from tetanus, but where a wound is exposed to dirt it does not pay to take chances.

Less Beer Used.

According to the figures of the British Food Controller, the consumption of beer is steadily declining, while previous to the outbreak of the war there was a constant increase. In the financial year ending March 31, 1914, the production reached a total of 36,000,000 standard barrels. By the year ending March 31, 1916, the output had fallen to 30,300,000 barrels. By the restriction act of 1916 the output for the year ending March 31, 1917, must be 15 per cent. less than that of the year preceding, or a maximum output of about 26,000,000 standard barrels, and as the production for year following March 31, 1917, is to be only 70 per cent. of the current year, the figures should be about 18,200,000 standard barrels, or about 60 per cent. less than the last annual pre-war total.

Sir Adam Beck a Man With Ideas

NOT a "busy man"—that, after all is ordinary, understandable, human. Most men who are worth while are busy men. That's what makes them worth while. But a living dynamo, ceaseless in activity, limitless in energy, gripping, indomitable, inspiring—such is Adam Beck. The "Sir" seems out of place. Knighthoods clutter wealth, position, special interests, politics, and amiable mediocrity. Adam Beck is no show performer. He is all Man, real red-blooded, much-alive man. He is the property of the ordinary, everyday common folk. His motto is "pro bono publico."

There is nothing ordinary about Adam Beck. Because he is human he is unusual. He has wealth and position—yet none is closer to the masses. He is devoted to "the sport of Kings," breeds fine horses, shows them, and even rides and races them—but no wild-eyed Socialist rises to denounce him as a time-wasting aristocrat. He calls himself a Conservative—but Canadian public life has still to produce a more ruthless Radical.

He has a personality. People take a second look at him. His sound, well-knit, athletic figure is surmounted by a strong face. About the corners of the eyes are the crow's feet of laughter. His lips are tight pressed, as are those of every man of action, but there is an upward turn at the corners. They are very ready to break into a smile, but they can straighten with irrevocable and relentless decision when there is call to fight "with his back to the wall."

Beck's bigness—the mysterious magnetic quality about the man—goes deeper than mere attractive individuality. It rests, in the final analysis, on fundamentals. His convictions are himself. Years ago, early in life. He formed his own philosophy of public service. He determined for himself that humanity was more important to the State than property. The welfare of those whom Lincoln described as the "common people" loomed larger in his eyes than the smug, profit-accumulating complaisance of the Big Interests, dominated as well as spelled with the capital "I." He is a manufacturer, and he turned his factories into profit-sharing-with-the-employees concerns. He threw himself into municipal service. He launched projects for pure drinking water and fought the white plague by establishing sanitaria. Once, twice, thrice he was chosen Mayor of his home city of London. Then the people sent him to the Legislature.

Here came his greatest work. He was never a conventionalist. He was a born trail-blazer. During the latter part of his municipal experience he had associated himself with an embryo movement to secure Niagara power for the people. One morning shortly after he had been made a member of the first Whitney Cabinet he strode into the Press Room at the Provincial Parliament Buildings and invited the newspapermen to come to his room and confer with him. At that "conference" he did most of the talking. He had dreamed a dream, and with burning earnestness he talked for nearly an hour. When he finished, the Hydro-electric system, almost as it is known to-day, had been painted in prophetic picture. While the newspapermen were still sitting silent, awed by what appeared then to be the daring and the immensity of the project, Adam Beck rose.

"That," he commented briefly, "is the project I propose to lay before the Prime Minister and the Cabinet. It will go through. It is a people's project; there is no party politics in it. I want the counsel, criticism, and co-operation of the press." It was perhaps the first occasion when a Minister of the Crown appealed directly to the press even before taking his plans into the Council chamber.

The story of how that dream has been realized is recent history. There were times of up-hill tugging; there were disappointments and discouragements; there were occasions when the man had to "fight with his back to the wall." But the man and his work triumphed; the dream came true; the vision became reality.

Three qualities have stood him in good stead. He is thorough; he is practical; he is enthusiastic. If Adam Beck were appointed a commissioner to investigate microbes, he would find out more practical things about germs than a professor of bacteriology. Then he would give leadership to a health campaign that would hum. His campaigns are cyclonic. His energy is dynamic. He dashes from meeting to meeting, imparting his fire to each audience, sometimes five and six in a night. He is patient and painstaking with honest doubt, but ruthless and relentless toward organized opposition. Back of his earnest advocacy he has two big advantages—he has "made good," and the people believe him to be "straight."

Just how much of his public success is justly attributable to the loyal and charming lady who presides over his home and the little daughter who is his almost constant companion on occasions when "father is free" cannot be told; but those who know how eagerly Sir Adam heads for his home whenever opportunity comes, and how buoyantly reinvigorated he returns to public service, attribute much to the inspiration of the hours at "Headley." For Sir Adam is a "home man."—The Globe.

TIPS FOR BRIDES.

How the Powers Are Fashioning New Trousseaux.

The couturiers are busy preparing costumes not only for the trade, but the most interesting of all customers—the bride or the future bride—and this work is as important as for a prominent actress, for the costumes receive almost as much attention.

One suit of silk serge, combined with self colored charmeuse, had an interestingly cut jacket, the blouse front continued over this to form a cape, while the skirt showed a hem and panel down the front of the serge. Beige was the color of this charming suit.

An interesting feature noticed on a suit created by Redfern was the finish of the neck and sleeves. Deep gauntlet cuffs were found of charmeuse, while the tight fitting part of the heavy silk serge was braided. There was a high collar with a turnover of white linen, and the epaulet effect over the shoulders was carried out with braid, on the otherwise severe Norfolk jacket. The skirt was formed of alternate plaited panels of charmeuse and silk.

That boleros of various descriptions are to be worn for spring is an accepted fact. One recently seen was most effective, for the collar cape, which hung down to the hips in the back, was a distinctive feature. A wee peplum extended below the cape collar several inches, while the front ended at the waist proper. Wee tabs on each side of the front looked like pockets.

There is hardly a doubt that has not been quelled by now that the short jacket will be very smart for spring. Short, chic, boxy affairs they are, too, and very good for the slender figure. There appear on several imported models noticeably high collars, but whether they will be worn closed or open is a disputed question. There are also to be seen several very high turnover affairs, but these are usually worn open in the front and are at least comfortable.

SMALL STYLE.

A Thin Frock For Wee Girls Is on Your List.

White lawn made over a pale blue silk slip to bring out the tucking and hand embroidery makes a fascinating five-year-old size. Flat collar, cuffs and belt have scalloped edges, and surely the rosebud ruche of a hat is most ultra.

NEED OUR FARMERS.

Sir Arthur Lee Talks About English Farming.

"Five thousand skilled Canadian farmers on English soil would go a long way toward combating Germany's plan to starve us into submission through her submarines," Sir Arthur Lee, head of the newly-formed food production department, recently told the Associated Press correspondent. "I told you recently," Sir Arthur continued, "that we intended to bring from America some two thousand tractor ploughs for night plowing. We need the skilled farmers to supplement them."

Sir Arthur Lee was British military attache with the United States army during the Spanish-American war and later military attache at the British Embassy at Washington. He has seen service in the present war. His present post is an outgrowth of the intensified submarine warfare begun on February 1; Sir Arthur is charged with the gigantic task of making every available foot of soil produce its maximum amount of food.

"I hope that we may be able to attract to these shores at least five thousand skilled farmers from the United States," said Sir Arthur, "We will, of course, get some skilled agricultural help from Canada—from the great north-west—and we are already benefitting to some extent by the labor of Canadian farmers who have come over to fight for us. But we cannot have too many. Skilled farm labor is our crying need at this moment."

Sir Arthur said the introduction of the American tractors on the large scale contemplated would also witness the more universal employment of woman on the land. "I hope to see," he said, "as many of our women cultivating the soil as I saw French women on the land of glorious France, during one of my recent visits. There I saw nothing but women. They were everywhere. The picture spoke volumes for France's efforts. Our women are just as patriotic and will fill the gaps on the land if only they are shown the way."

1812 and 1917.

Canadians who have noted the fact that fifty votes were cast against war in the House of Representatives should consider the situation of the United States in 1812. At that time Uncle Sam had disputes with Great Britain, and thought it would be a good opportunity to seize Canada. They are going to war with Germany to-day by votes of 82 to 6 in the Senate and 373 to 50 in the House. In 1812 with a much smaller membership, they entered the Napoleonic war against Great Britain by a Senate vote of 19 to 13, and a House vote of 79 to 49. At that time Pennsylvania was the only Northern State solidly for war. All Southern and Western States, except Kentucky, were enthusiastically for war, and, strangely enough, most of the Northeastern States, in behalf of whose commerce the war was supposed to be waged, were opposed to it, favoring war with France or peace. In 1812, as now, all Americans could not agree upon their enemy. The recent vote against war was thrown in part by men who prefer war with Great Britain to war with Germany. When we add to these the professional pacifists, who want war with nobody, and the few who are in open sympathy with Germany, or, for reasons of demagogy, believe that there is a disloyal German vote that is worth cultivating, it becomes plain enough that the people as represented in Congress are much more united to-day than they were a century ago, when, as a weak but valiant nation, they entered an earlier world-war in the hope of consolidating the continent, only to find Canada intensely loyal, French and British citizens alike.

Brewing Tea.

Tea improperly made is capable of doing so much harm to the digestive and nervous systems that emphasis must be laid on the necessity of properly making this infusion. The water should be freshly boiled and the teapot heated so that the water will be maintained at the boiling point. The tea is measured out, put in the teapot and the requisite amount of boiling water poured over it. It should then be allowed to stand on the table, not the range, for two or three minutes, after which it should be strained into another teapot for the table and serve. Unless the tea leaves are strained off the infusion is apt to continue for some time, thus extracting the tannic acid and the bitter principles. In addition, prolonged infusion dissipates the volatile oil to which much of the fragrance of a good cup of tea is due.

The Unhappy Lot of Venice

LOVERS of Venice will wonder how fares this city of dreams exposed to the air-attacks of a neighboring enemy. We have heard of the damage done to the Scalzi Church and the destruction of a ceiling fresco by Tiepolo, representing the "Translation of the Holy House." This occurred on October 20, 1915. But it gives a shock to learn from an authority like Horatio F. Brawn, the English writer and biographer of John Addington Symonds, that Venice has been attacked from the air twenty-one times since May 24, 1915. There has been, he says, "a crescendo in the ferocity of the attack and the size of the bomb." Some attempts have been made at specific points, like the arsenal, the railway station, and the cotton-mill, but the height at which the airplanes fly makes the incidence of the bombs a matter of chance. So far none of the monumental palaces have been hit; many private houses have been wrecked, but the churches have been the worst sufferers, with such of their works of art as are not removable. Last August the city was furiously attacked in revenge for the fall of Gorizia. Incendiary bombs were used and many fires followed. We read in Mr. Brown's letter to The London Times:

"The roof of S. Maria Formosa, the Shrine of Palma's Sta. Barbara, was completely burned, except for a fragment over the north transept. The bombardment of the 9th was followed by another on the 10th, at 10 p.m., when the lantern of S. Pietro di Castello was struck and burned, and the cupola injured.

"On the 13th and 16th of the same month there were further attacks, during which a bomb fell outside the wall of the sacristy, near the foot of the Campanile of S. Francesco della Vigna. The bomb exploded in the ground, blew in the sacristy wall, cracked the foundations, and made a crater at least six feet deep and ten feet wide, now filled with water. These August attacks wrought the greatest havoc; but since then a midnight raid on September 11 sent a bomb through the southern clearstory wall of SS. Giovanni e Paolo; it crossed the church diagonally, exploded in the air, drove a hole in the northern clearstory wall, blew out all the glass in the church—Vivarini's great windows had already been removed for safety—damaged Piazzetta's ceiling, representing S. Dominic in glory, and, by the violent displacement of the air, stripped every scrap of plaster from the walls. On September 4, an incendiary bomb had fallen in the Piazza, only a few yards from the facade of S. Marco.

"This progressive menace naturally roused great alarm for the safety of such monuments as the Ducal Palace and the Basilica. The design of the Ducal Palace, a lower and upper arcade carrying a heavy block of masonry above, renders it peculiarly liable to fatal injury should an angle-column, or indeed any column, of the arcade be blown in. The angles have now been completely encased and buttressed in brick, and the need to protect all the abundant and projecting sculpture has given rise to some engaging episodes in these protecting reenforcements. The Judgment angle is now a round tower, the Adam and Eve angle a square tower, with angle-brackets, the Noah angle a short, heavy tower, with sloping roof; each arch of the lower arcade is supported by, and nearly filled in with, brickwork strengthened at the keystones by inner and outer buttresses; the lighter arcade of the second floor is fortified by heavy balks of timber; in short, it looks as though the Ducal Palace were trying to turn itself into some medieval castle, the great keep of the Este family at Ferrara, for example. The bronze horses from the facade of S. Marco are stabled in the Atrium, and covered with sand-bags."

"The facade has already disappeared behind a huge screen of double balks of timber, filled in with innumerable sand-bags; the outer face of the screen is further protected against fire by slabs of eternite. Inside, the church, on sunless days, is almost pitch-dark; it takes some time before the eye can distinguish the huge piles of sand-bags that smother altar, ambo, pulpit, and font, the swaddled figures on the chancel-screen, the muffled columns that seem dwarfed and shrunken and misshapen, and vaguely recall the proportions of some early Egyptian temple. The inner, shallow cupolas of brick carry the mosaics. It is proposed to spread a screen of thick cloth over their whole surface, at a distance of five inches or six inches, thus forming a cushion of air that, it is hoped, would lessen the impact of an explosion should a shell fall inside the church. Meantime the windows of the cupolas have been removed, and, during a raid, windows and doors are all left open. But to prevent rain from entering the church, the windows have been filled with screens of rough, brownish cloth stretched on iron frames hinged so as to fall outward. The effect on the interior is most surprising. When the sun is shining the light coming through the cloth is of a soft, diffused yellow, a light brighter, perhaps, than the light transmitted through the alabaster windows of such a church as St. Antimo, in Tuscany. This glowing light exactly hits the key of the mosaics, which catch it, reflect it, are illumined by it, till each cupola shimmers and gleams like an inverted saucer of molten gold. It is a revelation of the mosaics of San Marco; they have never been seen like this before."

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 8 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

The Canadian Indian.

It is stated that Canada's Indian population, so long considered a burden on the white population of the country, is now almost supporting itself. Not ten per cent. of the Indians of Canada now remain to be supported by the rest of the population. In Ontario and Quebec the Indians are completely self-supporting, the most of them, like those in Caughnawagna Reserve, being a very good type of citizen and furnishing many skilled workers. The Department of Indian Affairs contributes nothing towards their maintenance except perhaps to help a few of the old people in the reserves. In 1910 the Blackfoot Reserve Indians sold a part of their reserve, and with the money thus obtained went into farming. They have adopted modern methods, using traction engines and ploughs.

To Kill More Wolves.

The bounty upon wolves will have to be increased. The Fish and Game Committee of the Ontario House recently discussed the need for a more vigorous campaign against wolves. Dr. Robb, of Algoma, pointed out that about ten deer were killed by each wolf in a year, and that unless something was done to keep down the packs the deer would in time be wiped out. It was thought that an increase in the bounty would encourage hunters to set more traps and poison for wolves. The committee also favored a change to allow the killing of skunks, foxes, bears, and wolves without a license.

Hon. Mr. Macdiarmid, chairman of the committee, has promised to look into a complaint that Americans were allowed to fish for pickerel in the St. Lawrence a month before residents of the Dominion. Dr. Jessop, of St. Catharines, recommended year-round close season for English pheasants in Niagara district. They had nearly all been destroyed. Dr. Jessop also favored a license fee for guns in order to curb foreigners and young boys.

A Russian Admiral.

Captain John L. Read, a Canadian hailing from Prince Edward Island, has charge of the entire ice-breaking fleet of the Russian Government. He holds the rank of Admiral in the service of the great Slav people, and his work is of the utmost importance. The Russians have to depend on ice-breakers to keep their ports open, and that is the work done by Captain Read. It is expected that after the end of the war the Russians will have Constantinople, and then their ice-breaking fleet will not be of such vital importance.

The Largest Living Man.

Rory McKenzie, known in the varieties in the United States as "Donald McGregor," the largest living man, comes from St. Mary's, Ont. He stands over eight feet in height and weighs 26 pounds. He has been an entertainer on the stage for some years.

ONTARIO BABE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Jarvis Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured Her Delicate Child When Nothing Else Could

Mrs. Jarvis, Box 286, Penetang P.O., Ontario, writes: "It is a pleasure to tell you what Dr. Cassell's Tablets have done for my baby. When only five months old he fell ill, and though I had medical advice for him he got worse. I tried several special foods, but none of them would stay on his stomach, and he became so thin that he seemed just skin and bone. He only weighed 10 pounds, and we never thought he could live. But chancing to hear of Dr. Cassell's Tablets I got some for baby, and am thankful I did. He is a bonny boy now, quite cured, and weighs 26 pounds at twelve months old."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul St., Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis, Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. POSSIBILITIES OF OUR CARIBBEAN EMPIRE

Amazing Areas and Trade Opportunities of West Indies and Adjacent British Territories

In Britain's West Indian Empire British Guiana is incomparably the largest unit and covers 90,277 square miles. Next in size comes Birtish Honduras, with 7,562, after which rank Jamaica, 44,50, the Bahamas, 4,424 The area of the other colonies is: Trinidad and Tobago, 1,974 square miles; Dominica, 304; St. Lucia, 233; Antigua, Barbuda, Redonda, 170; Turks and Caicos, 169; Barbadoes, 166; St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla, 152; St Vincent, 150; Grenada, 133; Virgin Islands, 50; Montserrat, 32. The total area of all the above is 110,249 square miles. If we remove British Guiana and British Honduras, the islands, which are, strictly speaking, the British West Indies, are only 12,410 square miles.
